Drooping—Tired—Weary

You Feel Depressed, Dragged Out, and Sort of "All Gone" —Shake Off That Tired Feeling, Get Well and Strong, Fortify Your Nerves, Nourish Your Blood.

FERROZONE

You are getting pale and thin. You're dragged down with a "don't care" feeling that makes life most unhappy. Your strength is fleeting away, and weakness is creeping in. Every day your chances for cure becomes smaller.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 228 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.

(Signed) "H. A. THURSTON."

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone; it will surely make you well.

BUILD UP WITH FERROZONE!

Ferrozone Makes the Weak Strong—the Sick Well.

CAUTION! Be on your guard against the substitutor who urges something "just as good." Get FERROZONE when you ask for it. Other tonics are not so good as FERROZONE, which is guaranteed to cure. Price 50c per box of 50 chocolate coated tablets. Sold by all reliable dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ontario.

RUNNING

Four runners will tackle the Hamilton-Toronto grind for the Mulqueen cup next Wednesday. In addition to Sandy Begley, Will Thomas and T. J. McAughey, the maitland Lacrosse Club will have a starter. He is Andy McKennedy, a plugger, whose friends claim he knows not when to quit. McKennedy is 21 years of age, and weighs 125 pounds. He ran in the Ward Marathon, Hamilton Herald, and R. C. B. C. Marathon races last year and always finished with plenty of reserve. McKennedy is a popular lad, and if he wins the Maitlands will make a loud noise. Billy Hogg, another North Ender, is training for the run, but his entry has not yet been received by the cup trustees. —Toronto Star.

TURF

COURTOWN II OUT.

Courtown II., the pride of the Dyment stable, the hope of the north and favorite of the Woodbine rail birds, has broken down hopelessly and will be sent to the farm at Barrie for a year.

The three-year-old son of Courtown and Lady Berkeley did his work yesterday morning in the mud apparently to the satisfaction of trainers and onlookers. Lorne Thompson had the leg up for the trial on account of the condition of the track, the colt being of so exceptionally playful nature. Courtown II. pulled up apparently all right, there being no indication of lameness. But soon after entering his stall the trainer noticed that the off front leg was filling. The injured member was at once placed in the tub, without improvement.

Johnny Dyment was naturally disconsolate over the unfortunate circumstance, Courtown II he considered the best plater he ever trained, and the first that ever went wrong in working out for the guineas. So well did Mr. Dyment think of Court- II. that he took him over the Canadian circuit as a two-year-old, giving him several starts. The colt's best performance under silk was his second to Johnny Blage in a five-furlong dash at Hamilton last fall.

The Barrie stable has Excise still left in the plate. He is by CannieBoy —Flying Bess and unless showing a good trial will scarcely face the starter.

Provided the Driving Park track is dry enough, a good string of steppers will likely work out there on Monday.

BASEBALL

Maddock, Burns, O'Brien, Murphy, Edmunds and other members of the Peterborough baseball team had a workout at Central Park this afternoon, but were forced to quit on account of the rain. The grounds were in a pretty slippery condition.

CITY LEAGUE EXECUTIVE.

A meeting of the City Baseball League Executive will be held at the Y. M.C.A. on Monday night at 7.30 o'clock. All the members are requested to be present at that time.

WILL DELIVER TWO ADDRESSES

President Falconer, who was recently appointed president of the University of Toronto, will visit Peterborough on May 21st. In the evening he will deliver an address on a subject of general interest in the hall of the Conservatory of Music at which the public are cordially invited to be present. He comes here under the joint auspices of the Teachers' Institutes of the city and the county and will speak to the teachers especially in the afternoon. As he holds one of the most honorable positions in Canada and is a speaker of force and eloquence, it is hoped that the people of the city will take this opportunity of seeing and hearing him.

WRESTLING

A RECORD HANDICAP.

About the quickest handicap match ever pulled off in Peterborough, or, for that matter, any place else, was held at the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon, when George McDonald, and a young man by the name of Stewart, came together. The conditions called for McDonald throwing his man five times in five minutes and he succeeded in doing so.

SLEEPING DRAUGHTS AND SOOTHING MIXTURES

A wise mother will never give her little one a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except upon the advice of a competent doctor, who has seen the child. All these things contain deadly poison. When you give your baby or young child Baby's Own Tablets you have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic, and therefore cannot possibly do harm—but always do good. Mrs. Geo. M. Kempt, Carleton Place, Ont., says:—"I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby since he was two weeks old. He was a very small thin baby, but thanks to the Tablets he is now a big, fat, healthy boy." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The G.T.P. is planning to make model municipalities of the town sites along its route.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

BUSINESS WAS ALL COMPLETED

Statement of Missionary Institute Will be Published in a Few Days

The committees in connection with the Missionary Institute met last night at the YWCA. Business in connection with the Institute was wound up. A detailed statement will be published in the course of a few days.

RALLY TO-NIGHT

The first of a series of rallies in which all electors are requested to take part, will be held in the Conservative Club rooms this evening at eight o'clock sharp. It is expected that there will be a good turn-out of "old-timers." Rallies will be held each Saturday evening till election day, June 8th. Central committee rooms, 418 George street, now open.

RURAL DEAN'S COMMISSION

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt has received from His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto, the commission appointing Rural Dean of Northumberland and Peterborough, assenting thereby to his election to the Ruridecanal Chapter.

CONCERT POSTPONED

Last night was a disappointment to the committee having charge of the concert and entertainment at George street Sunday school, and as a consequence of the unfavorable weather the event had to be postponed. The downpour of rain kept many away and it was thought better to hold the programme and give it on another date than to run it off to an audience of only a few. Further announcement will be made in a few days. The friends who had paid admission received tickets good for the evening.

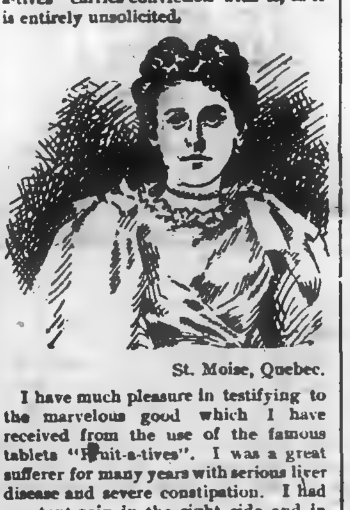
Nothing Did Good

Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

Madame Rioux is the wife of M. Joe. Rioux, a wealthy manufacturer of lumber in St. Moise. Madame Rioux is greatly esteemed in her home town and her testimonial in favor of "Fruit-a-tives" carries conviction with it, as it is entirely unsolicited.



St. Moise, Quebec.

I have much pleasure in testifying to the marvelous good which I have received from the use of the famous tablets "Fruit-a-tives". I was a great sufferer for many years with serious liver disease and severe constipation. I had constant pain in the right side and in the back and these pains were severe and distressing. My digestion was very bad, with frequent headaches, and I became greatly run down in health. I took many kinds of liver pills and liver medicine without any benefit, and I was treated by several doctors but nothing did me any good, bloating continued. As soon as I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" I began to feel better, the dreadful pains in the right side and back were easier and when I had taken three boxes I was practically well. 150

(Sgd) MADAME JOSEPH RIOUX.

"Fruit-a-tives" — or "Fruit Liver Tablets" are sold by dealers at 50c a box —6 for $2.50—or will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THIS PLACE IS CERTAINLY AN EYESORE

East Side of Water Street Along the "Goose Pond" is Very Unsightly Spot

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," but there is one place at least in Peterborough that is neither a beauty and will never be a joy, as long as it is left in this present condition. The reference is to that portion of Water street which fronts on the "goose pond." A more insightly spot could not be imagined. The side of the street and shore of the pond are being used for a dumping ground and a beautiful supply of ashes, tin cans, and rubbish of all sorts has accumulated. The effect is very striking though far from pleasing.

A prominent citizen remarked today that the city should have some other place for a dumping ground. That point on Water street is too prominent and an eye-sore to the many that pass that way and also to those who live on the west side of the street in that vicinity. He said that the bank should be properly graded, ground spread on it and grass seed sowed on it. If it were properly attended to, the place would be a beauty spot instead of an eyesore in the near future.

IMMIGRATION TRAIN PASSED THROUGH CITY

This Afternoon --- Three Young Men Got off Here --Positions on Farms Awaited Them

The "Empress of Britain" arrived at Quebec yesterday with a large number of immigrants on board. An immigrant train passed through the city this afternoon. Only three got off here and at once proceeded to the office of Mr. G. H. Howson, the local immigration agent, where he had positions on farms waiting for them. They were all single men, industrious and sturdy looking fellows. The other young Englishmen were placed on farms this morning by Mr. Howson. The demand by farmers for assistants is great and exceeds the supply.

Plate candidates I do not know much about, but of the original entry Shimonese and Archie Whyte look the best, the latter having been started several times as a year old, but it is doubtful if he can last the mile and a quarter. Jockey Mulcahey will have the mount on either one of these two in the race.

Newguile, the Powers Bros.' candidate has been showing up well in his trials, he having ran a mile in 1.02 on Tuesday. His chances are not considered very bright, however, by the wise ones.

Old Wicklight should not be overlooked. Although this is his third start for the guineas, he was never in better condition than he is at the present time. The veteran trainer, Charlie Phair, has been slowly preparing him for the big race and the big fellow is taking to his work kindly. He will be ridden by either Foley or Jimmy Egan. Half-a-ate, the Orpen plater, is also under the care of Phair. He will likely be guided by Charlie Phair, jr., who will do the lightweight riding for Orpen.

These, with perhaps Hillhurst and Table Bay are the only ones that look to have a show, but who knows, some rank outsider may slip in and cop de prize.

MULDOON ARRIVES

Young Muldoon, the New York grappler, who meets Art Edmunds, of Toronto, at the Labor Temple tonight, arrived in town yesterday, at noon and is staying at the Tremont House. Muldoon beat Young Sharkey in New York Tuesday, and was to have met Joe Wagner in Buffalo last night, but Wagner was ill. He took on Jim Sheehan, whom he beat easily.—Toronto Star.

ABUNDANCE OF FUNDS FOR THE OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

The following interesting article is from last night's Toronto News:

While dispatches from the United States state that the American Olympic Committee is away behind in the amount needed to defray the expenses of the American delegation to the Olympic Games, things are quite the reverse on this side of the line. Usually the financial question is the bugaboo of such undertakings, but the Olympic Committee is worrying least over this part of their duties. In all about $35,000 is necessary to send all the men who should go and of this amount nearly $20,000 has already been subscribed, made up as follows:

Dominion Government grant	$15,000
Ontario Government grant	3,000
British Columbia Government grant	1,000

In addition to this, different amounts have or will be sent to swell the total from such affairs as the recent Olympic Carnival, held here last month. The Manitoba Government is expected to contribute a substantial amount, and any day an announcement from this quarter may be expected. The committee is also counting on a substantial amount coming from the gate receipts in connection with the different Olympic try-outs held throughout the country. From all this it will be seen that the team will not be hampered for want of funds.

COMMITTEE HAVE ENOUGH FUNDS

Speaking to the News this morning Dr. D. Bruce Macdonald of the Olympic Committee, said, "There will be sufficient money to send all who should go but not enough for all who want to go." This statement sizes up the situation to a nicety. The team to go should be composed only of men or teams who are known to have a chance to win. There are sufficient men of this calibre in the country, and the powers that be should have no difficulty in sending a creditable representation.

WILL CONSIDER TIMES MADE

In regard to the coming trials, a gentleman who is one of the leading sporting authorities in Canada said yesterday that the method to be employed in selecting the men would not be to necessarily send the winners of the events, but the times made by them would be taken into consideration, and on this point would depend largely whether the winners would be sent or not. If this method is followed there is not a doubt of a good team being sent.

BALL SEASON IN LINDSAY

Will Open on the 18th—Two Games a Week Will be Played

The baseball season will start in real earnest a week from Monday, when the first game in the Junior League will be played off. The following night the first game in the Senior League takes place. The schedule for the seniors has been arranged or partially so, and all it needs is the signature of the President to make it ready to print. With two games a week and starting the third week in May, it means that the season will end sometime before the last of July, as a matter of fact, very little past the middle of that month. It looks as if there were month. It looks as if there were ample time for a triple schedule.—Lindsay Post.

SHOWED FORM WITH WILSON

That Art. Edmunds of Toronto, the pocket Hercules who is to meet Young Muldoon of New York, at the Labor Temple Saturday night is in grand form for the big go was amply proven at Peterboro last night when he undertook to throw Jack Wilson, a Peterboro welterweight, in 15 minutes or forfeit $25. He simply toyed with his heavy opponent. He gave him a dozen good holds and then freed himself, finally picking up the Oatmeal City boy up and slamming him down for a fall in eight minutes.—Toronto News.

GOTCH AFTER THE THREE OF THEM

Des Moines, Ia., May 8.—Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the the world, has issued a challenge offering to meet the three best men of Europe in this country in three succeeding months, meeting the first in September, the second in October and the third in November.

Gotch named Hackenschmidt as the first of the three, Zybsco as the second, and any man whom European experts pick as the third.

Gotch does not plan to take part in another big match for some time. His contract with a theatrical company extends to June, after which he will go to Chicago and then retire to his Humboldt farm for a few weeks' rest.

THE RING

Milwaukee, May 8.—Ad. Wolgast, of Milwaukee, got the decision over Frankie Neil, of Chicago, in a sixteen-round bout before the Green Valley Boxing Club. It was Wolgast's fight all the way through, the Californian getting an even break in the sixth only. Neil was forced to cover up in the ninth and was all but out in the last round.

WALKING

BASEBALL

TO PLAY AT LINDSAY

Mr. A. E. Long, Peterboro, has accepted a position with the Horn Woollen Mills. He is a baseball player and has signed an Oriental certificate.

LANDRY FOR PETERBOROUGH

Barrie Advance: Bill Landry, who is now in Peterborough, has signed to play third base with the Athletic Baseball club of that city. He is considered a valuable acquisition to the team. When Bill left here he promised to arrange to bring the Peterborough club to Barrie for a midsummer game.

HARRY SLOANES, HERE

Harry Sloanes, who played first base for the Widnawakes last year, and who is now located in Peterboro will figure on the line-up of one of the city league teams in that city. He will play under Manager Joe Dwyer, also a former Lindsayite.—Lindsay Warder.

TURF NOTES

The Turf Club's matinee to be held here on the 25th of May should be the most successful event of its character ever pulled off in this city. Dr. Johnston, the president of the Peterborough Turf Club and Mr. C. R. Nixon the secretary have both worked hard for the welfare of the matinee and a big and fast field of horses in the different events is anticipated. The bills of the matinee have been issued and preparations and arrangements have been made.

Any persons wishing to enter their horses are requested to send their entries to Secretary Nixon as soon as possible.

THE CLASSES

The classes are as follows;

Event	Purse.
Named race	$50.00
2.30 class	50.00
2.18 class	100.00

The entrance fee is 5 per cent, and 5 per cent additional from winners. Five are to enter and four to start. The money will be divided in the following percentages, 50, 25, 15 and 10. Track Association rules are to govern.

BIG FIELD

The following big field is likely to start in the named race.

CROCKER AND SHERRING ARE APPOINTED

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, May 9.—The Olympic Committee have appointed J. H. Crocker, of Toronto, as manager of the Canadian track team and W. Sherring, of Hamilton, as coach. The team will be selected on June 6th, and will sail for England on the 12th. It will consist of fifteen men.

T. Ferguson of Peterboro' Thrown Twice in Brantford Last Night --C.A.A.U. After Contestants

At Brantford last night T. Ferguson, of Peterborough, took part in the 115 pound wrestling contest. The affair was held without C.A.A.U. sanction, and all those taking part will be thrown out.

Wilson was up against H. McDonald, of Hamilton, and was thrown twice.

TRAINING HARD FOR THE TRIALS

Simpson and Wilson Getting into Shape—Both are in Good Trim

Fred. Simpson is training hard for his distance events at the Olympic trials and has the Y.M.C.A. for his training quarters. Dick Baker is acting as trainer for the classy Hiawatha runner. Fred is feeling in the best of trim and is taking great care of himself.

Ernie Wilson is also working out for the races. Both boys know they will be up against choice fields and have no intention of taking any chances whatever against their crack opponents. The local sports look upon them to make creditable showings and they are certainly worthy of every encouragement.

BOUT ON HORSEBACK

An unique wrestling bout takes place at the Star Theatre, Toronto, to-night. Private Beaton and W. Nelson will wrestle on horseback.

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realize the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

EDMUNDS WILL FIGHT

In Brantford Wednesday night, Tommy Daly of Toronto defeated Ernie "Cross" Sutton of Toronto, in a five round fight, and Charlie Christie defeated Alf Walsh of Brantford, at 122 pounds. Daly says he will fight any man in Canada, at 128 pounds. Art Edmunds will fight him if any club will put up a decent purse.

CONCERT GIVEN IN ST. PETER'S HALL

Last Evening by the Foresters---An Excellent Progrmme

An enjoyable concert was held last evening in St. Peter's hall under the auspices of the Catholic Order of Foresters. It was given as a benefit to two of the society's members who are at present ill. Despite the inclement weather a large number turned out. An interresting programme was given, Rev. Father Galvin acting as chairman. Each number was excellent and was greeted with rounds of applause.

The programme was as follows;
Instrumental duet —Misses Doris.
Vocal solo—Mr E Crowe.
Mandolin trio and piano — Messrs Cranfield, Coo, Brightman, and Theobald.
Vocal solo—Mr Jas O'Brien.
Instrumental duct —Miss E Kelly, and Master C McIntyre.
Recitation— Miss C. White.
Banjo solo—Mr. F. Clarke.
Instrumental solo—Miss D. Clancy
Recitation—Mr Geo. Lynch.
Vocal solo—Miss M O'Dette.
Vocal solo—Mr. Chambers.
God Save the King.

The Foresters desire to thank the Misses Doris and Messrs. Dickenson and Theobald for their services as accompanists and all others who took part, thus making the concert enjoyable and successful.

C.P.R. EMPLOYEES ARE ORGANIZED

Will be Known as Federation of of Railway Employees

Montreal, May 8—A new labor organization has been perfected among the CPR. employees. The General Committee representing the mechanical organizations of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has been in session for several days, has succeeded in uniting their organizations between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The new organization will be known as the Federation of Railway Employees, and takes in fully 5000 men.

The principal demands will include a nine-hour work day and uniform rules and regulations. In the west it was said the nine-hour day has been in operation for some eight or ten months, but on the eastern section of the railway ten hours constituted a day's work.

Negotiations were opened with the officials of the company today but it is understood that no action can be taken until after the session of the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration under the Lemieux law, which will meet in Winnipeg in a few days. If the report of the board is unfavorable a general strike may be declared.

SKIN ERUPTIONS AND PIMPLES

Disappear Under a Teatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

There can be health and vigor only when the blood is rich and red. There are thousands of young men just approaching manhood who need the rich, red blood that only Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can make. They have no energy, tire out at the least exertion and who feel by the time they have done their day's work as though the day was a week long. In some cases there is a further sign of danger in the pimples and disfiguring eruptions which break out on the face. These are certain signs that blood is out of order and that a complete breakdown may result. In this emergency Dr Williams' Pink Pills is the medicine these young men should take. These pills actually make rich, red blood. They clear the skin of pimples and eruptions and bring health, strength and energy.

Here is the experience of Adolphe Rolland, of St. Jerome, Que. who is a young man 19 years of age, who says: "For more than a year I suffered from general weakness and I gradually grew so weak that I was forced to abandon my work as a clerk. My appetite failed me, I had occasional violent headache and I began to suffer from indigestion. I was failing so rapidly that I began to fear that consumption was fastening itself upon me. Our family doctor treated me but I did not gain under his care. I was in a very discouraged state when a friend from Montreal came to see me. He strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and inside of three weeks I began to feel better, my appetite began to improve and I seemed to have a feeling of new courage I continued the pills till I had taken ten boxes and I am now enjoying the best health I ever had. My cure surprised many of my friends who began to regard me as incurable and I strongly advise other young men who are weak to follow my example and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial." Bad blood is the cause of all common diseases like anaemia, headaces, neuralgia, rheumatism sciatica indigestion all nervous troubles, general weakness and the special ailments that only women folk know Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the one cure, because they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. They change the bad blood into good blood, and thus bring health strength and energy. You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HARD TIMES OUT BY GOLDEN GATE

Former Peterborough Man Says That Money is Scarce There

A former Peterborough man, now residing in California, writes that the people here do not know what hard times mean. Money is so close out there that it is hard to get hold of any of it. Many of the poor in large cities are being fed in soup kitchens. In large stores clerks formerly on good salaries have been reduced to about a half just to keep them alive till better things happen. It looks, however, as if times are getting better.

MARKET TO-DAY WELL ATTENDED

The market this morning was largely attended, there being a great many farmers in the city to-day. The prices remain about the same as they have been for several weeks. Butter sold at from 28 to 30 cents, while eggs went at 15 and 16 cents per dozen. Fowl sold at from $1.00 to $1.20.

On the outside market the first green stuff of the season was offered for sale. Green onions sold at three bunches for ten cents.

CITY NEWS NOTES

NOTHING DOING.

The "nothing doing" sign was again hung out at the Police Station this morning.

ASSEMBLY HALL.

Saturday evening at 7 o'clock in the Assembly Hall, under Bradburn's Opera House, George street, the Gospel will be preached by W. P. Douglas. All cordially invited.

SUCKERS ARE BIG.

The suckers are said to be as numerous as ever and larger than usual. Two and a half pounds in weight are common and one has been landed that weighed 6 lb. 7 ounces.

HORSE SENSE.

Peterborough Tommies have a chance to go to the Quebec blowout on condition that they relinquish claims to all their pay. It takes money to make the military mare go. —Belleville Intelligencer.

A PEANUT CART

Summer must be near, although it does not appear that way. A peanut cart made its appearance on the street today and appeared to be doing a good business. It was in charge of a native of Sunny Italy.

BOATS MADE TRIP.

The steamers Monarch and Rainbow made their usual trips from Rice Lake and river ports to the city today. They carried a large number of passengers and the voyage up the river was without incident of note.

MEETING AT ZION

A meeting is called in the interests of Mr Thompson, the candidate for the Legislature in the East riding, at Zion, Otonabee, for Wednesday evening next, May 13th at 7.30 o'clock. The candidate, Mr Thompson, Mr J H. Burnham and others will address the meeting.

WILL RUN AN EXCURSION

The Young Men's Bible Class of George street church will run an excursion to Idyl Wyld on Monday, May 25th The steamer Otonabee has been chartered for the occasion. The membership of the class now numbers over one hundred.

FIRE AT PORT HOPE.

The Port Hope Electric Light and Power Company's plant was completely destroyed by fire shortly after midnight last night. A hot box is supposed to have been the cause. The loss is probably $50,000, with no insurance.

A LUMBER DRIVE

Napanee Beaver:—The last drive of logs which the Rathbun Co. expect to bring down the Napanee river, and which has been boomed in adjacent to Riverside cemetery for almost two years, were started over the falls on Monday last. It consists of about 100 000 pieces, and possibly a great number have gone to the bottom on account of the logs being in the water for so long a time.

CHAIN LETTERS

There is a mild species of Black Hand fever prevalent in Belleville at the present time owing to a number of threatening letters that have been received by various citizens. Black Hand letters are not prevalent in Lindsay, but it is whispered that a number of those nuisances known as chained letters are floating around the town.—Lindsay Post.

BEES DYING.

Mr James Storer the local beekeeper, says that owing to the bad weather, fully fifty per cent of his bees are dead already and some are dying daily. Out of 70 bees put in a hive four succumbed the first day, and six the next and so on until few now remain. As the bees have only had two flying days so far this season it has been impossible for them to carry in enough water to keep the comb moist and so the honey has become granulated. The breed was poor last year, and this year old bees will fill the hives instead of last year's young.—Lindsay Post.

THE STYLE BOOK
Summer Quarterly New Patterns

This brilliant Fashion Journal has far excelled itself this quarter. While it is, as usual, illustrating the latest styles in Ladies' Wear as produced fromthe Ladies' Home Journal Patterns, it has overstepped anything heretofore attempted by itself or any other pattern book on the market.

HALF A HUNDRED PLATES

Mostly full page, showing in a most concise manner the prevailing styles for women and children for the summer season. These plates comprise beautiful colored reproductions of actual dresses and costumes, half tones and sketches in black and soft tones, slso two illustrations of photographs made in half tone gowns and dresses made for Marshall, Field & Company, Chicago, from Ladies' Home Journal Patterns A detailed description of each garment is given with the number of the pattern it is made from, also giving the class of material in vogue best adapted to its use. Hundreds of smaller cuts are shown, giving the prevailing styles in minor wear for women and children. Also Transfer Embroidery Patterns.

Sample Embroidery Sheet—$10.00 Prize

The new Embroidery Transfer Patterns are being introduced in this way:—An actual sheet, 28 x 13, containing 12 beautiful patterns for fancy stock collars, Merry Widow bows and waist set, (front cuffs and collar.) Also two rows of fancy initials. Instructions are given for the successful use of these, and four prizes are given for the best four experience letters on the use of this new method of Transferring Embroidery designs. Prizes, $10.00, $7.00, $5.00 and $3.00.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration here on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

HAVELOCK IS SOLID FOR CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

Warden Thompson Will Have Strong Support—The Campaign in the East Riding—Havelock News of Interest

Special to the Review.

Havelock, May 7.—Mr. Jas. Thompson, reeve of Havelock, and warden of the County of Peterborough, and Conservative candidate for the Provincial House for East Peterborough, opened up his campaign in earnest and everything points to him getting the hearty support of not only the citizens of Havelock, but all those comprising East Peterborough.

Mr. Thompson has a well-grounded reputation, having spent the last ten years as a resident of Havelock, which will get him the hearty support of his many friends. Mr. Thompson, during his residence in Havelock, has not only successfully managed his own business, but has also carried on the work of this municipality successfully, and with very little expense. For two years, he represented the people on the village council, and his good work won the favor of everyone an he was elected as village reeve, which position he has held for three consecutive years, and in all probability will hold it longer.

During that time he has worked energetically in the interests of the the village, even at a loss to his own business. He has weighed every question that came up with great deliberation and done what he considered best for the village.

For two years he has been a member of the County Council and showed his qualities as a leader by being elected as warden.

Mr. Thompson brought honor to the village by being elected as warden, and now seeks to bring honor to it again by being elected as the member for East Peterborough for the Provincial Legislature.

Mr. Thompson has always acted thoroughly fair and square in all matters and has thus won the esteem of all he comes in contact with, and will thus get their hearty support and vote when the Whitney Government goes to the country, on June 8th.

Mr. Thompson is busily engaged in canvassing and holding meetings throughout the country and it is stated is making hosts of friends and received assurances of support from voters, many of whom have up unto the present, supported the Liberal party. Mr. Thompson is assured of a very large majority in Havelock and his numerous friends of both parties are going to try to roll up a big majority for him in other parts of the riding also.

Mr. Jas. Longmuir, of Belmont, was elected a member of the School Board of S. S. No. 6, at a meeting of the ratepayers of that section on Friday night of last week.

The rates have gone up at the local hotels, three in number. They now charge $1.50 per day, $1 being the former rate, 40 cents is the charge per meal. Whiskey of all kinds has been increased in price, sealed goods now being sold at 15c per glass or two for 25 cents.

Nearly all the cheese factories in this vicinity have started operations for this season. The price of butter is now 28c and now when the farmers start to send the milk to the factory, it will be even dearer. Eggs are pretty plentiful selling at 15c.

The Opera House was the scene of a delightful little dance on Monday night last when a large number of the local young people enjoyed themselves in dancing from 8 to 12 p.m.

The clang of the fire bell was heard in town on Tuesday for the first in a long time. A spark from some burning rubbish set fire to the roof of Mr. A. Hartney's house, but the bucket brigade soon quenched the flames.

Mr. James Fowler has greatly improved the appearance of his jewellery store by the installation of two beautiful wall cases and an artistic plate mirror.

DIED FROM SEVERE INJURIES RECEIVED IN EXPLOSION

Mr. Edward G. Wesley Passed Away at Nicholls Hospital Last Evening at Seven O'clock—Funeral To-morrow Afternoon

From injuries received in a gasolene explosion at "My Valet," last Saturday afternoon, Mr. Edward G. Wesley died at Nicholls hospital last evening at 7 o'clock. Despite the fact that all that medical aid could do, was done, Mr. Wesley's injuries were of such a serious nature that it was impossible for him to recover, and he succumbed as stated above. During the days following the accident until his death he suffered excruciating pain but he bore it with patience and Christian fortitude.

The deceased was in his 69th year. He was born in Toronto, but for the past 30 years had been a resident of Peterborough. He was married to Margaret White of Port Hope, who still survives him. He was widely known in this city and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was an Anglican in religion, having been a member of St. John's church.

Besides his wife, four sons and five daughters are left to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs. Fred of Ottawa, and Walter, Charles and George of this city. The daughters are Mrs. Paxman and Misses Annie, Ida, Lily and Shirley of Peterborough. One sister, Mrs. L. Keeler, of Severn Bridge, Muskoka, also survives him.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.45 o'clock, from the family residence, 360 Stewart street to the Little Lake cemetery.

STRICT REGULATIONS FOR THE NEWSBOYS TO OBSERVE

Chief Vincent of Lindsay has issued the following concerning the newsboys of Lindsay:

Newspaper proprietors and others having small boys in their employ, selling newspapers should instruct the said boys not to enter any barrooms, or other licensed premises in which liquor is dispensed, and it is the duty of the hotelkeepers to prevent these boys from entering the hotels—in fact should such a thing be permitted the licensed person is liable to a penalty of not less than $2 and not exceeding $10, besides costs.

On Tuesday evening last, the manager of a certain hotel gave a boy a severe strapping for coming into the hotel selling papers after having been warned not to do so. And at nine o'clock each evening a bell is rung at the town hall to give warning to all young boys and girls that it is time for them to be at home under the care of parents or guardians and this selling of papers in the hotels must be stopped right now or there is going to be trouble.

ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK G. T. R. EXPRESS LAST NIGHT

Belleville Train Struck Two Ties on Track About 8:20 O'clock—Rails Were Slippery and Ties Were Knocked Off—Third Time of Similar Attempt at Downer's Corners —No Idea of Guilty Person or Cause of Deed—Local Police Informed.

For the third time in ten years a wreck, by means of placing rails on the GTR tracks near Downer's Corners was attempted last night, about 8.20 o'clock. No. 10 train from Belleville due here at 8.40 and in charge of Engineer John McMahon, of Lindsay, ran into two ties that were lying across the track this side of Downer's Corners. The train was slowing up for the semaphore east of the bridge when the ties were knocked off the track.

TRAIN GOING SLOW

The track was in a slippery condition owing to the rain and the front wheels of the engine struck the ties and they flew off. As they lighted alongside the mud spattered up and flew into the faces of the engineer and fireman. After the train had been stopped investigation was made and the ties were discovered near the track.

LUCKY ESCAPE

The ties were on the track a little less than two miles from the local GTR station. It was very fortunate no wreck occurred as there were many people on the express. They congratulated themselves when they heard of their narrow escape.

THIRD ATTEMPT

A Review representative had a conversation this morning with a former sectionman of the GTR and he referred to the two previous attempts to wreck GTR trains near Downer's Corners. He did not have very distinct recollections of the particulars of the second one which happened a few years ago but was connected with the section gang at the time of the first attempt some ten years ago. At that time the train which was a freight was not impeded by the ties on the rails but passed over them and smashed them in two.

WHAT PROMPTED THE DEED?

The officials of the GTR have no idea whatever as to who was the party guilty of such a wilful misdemeanor as placing the ties on the rails. Nothing whatever is known, concerning the motive that prompted the deed.

POLICE INFORMED

Chief Boszel was informed last night by the GTR operator of the attempt to wreck the train. The local police are working on the case now but have no clue yet that would warrant them making any arrests.

OLD BUCKHORN DAM MAY BE SWEPT AWAY

A resident from the vicinity of Buckhorn in the the city to-day stated that grave fears were entertained as to the safety of the old part of the Buckhorn dam. It is feared that it may be swept away, owing to the unusual height of the water and the swiftness of the current. The old dam was built a great many years ago. It is to be replaced by a concrete one, which has already been partly constructed.

The damage which the breaking of the dam would incur can well be imagined. It would mean a great destruction of property and perhaps loss of life, hence the uneasiness of the people.

However, it is expected that the water will go down in the course of a few days, and all anxiety will be relieved.

HON. J. P. WHITNEY WILL SPEAK AT NORWOOD ON FRIDAY EVENING NEXT, MAY 15TH.

Word has been received that Mr. J. Thompson, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for the Legislature in the east riding of Peterborough has succeeded in securing the Prime Minister, Hon. J. P. Whitney, for Friday evening, May 15, in the town hall, Norwood. No doubt a number from the city will take advantage of this opportunity to hear the distinguished leader of the Government, who will in all probability not be heard in Peterborough this campaign. Seats reserved for ladies.

MUCH WORK HAS BEEN DONE ON GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Winnipeg, Man., May 8.—During the winter just past a large amount of work has been done on the National Transcontinental Railway, which i sbeing pushed to completion from Lake Superior Junction northwest of Fort William to Winnipeg to gateway to the prairies.

Owing to th escarcity and prevailing high price of labor in the winter of 1906-7, the work flagged a little, but the loss of time has been more than made up during the eight months just ended.

Your correspondent has recently made two trips over several hundred miles of this work between Winnipeg River Crossing and Lake Superior Junction, and the progress made since the preceding summer was found to be marvellous. The commissioners in charge of the construction of the road are sparing no effort towards the early completion of the work and contractors are using th elatest and most improved appliances towards this end.

The roadbed will be the finest ever built in Canada, or for that matter, anywhere in America. Little or no trestle work is being put in, while the bridges are all of steel, and the culverts of dry stone masonry. Minimum curvature and grades are being secured, and when the Grand Trunk Pacific takes over the line it will have the operation of the finest piece of railroad in America.

EIGHTH MOON DISCOVERED BY GREENWICH OBSERVATORY

The officials of the Greenwich Observatory claim to have discovered an eighth satellite of Jupiter. During an examination of photographs of Jupiter, Mr. Melotte, one of the assistant astronomers discovered faint markings occupying slightly different positions in the different plates. The circumstance precluded the possibility that this was one of the known satellites or a minor planet. Repeated investigation by Messrs Cromiller and Melotte led to the conclusion that it was a new satellite with a retrogade orbical movement.

THE OTONABEE AGAIN RISING

Continued Rains Bring the Water up Again—Park is Flooded

The water in the Otonabee river, which has been going down during the past few days has started to rise again. The continued rain is, of course, the cause, and it is said that the river will be higher than it has been this season before the water drops again. Riverside Park is again flooded and it will be several days before the ball players can get to work. The rain has done great damage throughout the country and farmers are feeling somewhat gloomy.

NOTHING DOING WITH THE SOCIETY

Historical Society Seems to Have Dropped Out of Existence

What has become of the Peterboro Historical Society?

This was a question that a local citizen asked The Review yesterday, and the remark recalled the fact that nothing has been heard about the Historical Society for a long time. For some months after Mr. T. Wallace was appointed secretary of the society there was a big boom and a lot of work was done. After Mr. Wallace left for Toronto the interest fagged and the Society has been doing very little ever since. Something should be done to get it going again and to have the museum put in shape for the season.

BUY CASEY MOUNTAIN SHARES

IN THE

Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Development Company, Limited.

Chartered by the Ontario Government.

Authorized Capital - - - $250,000.00

Par Value of Shares Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable, $1.00

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

PRESIDENT—R G. Williamson, Toronto, Ont., (formerly of Peterborough, Ont.) VICE-PRESIDENT—James Thompson, Havelock, Ont. SEC'Y-TREASURER—Dr. H. A. Wood, Peterborough. SUPERINTENDENT—D. Williamson, Halleybury, Ont.; D. A. Reid, Brandon, Man.

HEAD OFFICE - - - Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Why you should buy Casey Mountain shares ;

Casey Mountain shares are fully paid-up and non assessable.

The Casey Mountain Mining Company has a large area, which is a regular net work of silver bearing veins that will go down for thousands of feet.

Casey Mountain has the goods in unlimited quantities sufficient to last for generations.

Casey Mountain estimates that they have a silver bearing vein every 100 feet across the entire property, not counting cross-veins that will be encountered with underground development, and have uncovered 12 to date varying in width from 16 in. to 8 feet.

Casey Mountain is a mining proposition (not a stock speculation) and has been developed continuously during the past ten months, over 300 feet of underground work had been done, and one of the greatest ore bodies encountered that has yet been struck in the district, being 16 feet wide.

Casey Mountain Mines are situate on the adjoining lot to a property that according to good authority was sold last year for one million dollars, and whose shares are being sold at $7.00 each.

Casey Mountain is only capitalized at $250,000.00, a very important point to be considered in a Mining Company, and to give a comparison of our capitalisation and a Company capitalised at two and one-half million dollars, that is, paying a dividend at a rate of 12 per cent per cent. per annum to its shareholders, which is equal to $300,000.00 on the total capitalization ; this amount of cash would mean 120 per cent. to Casey Mountain Shareholders. This point is worthy of great consideration for those investing in mining stock.

DIVIDENDS PAID BY COBALT MINING COMPANIES

Buffalo Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid, during 1907	$ 81.000 00
The Coniagas Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid during 1907	200,000 00
Foster Cobalt Mining Company, Limited, have paid	45,000 00
The Cobalt Silver Queen, Cobalt, paid during 1907	120 000 00
McKinly, Darragh, Savage Mining Co., Limited, have paid	45,000 00
Temiscamings & Hudson Bay Co Mining Limited, have paid	746,120 00

(These shares could have been had at 50 cents and have sold as high as $190.00)

Cobalt Camp has produced 15,000,000 dollars during the past two years.

On the famous Homestead Mine in South Dakota the ore averages about $4.90 per ton, and over $69,000,000.00 has been paid in dividends. The Tredwell Mine in Alaska is running on ore that averages $2.00 a ton and is paying big dividends.

Casey Mountain Mining Company, Limited, has in sight thousands of tons of silver ore that will run $20.00 to a ton, and by treating 100 tons per day would mean a daily output of $2000.00, and allowing the sum of $500.00 per day for all expenses of mining, concentrating, freight and smelter charges, which is a large margin, would give an annual profit of nearly $500,000, or 200 per cent. on the total capitalization of the Company. The above figures are on our low grade ore only.

Quantity is what counts in a profitable mine, providing the grade is high enough to leave a margin over and above expenses.

Casey Mountain is practically a close Corporation, only sufficient shares having been sold to enable the Company to carry on development until returns are received from shipments, and only a small block remains unsold at par value $1.00 per share.

Buy Casey Mountain shares at once while they are on the market, as this will be positively the last opportunity of securing shares of this Company at one dollar each. Wire or mail reservation for shares to the Head Office, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Additional information can be had from the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. A. Wood, 408½ George Street, Peterborough.

TO SAVE THEIR CHILDREN MOTHERS IN COTTON MILLS

The Evil of the Hour in Great Britain—A Low Wage and a Living One—Why the British Are Degenerating—The Penalty of Competition.

Free trade is a delightful theory. When explained by certain economists, whose deductions are based on conditions that should exist in the world, it is a noble theory. Yet the facts will insist on presenting themselves from time to time.

Great Britain is the last refuge of the free trader, but free trade in Great Britain is doomed—not because of the aggressiveness of the tariff reformers, but because of the facts, the ugly, brutal facts. We reproduce an editorial from the Textile Mercury, of March 28, which in a calm, judicial manner, discusses one of the facts about the conditions existing in the cotton factories of Lancashire. Read it:

Mr. John Burns's remarks on mothers in Lancashire factories will be strongly resented in manufacturing centres. Having only a week or two ago commented on this subject, we should not now refer to it again, except for the wild statements made by the President of the Local Government Board at the National Congress on Infantile Mortality, held in London on Monday. As regards conditions of labour and wages, mothers in Lancashire cotton mills are much better off than mothers employed in other industries. The worst case cited against Lancashire is that of Burnley. There, according to Mr. Burns, one-third of the mothers go out to work as weavers, and the mortality among children of the women who thus work is said to be twice as high as among the children of women who do not go to the mills. But is the comparison a fair one? To which class of society do the women belong who stay at home? And are we sure that if the working mothers did not work, the children would be properly fed, and clothed and sheltered? And why do the women go to the mills? Is it not because the difficulty of men earning a "living wage" is increasing? Why, too, should the working mothers be wholly blamed for heavy infantile mortality, when, in town like Burnley, there is an increasing physical deterioration among men?

The problem of improving the security of child-life will not be solved by turning the mothers out of the mills. Does Mr. Burns not know that many of these mothers go to the mill to save the children from sufferings that are only too common in homes where husbands are irregularly employed? Of course, he would argue that if you prohibit women from working, men will have a better chance of work. But against that contention is the fact that throughout the country women workers are increasing at a greater rate—a strikingly greater rate—than are men workers—And this proves the question—How much is this due to unfair competition from abroad, which brings about the necessity here of cheaper labour? It is an easy matter to cry from a public platform—"Turn the mothers out of the mills!" But what after that? Mr. Burns says, "A woman cannot sublet her maternity." The grave question which arises out of that statement is—Why is she compelled to sublet it?—Canadian Manufacturer.

No traces of poison were found in the body of Mrs. St. Pierre, exhumed at Ottawa.

SOME REMINISCENCES OF THE NORTH WEST REBELLION OF '85

BY JOS. CROWE, PETERBOROUGH

Now, remember this was no easy matter for Brandon to serve lunch to a regiment and those people had catered to the regiments in advance, in the same sumptuous manner. A number of our Brandon friends came from Millbrook and vicinity. They wished us God speed and amid waving of hats, and handkerchiefs we were off for Swift Current where we went under canvas for the first time as a regiment.

We were tolled off so many men to a tent. In the tent half I was in (we were 13 in all supposed to be an unlucky number, but we all survived. The names of the thirteen were: Sergt. Miles, Ptes. McFee, Ross, Thomson, Breckenridge, Parks, Brown, Beach, Graham, Reynolds, Daly, Crowe and Bell. They proved to be a very agreeable lot of fellows, considering that we were all practically strangers to each other.. But there is something peculiar about tent life, I know of no place you can study human nature and get such a good idea of the personal characteristics of the man than just to rough it together, crowded in small space with limited means. It is there you can soon arrive at what is most prominentt in a man's nature. We gradually became well acquainted with each other and began to pick our chums, two by two. It was my lot to have a very nice fellow, Daly by name, from Napanee, a brother of Wilfrid A. Daly, who was a highly respected resident of our city for years. I can assure you we had very little room to spare and were too crowded to be cold. It was quite cool till the time we were here, even having quite a snow fall about the 26th of April.

Wheat was up about one inch and produced a green shade on the fields. We stayed five or six days here and got a chance to get rested.

Swift Current had two or three general stores and a hotel, and a C.P.R. round-house for the end of the division, and the Government experimental farm. The farming country was poor owing to an alkli bed. However, the stores did a thriving business. We principally did trading. We would trade all the hard tack and canned beef we could get our hands on, for various kinds of delicacies. We also scoured the country for milk, eggs and butter. I only remember of one cow, two hens and a rooster being there. The residents of this vicinity began to take advantage of the demand for delicacies and wanted exorbitant prices; for instance, 25 cents for a quart of milk. That one cow brought in more revenue than a whole herd of thoroughbreds.

When we went up for a quart of milk the lady who owned the cow would say she did not know if she could oblige us, but she would see, and no matter how often we went she would be able to supply us with something with a likeness to milk. Several times I secured the quantity, but there was a great chance for a milk inspector to get a conviction, for the milk was over half water. I concluded that the poor cow must be fed on ice. The stores came near being looted, as they carried it too far. They actually wanted 25 cents for a small loaf of bread. But they were glad to be reasonable before we left. No troops but the Midland Battalion had been this far west on the C.P.R. Here the right half of the battalion got orders to proceed to the front on the line of battle, as very discouraging reports were coming in. This left four companies behind and a great deal of kicking was done by them.

The right half marched across to the South Saskatchewan River and took the steamboat down to Batoche. The boat being small, it could not take all of us. It was too bad to break up the Battalion but we were assured that we would be right after them in a day or so.

The next place entrained for was Maple Creek, 100 miles further werst, which proved to be a beautiful place. The Dixon Bros., of this city had a general store, which was the only one. The Mounted Police have a large barracks here. We all had a splendid time here for eight days when we moved back to swift current and then took the trail.

Next orders were received to entrain to follow our right half who were in advance now about ten days. We walked across to the South Saskatchewan, about twenty-five miles. It was a fine large river from one mile to three miles wide, with a current seven miles an hour. It was full of sand bars and islands. Through the ages the river wore the bed away untin it was twelve hundred feet below the prairie.

While here, we constructed a dozen barges which are large, flat boats with a large oar at each end to guide it by. These barges were an important factor in transportation, but proved to be a bad thing for us, for we had a great deal of hardship on this trip through them.

Other regiments all travelled by steamboats, but it was up to us to get there on water either to swim, walk or float, so we decided to float. There were twelve of these barges built, which would carry from ten to twenty-five tons a piece.

We put up our tents and began to realize that we would soon be on "easy street or water," as the saying is. We kept wondering when we would get orders to set sail and enjoy a trip down that magnificent river. We had gone so far as to have all plans arranged as to who was to be captain, pilot, oarsmen, etc. We thought that the boats were built to carry us alone down to Batoche. But our anticipations received a shock when one morning teams and wagons beggan to arrive by the dozen, all loaded heavily with supplies, such as hay, oats, flour, pork, hardtack, canned meats and a great number of boxes. In fact all the supplies sent out by the different cities in fact, all the supplies sent out by the different cities, towns and villages of Ontario, who had sent their quota to the front. Toronto sent three car loads to their two regiments, and all other regiments fared equally as well. One well-known lady (now deceased) of this city sent a suit of underwear for every local man. These supplies included everything that was good, and was of the best that could be procured to make the boys comfortable. We learned to our sorrow that all this had to go on the barges, and we were elected to put it on.

We also were deprived of the men who knew the river and who were engaged to pilot us. As some difficulty arose as to remuneration, it proved a difficult job for us.

We were divided off, about eighteen me to a barge, under the command of Col. Deacon, of Lindsay, who had about two-hundred under him. We were quite reconciled and willing to show that we could man a barge or boat just as well as did the men of whom Col. Wolsley on the Red River expedition in 1870 had said were the best material that were produced for all-around conditions.

The orders were issued that all barges were to keep together, and all were to go down the river with a current seven miles an hour. We were supposed to wait for each other. The first barge only went a short distance when it ran aground. Inside of two hours every barge was stuck for a short or long term. Tom Billings, our pilot, said he knew all about channels of rivers, only he wanted a chance to demonstrate. So Tom made good only to keep away from where any other barge was stuck. Finally he ran us into a bay where we had to get out into the water and pull the barge with twenty tons of merchandise back half a mile to get to the channel. Unnecessary to say Tom lost his position and his fame as a navigator for the remainder of the trip. Someone else would take charge until he ran foul and so on down the line.

I can safely say that as far as we were concerned, we saw none of the other barges after the first day and did not know whether they were ahead or behind. We were all lost to each other. It was well that the Indians were at their reserves, as they could have easily picked us off from the banks of the river.

When night would overtake us we usually tied up to the bank but on one occasion we ran aground on a sand bar and could not get off. So we had to stay for the night on the boat.

That night no man slept. The cause of it was that we heard breaking of limbs and falling of trees splashing of water and in fact thought we heard whispering. Some had to be restrained from firing at what their imagination led them to believe was the enemy stealing toward them. Every man felt that his scalp was getting loose as the hair was in a standing position. many times during the long weary hours of night. The work on shore still went on until day break, when all was silence and scarcely any hiding, for an enemy was in sight. We became suspicious that perhaps it was all a myth. Some of the men determined to find what was going on and swam over only to find that beavers had been busy making dams during the night.

When they arrived back and reported what they had discovered all felt like staying another night so as to get even with them.

A bad feature in loading these barges was that no provision was made should we get separated, so only by chance did we have a variety of eatables. We had tons of pork, a few bags of flour, hay and oats, several tons of supplies belonging to the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto. Lots of hard tack but no tea or sugar which would have been counted a luxury. This hardtack proposition we were sick of, so some one had an idea and secured some baking powder, which we could get no one to explain, why they beat it out, and mixed it into some flour and beat it up, then fried some pork and dropped the batter into the pan. When we first tried it the pan was not large enough, but we soon got on to it.

As soon as Lieut. Brennan tasted these pancakes we could not cook them fast enough for him. It was lucky for the Government that all the men had not the appetite that he had. We finally cut him out and started in to look out for our own end of the game. But owing to havno vegetables and bad water scurry was beginning to make itself known. It was due to eating so much salt pork without a change.

Our greatest difficulty was to keep in the channel, on account of so many sand bars or shifting islands. We had very often to get out into the cold water and pull and shove and often unload part of our cargo on to the nearest dry spot before we could get it off.

The longer we were fast the deeper it would go. So we had to keep moving or we would sink in the quick-sand. The men had to get out so often, and only having one pair of pants, it proved better judgment to go in without them and keep them dry, for when they came out as the water was cold and very murkey, it was anything but an easy task for as soon as the barge got loose the current being strong, it was hard to hold until we loaded up again. This produced a lot of grumbling and dissatisfaction often wishing we had never taken the shilling. It is a well-known fact that soldiers generally are "grumblers and does it," as the old saying is. I was one of the first that rebelled against taking those cold baths, and refused to go in any more. I did not have long to wait until I had company. Lieutenant Brennan was alert to the situation and at once summoned us up into a corner of the boat and at once read the riot act on the militia act, stating how we by our action were liable to be tried by court martial and no doubt would be shot for a criminal offence.

However, it had the desired effect, and out we had to get amid the jeers and laughter of the rest. The river got better as we went lower down besides, we were getting experts at choosing the channel and were beginning to make quite a distance each day. When night would come we would pull in to shore, keep very quiet, make a fire and cook pancakes and pork, go to sleep on the barge, and would be as fresh in the morning as ever.

There were no fish in this river on account of the water being so murky.

We very often came across wild geese on those sand islands where they make their nests and hatch their eggs. We were in hopes of getting the eggs to ckkk, but we were too late to be able to make use of them.

I was surprising to see the geese, how slow they were to raise themselves off the ground. They would fully a quarter of a mile before they would be fifty feet off the ground in height.

We got stormbound once, and had to lay to for a day, when three of us took advantage of the opportunity to spy out the land. We took our rifles along with us to be ready for any emergency. We were about a mile from camp when we noticed several ducks down on a pond. We were very anxious to get a shot so we crawled along a buffalo path. (These buffalo paths were fully 18 inches deep and were nearly all leading towards the water.) untin we were within a short distance of them.

Each one picked his duck and counted one, two, three, and fired. There was a flutter, a short fly around. We all believed we had wounded our game, for they made no effort to fly even when we rushed down close to them. We loaded up again and fired. This time the ducks disappeared for a few minutes and would be up again. We soon got tired of shooting at them, and we were bound to get those ducks no matter how. They were to be taken dead or alive.

So we could see nothing else for it but undress and take the water for them. We were sure they would either have to drown or take the land for it. In the latter case we would have an easy prey and would only have to drive them into camp. The battle began fast and furious, for when we would get them in close quarters they would dive, and we actually could see them hanging on to the grass by their beaks at the bottom.

Those ponds were numerous and were very shallow, not any more then from one to four feet deep.

After keeping this up for about an hour, Silas Parks came to our rescue by telling us to withdraw, as we were only wasting our time, ammunition and energy, as those ducks were known as hell-divers, that a bullet would glance off them and it was impossible to shoot them.

We had to acknowledge defeat and admit that whoever called them that name had some experience similar to ours. We arrived at the camp very tired after our experience.

CHILD'S SEVERE BURNS
HEALED BY ZAM-BUK

The little girl of Mrs. Lewis Best of Carlisle, PO., recently fell against the stove and burned her forehead very badly. Mrs. Best says: "The burn was about the size of a fifty cent piece and was near the bone. It made my little girl's eye swell till it almost shut, and then she got cold to it. It began to run matter very badly and I could not stop it, although I bathed it good every night and morning. At last I sent for some Zam-Buk which soon stopped the matteration and very quickly healed the wound. I have never seen a burn heal so quickly and I am sure Zam-Buk has no equal for curing cuts, or burns, and I shall always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

Every home needs Zam-Buk! All diseases of the skin quickly yields to it. It is also an excellent remedy for piles—blind or bleeding—rheumatism, etc. All druggists and stores 50 cents a box, or post paid from the Zam-Buk Co. Toronto.

THE MINUTE HISTORY OF AN EARTHENWARE TEA POT

From the Time it is Clay Until it is Ready for the Table—The Art of Potting and its Various Processes

The following is supplied the Review by Mr. Herbert N. Birchall, 312 Townsend St., and formerly connected with Clayhill's Pottery Co., Tunstall, England:

The art of potting, to those people who have seen the various processes, is a fascinating subject, while to those who have not, it is, no doubt, interesting to read the ways and means employed to attain the perfection that the present day earthenware has attained. The writer has had the pleasure of being initiated into the the mysteries, in the greatest potery district in England, namely, the Potteries, Staffordshire, and is therefore able to write on a subject with which he is well acquainted. The first article to be taken, is an earthenware teapot.

IN THE YARD.

The first thing necessary for the production is marl or clay. This is found in great quantities in and about Staffordshire, and is known as real marl. This is dug from the clay pits and crushed between heavy steel rollers, and is then taken to the various manufactories.

The marl is then put in the yard or an open space, and left there for three or for months. This is done to weather it. The rain and sun combined have the effect of toughening the clay and, at the same time, cause it to crumble and become slimy.

THE MIXING HOUSE

From the yard it is taken to the slip house, also known as the mixing house. Here it is mixed with other clays—ball clay from Cornwall, grey marl, and also "tough Tom." It is then put into a plunger, usually an iron tank, or about eight feet in diameter and four feet deep. Inside the tank revolve iron blades, not unlike the screws of a steamship. These blades break up the clay and mix up the various kinds. During the process a plentiful supply of water is used. The mixture is called clay slip.

This slip or liquid clay is then pumped into sifters or lawns. These sifters are built up on frames are are worked to and fro rapidly by mechanical means. The clay is then pumped into the top-sifting box, and it then goes downward through the sifters or lawns. The mesh of these lawns is extremely fine, varying from sixty to eighty to the inch. This means 6,400 holes in one square inch. They are composed of silk in the smaller mesh, or of cooper in the larger sizes. This process takes all the grit and sand out of the slip, which if not removed, would be a detriment to getting a smooth surface for the earthenware.

REMOVING THE IRON.

From the sifters it runs down a trough in which are interposed electric magnets. These are to retain the small particles of iron that are found in all these clays. If the iron were not removed it would be seen as dark specks on the finished article. After these processes it finds its way into a tank or stump. From there it is pumped into wooden presses, under an enormous pressure. This has the effect of taking most of the water out of the slip, and leaving itself plastic clay, suitable to be worked into the various shapes by the skilled potter.

Before it can be used, however, it has to pass through a machine called a pug. This machine cuts up the clay scores of times and in the end sends it forth solid and free from air bubbles. It is then carried by boys or girls to the wrokmen to be either thrown or jiggered into the required shape.

THE THROWING

The throwing wheel is about the oldest method of shaping clay that is known. This wheel is a small revolving table, invariably turned by hand. The thrower takes up a piece of clay, being able to guage its weight by reason of constant practice, rolls it into a ball and places it on the revolving table, moistens his fingers and then works up the clay into the desired shape. A thrower by persistent practice can make thousands of pieces of ware of the same shape, and only vary a fraction of an inch in size, and has to do it without any guage or mould to assist him. All thrown ware has to be turned in a lathe, and this is done by other workmen known as clay turners. All the best ware is thrown and turned. Competition and a demand for cheaper ware evolved a cheaper manner of manufacture and so came the jiggered teapot.

THE JIGGERED TEAPOT

This is made in a mould made of plaster, formed in two parts. Half of the body is made in each part, and it is a quicker and much cheaper method. A piece of clay is taken and flattened out and placed over the one half of the mould which revolves at a high speed, and it is then worked into shape, with a sponge. Both halves being made, the two moulds are placed together in their proper position and the hand is inserted and the halves joined together into one whole body.

THE VARIOUS SHAPES

Up to the present time only round shapes have been dealt with, as only round shapes can be made on the jiggers or throwing wheels. Other shapes, square, oval or otherwise, are known as pressed teapots, and are made in moulds of the desired shape, that the clay is worked into position by the fingers. After the body, are required the spouts, handles and lid. The lids are made in moulds, and then turned on a lathe to the required shape and size. The handles are made by boys by pressing in moulds, and the spouts by girls, also by pressing. The various parts are then taken to the "handler," as he is called.

THE HANDLER'S WORK

This workman takes up the body, which has been kept in a moistened state, and bores seven or eight small holes in the side to form a sieve or an obstruction to the tea leaves, when pouring out the tea. Over this is placed the spout. The spout and handle are fastened on to the body by the use of clay slip. When dry, the slip has cemented the pieces together so firmly that if you were to try to remove spout or handle you would pull out pieces of the body with it. Great care has to be taken to keep the pieces in the same state of greenness till completed, otherwise some parts would dry and contract quicker than others and would thereby cause the clay ware to split.

THE BISQUIT OVEN

The ware being made, is taken into the hot-house, its name giving an idea of its use, and there it remains till it is thoroughly dry. It is then ready for its first firing. This first firing is done in a bisquit oven, obtaining its name from the fact that it converts the clay ware into bisquit ware. The ovens are built of fire bricks and have eight, ten or twelve mouths or fire holes. They are built in a circular manner, and the usual size is eighteen to twenty feet in diameter and twenty to twenty-five feet in height, inside measurements. The fireholes are all round the outside and flues extend all under and around the oven to distribute the heat evenly. The clay ware is placed in saggars which are receptacles made also of clay, each saggar holding five or six teapots. These are built up in tiers until the oven is full, and then the doorway is bricked up and the fires lighted. The interior of the oven gradually gets hotter until the desired heat is reached, only experienced men being employed as firemen. The proper heat is gauged by the use of a thermoscope, an invention of recent years, and then the fires are allowed to abate. This firing usually takes eighteen or twenty hours' hard work, and the workmen are kept busy distributing coal and getting the oven to heat up evenly all over. After the oven has cooled down sufficiently the contents are removed and the now bisquit teapots taken into the bisquit warehouse, there to be sorted out. The faulty ones are rejected and the good ones prepared for the next process.

GLOSSING THE WARE.

By this time the ware has a dull matt surface, and to obtain the high gloss, as it is when finished, it has to be dipped in glaze. This glaze is composed of white lead, frit, stone, flint, and stains are used according to the color desired on the finished article. In the ordinary brown earthenware the stain is made with blue or brown oxide of manganese, and in the case of the jet ware, it is made with cobalt. These ingredients are mixed together with water, and into this mixture the ware is plunged by hand. As the body is very porous, it readily retains a thick coating of the glaze. After this process the ware [illegible]

PROVINCIAL REVENUES

Whether it was King of Hailey- ry or LaRose, the French-Canadi- blacksmith who first discovered ver in the Cobalt district, the fact mains that it was discovered and s proved a splendid source of re- nue for the province of Ontario. In e language of a true prophet, hank Heaven! — That Ross's gang in't time to get a fair swipe at Cobalt district." The Examiner ing under the inspiration of a y and with a buoyant hope for e future lays it down that "the ld has come to set up less exact- standards of morality in politics government relations than in or ry matters. A person thinks it him to cheat the customs." It adds that the sale and purchase votes is a pardonable affair ac- ding to present day standards. Add this sublime sentiment a Cobalt rict and we have such a picture robbery, trickery, lying, swind- g, cheating, knavery, pretence, hy- risy, etc. as would "stagger hu- nity." Had the Whitney govern- t entertained the Examiner's idea h respect to the pardonability of g a common liar, and cheat, the alt district would have been a ed source of revenue for 'friends' ministers—but not for the pro- ce. An increase practically of r million dollars in yearly reven- is due to the wise businesslike and nest administration of these re- rces. Then too, the large sum ac- ed from railway taxation has been ded with the municipalities, one- f going to the individual munici- ities and the other half to the pub- service. The railway taxation is entirely new feature in Ontario. MacKay opposes it!. He says t it will be taken out of the peo- by the railways again. He ig- es or is ignorant of the history ilway taxation in the U.S. and any event no railway could hold an honest government for long. Mr. MacKay has his way this pro- ce will lose $10,000,000 in the xt 20 years. But let the farmer in full by all means.

Mr. Whitney by a proper and hon- collection of over-due timber es has added over half a million llars to the revenue of this pro- ce. Now a dishonest minister, ose "standards of morality" are exacting could forgive and for- for a handsome consideration on h revenue from this source to en years, build a railway to Hud Bay. But of course he would not build the railway. He would be rich and full of "insolence and wine," and good fellowship and what-not, with perhaps a hard-earned or hardly fought—for title—all at the public expense and all because his political standards of morality would not be too exacting morality would not be too exacting. An honest administration is worth untold millions to this or any other country and if the electors do not take the trouble to go out and vote for it on election day they deserve what such culpable carelessness will assuredly entail.

Indirectly the breaking of the famous or infamous schoolbook monopoly has added already at least half a million to the people's own private incomes. Presently these reductions will apply to the schoolbooks now in preparation, in geography, arithmetic, grammar, etc. The saving will be enormous. To confute the ravings of the Grit critics ask a bookseller. He will tell you at once, as indeed any parent already knows, how much the parent is saving. We may look forward to free schoolbooks some day. Mr. Whitney is heading that way. With such excellent natural resources belonging to the people it is the people who should be made rich, not the "enterprising few." There is plenty of room for private enterprise in a legitimate way without begging, borrowing and stealing from the honest, hard working people of this province. The day of the "get-rich-quick" class is at an end. Most of that class are already in gaol.

COUNTY COUNCILS ACT

It will be remembered that the Ross Government introduced and passed an act by which county councillors were elected to represent districts and not as formerly, the various townships of which the reeves composed the County Council. At once it was seen that the new contrivance was not going to work satisfactorily, but it was reserved for the Whitney Government to do away with this unworkable innovation and to restore the old plan. Under the Ross plan some townships were not represented in the County Council at all. Moreover, since the township councils no longer sent their representatives to the County Councils, the county councillors being elected directly by the people, the township councils became back numbers into which the better qualified men of the township had no ambition to enter.

TORONTO JUNCTION POOLROOM

There is an inclination on the part of the Opposition press to overlook a celebrated case in which, as it will be remembered, Ross & Co. figured with extraordinary prominence. Mr. Ross was asked time and again to do away with a certain pest-house at Toronto Junction, known as the poolroom. He sighed, threw up his hands and regretted that the law governing the case was of such a character that it precluded him utterly from doing so. Mr. Whitney said, "I will stop this poolroom in an hour, if you give me the chance," and he did.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Examiner of Thursday evening has amongst others, a suggestion that Mr. Bradburn should agree not to employ conveyances on election day. We would inform the Examiner that such is the law, now, as brought in and enacted by the Whitney administration. Under Ross the looseness did prevail which the Examiner thinks still exists. Wake up!

Mr. P. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, has returned from a trip to Grand Rapids, Groton and Muskegon, Mich., where he has been investigating the high power transmission lines. He inspected at Grand Rapids a power station and transmission line which carries 76,000 volts. Nothing definite has yet been decided about the equipment of the Ontario Hydor-Electric Power Commission's proposed transmission line, other than that some form of suspended insulator will be used. Mr. Sothman will also visit the Central Colorado Springs about the middle of the present month. This company is installing a 90,000 volt transmission line, which will be started in about a fortnight. Later Mr. Sothman intends to visit the Stanislaus Electric Company's plant and that of the Great Western Company in California, as well as some large plants in Mexico. During the summer also he will visit Europe to study the transmission lines in use there. — Electrical News.

Mr. Sothman is a Dane, and a young man of great ability and energy. The above gives a good idea of how much alive the Government is to the necessity of keeping up-to-date. The Power Policy has at last overcome all difficulties and has become satisfactory to both development companies and the public.

A REVIEW OF THE RECORD OF WHITNEY GOVERNMENT

A Fair Statement of the Case by a Great Independent Journal—A Thoroughly Honest and Capable Administration—"Construction and Reconstruction" the Watch-Words.

The leader of the Opposition and the Liberal press have begun an active and spirited attack on the Whitney Government. This was to be expected and only good can come from a full discussion of Provincial affairs. But any careful examination of the Liberal programme shows a remarkable scarcity of campaign material.

Does any independent journal or any independent citizen seriously believe that the interests of the Province would be well served by the defeat of the Government? Its record may not be perfect. We do not expect perfection in human institutions. But is it not true that in efficiency of its administration, in the honesty of its electoral methods, in the great bulk of progressive legislation which has been passed during the last three or four years the whole record constitutes the best chapter in the legislative history of the Province?

It is nothing short of ridiculous to describe the Government as the servant of the corporations. If ever a Government in this country set the public interest above corporate or capitalist interests it is that which now holds office in Queen's Park. Mr. MacKay and his mouthpieces show a positive hardihood when they attack the guarantee of Canadian Northern bonds, if we remember that the Opposition did not divide the Legislature on the proposal. A proposition which thus had their practical and unanimous support in the Assembly will hardly prove a profitable asset in the constituencies. The dodge is too transparent to deceive a kindergarten. The Liberal campaign at least should preserve the appearance of consistency and gravity. Besides, at worst, the guarantee improves the the Provincial mortgage and assures railway extensions in the northern country which are a necessity to the development of its resources and which its people have a clear right to demand.

So the Government's power policy to-day is exactly the policy which commanded the enthusiastic support of the Liberal press and the whole Opposition, down to the eve of the campaign. The Government undertook to supply power at a certain price at Niagara and to guarantee the bonds of the municipalities. From this policy it has not deviated in any particular. It has kept absolute faith with the municipalities. The Liberal press and the Opposition in the Legislature understood —thoroughly the position of the Electrial Development Company, but when the News urged the Government to purchase the plant and control the source of supply it received not one word of aid or comfort from the Liberal agencies. When the opportunity had passed and there was a chance to make party capital, they turned on the Administration, which, on the whole question, had been consistent and straightforward, and denounced Ministers for not taking a course from which Liberal sympathy and support were determinedly and ostentatiously withheld.

It is true that expenditure has been increased. It is also true that revenues are more abundant. But the money has gone to improve the schools, to strengthen the university, to aid agriculture, to assist, refashion and humanize hospitals and public institutions, to help in developing the northern country whence so much of our revenue comes and generally to relieve the municipalities and increase the efficiency of the public services. There has been no waste or jobbery. Hardly a single item of the appropriations is made the subject of direct attack. There has been no disposition to use public money or public works to influence bye-elections. No organized gang of corruptionists, trained at headquarters, has gone out to the ends of the province to bribe, personate and rifle ballot boxes. The Minnie M. lies in harbor. There has been a policeman in the Attorney-General's Department. The redistribution, notwithstanding the virulence with which it is attacked, in the main but redresses old wrongs and grievances and equalizes conditions between the two parties. The whole Province believes in the integrity and public spirit of the First Minister. No one doubts that the Government has made some mistakes, both in policy and in practice. But upon the whole its work has been notably efficient and distinguished for courage and fidelity to the public interest. Its virtues so vastly outweigh its faults that it is impossible to think that the Province will refuse the renewal of confidence to which it is indutiably entitled.—Toronto News (Independent.)

A REMINDER

It is often difficult to get even sensible people to grasp what is decidedly of great value to them; because they will not take a moments time to consider its merits. The lots I am advertising by plan and circulars are perfect and in the way of the city's most rapid growth, and cannot fail to make money for every buyer whether he uses or rents.

Now is the time to buy and plant or rent garden. Pay later.

HAMILTON MINISTER AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. Dr. Drummond Will Preach at Anniversary Services To-morrow---A Prosperous Congregation

The seventy-third anniversary of St. Andrew's congregation will be celebrated tomorrow when the Rev. D. R. Drummond, M.A. B.D. of Hamilton, will preach. The services mark two other important events, — the dedication of the present edifice, 22 years ago and the ordination of the minister, Rev. J. G. Potter.

St. Andrew's in its early days was known as the "Auld Kirk," and for many years was ministered to by the Rev. J. M. Roger, M.A. who after the disruption of the church in Scotland in 1843-4, established St. Paul's church and was its honored minister for many years. In 1858 Rev. Dr. Douglass took charge of the congregation of St. Andrew's and following him were Rev. D. J. Macdonell, Rev. Kenneth McLennan, Rev. Alexander Bell, Rev. Andrew McWilliams and the present pastor.

With the rapid growth of the city westward, St. Andrew's is now in the centre of a growing district, and with its splendid equipment is in a position to continue the useful work in which it has for so many years been engaged.

The special offering at both services tomorrow will be for the furnace account.

On Monday night there will be held a Shredded Wheat banquet from six to eight o'clock. The programme will begin at eight when with an array of the best musical talent the Rev. Messrs. Pogue and Keith will bear greetings.

Property worth $55,914,313 was exempt from taxation in Montreal in 1907, an increase of $2,209,518 over 1906.

Hamilton's fuel committee will again purchase coal direct from the mines, paying $2.50 for lump, and $1.95 for slack.

WINNIPEG IS PROGRESSIVE

Much Building Going on There at Present---Business Conditions Much Improvod

Special to the Review.

Winnipeg, Man. May 8—With the advent of spring business conditions in this city are commencing to show a great deal of improvement. Although not affected to the same extent as the older centres of the east by the recent business depression, Winnipeg felt the financial stringency somewhat. Now, however, the clouds have rolled away and all classes of business are reaping benefit from the splendid crop prospects.

During the past week or two building operations especially have become very active and the outlook in this line is becoming very promising. Excavations are now being made for a magnificent new building which the Bank of Nova Scotia is to erect on Portage avenue, and the structure will be a worthy addition to Winnipeg's bank quarters which surpass those of any city in Canada.

In addition to the mammoth new union station the Grand Trunk Pacific is planning immediate work on its big shops which are to be located a few miles east of the city. As a large section of the road is to be operated this year, it is natural that shops will be required at once and this work will be pushed to completion with all possible dispatch.

The announcement was made the other day that the Dominion Government would contribute half the extra cost of the addition of a traffic roadway on the Grand Trunk bridge between Winnipeg and St. Boniface. The cost of this bridge is estimated at about $700,000.00. Soundings have already been taken, and the plans are now in course of preparation.

Besides many works of great magnitude in the building line, development is taking place very rapidly with work of a less important nature. Many fine apartment buildings are to be erected this year, while permits have been issued by the score for residences. Taken altogether, the outlook for the growth of Winnipeg was never more promising.

OBITUARY

MRS. G. HAROLD CARLISLE

The sad intelligence was received in the city of the death in Grayson, Sask. of Catherine Coral Thompson, wife of Dr G. Harold Carlisle, son of Mr. John Carlisle, Ashburnham, which took place on Monday last. The news came as a great shock to her friends in this city as she had been here only three weeks ago and was then in excellent health. She was 24 years of age and was the eldest daughter of Mr. J. Thompson of Cobourg. She was married to Dr Carlisle a year ago last November.

Besides her husband, a little son, five months old, survives her.

The remains arrived in Cobourg last evening and the funeral took place there this afternoon from the residence of the deceased's father to the Cobourg cemetery.

Mr and Mrs. Carlisle and Mr. Dave and Misses Ruth and Lillie are attending from this city.

The Lion and the Mouse

BY CHARLES KLIEN

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

Copyright 1906, by C. W. Dillingham Company.

CHAPTER I.

THERE was unwonted bustle in the usually sleepy and dignified New York offices of the Southern and Transcontinental Railroad company in lower Broadway.

It was the regular quarterly meeting of the directors of the Southern and Transcontinental Railroad company, but it was something more than mere routine that had called out a quorum of such strength and which made today's gathering one of extraordinary importance in the history of the road. That the business on hand was of the greatest significance was easily to be inferred from the concerned and anxious expression on the directors' faces and the eagerness of the employees as they plied each other with questions.

"Suppose the injunction is sustained?" asked a clerk in a whisper. "Is not the road rich enough to bear the loss?"

The man be addressed turned impatiently to the questioner.

"That's all you know about railroading. Don't you understand that this suit we have lost will be the entering wedge for hundreds of others? The very existence of the road may be at stake. And between you and me," he added in a lower key, "with Judge Rossmore on the bench we never stood much show. It's Judge Rossmore that scares 'em, not the injunction. They've found it easy to corrupt most of the supreme court judges, but Judge Rossmore is one too many for them. You could no more bribe him than you could have bribed Abraham Lincoln."

"But the newspapers say that be, too, has been caught accepting $50,000 worth of stock for that decision he rendered in the Great Northwestern case."

"Lies! All those stories are lies," replied the other emphatically. Then, looking cautiously around to make sure no one overheard, be added contemptuously: "The big interests fear him, and they're inventing these lies to try and injure him. They might as well try to blow up Gibraltar. The fact is the public is seriously aroused this time, and the railroads are in a panic."

It was true. The railroad, which heretofore had considered itself superior to law, had found itself checked in its career of outlawry and oppression. The railroad, this modern octopus of steam and steel which stretches its greedy tentacles out over the land, had at last been brought to book.

John Burkett Ryder, the richest man in the world—the man whose name had spread to the farthest corners of the earth because of his wealth, and whose money, instead of being a blessing, promised to become not only a curse to himself, but a source of dire peril to all mankind—was a genius born of the railroad age. No other age could have brought him forth. His peculiar talents fitted exactly the conditions of his time. Attracted early in life to the newly discovered oil fields of Pennsylvania, he became a dealer in the raw product and later a refiner, acquiring with capital, laboriously saved, first one refinery, then another. The railroads were cutting each other's throats to secure the freight business of the oil men, and John Burkett Ryder saw his opportunity. He made secret overtures to the road, guaranteeing a vast amount of business if he could get exceptionally low rates, and the illegal compact was made. His competitors, undersold in the market, stood no chance, and one by one they were crushed out of existence. Ryder called these maneuvers "business." The world called them brigandage. But the Colossus prospered and slowly built up the foundations of the extraordinary fortune which is the talk and the wonder of the world today. Master now of the oil situation, Ryder succeeded in his ambition of organizing the Empire Trading company, the most powerful, the most secretive and the most wealthy business institution the commercial world has yet known.

Yet with all this success John Burkett Ryder was still not content. He was now a rich man, richer by many millions than he had dreamed he could ever be, but still he was unsatisfied. He became money mad. He wanted to be richer still, to be the richest man in the world, the richest man the world had ever known. And the richer he got the stronger the idea grew upon him with all the force of a morbid obsession.

Yet this commercial pirate, this Napoleon of finance, was not a wholly bad man. He had his redeeming qualities, like most bad men. His most pronounced weakness, and the one that had made him the most conspicuous man of his time, was an entire lack of moral principle. No honest or honorable man could have amassed such stupendous wealth. In other words, John Ryder had not been equipped by nature with a conscience. He had no sense of right or wrong or justice where his own interests were concerned. He was the prince of egoists. On the other hand, he possessed qualities which, with some people, count as virtues. He was pious and regular in his attendance at church, and, while he had done but little for charity, he was known to have encouraged the giving of alms by members of his family, which consisted of a wife, whose timid voice was rarely heard, and a son Jefferson, who was the destined successor of his gigantic estate.

Such was the man who was the real power behind the Southern and Transcontinental railroad. More than any one else Ryder had been aroused by the present legal action, not so much for the money interest at stake as that any one should dare to thwart his will. It had been a pet scheme of his, this purchase for a song when the land was cheap of some thousand acres along the line, and it is true that at the time of the purchase there had been some idea of laying the land out as a park, but real estate values had increased in astonishing fashion, the road could no longer afford to carry out the original scheme and had attempted to dispose of the property for building purposes, including a right of way for a branch road. The news, made public in the newspapers, had raised a storm of protest. The people in the vicinity claimed that the railroad secured the land on the express condition of a park being laid out, and in order to make a legal test they had secured an injunction, which had been sustained by Judge Rossmore of the United States circuit court.

These details were hastily told and retold by one clerk to another as the babel of voices in the inner room grew louder and more directors kept arriving from the ever busy elevators. The meeting was called for 3 o'clock. Another five minutes and the chairman would rap for order. A tall, strongly built man with white mustache and kindly smile emerged from the directors' room and, addressing one of the clerks, asked:

"Has Mr. Ryder arrived yet?"

The alacrity with which the employee hastened forward to reply would indicate that his interlocutor was a person of more than ordinary importance.

"No, senator, not yet. We expect him any minute." Then with a deferential smile he added, "Mr. Ryder usually arrives on the stroke, sir."

The senator gave a nod of acquiescence and, turning on his heel, greeted with a grasp of the hand and affable smile his fellow directors as they passed in by twos and threes.

Senator Roberts was in the world of politics what his friend John Burkett Ryder was in the world of finance—a leader of men. He started life in Wisconsin as an errand boy, was educated in the public schools and later became clerk in a dry goods store, finally going into business for his own account on a large scale. He was elected to the legislature, where his ability as an organizer soon gained the friendship of the men in power, and later was sent to congress, where he was quickly initiated in the game of corrupt politics. In 1885 he entered the United States senate. He soon became the acknowledged leader of a considerable majority of the Republican senators, and from then on he was a figure to be reckoned with. A very ambitious man, with a great love of power and few scruples, it is little wonder that only the practical or dishonest side of politics appealed to him. He was in politics for all there was in it, and he saw in his lofty position only a splendid opportunity for easy graft.

He did not hesitate to make such alliances with corporate interests seeking influence at Washington as would enable him to accomplish this purpose, and in this way he had met and formed a strong friendship with John Burkett Ryder. Each, being a master in his own field, was useful to the other. Neither was troubled with qualms of conscience, so they never quarreled. If Ryder interests needed anything in the senate, Roberts and his followers were there to attend to it. Just now the cohort was marshaled in defense of the railroads against the attacks of the new rebate bill. In fact, Ryder managed to keep the senate busy all the time. When, on the other hand, the senators wanted anything—and they often did—Ryder saw that they got it, lower rates for this one, a fat job for that one, not forgetting themselves. Senator Roberts was already a very rich man, and, although the world often wondered where he got it, no one had the courage to ask him.

But the Republican leader was stirred with an ambition greater than that of controlling a majority in the senate. He had a daughter, a marriageable young woman who, at least in her father's opinion, would make a desirable wife for any man. His friend Ryder had a son, and this son was the only heir to the greatest fortune ever amassed by one man, a fortune which at its present rate of increase by the time the father died and the young couple were ready to inherit would probably amount to over $6,000,000,000. Could the human mind grasp the possibilities of such a colossal fortune? It staggered the imagination. Its owner or the man who controlled it would be master of the world! Was not this a prize any man might well set himself out to win? The senator was thinking of it now as he stood exchanging banal remarks with the men who accosted him. If he could only bring off that marriage, he would be content. The ambition of his life would be attained. There was no difficulty as far as John Ryder was concerned. He favored the match and had often spoken of it. Indeed, Ryder desired it, for such an alliance would naturally further his business interests in every way. Roberts knew that his daughter Kate had more than a liking for Ryder's handsome young son. Moreover, Kate was practical, like her father, and had sense enough to realize what it would mean to be the mistress of the Ryder fortune. No, Kate was all right, but there was young Ryder to reckon with. It would take two in this case to make a bargain.

Jefferson Ryder was, in truth, an entirely different man from his father. It was difficult to realize that both had sprung from the same stock. A college bred boy, with all the advantages his father's wealth could give him, he had inherited from the parent only those characteristics which would have made him successful even if born poor—activity, pluck, application, dogged obstinacy, alert mentality. To these qualities he added what his father sorely lacked—a high notion of honor, a keen sense of right and wrong. He had the honest man's contempt for meanness of any description, and he had little patience with the lax, so called business morals of the day. For him a dishonorable or dishonest action could have no apologist, and he could see no difference between the crime of the hungry wretch who stole a loaf of bread and the coal baron who systematically robbed both his employees and the public. In fact, had he been on the bench he would probably have acquitted the human derelict who in despair had appropriated the prime necessary of life and sent the overfed, conscienceless coal baron to jail.

The hands of the large clock in the outer room pointed to 3. An active, dapper little man with glasses and with books under his arm passed hurriedly from another office into the directors' room.

"There goes Mr. Lane with the minutes. The meeting is called. Where's Mr. Ryder?" asked one of the directors.

There was a general move of the scattered groups of directors toward the committee room. The clock overhead began to strike. The last stroke had not quite died away when the big swinging doors from the street were thrown open and there entered a tall, thin man, gray headed and with a slight stoop, but keen eyed and alert. He was carefully dressed in a well fitting frock coat, white waistcoat, black tie and silk hat.

It was John Burkett Ryder, the Colossus.

CHAPTER II.

AT fifty-six John Burkett Ryder was surprisingly well preserved. With the exception of the slight stoop already noted and the rapidly thinning snow white hair, his step was as light and elastic and his brain as vigorous and alert as in a man of forty. Of old English stock, his physical makeup presented all those strongly marked characteristics of our race which sprung from Anglo-Saxon ancestry, but modified by nearly 300 years of different climate and customs has gradually produced the distinct and true American type, as easily recognizable among the family of nations as any other of the earth's children.

Tall and distinguished looking, Ryder would have attracted attention anywhere. Men who have accomplished much in life usually bear plainly upon their persons the indefinable stamp of achievement, whether of good or evil, which renders them conspicuous among their fellows. We turn after a man in the street and ask, Who is he? And nine times out of ten the object of our curiosity is a man who has made his mark—a successful soldier, a famous sailor, a celebrated author, a distinguished lawyer, or even a notorious crook.

There was certainly nothing in John Ryder's outward appearance to justify Lombroso's sensational description of him: "A social and physiological freak, a degenerate and a prodigy of turpitude who, in the pursuit of money, crushes with the insensibility of a steel machine every one who stands in his way." On the contrary, Ryder, outwardly at least, was a prepossessing looking man. His head was well shaped, and he had an intellectual brow, while power was expressed in every gesture of his hands and body. Every inch of him suggested strength and resourcefulness. His face, when in good humor, frequently expanded in a pleasant smile, and he had even been known to laugh boisterously, usually at his own stories, which he rightly considered very droll, and of which he possessed a goodly stock. But in repose his face grew stern and forbidding, and when his prognathous jaw, indicative of will power and bulldog tenacity, snapped to with a clicklike sound, those who heard it knew that squalls were coming.

But it was John Ryder's eyes that were regarded as the most reliable barometer of his mental condition. Wonderful eyes they were, strangely eloquent and expressive, and their most singular feature was that they possessed the uncanny power of changing color like a cat's. When their owner was at peace with the world, and had temporarily shaken off the cares of business, his eyes were of the most restful, beautiful blue, like the sky after sunrise on a spring morning, and looking into their serene depths it seemed absurd to think that this man could ever harm a fly. His face, while under the spell of this kindly mood, was so benevolent and gentle, so frank and honest that you felt there was nothing in the world—purse, honor, wife, child—that, if needs be, you would not intrust to his keeping.

When the period of truce was ended, when the plutocrat was once more absorbed in controlling the political as well as the commercial machinery of the nation, then his eyes took on a snakish, greenish hue, and one could plainly read in them the cunning, the avariciousness, the meanness, the insatiable thirst for gain that had made this man the most unscrupulous money getter of his time, but his eyes had still another color, and when this last transformation took place those dependent upon him and even his friends quaked with fear, for they were his eyes of anger. On these dreaded occasions his eyes grew black as darkest night and flashed fire as lightning rends the thundercloud. Almost ungovernable fury was indeed the weakest spot in John Ryder's armor, for in these moments of appalling wrath he was reckless of what he said or did, friendship, self interest, prudence, all were sacrificed.

Such was the Colossus on whom all eyes were turned as he entered. Instantly the conversation stopped as by magic. The directors nudged each other and whispered. Instinctively Ryder singled out his crony, Senator Roberts, who advanced with effusive gesture.

"Hello, senator!"

"You're punctual, as usual, Mr. Ryder. I never knew you to be late."

Ryder passed on and into the directors' room, followed by Senator Roberts and the other directors, the procession being brought up by the dapper little secretary bearing the minutes.

With a nod here and there Ryder took his place in the chairman's seat and rapped for order. Then at a sign from the chair the dapper little secretary began in a monotonous voice to read the minutes of the previous meeting.

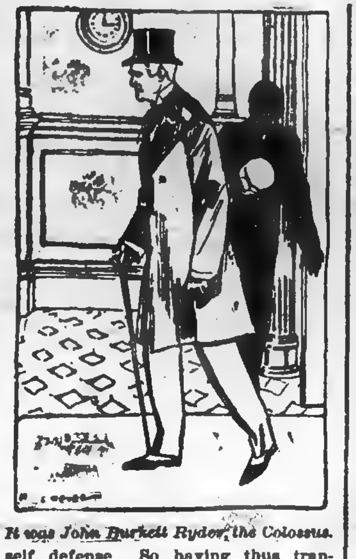
Quickly they were approved, and the chairman proceeded as rapidly as possible with the regular business routine. That disposed of, the meeting was ready for the chief business of the day. Ryder then calmly proceeded to present the facts in the case.

Some years back the road had acquired as an investment some thousands of acres of land located in the outskirts of Auburndale, on the line of their road. The land was bought cheap, and there had been some talk of laying part of it out as a public park. This promise had been made at the time in good faith, but it was no condition of the sale. If afterward, owing to the rise in the value of real estate, the road found it impossible to carry out the original idea, surely they were masters of their own property! The people of Auburndale thought differently and, goaded on by the local newspapers, had begun action in the courts to restrain the road from diverting the land from its alleged original purpose. They had succeeded in getting the injunction, but the road had fought it tooth and nail and finally carried it to the supreme court, where Judge Rossmore after reserving his opinion had finally sustained the injunction and decided against the railroad. That was the situation.

Several directors spoke, the arguments of each one being merely a reiteration of those already heard. Ryder did not listen to what was being said. Why should he? Was he not familiar with every possible phase of the game? Better than these men who merely talked, he was planning how the railroad and all his other interests could get rid of the troublesome judge, Rossmore.

He who controlled legislatures and dictated to supreme court judges had found himself powerless when each turn of the legal machinery had brought him face to face with Judge Rossmore. Suit after suit had been decided against him and the interests be represented, and each time it was Judge Rossmore who had handed down the decision. So for years these two men had fought a silent but bitter duel in which principle on the one side and attempted corruption on the other were the gage of battle. Judge Rossmore fought with the weapons which his oath and the law directed him to use, Ryder with the only weapons he understood—bribery and trickery. And each time it had been Rossmore who had emerged triumphant. Despite every maneuver Ryder's experience could suggest, notwithstanding every card that could be played to undermine his credit and reputation, Judge Rossmore stood higher in the country's confidence than when he was first appointed.

So when Ryder found he could not corrupt this honest judge with gold he decided to destroy him with calumny. No scruples embarrassed Ryder in arriving at this determination. From his point of view he was fully justified. "Business is business. He hurts my interests; therefore I remove him." So he argued, and he considered it no more wrong to wreck the happiness of this honorable man than he would to have shot a burglar in self defense. So having thus tranquilized his conscience he had gone to work in his usually thorough manner, and his success had surpassed the most sanguine expectations.



It was John Burkett Ryder, the Colossus.

This is what he had done.

Like many of our public servants whose labors are compensated only in niggardly fashion by an inconsiderate country, Judge Rossmore was a man of but moderate means. His income as justice of the supreme court was $12,000 a year, but for a man in his position, having a certain appearance to keep up, it little more than kept the wolf from the door. He lived quietly, but comfortably, in New York with his wife and his daughter Shirley, an attractive young woman who had graduated from Vassar and had shown a marked taste for literature. The daughter's education had cost a good deal of money, and this, together with life insurance and other incidentals of keeping house in New York, had about taken all he had. Yet he had managed to save a little, and those years when he could put by a fifth of his salary the judge considered himself lucky. Secretly he was proud of his comparative poverty. At least the world could never ask him "where he got it."

Ryder was well acquainted with Judge Rossmore's private means. The two men had met at a dinner, and, although Ryder had tried to cultivate the acquaintance, he never received much encouragement. Ryder's son Jefferson, too, had met Miss Shirley Rossmore and been much attracted to her, but the father having more ambitious plans for his heir quickly discouraged all attentions in that direction. He himself, however, continued to meet the judge casually, and one evening he contrived to broach the subject of profitable investments. The judge admitted that by careful hoarding and much stinting he had managed to save a few thousand dollars which he was anxious to invest in something good.

Quick as the keen eyed vulture swoops down on its prey the wily financier seized the opportunity thus presented. And he took so much trouble in answering the judge's inexperienced questions and generally made himself so agreeable that the judge found himself regretting that he and Ryder had by force of circumstances been opposed to each other in public life so long. Ryder strongly recommended the purchase of Alaskan Mining stock, a new and booming enterprise which had lately become very active in the market. Ryder said he had reasons to believe that the stock would soon advance, and now there was an opportunity to get it cheap.

A few days after he had made the investment the judge was surprised to receive certificates of stock for double the amount he had paid for. At the same time he received a letter from the secretary of the company explaining that the additional stock was pool stock and not to be marketed at the present time. It was in the nature of a bonus to which he was entitled as one of the early shareholders. The letter was full of verbiage and technical details of which the judge understood nothing, but he thought it very liberal of the company and, putting the stock away in his safe, soon forgot all about it. Had he been a business man he would have scented peril. He would have realized that he had now in his possession $50,000 worth of stock for which he had not paid a cent and furthermore had deposited it when a reorganization came.

But the judge was sincerely grateful for Ryder's apparently disinterested advice and wrote two letters to him, one in which he thanked him for the trouble he had taken and another in which he asked him if he was sure the company was financially sound, as the investment he contemplated making represented all his savings. He added in the second letter that he had received stock for double the amount of his investment and that, being a perfect child in business transactions, he had been unable to account for the extra $50,000 worth until the secretary of the company had written him assuring him that everything was in order. These letters Ryder kept.

From that time on the Alaskan Mining company underwent mysterious changes. New capitalists gained control and the name was altered to the Great Northwestern Mining company. Then it became involved in litigation, and one suit, the outcome of which meant millions to the company, was carried to the supreme court, where Judge Rossmore was sitting. The judge had by this time forgotten all about the company in which he owned stock. He did not even recall its name. He only knew vaguely that it was a mine and that it was situated in Alaska. Could he dream that the Great Northwestern Mining company and the company to which he had intrusted his few thousands were one and the same? In deciding on the merits of the case presented to him right seemed to him to be plainly with the Northwestern, and he rendered a decision to that effect. It was an important decision, involving a large sum, and for a day or two it was talked about. But as it was the opinion of the most learned and honest judge on the bench no one dreamed of questioning it.

But very soon ugly paragraphs began to appear in the newspapers. One paper asked if it were true that Judge Rossmore owned stock in the Great Northwestern Mining company which had recently benefited so signally by his decision. Interviewed by a reporter, Judge Rossmore indignantly denied being interested in any way in the company. Thereupon the same paper returned to the attack, stating that the judge must surely be mistaken, as the records showed a sale of stock to him at the time the company was known as the Alaskan Mining company. When he read this the judge was overwhelmed. It was true then! They had not slandered him. It was he who had lied, but how innocently—how innocently!

His daughter Shirley, who was his greatest friend and comfort, was then in Europe. She had gone to the continent to rest after working for months on a novel which she had just published. His wife, entirely without experience in business matters and somewhat of an invalid, was helpless to advise him. But to his old and tried friend, ex-Judge Stott, Judge Rossmore explained the facts as they were. Stott shook his head. "It's a conspiracy!" he cried. "And John B. Ryder is behind it." Rossmore refused to believe that any man could so deliberately try to encompass another's destruction, but when more newspaper stories came out he began to realize that Stott was right and that his enemies had indeed dealt him a deadly blow. One newspaper boldly stated that Judge Rossmore was down on the mining company's books for $50,000 more stock than he had paid for, and it went on to ask if this were payment for the favorable decision just rendered. Rossmore, helpless, childlike as he was in business matters, now fully realized the seriousness of his position. "My God! My God!" he cried as he bowed his head down on his desk. And for a whole day he remained closeted in his library, no one venturing near him.

As John Ryder sat there sphinxlike at the head of the directors' table he reviewed all this in his mind. His own part in the work was now done, and well done, and he had come to this meeting today to tell them of his triumph. Cries of "The chair! The chair!" arose on every side. Senator Roberts leaned over to Ryder and whispered something in his ear.

With an acquiescent gesture John Ryder tapped the table with his gavel and rose to address his fellow directors. Instantly the room was silent again as the tomb. One might have heard a pin drop, so intense was the attention. All eyes were fixed on the chairman. The air itself seemed charged with electricity that needed but a spark to set it ablaze.

Speaking deliberately and dispassionately, the master dissembler began.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 17,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

How to Build Summer Home; Plan Is Worth Your Trial.

By H. K. Greenman.

IF two years ago any person had suggested to us that we buy a summer home we would have laughed at the idea. If said person had predicted that we would own one soon we would have placed him in the Jules Verne class or as a member of the Ananias club, for we are only a common worker's family, not exactly poor, for we have the comforts of life, and a few that some call luxuries. Still we have to watch the dollars in order to save a little for that day of dampness that all right thinking people anticipate and prepare for.

We usually tried to take a little vacation once each year, generally in summer, as that is the time when we can most easily leave both business and the home. Some years we went to a resort and some years we went to the country on a farm, where many advantages were offered but few found, for at the farm we found the heat more intolerable than at home and the food not always suitable for hot weather.

When our family physician proposed that we build a cottage on a Michigan beach farm that he had bought for his own family, so that we might be company for them, we drew a long breath of delight, but said "no," because we had not the ready money.

* *

Build House on Payments.

"Well," said the doctor, "that is a simple problem—you want the house and land. Now, I have the land and am willing to trust you for it; all you have to do is to find some man who wishes to put out a little money on interest for a short time, and who will allow you to pay it back in monthly or weekly payments."

We found the right man, paid him $25 down and arranged to pay him $10 a month. The place had a long lake frontage and a beautiful white sand beach, and back of the beach proper is a sort of a sandy shelf. Our cottage is of dressed matched lumber, and built with two rooms, one of them screened in for a dining room during the day and sitting room in the evening.

Our beds are cots and sanitary couches, which convert into comfortable seats and lounges in the daytime.

A gasoline stove and small oven in one corner makes light cooking morning and evening easy, and we arranged with the family who live on the place as caretakers to give us our noonday meal.

* *

Old Furniture from Home.

A table, a few chairs, and plenty of hammocks, a dresser and an old rug brought from home completed our furniture, except, of course, the little things that we also picked out of our surplus at home, and which were good for nothing else, such as odd pieces of tableware, our oldest bed linen, towels, etc., so we will not have to move them back.

One novel feature of our house is our fireplace, built of the sand and flat beach stones and cement, a small fireplace, allowing the stones to show, giving a rustic effect. A hearth laid of many colored flat stones, also from the beach, is picturesque and comfortable.

A 9x11 tent for the girls and a 7x9 tent for the boys complete our outfit. Both the tents are floored, have a window in back for ventilation, and a screen door, fitted to front flap, so they are comfortable.

During the summer months we go in bathing twice and three times daily, but the children go any time, as the beach is shallow and the limit is placed at waist high for them, though they could go 100 feet farther and be safe. In a few months we will be back at the summer cottage. I can almost imagine myself there now. The picture of the pertty place is in my mind.

At the cottage are swings, turning poles, etc., to keep the youngsters busy when they are not building sand houses or chasing butterflies, or picking and eating berries.

And when we sit on our screened porch and eat our supper, which, though simple, tastes —well, how good it does taste and how much of it we do eat!

We look out over the great lake and see the blood red sun sinking into a bank of smoke that we know is old Chicago, and say: "Ah, smoky old town, much as we love you, we are glad we are not with you tonight."

* *

Why Didn't We Do It Sooner?

And soon the katydids begin their song and the whippoorwills chime in, and the youngsters with blinking eyes steal off to bed and all is quiet except the ceaseless lapping of the waves, when suddenly the baby, 3 years old, pipes up, "Mamma." "What, dear?" "Why didn't we do this before?"

And so say we, "Why didn't we?"

The result was that we all came home brown, strong, rested, and with prodigious appetites. One of the family, who went away a puny, restless, irritable youngster, came back a strong, romping picture of health.

Had this summer cost us $500 it would have been money wisely and well invested, but it did not.

The investment, house, including beds, dresser, table, three chairs, two cots, gasoline stove, two tents, fireplace, lot, was only $240.

Expenses of the Season.

Cost for season—
Railroad and boat fares, family	$ 8.50
Five week end trips for myself	10.00
Noon meals at farmhouse	72.00
Meats, groceries, etc	32.00
Our one-half of cow bought	17.50
Our one-half of feed for cow	3.00
Paid man for cartage, etc	6.00
Laundry woman, 8 days at $1	8.00
Incidentals	11.20
Total	$168.20
Less credit for one-half received from cow	12.50
Total for two months	$155.70
Cost per month	$ 77.85

Now, where can you beat it? And, besides, we had the time of our lives.

Why may not others do the same? There is yet land on the lake within two hours of Chicago that is ideal for this purpose. A colony of congenial people could build and manage their places economically or get someone to build for them and pay for it at a nominal cost.

Some person who wishes to do real good with some of his capital, and at the same time secure 6 per cent on his money invested, cannot do better than to back up such a colony.

Census Man Counts Animals; Thousands Different Kinds.

By Dietrich Lange.

ABOUT 2,500 different kinds of animals are known on earth—that is, warm blooded, milk giving creatures, like our common domestic animals. To avoid confusion with other creatures, we ought to call them mammals, meaning milk giving animals.

The largest order among the mammals is represented by the gnawers. About 750 of them are known to scientists, and new species are still being discovered every year. The largest among the gnawers is the beaver, which, through its remarkable dams and houses, has earned the title of chief animal engineer. The smallest gnawers are the little jumping kangaroo mice of our woods.

The order of mammals is represented by the elephants, of which only two species are now living, the Indian elephant and the African elephant. In past ages several species of elephants existed in temperate regions of the earth. Remains of them have been found in North America, as far north as Alaska, in Europe, and especially in Siberia.

* *

Elephant in Ice Centuries.

Several complete skeletons have been found in Siberia. In 1901 an elephant was found frozen in ice near the Kolyma river, sixty miles north of the arctic circle. Its long hair, the skin, flesh, and stomach contents were well preserved. The animal may have been in nature's cold storage for over 1,000 years. It is now in the Natural History museum at St. Petersburg.

The largest of all mammals are not the elephants, but the whales. A large elephant weighs about six tons, but the largest whale reaches the immense weight of 150 tons, and would furnish four carloads of flesh and blubber.

About forty different kinds of whales and dolphins are known, and although they live in the open sea and look like fish, they are not fish at all, but are true mammals, breathing air and feeding their young on milk like cows and horses.

* *

Four Hundred Kinds of Bats.

The smallest of all mammals are the shrews—nocturnal, mouselike creatures that hunt for worms and insects in woods and meadows. An egg shell would make a commodious barn for a mother shrew and her little ones.

The distribution of mammals over the earth shows many curious features. North America, northern Europe, and Asia have many families in common. Such animals as wolves, foxes, bears, deer, and moose, beavers, squirrels, and rabbits live all around the northern hemisphere. The mammals found on isolated islands are of surpassing interest to the naturalists.

Bats were the only family of native mammals found on the thousands of small islands in the Pacific. These islands are so far away from the great continents that no mammals but the flying bats could reach them. The number of bats known on earth is about 400.

Islands which, like England, were connected with the adjacent continent not long ago possess about the same mammals as the continent. On the other hand, an island like Madagascar, which has been separated from Africa, the nearest continent, since early geological time, has about seventy animals that are not found anywhere else on earth; while lions, hyenas, apes, zebras, antelopes, buffaloes, giraffes, and other African mammals are entirely absent from the forests and savannas of Madagascar.

One of the greatest revelations about the past history of animal life on the globe came to naturalists with the discovery of Australia. When the Dutch captain, Wilhem Jansz, in 1605, first saw Australia, he discovered not only a new continent, but also an entirely new world of animals, birds, and plants.

* *

'Possums Have Kin Far Away.

In Australia are found three egg laying mammals, two hedgehogs, and a duck bill, and over ninety pouched mammals, the marsupials of the naturalists. These pouched mammals, like the kangaroo, carry their young about in a skin pouch. The young are born small and undeveloped and the largest baby kangaroo is not any bigger than a mouse.

About 100 of these odd animals inhabit Australia and a few neighboring islands, but are found nowhere else. The only living relatives they can now muster on earth are the 'possums of North America; but in former geological ages pouched mammals were also found on other continents.

Like Madagascar and New Zealand, Australia has no native members of the cat family, no foxes, minks, weasels, bears, deer, horses, cattle, and others, characteristic of the old world, and of America. Naturalists believe that Australia was separated from Asia before these more modern animals appeared and spread over the earth.

But they could not reach Australia, and therefore the old type of pouch bearing mammals continued to live and develop in Australia and on Tasmania. New Zealand was not even reached by the pouch bearers, and two bats are the only native mammals found there. Certainly New Zealand is not the land for a man who wishes to hunt big game.

Wanted: An Earnest Man; No Task Can Daunt Him.

By Dr. Madison C. Peters.

TO accomplish anything well, to bring it to a successful completion, it is necessary—imperative—that we call to our assistance the best that is in us of energy, of skill, of application, and perseverance, otherwise we can never hope to attain any high degree of perfection.

We must be in earnest in our labors, using every effort that we can command to excel in the particular line in which we are engaged.

Nothing great or worthy has ever been done in the world in a slipshod, half-hearted, listless manner. The whole soul must enter into the work in order to produce a successful result.

The men who have enriched their kind by mighty deeds and added to the progress, civilization and enlightenment of the race have all been men not alone of endeavor but of intense earnestness, with a fixed purpose in view and who unceasingly toiled until they gained their end.

What we mistakenly call genius often is but this earnestness of purpose which knows not failure, which never dreams of defeat and will allow no obstacle to impede its onward march to the goal of victory.

The secret of the superiority of one man over another does not always lie in mental vigor or excelling skill of hand, but in most cases is to be found in close application to work, in the enthusiasm with which the task becomes lightened and therefore easier of accomplishment.

The man who is earnest will become enthusiastic, and enthusiasm is the lever by which the heaviest burdens of life are lifted and the most difficult tasks raised to a plane of comparative easy endeavor.

* *

Enthusiasm Essence of Being.

Enthusiasm is the breath that animates the body with the vital essence of its being and gives it force to move onward to fulfill the destiny of its creation.

Without it man is but a piece of soulless clay, a mere automaton of flesh and blood and bone, moved only by the animal instincts of nature and with no distinguishing characteristic to mark his eminence above the rest of the creation.

It was this divine essence in the soul that led primitive man from the crude state of barbaric darkness, step by step, into the broad light of knowledge and progress.

It was this that made the pioneer go out into unknown lands and explore their secrets; it was this that sent daring spirits down to the sea in ships in quest of adventure; it was this that brought the light to illumine the savage in his primeval ignorance and opened up all parts of the earth to commerce and progressiveness.

Without it the torch of civilization could have never been kindled and mankind would still be huddled beside the dead hearth of darkness with the ashes of ignorance around them.

Every great deed, every brave action, every step toward the emancipation of the race from the chains of barbarism have had enthusiasm and earnestness behind them spurring them on to achieve results.

It was enthusiasm and determination, earnestness of purpose, that caused Columbus to persevere in face of every opposition and finally caused him to triumph in the discovery of a new world.

The man who lacks enthusiasm for his work can never be in earnest and so can never produce a worthy resultant from it.

From the humblest laborer to the highest mechanic, from the lowest rank to the most exalted, from him who toils with his hands to him whose teeming brain evolves the laws that govern the doctrines of nations, enthusiasm is absolutely indispensable to make his work count in the aggregate of human accomplishment; without it his toil is barren and himself a failure. He neither enriches the world nor benefits himself.

* *

Soul Must Be in Work.

A man can never be a good shoemaker unless he puts earnestness into his shoes, an earnestness that forces him not alone to rival but to surpass all competitors in his line.

A bricklayer must bring enthusiasm to bear on the setting of his brick if he would become an expert workman. 'Tis the same with all trades and professions, and this is just the reason why many fail miserably in certain departments of endeavor who could be successes in others.

A doctor without earnestness and enthusiasm in his profession would be much better off himself and of more good to the world guiding the plow with enthusiasm helping him to guide it right.

All the great men who have soared above their fellows, whose names are carved on the adamantine rocks of time for the deeds they accomplished, were all, without exception, in love with their work, no matter what it was, and herein lay their greatness.

Some of the great masters spent twenty and even thirty years in perfecting single canvases. Authors have rewritten their works so many times that not a vestige of the original has been transmitted to the public.

We all admire the "Deserted Village." Certainly it is one of the most thrillingly pathetic pastoral poems in our or any other language, but it took Goldsmith seven years to write it. He was much in earnest to turn out a perfect poem.

We wonder at the depth of human feeling and the insight into human nature displayed in "Les Misérables," never considering that Victor Hugo spent thirty-three years in its composition, studying individual character all the time as perhaps man never studied before.

It took Bunyan twelve years to give us the "Pilgrim's Progress." Many other great works which we attribute to genius, but which were the result really of patience, perseverance, and earnestness, occupied the best years of their authors to produce them.

Why did Phidias and Praxiteles excel all others in sculpture? Because they were in earnest about their work, and no detail, however minute, was too insignificant to claim their best attention. Michelangelo followed along similar lines, hence his great success as a sculptor.

Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well, which is another way of saying that whatever is worth doing invites earnestness of purpose in its accomplishment.

* *

Power Rests in Every Man.

There is an energy in every one, but it will lie latent until kindled into life by this sacred fire of enthusiasm and torch of earnestness to become a mighty force, a giant power that nothing can withstand, that will bring its possessor to the front when others are far behind.

Energy is a lever which can raise the world, but it needs enthusiasm for a fulcrum and earnestness for a force.

In no matter what direction employed, the daring of enthusiasm and the perseverance of earnestness will carve their way to success.

Cultivate these qualities, call these forces to your aid, and you have nothing to fear in the battle of life. Keep your powder always dry, ready to go off any moment with explosive force.

Remember, within yourself you have power, and all you have to do is to call earnestness and enthusiasm to your aid to exert this power to the best advantage and overcome every stumbling block in your path.

Fable of the Floor Walker and the Lovely Sales Girl.

By Allan Wilson.

PETER GLASS was an ambitious young man who was a floor walker in the hosiery department of Burg & Starter's great department store. However, Mr. Glass was not entirely the undesirable citizen that these conditions might seem to indicate. There were extenuating circumstances attached to each of these deplorable conditions, and besides this Mr. Glass really had his good points.

One of these was his sociability. Mr. Glass was strong in his humanitarian principles. He liked people. Some he liked more than others, but his general love of humanity averaged much higher than the average citizen's, not to mention the average floor walker's.

Sociability and the ability to mix well are great assets in a business career. You have read this before, but you may have forgotten. Mr. Glass never forgot it for an instant. He lived by that rule. Be sociable, and you will be successful. So he began to be affable to the new saleslady.

It was a mere incident, of course, that she was beautiful. Mr. Glass would have denied indignantly that he noticed the new saleslady on this account. It was his innate sociability that prompted him to do it. It was not the fault of Mr. Glass that she was beautiful. He wasn't responsible for that. He was just sociable.

Of course he knew all this time that there was an ironclad rule in Burg & Starter's emporium that prohibits anything approaching sociability toward salesladies on the part of floor walkers. He saw the rule every time he entered the superintendent's office to explain why he was late that morning. But there are ways to take exceptions to all rules.

Mr. Glass spoke to the beautiful saleslady only when nobody was looking. That made it entirely safe. She and he were the only people in the world who knew that he was sociable—to her. She wouldn't tell, of course. She was such a demure, quiet little thing that anything of the sort was impossible to her. If she hadn't been Mr. Glass would not have been so affable.

But she—why, she actually refused his offer to take her to dinner out of sheer timidity.

It was the day after the dinner invitation that Mr. Glass was summoned to the superintendent's office. He smoothed down his back hair and arranged his tie as he went along. He wanted to make a good appearance.

The superintendent pointed to the rule which commanded floor walkers not to be sociable to salesladies.

"Well, what of it?" said Glass. "I haven't broken that rule."

"Mr. Glass," said the superintendent, "you have broken that rule."

"How do you know, sir?"

"Miss Perkins," called the superintendent. The beautiful saleslady came into the room. "Mr. Glass," continued the superintendent, "this is Miss Perkins—a store detective, and here is your pay check. Good day, Glass."

"Huh!" said Mr. Glass outside. "It's fierce to think of what low down tricks a man will resort to to get the best of a poor, honest worker!"

Bill Was a Country Yap; Yet He Showed a New Trick.

By Hubert Small.

THIS is the trick that Bill brought. Bill came in from the country. He didn't know it was the country until he got to the city. Then he was informed by the other clerks in the big clothing store that he was a yap. This hurt Bill's feelings considerably. Considering that he had been born and raised in his home town, that the town contained 100,000 people, and that he'd actually been recommended to the big city establishment by a traveling man who had seen him at work in the smaller town, Bill might have been pardoned for considering himself something of a city man himself. But, no, said the other clerks; he was from the country, he was a yap. After they had heartened Bill with this little piece of free information they went to work and kindly showed him a few tricks in selling goods.

They showed him how to greet a customer. They were sure that Bill didn't know anything about that. Having come from the country, they knew that he couldn't know, you know. So they went through their best performances for Bill's benefit. After a few hours Bill knew just how you ought to meet a customer if you are a salesman in a big clothing store.

* *

Agrees to Return the Favor.

Bill was much obliged naturally, and said that he hoped he could even up for what the boys had done for him.

"How?" they asked.

"By showing you a trick to pay for this," said Bill.

He couldn't understand why all of them laughed at this. But he didn't stop to inquire, either. He was some fox, was Bill, even if he did come from the country.

Eventually they let a customer stray into Bill's hands. He was one of the kind of customers that the clerks set down as "wised up." Which means that the customer looks as if he knew what he wanted and why and for how much. Such customers come in and say: "I want a pair of dark gray trousers, 36 and 32, for $5," make their selection, hand the salesman a $5 bill, take their purchase, and walk out. They are single minded individuals, and the fine art of salesmanship is lost upon them. They know just what they want.

This was the customer that Bill got. The other salesmen watched Bill work with him, or, rather, watched the customer work with Bill. True to their judgment, the customer picked out one item, made the purchase in businesslike fashion, and stood waiting for his package. That was all there was to do with such a customer. He couldn't be made to buy another thing. Perhaps not.

* *

Sells Two Fancy Vests.

But while Bill stood talking with him a bundle boy came up to Bill with four fancy vests on his arm. What he said to Bill the clerks couldn't hear, but presently the customer was feeling of the fabric, pretty soon he was matching one of the vests against his suit, and the first thing anybody knew Bill was leading him off to the vest department to fit him with something fancy in new spring goods. He sold the customer two vests, and then he came back to the other salesmen.

"That's the trick I meant," he said.

"But there wasn't any trick about that," they chorused. "That boy just happened along with those vests, and the customer happened to see a pattern that looked good to him, and——"

"Not quite," said Bill. "While I was selling him the pants I got him to admit that he might be looking for some fancy vests one of these days, and instead of trying to drag him into the vest department I got that kid to just happen along at the psychological moment with those samples and say he'd been sent to say that if I wanted one for myself I'd better come over and pick 'em out before they were all gone, and——"

"And why didn't we ever think of that before?" demanded the others of one another. And they forgot that Bill came in from the country.

Why Letter Writers Fail; Have No Trace of Originality.

By C. L. Pancoast.

A SHORT time ago a Chicago manufacturer placed an advertisement in the want columns of THE TRIBUNE for an experienced correspondent.

He received seventy-eight replies to that one advertisement.

He was satisfied that the ad and the medium were all right, but out of the seventy-eight applicants only six qualified as good prospects for the position.

This business man's idea in having expert letter writers apply for the position by letter was to judge each man by his own use of correspondence to promote himself.

Nearly all the applicants failed to comply with the exact conditions of the ad. They either failed to answer the questions specifically or volunteered some information which was not asked for.

The next fault of these letters of application was that they were made up of conventional and hackneyed phrases. This lack of originality killed any trace of individuality, which was the one particular qualification desired by this business man.

The majority ignored the first rule of correct correspondence, which is that of arousing interest by the first sentence.

* *

How to Attract Attention.

The first essential of any successful business letter is to get a man's attention and to hold it. To accomplish this many letter writers resort to some gingery saying or clever idea to impress the reader favorably the moment his eye meets their message.

Successful letter writers have learned that the letters which look like those of everybody else rarely, if ever, obtain a careful reading or a resultful audience.

A distinctive style of letter heads and paragraphing are commonly used for the purpose of making a pleasing impression. But the tone or individuality of the letter head never is so important as the words which flash the message on the reader's mind.

When a unique envelope and an individual style of letter head have attracted the reader's attention, it is essential that the first paragraph sustain the interest and lead the reader on into the description and arguments.

Many correspondents find that an individual style of paragraphing which makes the letter easily read and quickly understood always holds the interest. Short paragraphs with double spacing between each paragraph make it possible for the eye to take in the contents of the letter at a glance.

* *

Begin with Short Paragraph.

A successful plan often used is to make the first paragraph about four words in length. These are written in caps and underscored.

The modern idea of illustrating the article or thing talked about by using a half tone cut in the letter seems to be more effective than any other scheme of attracting attention.

Of course, the most clever scheme of attracting attention, such as displays and illustrations, will not bring business unless the eye catching features are well backed up by alluring descriptions, convincing arguments. But an illustrated point or an article seems to be a successful method of tempting the reader into the body of the letter.

Some letter writers go so far as to use scare heads, startling phrases, catch head lines of all sorts, and even subheads. All these schemes naturally make a man sit up and take notice, but to get what the writer is after, the letter must deal with the specific facts and not generalities.

The first principle in displaying a letter is to avoid any crowded mass of type, which fatigues the eye quickly by the monotonous strain upon it. There always should be some contrast between the arrangement of the contents which will offer relief to the eye, some attractive display which by the ease of reading will stimulate and sustain attention.

It always should be kept in mind that the thing being exploited in a letter should be presented in a way which will appeal personally to the reader. Present it from his point of view and he naturally will give it his attention, and aroused interest follows.

Office Easy Chair a Mistake; Makes the Clerks Lazy.

By W. A. Frederic.

YOU will notice, if you make a tour through any office building, that the men who have the most businesslike, wideawake appearance are the men in straight legged, straight backed chairs. The employés most liable to have an idle, thousand miles away look are those nested in swing back, ball bearing seats of rest.

It is not the fault of the employé that he looks lazy, it is the fault of the chair. A mistaken idea of comfort has led manufacturers to develop a style of chair which is comfortable in theory but which for business purposes is a mistake. It makes working a hardship. No man can lower himself into a device which instantly invites him to loll back, light a good cigar, clasp his hands behind his head, and tell a good story—no average man can sit in such a chair and work.

Mental concentration is dependent on physical stimulus. The chair which makes a man sit erect, keeping him pointed at his work, is best—best both for the employer who hires the man and for the man who uses the chair.

There is at least one employer in Chicago who has discovered this fact and acted upon the discovery. He owns a large printing business. Not long ago he moved into new quarters. His office force he placed in a large room in full view of the entrance. This room he elaborately finished in costly woodwork, furnished it with fine heavy desks and with luxuriant chairs.

He was particularly proud of this office and he showed it enthusiastically to every business and social acquaintance who called on him.

One day he awoke. He had been showing an out of town customer over his plant, and on returning to his private office settled back contentedly with, "Well, what do you think of it?" The reply was prompt: "Everything is fine except the parlor. You have the laziest looking office force I ever saw in my life. I came in here from a small city expecting to see things done as they should be, and here I find only a set of idlers, who do nothing but lie back and yawn. How do they ever work? Take my advice, either get a new set of clerks or put firecrackers under those you have."

The employer pondered—and watched. About a week later a furniture van brought to his door a sufficient number of erect, energetic looking chairs to supply his office force. It departed loaded with an equal number of the indolent kind.

Today that employer points with pride to a roomful of what he declares to be the most alert, wideawake, interested looking desk workers in the city. The change of chairs did it.

THE MINUTE HISTORY OF A TEAPOT

placed in a hot room and the moisture dried out of it, and it is then ready for firing once more.

THE SECOND FIRING.

This time, however, more care has to be taken of it. The ware is placed in saggars, each one being placed on a small stilt to prevent it sticking to the bttoomof of the saggar, and great care taken that the pieces do not touch one another. All round the rim of the saggar is placed a roll of soft clay and then being covered over with another saggar, it becomes air tight. If this were not done, the smoke and sulphur from the fires would spoil the glaze. During the second firing the oven has to be taken to a much greater heat than in the first one. The glaze on the ware is composed of the same materials as glass, is made from, and is in fact a thin coating of glass fused on the body by the terrific heat. When the spy holes are opened the glare from the inside almost blinds one not accustomed to it. This firing takes from twenty-four to thirty hours and it is a very particular piece of work. One hour's neglect may mean the loss of seven hundred to eight hundred dollars, as the oven holds as many as ten thousand teapots. Incredible as it may seem, this firing takes as much as fifteen or sixteen tons of best coal—2,240 pounds to the ton, English weight—so it is apparent that the need constant feeding to get up the heat required. After this process is completed the oven is allowed two days to cool down.

THE FINISHED TEAPOT

The contents are then removed to the gloss warehouse, there to be sorted, cleaned and booked out for orders. If, however, the ware is designed for decorating, it is taken into the decorating rooms. While there, girls put on the colors and gold as required. This, of course, would be no use unless it were hardened on, and this is done by again firing it. This time however, it is not taken to such a heat as formerly, and is done in a hardening kiln. This is a small edition of the oven, and usually holds eight hundred or nine hundred teapots. After this process the teapot comes out in all its splendors of gilt and colors. The teapots are then ready for packing and shipping to any part of the world.

SCALE OF WAGES.

The reader would perhaps like to know the scale of wages paid the workmen at the potteries. The prices for making are as follows, viz:—Throwing, 9d or 18 cents a dozen; jiggering, 14 cents per dozen; pressing from 2 to 5 cents each, according to shape; handling 11 cents per doz.; making spouts, 4 cents per dozen; turning the bodies, 20 cents per doz; making lids 3 cents per dozen; turning lids, 6 cents per dozen. These are the makers' prices, and all the foregoing are 24 pieces to the dozen. Although the prices seem very small, the workmen make good money, as a jiggerer, for instance, can make two dozen per hour. This means 28 cts. per hour, or $2.80 per day of ten hours, making the bodies of 480 teapots in one day.

MANY ARE EMPLOYED

Some idea of the output of one of firms can be formed from the fact that they employ as many as twenty or twenty-five jiggerers.

Where all the earthenware goes is a mystery and, no doubt, there is truth in the old proverb, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," as these large firms are carried on through the misfortunes of the users of earthenware, for, if no more were broken, there would be little of no demand for it.

THE REVIEW'S NEW STORY

One of the Most Interesting of Recent Day Accounts of Capital and Labour

To-day the Review begins the story of "The Lion and the Mouse," novalized from Charles Klein's great play. It is an American story of the hour dealing with the billionaire. Its leading character is the richest man in the world. In the thinly veiled John Ryder the reader will immediately recognize another John of world wide fame. John Ryder's unscrupulous methods are revealed in the conspiracy to ruin an incorruptible judge who rules adversely to the interests of organized capital. The judge's daughter determines to save him. Her heroic struggles in conflict with the money octopus make a story of absorbing interest and great dramatic power. In his willingness to renounce his father's fortune for the girl of his choice, Ryder's son displays a nobility which wins the reader's warmest admiration.

In Spring-Time Many People Need a Good Tonic.

Pe-ru-na, a Standard Tonic the World Over.

From the bracing rigors of winter to the balmy warmth of spring-time is a climatic change that affects every one more or less. A great multitude of people, however, are so affected by the change as to require medical assistance.

If such people neglect to take a good tonic that will safely tide them over the trying weather of early spring, the system is weakened, the blood over loaded with effete materials of the winter season and the victim is rendered an easy prey to acute ailments.

It has been the universal experience of mankind that a spring tonic of some sort is necessary. All kinds of remedies, herbal and mineral, have been used. There is usually great uncertainty as to the operation of the average spring tonic.

Peruna, on the other hand, has been in use for so many years and in such a variety of climates and by such a multitude of people that its beneficial operation for spring ailments has become a practical certainty. Peruna can be relied upon as a spring tonic. It cleanses the blood by correcting the digestion, which is the source of good blood.

Mrs. R. Boyer Writes From 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., Concerning Pe-ru-na. Read Her Letter Below:

"If any one has reason to praise Peruna, it is surely myself.

"Last spring I became run down from the serious effects of lingering cold and several complications united in pulling me down.

"I could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit.

"I finally tried Peruna and it did wonders for me.

"In two weeks I was like another person and in a month I felt better than I ever had before.

"I thank Peruna for new life and strength."

MR. L.D. TOWNSEND

MRS. E. MALMGREN

Mr. C. A. Landgrabe, Box 25, Coalburg, Ohio, Gives His Experience With Peruna. Read His Letter Below:

MR. C.A. LANDGRABE

"I had been a slight sufferer for a number of years, but paid little attention to it until the spring of this year when my suffering became very severe.

"I had pain in the head, back, liver, chest and other parts of my body, besides indigestion which caused me much trouble.

"I tried medical aid, but to no purpose. I wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice, telling him of my various ailments and he informed me that I had systemic catarrh.

"After using the first bottle of Peruna, I felt relief. I continued to use it until I had taken four bottles, when I felt entirely cured. I recommend Peruna to others."

Aids Digestion, Promotes Sleep.

Mr. E. Arnold, Westerly, R. I., writes: "I wish to say a good word for your valuable remedy, Peruna. I have taken many kinds of medicine during my life, but find that Peruna stands ahead of all. It aids digestion, promotes sleep, quiets the nervous system, strengthens the throat and vocal organs. I have used it for catarrh and to break up sudden colds which is the best of all.

"I contracted a severe cold once which ended in pleurisy and left me weak, and every change of weather would bring a return of old pains. Peruna now vanishes all pain. I cannot praise it enough. I tell all my friends that it is the best medicine used for the ills of life. If any word of mine will lead others to try it, you are at liberty to use my testimonial in any form."

Gave New Life and Force.

Mr. B. F. Sellers, 2334 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"Any man in my profession often has to spend the whole night with a tremendous strain on his respiratory organs. I have time and again gone home so worn out that I could neither eat nor sleep, and a number of my colleagues have been in the same condition.

"But Peruna has changed this. I found that after using a bottle or two my system was greatly invigorated with new life and force, and I can now fortify my system to endure a greater strain than was ever possible before. Peruna certainly is very necessary to me, and keeps me in splendid health."

Mr. L. D. Townsend, suite 2, 3 and 4, Century Bl'k, St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"I am grateful for what Peruna has done for my family.

"Six months ago my wife's health was very much run down, lacking vigor and suffering with pains in her head and back.

"A friend advised her to try Peruna, which she did with most satisfactory results. In a few weeks she was completely restored to her usual vigor, and is now happy, well and strong, thanks to Peruna.

"I have tried Peruna myself when tired and overworked and in every instance I have felt better within a day or two."

Headache and Backache.

Mrs. Nannie Hall, 12 Herbert street, Atlanta, Ga., writes:

"I write to tell you how much good your Peruna has done for me. I was so sick and nervous that I was almost dead. I could not eat nor sleep nor work any at all, but was in bed nearly all the time, and was almost a skeleton I was so poor. Now I can eat anything I want and it doesn't hurt me, and I can sleep all night long and get up and work all day. I don't have any nervousness now, but am happy all the day long. I sing the praises of Peruna wherever I go, and I believe it saved my life. I could not have lived through the summer in the condition I was in.

"I had tried many doctors, but they did me no good. Peruna certainly cured me. I had headache and backache and was very nervous. I could not eat nor sleep, and was almost in my grave. I tried your Peruna, and I felt better from the start. I took about five bottles of Peruna and the awful headache and nervousness was gone. I could eat anything, and my nerves are all right, and I have no more backache. I am well, and Peruna cured me."

Mrs. Elin Malmgren, 77 Cleveland street, West Manchester, N. H., writes:

"Every spring and fall, for eleven years, I have been troubled with catarrh in my throat and nose and hoarseness.

"I am pleased to state that at last I found a medicine, Peruna, from which I received great benefit, and I will hereafter use and recommend it.

"I always keep it in my house in case of sickness.

"I recommend your medicine to all my friends and every sufferer as an excellent medicine."

Catarrh of the Head.

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, O., writes:

"My daughter Allie, after taking three bottles of your Peruna is entirely cured of catarrh of the head of two years' standing. We have used Peruna as a general tonic, as well as for catarrh, and are well pleased with it and recommend it to anybody who has catarrh. Anybody wishing any information can write to me."

Doctors Called It Consumption.

Miss Ella L. Matthews, Box 111, Hill City, Tenn., writes:

"I find much pleasure in writing you to let you know that I have been taking your wonderful tonic, Peruna. From experience I have decided that there could be no greater medicine in the world than Peruna.

"Several physicians had pronounced my disease as consumption. I had been a sufferer for several years, and was growing weaker all the while, until I could hardly walk across my room.

"I was so fortunate as to get a Peruna book, and after reading it carefully I decided Peruna was the remedy for me, so I began taking it. To-day my health is better than it has been since I had the measles ten years ago. I cannot express half the praise which is due to Dr. Hartman for his great and wonderful remedy and his advice regarding health. I do not think I would be living this day had it not been for Peruna."

LECTURE BY SIR FRED. BRIDGE THE HISTORY OF CHURCH MUSIC

In the Methodist Church, St. Catherines—Rev. Dr. Crothers Chairman—An Important Event

It is very seldom indeed, that St. Catharines has been honored by the presence in its midst of such a man as Sir Frederick Bridge, M.V.O., M.A., Mus. Doc., the organist and choirmaster of Westminster Abbey, London, England, one of the most renowned musicians of the world. And so it was no great wonder that, long before the doors were opened in St. Paul street Methodist church on Saturday night, where Sir Frederick Bridge gave a lecture-recital, there was a very large number present, waiting to gain admission. The church was comfortably filled, in fact, there was not a half dozen good seats left at 8.15, when the massed choirs of this city assembled on the large platform erected especially for the occasion. The choir or chorus, consisted of one hundred and fifty voices, composed of the leading members of the various local church choirs.

The programme was commenced by the singing of the doxology, in which the choir and congregation took part. Prayer by Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of St. Paul street Methodist church, followed, after which Dr Crothers, in introducing the talented lecturer, said in part:—"It is my duty and my privilege and pleasure to introduce to you this evening, a man who hardly needs any introduction, a man whose name, wherever music is known, is a household word. He is a visitor whom we are proud indeed to have in our midst. He has been honored by royalty, by our universities and by all nations, and this reputation has been established this world over. And so I have great pleasure in introducing to you this evening Sir Frederick Bridge, the organist and choirmaster in the most precious temple in the Imperial realm.

Dr Bridge, gowned as a doctor of music, stepped on the platform and spoke at some length of the history and development of cathedral music in England from 1550-1908, as follows:

In undertaking this duty to Canada, I have undertaken something of real importance and I am well aware of my timidity. My object in view is one of intense importance to all lovers of church music, although some may think that I am stepping a little out of my sphere. I am pleased to be in your country because it is something like England—you are never sure of your weather.

I came because I felt that if I could help the lovers of real fine ecclastical music and could induce the various organists to combine (and some are very quarrelsome) and should I succeed, my mission, for such it is, should succeed also.

Not a single week passes that I am not accosted at Westminster Abbey by Canadians and I have had many clever students from Canada, and I have always been struck by their desire to get to the real foundation of our church music. They are always keen and alert and I am well aware of their ability. These young Canadians I examine and so I am well aware of their talents.

I thought when I was in England that Canada was about the size of England, but I am commencing to wonder when I shall get through your large and beautiful country. In Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Belleville, I have been shown a great deal of kindness.

In the Royal College of Music I came across a youth from Canada who I found, when he was home, had spent most of his time milking cows. I thought then that this was a remarkable thing but I think that in music as in other things, Canada will be, in time to come, the one great country in the world. I have been astonished with the way in which the music I have prepared has been rendered by the various choirs. I really did not know the capability of your people. The extraordinary accuracy with which these illustrations have been invariably rendered, has surprised me. I have heard some of the examples sung, I may say, as well as in the old country.

As a rule, this music has been entirely new, and, this being the case, I am quite sure the choirs will never forget the different illustrations.

As regards our own musical accomplishments in England for the past years, we have lagged in the rear. Germany, Italy and France have given us great men, but they have not been able to evolve a splendid school of ecclesiastical music which can anywhere excel ours. We have gone on and on and I want to see it kept on. Moreover, I want the advance which is to be made in church music to always be in the right direction. I do not want our music to turn to the light, the frivolous, which, though cheap, is nasty, though easily learnt, is much better forgotten. Its very simplicity is a temptation to many, and from the earliest day to the present day, simplicity has been given for but simplicity can be had in good music as well.

I believe in good hymns, but I do not believe in tunes which are linked with those of theatre or music halls.

The anthem is our especial possession. It belongs to us. In the Catholic Church there was the motet which is perhaps liken to our anthem in a measure. We have in modern times, a man who has written most pieces in this style. The first illustration on the list is in sort of connecting link between the anthem and the motet, which was written by Dr. Christopher Tye, first written in Latin. This man flourished between the years 1497 and 1572. He was organist to Queen Elizabeth and had been educated as a Roman Catholic and composed Latin chants. When the common tongue was adopted, as a language of worship in England, he devoted himself to making matrical versions of passages from Acts of the Apostles. But his musical genius had exceeded his poetic talent. Queen Elizabeth is said to have liked this old man, who, it is said, was very flippant to Her Majesty and one day she sent a courier to him, saying that she thought the organ which he played was out of tune. Dr. Tye replied "Tell Her Majesty, that doubtless her ears are out of tune."

You shall now have one of his compositions: "O Come, ye Servants of the Lord," which is the connecting link, as it were, between the motet, and the anthem of which I have much to say shortly."

The large choir, the ladies arranged largely in the front row with the gentlemen in the few back rows, the former attired in white and the latter in the contrasting conventional black, then sang this motet anthem, the difference between it and the anthem now sung being easily noticed. This was sung with rich harmony and was well in tune and showed the result of the many practices recently held by the choir. Sir Frederick Bridge himself conducted the singing of this selection and seemed to be able to bring out everything possible from the choir.

Continuing, he said, "Other men of great importance followed Tye and rendered great service. Tallis followed and his name will never be supplanted. Music developed, and Deering followed. His music was a revelation but he was not known so well as Orlando Gibbons. This great musician became a chorister at an early age but unfortunately he died of the plague when very young. Last year it was my good fortune to have a bust of this great writer put in the Abbey. I have two little selections from Gibbons tonight, which, though short, will give you a good idea of his skill. The first one, 'Threefold Amen' was sung at the coronation of King Edward VII. This was written by Gibbons to be sung before James I., of Scotland. When the King heard the music, all, the peers and lords and all, were deeply impressed and I am glad the choir has chosen to select this selection from the great composer, Orlando Gibbons who lived from 1583 to 1625."

This "Threefold Amen" was excellently undertaken by the choir and was really a revelation.

"The effect of this can be imagined and I shall never forget it, and I may say your choir tonight has rendered this 'Threefold Amen' splendidly."

Orlando Gibbons wrote a great deal of hymn music."

Then verses of his hymn, "O All You Creatures," was sung by the choir in an effective way.

"I think that this is a very majestic thing and can be procured very cheaplyy."

"Then after Gibbons followed others. You all know, no doubt, the historical features which followed in England, and the services were discontinued, although, indeed, Oliver Cromwell himself loved music."

"Henry Purcell, the greatest musician England has yet ever had, was a writer of splendid cathedral music.

Some of it is truly magnificent and I think it would be impossible for any to rival his work at his age. He died to rival his work at his age. He died at thirty-seven, but left behind him some of the greatest selections.

"When the coronation of King Edward came, I discovered that the words 'Let my prayer come into the presence as the incense,' etc., had been used at coronations years ago. I made an application to the King to include the words in an anthem to be sung when the King and Queen walked up to the altar. I will ask you to listen to this very beautiful offertorium as it is called."

The choir certainly handled this beautiful and impressively grand anthem in a fine manner.

"At this point I propose to play the "Dead March," played for the funeral of Queen Mary. It is said that at her funeral a little robin constantly perched on the coffin as much as to say that even it mourned the death of the Queen. This march is now played at all the funerals of the dead, and so I think that you might like to hear it played. Organs vary and I hope I shall be able to muddle through it in some way."

The talented organist seated at the organ and the "Dead March" in all its deep solemnity was played. Certainly as note by note progressed, one could in one's imagination, see the march in all its reality. When one thinks that our dead monarchs, that our Prime Ministers, and all our great dead had this great march played for them as their cold corpses were borne down the aisles of Westminster, the true magnitude of the thing was borne forcibly upon all.

Continuing, Sir Frederick said:—"There was some interval before the coming of Thomas Attwood, who wrote some beautiful Church music, rather of an ornate character, and one of his beautiful anthems will now be handled by the choir.

"Turn Thy Face from My Sins" Attwood, by the choir, proved as thoroughly interesting as its predecessors. Mrs J A Gilmore, soprano, took a leading part in this in her own capable and delightful manner. Her voice was particularly adapted to this, its clearness rendering the anthem doubly appropriate.

"Sir John Goss, a pupil of Thomas Attwood, opened a new vista, although for a long time he did not write a great deal owing to the low ebb which was reached by the choir of St. Paul's. His opportunity came when he was asked to write the music for the funeral of the great Duke of Wellington. This started Goss on his career and we are to hear one of his specimens, "O Saviour of the World," with C H Clewworth conducting."

In this difficult anthem the choir again proved its true worth and showed the result of the many practices held recently which has had one great effect, that of giving the one hundred and fifty-four voices a thorough training which cannot help but do a tremendous amount of good among the different city choirs.

"Contemporary with Goss was the grandson of Wesley, Dr S S Wesley, 1810—1786, who is pre-eminent among the anthem writers of the ecclestical world; he also contributed the hymn I have picked out, "Lord of all power and might," which is one of those anthems which have never been heard before. Although I had it tried in Westminster Abbey before I came to your Dominion."

This anthem was likewise ably handled.

"Sir John Stainer, Goss' successor, at St. Paul's, —1840-1901 —contributed some beautiful and elaborate anthems, and one which you shall now hear, is "Awake, awake, put on thy strength."

In this anthem, which appeared of a more difficult nature than the others a pleasing effect was produced, and if all of Stainer's anthems are equal to this one, and we are assured they are, the local choirs will doubtlessly often attempt his selections. The soprano and bass voices were as much in evidence in this as in the others, although, perhaps in this anthem a better opportunity was presented them.

"Sir Charles V. Stanford, 1852, is also one of the greatest composers his 'Te Deum,' in "B" flat which we shall now hear, is one of his best."

"It falls to one's lot to have to compose special music, and the "Crossing the Bar" was written by me on the occasion of the death of Lord Tennyson."

Of all the anthems so admirably taken by the choir this "Crossing the Bar" was no doubt the one which appealed most to all. Only a small section of the more talented members of the choir undertook it, but it is safe to say that this beautiful reverential work so often heard in our churches, was never better or more exquisitely rendered.

Incidentally Sir Frederick took occasion to compliment the members on the excellent way in which this anthem was taken. Continuing, he said: "I am deeply touched with the admirable performance of your choir here this evening. The extraordinary expression shown throughout has astonished me and although the choir has in many instances never before seen a number of the anthems they have shown clearly they capabilities. I have the highest anticipation of the future work in your city and I hope that on my departure you will not allow your work to fall flat but will continue for the church music of all churches, Methodist, Episcopal, Presbyterians and all is well worthy of the best efforts of all. Moreover, I feel that I am deeply indebted to the two conductors who have brought the choir to such a state of efficiency, Mr. Angelo M. Reed, and Mr C H. Ckworth and I am also indebted to you talented accompanist, Miss Teresa Vanderburg."

Sir Frederick Bridge, in three sketches from Schumann on the organ, and Mr. Albert Archedeacon in his baritone solo, "Thus Saith the High and Lofty One," brought the delightful programme, so intensely enjoyed by all, to an appropriate close, after which, "God Save the King" was heartily sung.—St. Catharines' Standard.

SWEPT OVER DAM IN A FRAIL CRAFT

Joseph Lajeunesse Had Narrow Escape From Drowning at Lakefield on Saturday—Punt Filled With Water But Did Not Upset—The Tow Line Broke.

To be swept over the dam at Lakefield in a punt and carried down the turbulent stream for several hundred feet was the exciting experience of Joe Lajeunesse of Peterborough, on Saturday afternoon. His escape from drowning was almost miraculous, for had he been thrown out of the frail craft or had it been capsized there would have been little hope of rescuing him from a watery grave.

Lajeunesse is employed in connection with the "Beaver" at Lakefield and at the time of the accident, (if it may be called such) occurred he was being towed along in a punt which was attached by means of a rope to some timber being towed by the "Ajax," owned by J. E. A. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough. When the punt swung into the current, which is particularly strong at present, the rope broke and almost before Lajeunesse knew what was happening, he was being swept over the dam. The oars were in the punt, but the occupant didn't have time to use them. In a few seconds the punt was over the dam and whirling along in the current below. Strange to relate, it did not upset although it was filled with water and almost disappeared from view several times. As soon as it got clear of the strong current, Lajeunesse got hold of the oars and succeeded in landing the punt on the shore. He was drenched to the skin, but, outside of that he was none the worse for his thrilling experience.

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT DOMESTIC SCIENCE

What Has Been Accomplished at the MacDonald Institute at Guelph—The Different Courses That are Taught.

As it is proposed to have domestic science taught in the Public Schools Peterborough, the following article clipped from the Meaford Monitor of recent date, will help citizens to understand what teachers in this branch of education have to understand to prepare them for their duties. The Miss Grace Johnston mentioned in the article is from this city and is at present a student in the Macdonald Institute at Guelph:

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday afternoon in the Council Chamber, a large number of ladies being present. Miss Grace Johnston, of the Macdonald Institute, Guelph, gave a very interesting account of the advantages of attending Macdonald College. Following is a synopsis:

The Macdonald College was founded in 1903. It is situated on the College Heights, about a mile and a quarter from Guelph City, and can be reached by the electric car in about seven minutes. The Institute where most of the instruction is given, and the Hall where most of the students live, are built of red brick and present quite a pleasing appearance. They have a campus smaller, younger and, therefore, not so beautiful as the O. A. C., but in time the surroundings will be most picturesque.

To Macdonald College come students from all parts of Canada, from Victoria to Halifax, also from the United States and England to study the various courses which I shall endeavor to describe.

Short courses, that is of 12 weeks duration, are given in dressmaking, dairying, options and domestic science.

The first of these, the dressmaking, course, covers the study of textiles color and design, but most of the time is devoted to practical work, which comprises dressmaking, 12 periods weekly, millinery, embroidery, laundry, and another subject to be given by the student. The girl taking this course will make about two dresses for herself in class according to the style she wishes.

The dairy course is given only during the winter term, January, February and March. Lectures are given in farm and dairy work. The dairy herd, the production of milk, the handling of milk and cream, milk testing, in the farm dairy. The manufacture and packing of butter, the running of hand separators, etc. Practical instruction is given in the different milk tests, running separators, setting milk, ripening cream and making, printing and packing butter, also cheese making.

The short course students in Domestic Science, have the following subjects:—Plain Cookery, twelve periods weekly. Plain Sewing, Laundry, Foods, Sanitation, Home-nursing and Hygiene, Care of the Houses, Ethics, Practice work, and one of seven elective subjects.

It might be well to explain what we mean by an elective or option. There are certain subjects which are not set down in the programme of each course, from which the student may elect the one she prefers. There are shirt waists, skirt making, Dress-making, Millinery, Drafting, Plain Cookery, Home Dairying, Wood-carving, Plain Carpentry, Metal work, Basketry Embroidery, Poultry Raising and Horticulture.

The other short course, mentioned, is called the Optional, is made up of whatever of these subjects the student may choose. She is supposed to choose enough to occupy all her time.

The Home-Makers' course occupies one year, and the instruction is given in all the branches mentioned in connection with the short course in Domestic Science as well as English Physiology, House-hold Economics, Dietetics, Child Study, Art in the Home. One short year of study of work at MacDonald College is not supposed to make brilliant housekeepers of the girls who take this course, but the student taking an intelligent, active interest in her work will find it to be a solid foundation for her after life.

The House-keepers' course covers two years' time and should be attempted only by mature women in sound health with executive ability, with considerable experience in practical housework. Graduates of this course who afterwards complete months house-keeping successfully in an Institution will be granted a professional House-keepers' certificate.

The Normal Course for those desiring to become teachers of Domestic Science may occupy one or two years. The entrance qualifications for the two years' course is Junior Leaving standing, and for a one year course, a Normal certificate. On the student passing her examination successfully she is awarded a normal certificate in Domestic Science. The subjects in this course are the same as those in the Home-maker with the addition of Chemistry, Biology, Bacteriology, Psychology, Methods in Teaching and Demonstration work.

The fee for each term of three months is fifteen dollars. Board at MacDonald Hall is single room $2.50 and double room $3.00 per week. Life is made as pleasant and homelike as possible in the cheerful College Life.

CANOE UPSET AND YOUNG MAN WAS SWEPT DOWN THE RIVER

Drowning Fatality Narrowly Averted on the Otonabee Yesterday Afternoon—Accident Occurred Opposite Old Bridge Works.

Another drowning fatality was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon on the Otonabee river, when a man by the name of Hubbard, residing at 590 Charlotte street, was upset out of his canoe and swept down with the current for some distance.

About half-half past two Mr. Hubbard went out in his canoe and paddled up stream. The current is very swift, but nevertheless Mr. Hubbard got up as far as the steamer Myrtle, which is lying on that strip of land built up from the dredgings last fall. Just at this point is is shallow and very rocky, and it is thought that striking a rock upset the canoe. However, Mr. Hubbard clung to the upturned boat. He was quickly carried down, but his screams for help attracted the attention of three gentlemen who were standing on the shore. Three canoes went out to the rescue. Mr. S. Mitchell was in one and Mr. T. Emmerson in another. Mr. Mitchell got to the man first and, with the assistance of Mr. Emmerson, got Hubbard into Mr. Mitchell's canoe.

He was brought to the boathouse in a chilled and semi-conscious condition, but Dr. Cameron was called and succeeded in resuscitating him. He was afterwards driven to his home on Charlotte street.

LOCAL OPTION AT STIRLING

On the first day of May Stirling became a "dry" town, at least nominally, though the liquor stored away by the thirsty ones is said to be not all consumed yet. The closing up of two of the hotels, boarders being compelled to leave, and no accommodation provided for travellers, caused some inconvenience for a few days, but other places being opened to take in boarders, and to provide meals for travellers, is fast overcoming the difficulty. It is believed that in a short time ample accommodation will be furnished for all needs.—Stirling News-Argus.

PREACHER WHO BELIEVES ALL MINISTERS SHOULD WORK

Rev. Earl C. Davis, of Pittsfield, Mass., Foreman in a Factory—Thinks all Churches and Colleges Should Pay Taxes.

In Pittsfield, Mass., lives one Rev. Earle C. Davis, pastor of Unity church.

Mr. Davis is a preacher of much power and a frank and courageous thinker—far beyond the average. He is thirty-three years of age and does not enjoy poor health.

Mr. Davis believes that all churches and also all colleges should pay taxes.

More than that, he believes that every priest or preacher should earn his living outside of his priestcraft and praching. This because to work with the world of workers, is to get a perspective which you can never get otherwise. To button your collar behind is to look backward, not forward. Moreover, the time for making pastoral calls, looking after the poor and visiting the sick, is past. Davis does not believe either in being poor, or sick, or calling on other men's wives, in the absence of the husband. When he calls, he goes in the evening and sees the whole household. Davis is an index finger pointing the way. Now that he is at work as a foreman in a factory he is preaching better sermons and coming closer to his people than ever before.

The man who can't get two good thirty-minute sermons out of a week's work has neither imagination, aspiration, nor inspiration.

The reason many preachers do not follow the example of Rev. Earl Davis is because they can't do anything—they haven't been trained to work. Ohm the tragedy of the education that unfits men for life.—Elbert Hubbard in the Philistine.

THE PEANUT EATER

A new pest has been discovered—one more to be dreaded than smallpox, more nerve-racking than a six-day bicycle race. It is the peanut pest and Peterborough people got a sample of the damage of which it is capable at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night.

It happened during the second and third acts of "The Barber of Seville." The violinist was delighting the audience by his beautiful rendering of a Hungarian rhapsody. The silence was so intent that one could hear the proverbial pin drop. Then some fiend, lacking both soul, sentiment and good manners, started to eat peanuts. He was located somewhere on the ground floor and he could be heard in the balcony and even higher up in the "gods." Towards the end of the number, the tones of the violin were wonderfully low and sweet and the peanut shells cracked all the louder. Every person in the house swore vengeance on the peanut man. The violinist heard him too and his eyes wandered around the house in an effort to locate the disturner of the piece and peace. Whether he was successful or not at any rate there was no let up in the peanut cracking until the violin numbers was over. There were many music-lovers in the house, who would have slain the perpetrator of the crime in cold blood if they could have discovered him.

MEETING WILL BE INTERESTING

Some Features of the Programme at the Annual Meeting of the Y.W.C.A. To-night

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held tonight when reports covering the past year will be presented, officers elected and other important business transacted. All are heartily invited. The meeting will be an unusually interesting one as several special features have been arranged. Mrs. Parker, of Toronto, will give an address and Mrs. Burnett, of Peterborough, will read an interesting paper on "Domestic Science and its Relations to Household Problems." This subject is of more than passing interest at the present time. Mrs. Parker has had a great deal of experience in connection with Y.W.C.A. work in Toronto and her address should prove both beneficial and interesting. Rev. Mr. Pogue will also be present and will contribute to the programme.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

METHODISTS MAY LOSE THEIR VOTES

Church Conferences and Provincial Elections on the Same Day

Toronto, May 11. — Mr. Jos. Gibson, Methodist in denomination, Conservative in Politics, president of the Ontario branch of the Lord's Day Alliance, and postmaster of Ingersoll, Ont., is in a dire quandary. He is a lay member and slated to speak at the Hamilton Methodist Conference, which meets from June 4th to June 19h. Also he is a good citizen and wants to poll his vote in Ingersoll in the Provincial elections on June 8th. How can he faithfully and fully perform both these duties?

By the same token two or three hundred good Methodist may be away from home in attendance at their Church Courts on the day set by the Government for the elections. Three out of four Methodist conferences in Ontario Province will be sitting on election day.

DATES OF ELECTION

This is the list of dates:

Hamilton Conference, June 4th to June 9th.

London Conference, June 4th to June 9th.

Toronto Conference, June 10th to June 16th.

Bay of Quinte Conference, June 3rd to June 8th.

FINED FOR NOT PAYING LABOR TAX

Ashburnham Resident Fined for Allowing Cows to Run at Large—Other Cases

A number of young men were in police court this morning for neglecting to pay their statute labor tax. Thomas Mackie was one of those who hadn't paid the necessary dollar, but he had a volunteer's certificate, and was therefore not subject to the tax. M. C. Burns did not pay his tax and was given an additional fine of $5 cents. Wm. Bailley, who has had considerable newspaper notoriety, was summoned for the same offence but did not appear. He returned his blue paper with a letter to the Magistrate. He was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $6.85.

COWS RAN AT LARGE.

James Mongraw was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $6.60, for allowing his cows to run at large. Residents in the north end of Ashburnham complain of them as a great nuisance. His Worship and citizens couldn't tolerate cows running over their lwns and imposed the above fine.

RODE BICYCLE ON SIDEWALK.

Ray Ryan was fined two dollars for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk.

TORNADO WAS DESTRUCTIVE

Several Towns Destroyed in Oklahoma—Several Killed and Many Injured

(Special to the Review.)

Woodsward, Okla., May 11, '08.—A succession of tornadoes swept over west, south and south-east of Woods the district, lying 25 miles southward last night. Several small isolated towns all the way from the railroad and without telegraphic communication are reported destroyed. Many persons are reported to have been injured and several are reported to have been killed.

PETER WARNER DID NOT APPEAR

Was Remanded Until To-day for Judgment But Did Not Show up

Peter Warren was found guilty a week ago of stealing a quantity of lead and copper from a Stewart st. residence and was remanded until today for judgment. However, Warren didn't appear this morning, evidently taking advantage of the opportunity given him by his Worship to appear again on his own recognisance. The case was enlarged until to-morrow morning.

OWEN SOUND STRIKE BECOMING SERIOUS

Constables Fire on the Strikers and the Latter Retaliate by Hurling Back Chunks of Coal—Many Are Injured, One Perhaps Fatally—Riot Act Read—Conference Resulted in Disagreement.

Special tot he Review.

Owen Sound, May 11.—The strike of the C.P.R. freight handlers assumed serious proportions shortly after seven this morning.

The C.P.R. had about sixty special constable sworn in whom they brought up from Toronto with Provincial Detective Rogers. The strikers hearing that an attempt was being made to begin work, hurried to the wharves quite peaceably. Several of the strikers were deputed to persuade the men who were going to work to quit, and the other strikers were standing in bunches on the dock.

Suddenly the special constables fired upon them. A rush was made for the coal pile and the strikers used their coal so effectively that the constables returned inside the boats but not before five of them were seriously injured and one may not recover.

Among the strikers two had narrow escapes from being shot, the bullets going through their clothes. One was shot in the foot, one in the shoulder and one through the calf of the leg.

After the shooting Mayor Kennedy read the riot act and both parties were invited to his office for a discussion. Mr. McMurchy, solicitor, and Superintendent Nelson represented the C.P.R. Mayor Kennedy represented the town and a committee of three represented the strikers. The meeting resulted in a disagreement. The C.P.R. suggested that the men go to work and leave the matter to be settled by the Government arbitrator or to accept 15 cents day, and 16 cents night per hour for the season. The men, however, refused and are holding out for last season's figures.

To the credit of the outsiders brought in by the C.P.R., they have stuck to the Owen Sound contingent though the majority are destitute and are being cared for by the town.

The sympathies of the citizens are with the strikers. They hold that it is preposterous to ask men to work for 12 cents per hour, more particularly when the C.P.R. is charging as high rates for freight as they did last year.

A REVIEW OF THE WORK OF THE DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

The Record of Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, at Toronto, a Satisfactory One—Every Effort Being Made to Improve the Farmer's Condition—Great Increase in Grants.

"The sections into which the work of the department is now divided may be indicated under brief heads thus; 1 Head office administration; 2 the agricultural college; 3 agricultural and horticultural societies; 4 live stock; 5 farmers' institute branch 6 dairy branch; 7 fruit branch; 8 veterinary college; 9 colonization; 10, factory Inspectors and stationary engineers. The colonization work has been taken over from the Crown Lands Department. The Veterinary College has been acquired and will be conducted on the same lines as the Agricultural College. At the latter institution instruction for public school teachers is now provided in agriculture, nature study and manual training. Officers of the department are at the same time given similar instruction through local branch offices established at different points in the province, and through the high schools at these points. A generous policy has been pursued in regard to the Provincial College at Guelph. An experimental fruit farm has been established in the Niagara District, and what is called a demonstration farm has been set apart in the Abittibi country for the benefit of the northern settlers.

"During the past year the regulations relating to the Agricultural and Horticultural Societies have been overhauled and remodelled on efficient lines. The grants to these organizations have been materially increased. The live stock industry is being generously treated and the important work of the farmer's institutes is meeting with phenomenal and far-reaching success. Necessary legislation looking to the protection of the dairy industry was passed last session and under the direction of the Minister the co-operative fruit associations have proven economically profitable to the fruit growers of the country. The bee-keepers have not been neglected. The work has been done so quietly that it has not attracted much attention. The advances and improvements to be recorded nevertheless are sufficiently remarkable to occasion surprise to the uninitiated. That the government is treating the department generously, as its importance warrants is indicated, by the fact that the appropriation for agriculture this year is $778,390 as compared with $437,903 in 1904. If we include the grant of $25,000 for colonization the appropriation for 1904 was $462,903. The increase for the current year the last twelve months of the late Government is therefore $315,487. This ought to satisfy the farmers that their interests are not being neglected."—Stratford Herald.

HEIFER WAS EXHAUSTED; STUCK IN MUD OVER NIGHT

Messrs Herb. and Frank Conroy, East City, returned yesterday from a trip to the Conway ranch, at Buckhorn. They left for the ranch on Wednesday and drove all the distance. They picked up cattle at different farm houses along the route, having left the stock there during the cold months when there was no grazing.

On one occasion they lost a heifer from the herd while en route for the ranch. The animal was missing at night and the next morning they set back to look for it. It was found floundering in a mud hole with the water and loose mud oozing over its back and had apparently been there for some time. The creature's head was just above the mud and it was breathing very heavily. With the aid of a farmer the heifer was removed from its perilous position. It was too exhausted to walk and had to be taken on a stoneboat to a barn where it was revived.

ROSS RIFLE WON IN COMPETITION

Beat the Lee Enfield on all Points at Official Test at Quebec

Quebec, May 9th.—In the presence of a small arms commission appointed by the Federal Government a test was made between the Ross rifle and the Lee Enfield, the former winning on all points.

The Ross rifle was taken from the racks in the factory, while the latest pattern of Lee Enfield was brought here from Halifax.

The first test known as the stripping test took place in the Ross factory, where three tools were used for the Ross rifle and five for the Enfield. The former rifle was taken to pieces in one minute and ten seconds, and the Enfield in 40 seconds more, and then the latter was complete.

The Ross rifle was then put together in 1 minute and 42 seconds, and the Enfield in 1 minute and 32 seconds.

The firing test was as follows: 100 feet, fifty rounds, standing position, single firing, Ross, 2 minutes 45 seconds; Lee Enfield, 3 minutes 22 seconds. The Ross made 49 hits, 22 bullseyes, and the Lee Enfield, 46 hits and 11 bullseyes, Private Mason, using the latter only firing 48 rounds.

In the kneeling position, 50 rounds, George Mortimer, of Ottawa, with the Ross rifle fired his rounds in 2 minutes and 52 seconds, while Private Private Kingswell, R.C.R., with the Enfield, took 3 minutes 44 1-2 seconds. Results: Ross rifle 50 hits 22 bullseyes; Lee Enfield, 33 hits, 2 bullseyes.

The next match was from any position, 50 rounds. Results: Ross rifle, 3 minutes 33 seconds; Lee Enfield, 4 minutes, 13 seconds; Ross rifle, 43 hits, 23 bullseyes; Lee Enfield, 40 hits, 24 Bullseyes.

THE BALLOTS WERE HANDED IN

Six New Elders to be Elected by St. Paul's Congregation

The ballots for the election of six new elders were handed in at the services at St. Paul's church yesterday. They will be counted at a meeting of the session to-[illegible] night. Four of the new [illegible] to represent the city [illegible] country.

YOUNG WOMEN

Young women are often great sufferers for want of proper advice at just the right time.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., has always issued to young girls a special invitation to write to her about their sickness. She is a mother, and fully understands.

In nine chances out of ten your case will be just the same as that of the young lady whose letter follows.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND is what you need to restore health.

Miss M. R. Morin, 335 Ontario St., Montreal, writes to Mrs. Pinkham.

"I was in very poor health and doctored for months, receiving very little benefit. I had lost all ambition, was nervous, and subject to dizzy spells and painful periods each month.

"A friend suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the proper medicine for me. I procured a bottle of this remedy and began taking, and before it was finished, I felt so much better that I continued its use and gave it a thorough test, with the result I am to-day well and a much healthier girl than I was three years ago. I have no more painful periods, dizziness or nervous troubles."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

KNOW-NOTHING POLICIES

"There are people who think that by combination they can dictate the price that shall be paid for labor, and they sometimes seem to do so. The real determining force is, however, at all times the law of supply and demand. Combination may interfere at times with the working of that law to the advantage of some over others and to the prolongation of this or that condition beyond what the market warrants, but such derangements are usually paid up for by the greater reactions, brought about by resultant calamities, such as the failures of enterprises and the stoppage of works. Wages cannot possibly go back to where they were once, because money is worth less than it was; but at a time when the very high figures that have been paid have tempted hundreds of thousands of workers into this country, and when the expansion which created those high figures has come to a halt, they can hardly help receding very badly."—The Montreal Witness.

Like its Liberal confrere the Globe the Witness seeks to solve the political and financial problems and difficulties of the day by the brutal theory of supply and demand. This apparently inexorable law as these theorist journals would have us believe like the car of juggernaut rides over and crushes beyond hope, the poor creatures who cling appealingly to its wheels. In the first place the law referred to is not a natural law; but a mere industrial theory. Because profits diminish it does not follow that wages must fall. The need for expansion is the great criterion, not the negative idea of a scarcity of labor. What is it then that has produced the present discontent and financial depression? Manifestly the failure of capital to provide the requisite amount of the only allowable medium of exchange. The Globe and the Witness keep hammering away at the "poor devils" who barely get enough to keep body and soul together now, as if their consent to half-starve would mean that all would have work. What a monstrous and cruel theory! What some people will do to make political capital! One quotation from the above clipping alone will suffice to show the sinister and ulterior character of the motive underlying the article. It is as follows:—"Wages cannot possibly go back to where they were once, because money is worth less than it was. . ." If money were worth more than it was there might be some sense in this quotation, but the reason given, makes it all the more, not all the less, likely that the rate of wages will rise again. Then it is well known that in large business concerns of a high class, the tendency is to raise wages and lower profits—a species of co-operation. This aforesaid law does not govern in such a case—but that anything will do to bolster up an administration whose policies have wrought havoc and disaster throughout the Dominion.

If the law of supply and demand were immutable then there could be no such thing as "cornering" which we all know has more effect on prices than anything else. Why, however, let us ask, does the Government keep rushing in immigrants if what the Witness and the Globe say is an inexorable law?

PRESIDENT FALCONER

President Falconer of the University of Toronto has accepted the joint invitation of the Teachers' Institute and the City Teachers' Association to address them on the afternoon of Thursday, May 21st. In the evening he will address the public under the same auspices in the Conservatory of Music hall at 8 o'clock.

President Falconer is a man of rare splendour of character and attainments. A Canadian by birth, who received his early training in Canada, he went abroad on graduation, and in Edinburgh and Germany completed a distinguished academic career. It will be remembered that the Government left the presidency of Toronto University open for more than a year in order that the best man obtainable might be secured for the position. Dr. Falconer was the choice and he has amply justified his selection. Representing as he does, the keystone of the arch of our national system of education, we look to him to indicate what the strength or weakness of that arch is and what the character of the whole fabric may be so that from time to time we may assist, as all citizens should, in the great work of maintaining and developing this in point of attendance, at least, the second university in the English speaking world. We Canadians do not realize what a force an university comprising seven colleges viz:—Knox College, St. Michael's College, Wycliffe College, Victoria College, St. Hilda's College, University College, Trinity College, and other minor organizations, is in the national life. A few years ago this great university was faltering. It was weakening intellectually and financially, but by a stupendous effort, it has regained its former position and is developing rapidly and satisfactorily. The head and front of this new movement is Rev. Dr. Falconer. He should be fittingly welcomed by the city.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Judging from the weakness displayed by the Crown Attorney and others over the Harbottle case, the sense of justice in Toronto needs a little waking up.

In declining to accede to the President's request for four battleships instead of two, we have on the part of Congress a last weak protest against the coming burden of militarism. In a free trade country even such measures of protection would be considered (nominally) improper although in Great Britain the necessity of protection has come to be recognized. It's a funny world.

The position of the Liberal Government at Ottawa appears to be one that favors the use of provincial voters' lists in parliamentary elections except where it has reason to hope for some gain by substituting lists prepared by its own appointees. It is substituting its presumed partizan necessities for what it used to say were its principles.—Montreal Gazette. This reference to the Aylesworth Bill which takes the voters' lists of Northern Ontario, Manitoba and the line of the G. T. P. generally out of the hands of the provinces is about as hard a "knock" as Liberal principles can stand.

ENLARGING SCOPE OF CENSUS WORK

Correspondents to be Appointed in Rural Districts

The Minister of Agriculture is taking steps towards enlarging the scope of the work which is now done by the Census and Statistics Bureau at Ottawa. Heretofore the department has to a large extent relied on the provincial authorities for its crop statistics. But it is now proposed to appoint local correspondents in the rural districts throughout Canada who will provide the authorities in Ottawa with annual statistics of the agriculture of the Dominion, crops, live stock, investments, etc. These correspondents will serve with pay.

Owing to the large increase in the juvenile population, the Winnipeg School Board has decided to build this year six new schools of twelve rooms each.

ONTARIO'S PROUD RECORD OF SUCCESSFUL FINANCE

The Province Rescued From a Record of Deficits—A Marvellous Feat of Successful Finance—Our Credit in the British Market Excels That of the Dominion—A Significant Contrast.

In the Globe of March 23, 1904, will be found these remarkable words, being the reply of the Hon. George W. Ross, then Premier of Ontario, to an appeal for aid to the University of Toronto, which had fallen into financial distress:—"He would like to place a quarter of a million dollars or more at the disposal of the University for a Physics Building. He believed in it at heart and so did his colleagues but would the House provide it just now? The normal revenue, the Premier pointed out, is about one million dollars short of the normal expenditure. If it had not been for the results of timber sales a reduction of expenditure or an increase of taxation would have been necessary. The Government has put a tax upon corporations and there was a complaint. It was proposed this year to tax railways. Where can the money be got if not by more taxation?"

The reply of the Whitney Administration to this doleful dirge has been as follows:—It has wiped out the deficit. It has increased the grants to education by $650,000 per annum. The University of Toronto, the College of Agriculture, and the public institutions of the province are in the best of condition. It has increased the annual grant to agriculture by $400,000. It has increased the annual grant to charities and hospitals by $100,000. It has given to municipalities $383,000 per annum, being their share of its new system of railway taxation. It has largely increased their share of licence money. It has reduced the Ross debt by $671,000, and in addition it has piled up surpluses in three years of $1,655,563. This is having a genius for finance surely. Now then how was it done? The Whitney Administration pressed for and secured a united demand for increased Dominion subsidies, which Ross was unable to bring about. Mr. Whitney demonstrated the injustice of the old plan of a fixed subsidy and secured a notable advance of $400,000 per annum. For 1908 it will actually be $790,000 more than the subsidy under Mr. Ross. There is an increase of $1,000,000 per annum in timber dues (not bonuses) owing solely to better or more honest collections. Owing to the present Government's mine and the present Government's demands for royalties, the province receives $650,000 where Ross & Co. received only $32,000 from its great mineral properties. That Administration gave away its Cobalt rights to "friends" for $32,000! The revenue from public institutions, which formerly was the prey of "favourites" and those seeking to "do" the Government and foist its ailing upon the province, increased at a leap by $88,000. Because estates were honestly inspected and properly valued the succession duties creased at a leap by $88,000. Because annum. So much for an honest, capable administration as contrasted with that of the "man with a wail." And yet there are those who can find courage to say:—"They boasted that they would expose us and they have not been able to do so."

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

For Ward No. 5—At the Ashburnham town hall.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration there on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

Rabbits Eat Up the Farms.

Some idea of the expenditure and efforts made by the farmers in Queensland to mitigate the rabbit pest may be gathered from the fact that in the colony 16,158 miles of close netted fencing have been erected, the maintenance of which involves an outlay of $700,000 per annum, including the interest on the capital expended for fencing, which represents approximately $4,000,000.

To keep this mileage in repair alone costs $400,000 per annum. Despite these precautions but little headway can be made against the multiplication and ravages of the pest.

This condition of affairs is stated to be mainly the fault of the Government, which takes no steps to arrest the fecundity of the animals upon the vacant state land.

Had to Fight Wolves.

A despatch from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: Attacked by a large pack of timber wolves, the drivers of the Italian car Zust, in the New York to Paris automobile race, were forced to use rifles and pistols near Spring Valley, to drive the hungry animals away. The car was creeping along over a muddy road, when the cry of the wolves was heard behind them, and the animals, growing bolder each minute, surrounded the car. They were not frightened by the tooting horn of the machine, nor did they fear the lights that were flashed on them. They snapped at the rubber tires and mudguards and then the revolvers were brought into use. Cowboys afterwards picked up pelts of twenty wolves slain by the Italians.

British Wolves.

The last wild bear in Britain perished before the reign of Charles I.; the wolf was exterminated in Scotland in 1680 and thirty years later the killing of the last wolf in Ireland finally extinguished the race in the British isles.

Still another body has been discovered in connection with the Guinness horror. A woman was arrested on suspicion on a train between Utica and Syracuse Saturday.

The seventy-two men on the stranded German steel vessel Peter Rickmers, near New York, were rescued yesterday after facing death for twenty-four hours. The vessel is a total loss.

There was a $25,000 fire in Campbellton, N.B., last night.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

Will be glad to explain our plan.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

They had all listened carefully, he said, to what had been stated by previous speakers. The situation no doubt was very critical, but they had weathered worse storms, and he had every reason to hope they would outlive this storm. It was true that public opinion was greatly incensed against the railroads and, indeed, against all organized capital and was seeking to injure them through the courts. For a time this agitation would hurt business and lessen the dividends, for it meant not only smaller annual earnings, but that a lot of money must be spent in Washington.

The eyes of the listeners, who were hanging on every word, involuntarily turned in the direction of Senator Roberts, but the latter, at that moment busily engaged in rummaging among a lot of papers, seemed to have missed this significant allusion to the road's expenses in the District of Columbia. Ryder continued:

In his experience such waves of reform were periodical and soon wear themselves out, when things go on just as they did before. Much of the agitation doubtless was a strike for graft. They would have to go down in their pockets, he supposed, and then these yellow newspapers and these yellow magazines that were barking at their heels would let them go. But in regard to the particular case now at issue—this Ashbourndale decision—there had been no way of preventing it. Influence had been used, but to no effect. The thing to do now was to prevent any such disasters in future by removing the authors of them.

The directors bent eagerly forward. Had Ryder really got some plan up his sleeve, after all? The faces around the table looked brighter, and the directors cleared their throats and settled themselves down in their chairs as audiences do in the theater when the drama is reaching its climax.

The board, continued Ryder with icy calmness, had perhaps heard and also seen in the newspapers the stories regarding Judge Rossmore and his alleged connection with the Great Northwestern company. Perhaps they had not believed these stories. It was only natural. He had not believed them himself. But he had taken the trouble to inquire into the matter very carefully, and he regretted to say that the stories were true. In fact, they were no longer denied by Judge Rossmore himself.

The directors looked at each other in amazement. Gasps of astonishment, incredulity, satisfaction, were heard all over the room. The rumors were true, then? Was it possible? Incredible!

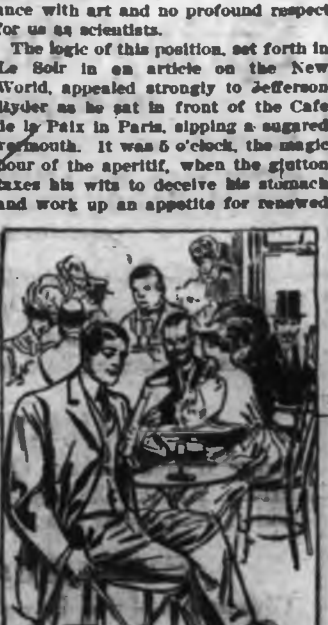
Investigation, Ryder went on, had shown that Judge Rossmore was not only interested in the company in whose favor as judge of the supreme court he had rendered an important decision; but, what was worse, he had accepted from that company a valuable gift—that is, $50,000 worth of stock—for which he had given absolutely nothing in return unless, as some claimed, the weight of his influence on the bench. These facts were very ugly and so unanswerable that Judge Rossmore did not attempt to answer them, and the important news which he, the chairman, had to announce to his fellow directors that afternoon was that Judge Rossmore's conduct would be made the subject of an inquiry by congress.

Ryder sat down, and pandemonium broke loose, the delighted directors tumbling over each other in their eagerness to shake hands with the man who had saved them. Ryder had given no hint that he had been a factor in the working up of this case against their common enemy, but the directors knew well that he and he alone had been the master mind which had brought about the happy result.

CHAPTER III.

As the supreme reward of virtue the good American is promised a visit to Paris when he dies. Those, however, of our sagacious fellow countrymen who can afford to make the trip usually manage to see Lutetia before crossing the river Styx. Most Americans like Paris—some like it so well that they have made it their permanent home—although it must be added that in their admiration they rarely include the Frenchman. For that matter, we are not as a nation particularly fond of any foreigner, largely because we do not understand him, while the foreigner for his part is quite willing to return the compliment. He gives the Yankee credit for commercial smartness, which has built up America's great material prosperity, but he has the utmost contempt for our acquaintance with art and no profound respect for us as scientists.

The logic of this position, set forth in Le Soir in an article on the New World, appealed strongly to Jefferson Ryder as he sat in front of the Cafe de la Paix in Paris, sipping a sugared vermouth. It was 5 o'clock, the magic hour of the aperitif, when the glutton taxes his wits to deceive his stomach and work up an appetite for renewed gorging. The little tables were all occupied with the usual before dinner crowd.



He sat in front of the Cafe de la Paix in Paris.

Fascinated by the gay scene around him, Jefferson laid the newspaper aside. To the young American, fresh from prosaic money mad New York, the City of Pleasure presented indeed a novel and beautiful spectacle. How different, he mused, from his own city with one fashionable thoroughfare—Fifth avenue—monotonously lined for miles with hideous brownstone residences and showing little real animation except during the Saturday afternoon parade when the activities of the smart set, male and female, centered chiefly in such exciting diversions as going to Huyler's for soda, taking tea at the Waldorf and trying to outdo each other in dress and show. New York certainly was a dull place with all its boasted cosmopolitanism.

It was true, he thought, the foreigner had indeed learned the secret of enjoying life. There was assuredly something else in the world beyond mere money getting. His father was a slave to it, but he would never be. He was resolved on that. Yet, with all his ideas of emancipation and progress, Jefferson was a thoroughly practical young man. He fully understood the value of money, and the possession of it was as sweet to him as to other men. Only he would never soil his soul in acquiring it dishonorably.

No, Jefferson was no fool. He loved money for what pleasure, intellectual or physical, it could give him, but he would never allow money to dominate his life as his father had done. His father, he knew well, was not a happy man, neither happy himself nor respected by the world. He had toiled all his life to make his vast fortune, and now he toiled to take care of it. The galley slave led a life of luxurious ease compared with John Burkett Ryder. Baited by the yellow newspapers and magazines, investigated by state committees, dogged by process servers, haunted by beggars, harassed by blackmailers, threatened by kidnapers, frustrated in his attempts to bestow charity by the cry "tainted money," certainly the lot of the world's richest man was far from being an enviable one.

That is why Jefferson had resolved to strike out for himself. He had warded off the golden yoke which his father proposed to put on his shoulders, declining the lucrative position made for him in the Empire Trading company, and he had gone so far as to refuse also the private income his father offered to settle on him. He would earn his own living. A man who has his bread buttered for him seldom accomplishes anything, he had said, and, while his father had appeared to be angry at this open opposition to his will, he was secretly pleased at his son's grit. Jefferson was thoroughly in earnest. If needs be he would forego the great fortune that awaited him rather than be forced into questionable business methods against which his whole manhood revolted.

Jefferson Ryder felt strongly about these matters and gave them more thought than would be expected of most young men with his opportunities. In fact, he was unusually serious for his age. He was not yet thirty, but he had done a great deal of reading, and he took a keen interest in all the political and sociological questions of the hour. In personal appearance he was the type of man that both men and women like—tall and athletic looking, with smooth face and clean cut features. He had the steel blue eyes and the fighting jaw of his father, and when he smiled he displayed two even rows of very white teeth. He was popular with men, being manly, frank and cordial in his relations with them, and women admired him greatly, although they were somewhat intimidated by his grave and serious manner. The truth was that he was rather diffident with women, largely owing to lack of experience with them.

He had never felt the slightest inclination for business. He had the artistic temperament strongly developed, and his personal tastes had little in common with Wall street and its feverish stock manipulating. When he was younger he had dreamed of a literary or art career. At one time he had even thought of going on the stage, but it was to art that he turned finally. From an early age he had shown considerable skill as a draftsman, and later a two years' course at the Academy of Design convinced him that this was his true vocation. He had begun by illustrating for the book publishers and for the magazines, meeting at first with the usual rebuffs and disappointments; but, refusing to be discouraged, he had kept on and seen the tide turned. His drawings began to be accepted. They appeared first in one magazine, then in another, until one day, to his great joy, he received an order from an important firm of publishers for six wash drawings to be used in illustrating a famous novel. This was the beginning of his real success. His illustrations were talked about almost as much as the book, and from that time on everything was easy. He was in great demand by the publishers, and very soon the young artist, who had begun his career of independence on nothing a year, so to speak, found himself in a handsomely appointed studio in Bryant park, with more orders coming in than he could possibly fill and enjoying an income of little less than $5,000 a year. The money was all the sweeter to Jefferson in that he felt he had himself earned every cent of it. This summer he was giving himself a well deserved vacation, and he had come to Europe partly to see Paris and the other art centers about which his fellow students at the academy raved, but principally—although this he did not acknowledge even to himself—to meet in Paris a young woman in whom he was more than ordinarily interested—Shirley Rossmore, daughter of Judge Rossmore of the United States supreme court, who had come abroad to recuperate after the labors on her new novel, "The American Octopus," a book which was then the talk of two hemispheres.

Jefferson had read half a dozen reviews of it in as many American papers that afternoon at the New York Herald's reading room in the Avenue de l'Opera, and he chuckled with glee as he thought how accurately this young woman had described his father. The book had been published under the pseudonym "Shirley Green," and he alone had been admitted into the secret of authorship. The critics all conceded that it was the book of the year, and that it portrayed with a pitiless pen the personality of the biggest figure in the commercial life of America. "Although," wrote one reviewer, "the leading character in the book is given another name, there can be no doubt that the author intended to give to the world a vivid pen portrait of John Burkett Ryder. She has succeeded in presenting a remarkable character study of the most remarkable man of his time."

He was particularly pleased with the reviews, not only for Miss Rossmore's sake, but also because his own vanity was gratified. Had he not collaborated on the book, to the extent of acquainting the author with details of his father's life and his characteristics which no outsider could possibly have learned? There had been no disloyalty to his father in doing this. Jefferson admired his father's smartness, if he could not approve his methods. He did not consider the book an attack on his father, but rather a powerfully written pen picture of an extraordinary man.

The acquaintance of his son with the daughter of Judge Rossmore had not escaped the eagle eye of Ryder, Sr., and much to the financier's annoyance and even consternation he had ascertained that Jefferson was a frequent caller at the Rossmore home. He immediately jumped to the conclusion that this could mean only one thing, and fearing what he termed "the consequences of the insanity of immature minds," he had summoned Jefferson peremptorily to his presence. He told his son that all idea of marriage in that quarter was out of the question for two reasons: One was that Judge Rossmore was his most bitter enemy, the other was that he had hoped to see his son, his destined successor, marry a woman of whom he, Ryder, Sr., could approve. He knew of such a woman, one who would make a far more desirable mate than Miss Rossmore. He alluded, of course, to Kate Roberts, the pretty daughter of his old friend, the senator. The family interests would benefit by this alliance, which was desirable from every point of view.

Jefferson had listened respectfully until his father had finished and then grimly remarked that only one point of view had been overlooked—his own. He did not care for Miss Roberts; he did not think she really cared for him. The marriage was out of the question. Whereupon Ryder, Sr., had fumed and raged, declaring that Jefferson was opposing his will as he always did, and ending with the threat that if his son married Shirley Rossmore without his consent he would disinherit him.

Jefferson was cogitating on these incidents of the last few months when suddenly a feminine voice which he quickly recognized called out in English:

"Hello! Mr. Ryder,"

He looked up and saw two ladies, one young, the other middle aged, smiling at him from an open fiacre which had drawn up to the curb. Jefferson jumped from his seat, upsetting his chair and startling two nervous Frenchmen in his hurry, and hastened out, hat in hand.

"Why, Miss Rossmore, what are you doing out driving?" he asked. "You know you and Mrs. Blake promised to dine with me tonight. I was coming round to the hotel in a few moments."

Mrs. Blake was a younger sister of Shirley's mother. Her husband had died a few years previously, leaving her a small income, and when she had heard of her niece's contemplated trip to Europe she had decided to come to Paris to meet her and incidentally to chaperon her. The two women were stopping at the Grand Hotel close by, while Jefferson had found accommodations at the Athenee.

Shirley explained. Her aunt wanted to go to the dressmaker's, and she herself was most anxious to go to the Luxembourg Gardens to hear the music. Would he take her? Then they could meet Mrs. Blake at the hotel at 7 o'clock and all go to dinner. Was he willing?

Mrs. Blake said she would get out here. Her dressmaker was close by, in the Rue Auber, and she would walk back to the hotel to meet them at 7 o'clock. Jefferson assisted her to alight and escorted her as far as the porte cochere of the modiste's, a couple of doors away. When he returned to the carriage, Shirley had already told the coachman where to go. He got in, and the fiacre started.

"Now," said Shirley, "tell me what you have been doing with yourself all day."

Jefferson was busily arranging the faded carriage rug about Shirley, spending more time in the task perhaps than was absolutely necessary, and she had to repeat the question.

"Doing?" he echoed, with a smile. "I've been doing two things—waiting impatiently for 7 o'clock and incidentally reading the notices of your book."

CHAPTER IV.

"TELL me, what do the papers say?"

Settling herself comfortably back in the carriage, Shirley questioned Jefferson with eagerness, even anxiety. She had been impatiently awaiting the arrival of the newspapers from "home," for so much depended on this first effort. She knew her book had been praised in some quarters, and her publishers had written her that the sales were bigger every day, but she was curious to learn how it had been received by the reviewers.

Shirley was not beautiful, but hers was a face that never failed to attract attention. It was a thoughtful and interesting face, with an intellectual brow and large, expressive eyes, the face of a woman who had both brain power and ideals, and yet who, at the same time, was in perfect sympathy with the world. She was fair in complexion, and her fine brown eyes, alternately reflective and alert, were shaded by long dark lashes. Her eyebrows were delicately arched, and she had a good nose. She wore her hair well off the forehead, which was broader than in the average woman, suggesting good mentality. Her mouth, however, was her strongest feature. It was well shaped, but there were firm lines about it that suggested unusual will power. Yet it smiled readily, and when it did there was an agreeable vision of strong, healthy looking teeth of dazzling whiteness. She was a little over medium height and slender in figure and carried herself with that unmistakable air of well bred independence that bespeaks birth and culture. She dressed stylishly, and, while her gowns were of rich material and of a cut suggesting expensive modistes, she was always so quietly attired and in such perfect taste that after leaving her one could never recall what she had on.

"Tell me," she repeated, "what do the papers say about the book?"

"Say?" he echoed. "Why, simply that you've written the biggest book of the year, that's all!"

"Really! Oh, do tell me all they said!" She was fairly excited now, and in her enthusiasm she grasped Jefferson's broad, sunburnt hand which was lying outside the carriage rug. He tried to appear unconscious of the contact, which made his every nerve tingle, as he proceeded to tell her the gist of the reviews he had read that afternoon.

"Isn't that splendid?" she exclaimed when he had finished. Then she added quickly:

"I wonder if your father has seen it."

Jefferson grinned. He had something on his conscience, and this was a good opportunity to get rid of it. He replied laconically:

"He probably has read it by this time. I sent him a copy myself."

The instant the words were out of his mouth he was sorry, for Shirley's face had changed color.

"You sent him a copy of 'The American Octopus'?" she cried. "Then he'll guess who wrote the book."

"Oh, no, he won't," rejoined Jefferson calmly. "He has no idea who sent it to him. I mailed it anonymously."

Shirley breathed a sigh of relief. It was so important that her identity should remain a secret. As daughter of a supreme court judge she had to be most careful. She would not embarrass her father for anything in the world.

Suddenly Jefferson asked her:

"Have you heard from home recently?"

"I had a letter from father last week. Everything was going on at home as when I left. Father says he misses me sadly and that mother is ailing, as usual."

She smiled, and Jefferson smiled too. They both knew by experience that nothing really serious ailed Mrs. Rossmore, who was a good deal of a hypochondriac and always so filled with aches and pains that on the few occasions when she really felt well she was genuinely alarmed.

The cab stopped suddenly in front of beautiful gilded gates. It was the Luxembourg, and through the tall railings they caught a glimpse of well-kept lawns, splashing fountains and richly dressed children playing. From the distance came the stirring strains of a brass band.

The coachman drove up to the curb, and Jefferson jumped down, assisting Shirley to alight.

They entered the gardens, following the sweet scented paths until they came to where the music was. The band of an infantry regiment was playing, and a large crowd had gathered. Many people were sitting on the chairs provided for visitors for the modest fee of two sous; others were promenading round and round a great circle having the musicians in its center. The dense foliage of the trees overhead afforded a perfect shelter from the hot rays of the sun, and the place was so inviting and interesting, so cool and so full of sweet perfumes and sounds, appealing to and satisfying the senses, that Shirley wished they had more time to spend there.

"Isn't it delightful here?" said she. "I could stay here forever, couldn't you?"

"With you—yes," answered Jefferson, with a significant smile.

Shirley tried to look angry. She strictly discouraged these conventional, sentimental speeches which constantly flung her sex in her face.

"Now, you know I don't like you to talk that way, Mr. Ryder. It's most undignified. Please be sensible."

Quite subdued, Jefferson relapsed into a sulky silence. Presently he said:

"I wish you wouldn't call me Mr. Ryder. I meant to ask you this before. You know very well that you've no great love for the name, and if you persist you'll end by including me in your hatred of the hero of your book."

Shirley looked at him with amused curiosity.

"What do you mean," she asked. "What do you want me to call you?"

"Oh, I don't know," he stammered, rather intimidated by this self possessed young woman, who looked him calmly through and through. "Why not call me Jefferson? Mr. Ryder is so formal."

IMPRESSIVE ORDINATION SERVICE AT ST. LUKE'S

Rev. C. E. Wilkinson of Apsley, Raised to the Priesthood by His Lordship the Rt. Rev. W. D. Reeve, D.D., Assistant Bishop of Toronto — Ordination Sermon by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.

The solemn and impressive service of ordination in the church of England was performed yesterday morning at St. Luke's church when Mr. C. E. Wilkinson of Apsley was raised to the priesthood by the Right Rev. Bishop Reeve, assistant Bishop of Toronto.

A fairly large congregation was present and followed closely in the beautiful service by which the candidate was given authority to administer the sacraments of the church.

Mr Wilkinson is a young man and only a few months ago came to Canada from England. He is a graduate of King's College, London, and an exceedingly clever and learned young man. In March last he was ordained deacon in St. John's church. It is the usual custom to be a deacon a year before being advanced to priesthood but in view of Mr. Wilkinson's cleverness His Lordship appointed that his ordination should take place yesterday. He passed his examinations remarkably well. Since coming to this country, he has been engaged in clerical work at Apsley.

Morning prayer was said yesterday at 10 o'clock by Rev. C. M. Farney of Buckhorn and Rev. C. R. Spencer of Young's Point. At 11 o'clock the ordination service proper commenced The Bishop and clergy in procession with the choir entered the church. After the opening hymn Venerable Archdeacon Warren presented the candidate to the Bishop and His Lordship exhorted the people to pray for the candidate about to be ordained.

THE SERMON

The special sermon of ordination was preached by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's. It was an earnest and inspiring discourse, impressing upon the candidate the sacredness of the office to which he was being called. His duty would be to preach Christ boldly and authoritately and to follow the commission of Christ to the apostles. Dr. Langfeldt spoke from the words found in the 14th verse of the third chapter of St. Mark's gospel, "And He ordained twelve, that the should be with Him that He might send them forth to preach." The speaker referred to the first ordination which has never been paralleled in the world's history. The candidates then were the twelve apostles and the Lord of the churches officiated. However, that ordination had in a sense the virtue and essence of all ordinations, for each one of those men was not apostle only, but Bishop, Priest and Deacon in one. Preceding the first ordination Christ spent the night in solemn intercession and when one reflects upon the marvellousness of that arrangement by which men are commissioned to the souls of men in things pertaining to God the question arises, was there not a cause to regard the day of ordination with sacred and solemn interest.

A preliminary question to the candidate might be "Do you think you are truly called?" A man can only find out this by exercising a quiet and calm judgment as to the sincerity of his motives, the strength of his convictions and the earnestness of his purposes. Christ has called many since the first ordinatoin. There is room in His ministry for all kinds and conditions of men if they be properly placed, wisely used and sensibly dealt with. Ministers are chosen to be living witnesses to the power of Jesus Christ.

The preacher dealt with the twofold object of ordination. It is that ministers should be with Christ and that he might send them forth to preach. Likewise there are two halves of a clergyman's life. One is lived in secret. This half ought to be correctly described by the first clause of the text, "that they should be with Him." While Christ was with the apostles He was their life. They were scarcely ever away from Him After the Ascension they were still with him as being able under all circumstances, to communicate with Him, to carry to Him their perplexities and sorrows. "The Perpetual presence of Christ is ever with us," said the speaker. It is ever a spiritual presence. The whole efficiency, very truthfulness of the ordained man's ministry will depend upon his being with Christ. The reverend doctor referred to the strong temptations to lead him to forget this. He may be tempted to think that if he is every day speaking Christ's words to the hearts and souls of men, God will not blame him for the scantiness of his own devotions. Thus he would look to others while he neglects himself. Inconsistencies and disgraces in the ministry point to a life without Christ

Ministers are heralds, proclaiming "Christ crucified. The minister has to carry to men the message of forgiveness, the message of a Saviour dying to reconcile, living to save.

In conclusion, Dr. Langfeldt said that the ministry was a commission. It is the exercise of a necessity laid upon each one. He hoped that no misplaced modesty or false shame would keep the candidate about to be ordained from preaching Christ fully, boldly and authoritatively in the congregation which he shall be appointed to serve.

After the sermon the litany was read by Rev. W. J. Creighton followed by the anti-communion service by the Bishop, Revs. C. M. Farney acting as Epistler and C. E. Wilkinson as Gospeler.

The examination and ordination of the candidate by His Lordship was very impressive. The questions asked were answered by the candidate as he stood before the Bishop. As he knelt, the clergy laying their hands on him, His Lordship solemnly ordained him.

The ordination was followed by a celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

POWERFUL SERMONS AT ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY SERVICES YESTERDAY

Rev. D. R. Drummond, B.D., Pastor of St. Paul's Church, Hamilton, Was the Preacher— Large Congregations Were in Attendance at Both Services—Choral Music Excellently Rendered.

Gratifyingly large were the congregations that attended the services held yesterday at St. Andrew's in commemoration of the 73rd anniversary of the church. Rev. Dr. R. Drummond, M.A., B.D., pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Hamilton, preached convincing and eloquent sermons at both morning and evening services. He is an earnest and appealing speaker, and his addresses were full of truths and most appropriate suggestions.

The services stood prominently for two events of importance in the history of St. Andrew's, the dedication of the church 22 years ago, and the ordination of Rev. J. G. Potter, the pastor.

The importance of St. Andrew's as a church is recognized as a community, and it is one of the most prosperous in the city, with a large and progressive congregation and a capable and highly esteemed spiritual guardian. The all year spirit of the congregation was shown yesterday, when congregations exceptionally large on account of the importance of the occasion were in attendance.

THE MUSIC.

Much credit is due Mr. Fred. C. Freeland, choirmaster of St. Andrew's, for the success of the musical services in connection with the anniversary. The solos, anthems and the duet of Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade were sung with great sympathy and effect. The choir as a whole sang well, the soloists, Miss Pearl Lundy, Mrs. Greenslade and Mr. Freeland, rendering their numbers in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. The organist, Mrs. McClelland, played the accompaniments in a musicianly way. The music was as follows;—

Morning Service.
Sanctus. Holy, Holy, Holy.
Solo. The Lord is My Light—"Allitsen"—Miss Pearl Lundy.
Anthem—Leave us Not, Neither Forsake us—Solo part Mrs. W. A. Greenslade." Stainer.
Duet. Love Divine All Love Excelling." from "Daughter of Jairus— "Stainer"
Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade.
Evening Service.
Solo. "The Day is Ended," Bartlett
Miss Pearl Lundy.
Anthem. Lead Kindly Light—Buck
Solo. Forever with the Lord" Gounod'
Mr. Fred. C. Freeland.

At the evening service Mr. Drummond spoke on the path of life for a Christian to follow, and what was meant by leading a Christian life.

EVENING SERMON.

He chose his text from: Philipians 2 and 5: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

The question of doctrine is not the one which is the question of questions. It is not a fact that nearly 999 out of every 1,000 Protestants are Protestants and nearly every 999 out of every thousand Catholics are Catholics. It is the way they have been brought up, and it is no fault or glory of theirs. Before the bar of God there are no Protestants or Roman Catholics. The question we shall be asked is have we lived to the best of our knowledge of the Christian faith. We live in certain ways according to our different conceptions of the Christian life.

CHRIST'S EXAMPLE.

Christ has suffered for us, leaving us the example that we should follow in his steps. "Take my yoke upon you," he said.

It is not what we know of theology that has to do with our salvation, but what we do. The learned men and doctors among the Pharisees and Scribes could answer questions in theology that the Apostles could not hope to, but the latter could put the former to shame by their examples of a good life.

THE QUESTION ASKED

Little by little we are coming to a clearer understanding and not asking so seriously what certain religious belief a man has, but does he follow out the teaching of the book of God. Does he live in truth and fairness with his fellow men and with every day honesty and integrity. Does he follow the doctrines of Jesus Christ? As such men as do are sure of entrance to the Kingdom of God.

HUMILITY MOST ESSENTIAL.

The preacher spoke of the great necessity of humility in following the teachings of Christ. Humility does not by and means indicate inferiority. For was there ever a more superior man than Christ? The whole substance of the Christian doctrine is humility.

"Think of the great purity of the life of Christ. Through all his life he wore the white flower of a blameless life."

And yet throughout his life he was tempted, and sorely tempted, as his forty days' fasting in the wilderness proves. It was far more than his teaching that he lived the way he did. It is not any small standard that he asks us to have in order that we may live with humility and purity day by day.

GREAT LOVE OF CHRIST.

Christ accepted the world and he believed in it as a glad world. He spoke of this world as a good world and talked to his disciples of its beauty, of the birds and the flowers and the sunshine. We should have the spirit of forgiveness. We should not be vindictive and seek to avenge our wrongs, but be of the mind of Jesus Christ. What love he had! He did not care whether a man was a Jew or a Samaritan, a Protestant or a Roman Catholic, a Presbyterian or a Methodist. He saw above all national and secular distinctions. To be a Christian is to have the mind of Jesus Christ. We must have love, forbearance, purity and humility. Through Christ we learn the worth and possibility of all things that are best in life.

The speaker alluded to the necessity of consistency and continuity in Christianity and stated that good people were needed not only on Sunday but on every other day of the week. He concluded by wishing old St. Andrew's the most prosperous year it had ever had.

LAST SERVICE BEFORE SAILING

Congregation Said "Goodbye" to Canon Davidson at St. John's Church Yesterday

At St. John's church yesterday Rev. Canon Davidson gave a summary of the work of the various societies working in connection with St. John's in the course of which he spoke of the splendid work of the choir and choirmaster in the church After evensong, when the choir were assembled in the new spacious vestry, it being the last service at which Canon Davidson officiated, before leaving for England, Mr. R. J. Devey in a few well-chosen words, voiced the earnest, heartfelt wishes for the best welfare of the Rev. Canon during his four months absence.

At the close of evensong Mr. Morphet sang in splendid voice Gramer's "Hosanna" and the choir sang as a vesper after the benediction, "God Be With You Till We meet Again."

Many of the congregation waited after service to say goodbye to the rector.

FORMER LOCAL MAN DIED ON SATURDAY

Death of Alex. Hamilton at Sturgeon Falls—Funeral Here To-morrow

The death occurred on Saturday night in Sturgeon Falls, of Alexander Hamilton, a former well known resident of this city. The deceased's death resulted from an operation.

The late Alexander Hamilton was born in Fermanagh, Ireland, in the year 1858 and came to this country when a young man finding employment with Mr. John Garvey, a former well known merchant of Peterborough. He then became clerk at the Red Mills eventually succeeding to the management. About 15 years ago he went to North Ontario and opened up saw mills in Cache Bay and Warren on the north shore of Lake Nipissing. Three years ago he sold out and took the management of the wood department of the Imperial Paper Mills, Sturgeon Falls. He married twice, his first wife being a Miss Ryan who died three and a half years ago and his second wife being Mrs. Ostrom who survives him. The late Mr. Hamilton was a most successful business man and is undertood to have left an estate of several hundred dollars. Mr. Hamilton was a man of high character and great energy and his untimely demise following an operation for gallstones has deprived Northern Ontario of a man of great resource and indomitable energy.

Besides his wife he leaves a family of several children.

The remains will arrive here tomorrow at noon and the funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of Dr. Morrison, 872 Hunter street to the Little Lake cemetery.

FAMILY IN EAST CITY NEEDS HELP

Husband Been Out of Work for Months---No Means of Support

A sad state of poverty in an English family on Douro street, Ashburnham, has been reported to the City Relief Officer, F. Miller. A man, with a wife and family of three small children has been out of employment since early last winter, and has at present little prospect of obtaining work. The city has given them some assistance, but this man does not seem to take very kindly to work and prefers rather to sit at home. His wife is an intelligent and bright woman, but at present is in poor health. Any one desirous of helping this family can do so by applying to the relief officer, who will inform them as to the party in distress. If anyone has any work for the husband he might possibly accept it.

THEATRICAL

BARBER OF SEVILLE

To anyone with even a reasonable sense of appreciation of a good entertainment, the "Barber of Seville," as presented at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, by the Dunsmure English Grand Opera Company, must have appealed very strongly. This much heralded production of Rossini's comic opera masterpiece, lived up to all that had been said of it previous to its appearance here and the Toronto and outside press were certainly justified in commenting on its worth in such favorable terms. It was quite refreshing to see a real comic opera with merit and originality in its book, and superior tunefulness in its score, after witnessing for so long productions in which the prevailing features were lights, spangles and musical parts of a somewhat pleasing but always unsubstantial and purely temporal in character.

In the "Barber of Seville" there is a well defined and interesting plot supplemented by melodies such as only Rossini or another of the great masters could originate. The realism masters could originate. The vocalism of the members of the cast was uniformly excellent. The opera was sung with great expression and interpreted with every attention to correctness of detail.

Predominant as the male vocalist, and the possessor of a magnificent basso profundo, was Mr. John Dunsmure as Basilio, the music master to Rosina. His selections were received with great approval by the audience who were most enthusiastic in their recognition of his efforts. The only regret was that the piece did not offer him an opprotunity of singing oftener. His makeup for the part was indescribably grotesque and he proved a comedian of ability.

Mme. Monti Baldini, as Rosina, a niece of Dr. Bartolo, displayed a soprano voice of great flexibility and richness. She interpreted the role with sprightliness and intelligence.

Pierre Ghiordi's dramatic tenor of wide range was heard to advantage in the character of Count Almarvia. He is a good actor with a distinguished presence. Edwardbe Hay did full justice to the part of Bartolo, the confirmed "grouch," and unsuccessful suitor for the hand of Rosina. Roman Klekko was very pleasing as Figaro the barber.

Between acts II. and III. Mr. Jacques Kenstergen, of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, gave two beautifully rendered selections on the violin. He held the audience spellbound by his magnificent playing and is a master in the arts of technique and tone production. Mr. Walter A. Pick made an ideal accompanist and presided at the piano in masterly fashion.

Mr. Fred Thomas Says That Hard Times Prevail at Liverpool--Many Men Out of Employment

Mr. Fred Thomas has returned home from a trip to England, where he spent the past two months. He was accompanied on his return by his daughter. Miss Thomas, who will spend the summer in Canada. A party was held in her honor at the residence of Mrs. James Booth, Chamberlain street on Saturday night. A most enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Thomas spent most of the time in Liverpool while on the other side, and states that the financial condition of the labor market in England is much worse than in Canada. There are thousands of men walking the streets in Liverpool, unable to to secure employment of any kind. They are in hard circumstances, and unless conditions improve it is hard to say what will become of them.

Mr. Thomas returned to Canada the "Empress of Britain," and had a most delightful passage.

3 TIMES IN AN HOUR

And that's the kind of man that "Gene" Hurtubuise goes up against on Friday, May 22nd.

The following conditions of the bout have been agreed to by both contestants.

We the undersigned hereby agree to wrestle a handicap match at Peterborough on Friday, May 22nd for a purse of $200, the winner to take all.

Yankee Rogers agrees to throw Eugene Hurtubuise three times in an hour, catch as catch can with the strangle hold barred, pin falls of three seconds' duration to count. If Hurtubuise gets one fall he wins the match. The referee is to be agreed upon forty eight hours before the bout.

WINNER TO TAKE ALL

For some time past, W B. Naylor, manager of Yankee Rogers and C G. Graham, Hurtubuise's manager have been negotiating concerning the condition of the bout.

Mr. Graham wired Yankee's manager, as noted in Saturday's Review offering him $50 if he came here for the bout and $150 if he won and the latter replied saying he would be willing to make the match on condition that the purse be $200 winner to take all.

"Gene's" manager wired him in reply: "Telegram received. Accept offer. Forward articles at once. Will send same from here. Match for 22nd'

"GENE'S" OPPORTUNITY.

Hurtubuise will have the chance of his career to show his calibre when he and Rogers meet. A single glance at Rogers' record will prove that he is a big bright star of the wrestling world. Anybody who has paid any attention to the wrestling game will know that Rogers is one of the most celebrated heavyweights in the world and from his willingness to go on the mat with the knowledge that he will receive $200 if he wins and nothing if he loses shows that he has plenty of confidence in his ability to defeat Hurtubuise.

IS A BIG MAN

Rogers shows magnificent development and is physically well nigh perfect. A man of magnificent proportions he is slightly shorter than Hurtubuise but of heavier build and weighs in preparation to wrestle 215 pounds, having over fifteen pounds on "Gene" in the matter of weight. He certainly looks a big proposition for the local man to take on even at the handicap conditions agreed upon.

It is not yet known when he will be here. At present he is in Montreal where he has been wrestling at Sohmer Park.

THE PRELIMINARIES

What should be a very even go will be the main preliminary when Bob Long and A C Yokome, will will meet for the featherweight championship of Peterborough, best 2 out of three falls of 3 seconds to count strangle hold barred. Both weigh about the same and are evenly matched in the matter of speed and knowledge of the game. A handsome gold medal will be hung up for the winner.

Corney Burns will appear in a preliminary boxing bout. The name of his opponent will be announced tomorrow.

Taken altogether the evening of sport should be a gilt edged one and from the great excitement the match between Rogers and Hurtubuise is causing in local sporting circles an immense house should be on hand to see the latter in the big bout that will decide whether or not he will be a consideration in the professional heavyweight wrestling arena.

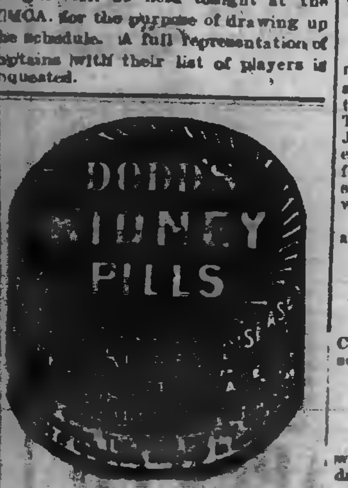
BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

MEETING OF THE CHURCH LEAGUE

A meeting of the Junior Church league will be held tonight at the YMCA, for the purpose of drawing up the schedule. A full representation of captains with their list of players is requested.



REYNOLDS IS MAKING BETS

That He Will Make the Port Hope-Toronto Walk in 33 Hours

Port Hope, May 9.—Jimmy Reynolds, the local walking barber, made a bet last night of $350 to $700 that he will walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 33 hours, on June 15th. He also made two further bets of $50 to $100 that he will finish within 30 minutes of the time specified. The money was deposited with Louis Bennett.

Reynolds is willing to accept bets at 2 to 1 that he will win.

BASEBALL

CITY LEAGUE EXECUTIVE

A meeting of the executive of the City Baseball League will be held at the YMCA tonight at 7.30 o'clock sharp. All the members are requested to be present.

Oshawa, Whitby, Bowmanville and Newcastle have formed a new baseball league to be known as the Central League. The officers are:

President—Frank Quick, Oshawa.

Sec.-Treas.—Arthur Manclaen, Bowmanville.

Managers—D. W. Megaffin, Whitby; H. Galbraith, Oshawa; P. Weeks, Bowmanville; Blake Crawford, Newcastle.

May 25th, with a double schedule, will witness the opening of the season. Each club is allowed 15 players and must be signed on or before June 1. The managers report having signed their full number.—Port Hope Times.

ART EDMUNDS BEAT MULDOON

When Artie Edmunds, of this city, beat Young Muldoon, of New York, two falls in three at the Labor Temple Saturday night he beat one of the toughest men of his pounds to be found anywhere. The local boy gave the "Irishman" fully ten pounds, and not only gained two falls, but made the New Yorker quit in the third and deciding bout. Edmunds had Muldoon stopped dead with a scissors and hammerlock which meant that the visitor had either to give an unquestionable pin fall or have his arm broken.—The Globe.

SANG "AVE MARIE" AT ST. PETER'S

Mr. Pierre Ghuardi Tenor of the "Barber of Selville Co." Rendered Solo in Fine Voice

At the 10.30 mass at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, Mr. Pierre Giuardi, the tenor of the "Barber of Seville" Company, which appeared at the Grand on Saturday sang "Ave Marie," while the offertory was being taken up.

Mr. Ghuardi's beautiful tenor voice was heard to great advantage in the famous sacred solo. His tones were pure and musical and he sang with great expression. The congregations were very much impressed by his rendering of the selection.

Suicided on the Eve of Marriage.

New York, May 11.—Isaac Williams, aged 31, formerly a cotton broker, but more recently connected with a bonding company, committed suicide Saturday by shooting, in his home in West 73rd street.

Williams killed himself a few hours before he was to be married. His bride-to-be learned of his death only half an hour before the time set for the wedding.

Williams is said to have sustained losses in the financial stringency last fall.

Separation Suit Refused.

New York, May 11.—Katherine Clemens Gould's motion for a jury trial of her suit for a separation from her husband, Howard Gould, was denied by a decision handed down Saturday in the Supreme Court by Justice Dowling. In this decision the justice said: "The uniform trend of decisions is against the trial of any issues by a jury in matrimonial actions, save where absolute divorce is asked."

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

Finds a Seat in the Liberal Borough of Dundee.

President of Board of Trade In New Government Wins After a Sharp Contest — Opposed by Unionist, Laborite and Prohibitionist — The Suffragettes Make Themselves Very Conspicuous.

Dundee, Scotland, May 11.—After a short sharp contest, Dundee on Saturday proved steadfast to the Liberal faith, which it has held unshaken for a quarter of a century, returning Winston Spencer Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, to the House of Commons at the head of the poll.

Although the Unionists did not expect to oust Mr. Churchill from that generally regarded safe seat, their most sanguine prediction being that Sir George Baxter, their candidate, had "a good sporting chance," still they have the satisfaction of rising from fourth to second place in the poll as compared with 1906, and of reducing the Liberal majority from 5,411 to 2,709.

The vote stood:

Churchill (Liberal)	7,079
Sir Geo. Baxter (Unionist)	4,370
Stuart (Laborite)	4,014
Scrymgeour (Prohibitionist)	655

Dundee is one of the chief sufferers from prevailing bad trade, and the Tariff Reformers and Laborites made the most of it. The former paraded with placards declaring that the jute workers had lost their employment through the American tariff, and that this was the opportunity for them. The local jute works were closed for the day, and this afforded an excellent argument, and one which the Tariff Reformers were not slow to take advantage of. The advocates of protection and the Laborites made capital out of the ship-building dispute, in connection with which there are 1,400 unemployed in Dundee.

The fact that Mr. Churchill was not so successful as his predecessor in the Board of Trade in effecting a settlement of the great industrial crisis was regarded as most hopeful by the Laborites for their cause.

Mr. Churchill also suffered much from the suffragettes, who had frequently broken up open air meetings by the clanging of railway and dinner bells, and goaded him on Friday evening to appeal to an assembly of workmen not to tolerate the rowdyism of roughs, but to meet force by force.

On the other hand, the budget announcement of the remission of the duty on sugar undoubtedly was in Mr. Churchill's favor, as Dundee is the centre of the jam industry.

REMARKABLE CAMPAIGN.

To Stop Gambling on the Race Tracks of New York.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 11.—One of the most remarkable campaigns in the history of the state ended with a meeting here Saturday night at which Governor Hughes made his final appeal to the voters of the 47th Senate district to elect William G. Wallace, the Republican candidate, to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Franchot. The election will take place next Tuesday.

Mr. Wallace has pledged himself to vote to sustain the recommendation made by Governor Hughes for the abolition of race-track gambling. The Agnew-Hart bills embodying this recommendation were defeated in the Senate by a tie vote, 25 to 25, at the regular session of the Legislature.

The special election in this district has attracted more than ordinary attention because the governor has called an extraordinary session of the Legislature to convene next Monday night, and the successful candidate of this special election may cast the vote which will decide the fate of the measures which there is no doubt Governor Hughes will again recommend.

In his speeches Governor Hughes has directed his appeals to Republicans and Democrats alike, declaring that the issue is not a partisan issue.

New School at Belleville.

Belleville, May 11.—Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston on Sunday laid the corner-stone of the new St. Michael's School in this city in the presence of a very large crowd, and assisted by many visiting priests and dignitaries.

The new school, which will be completed this year, will cost, with equipment, $52,000, and will be one of the finest schools of its kind in Ontario.

At high mass, Archbishop Gauthier confirmed 130 children, fifteen of them being from the Deaf and Dumb Institute.

Thaw Can Have Clothes Only.

Poughkeepsie, May 11.—Justice Morschauser has refused to sign an order directing Dr. Baker of the Matteawan Asylum to turn over to Russell Peabody, as next friend and personal attorney of Harry Thaw, all the personal property taken from him when he was received at the asylum. The judge amended the order to apply only to Thaw's wearing apparel.

Medal For Hero.

Windsor, May 11.—Joseph Guoin of Sandwich East was Saturday night presented with a Humane Society medal for saving four persons from drowning in Lake St. Clair last winter. Guoin has saved nine lives in all, frequently at his own peril. Presentation took place at Tecumseh, Guoin receiving the medal from the hands of Hon. Speaker Sutherland.

Napanee Gas House Burned.

Napanee, May 11.—The Napanee gas house was discovered to be on fire at 10.30 Saturday night, and the interior and roof of the building, along with gas reservoir, were burned. Loss is about $5,000, fully insured. The building was owned by Sir R. J. Cartwright. The fire will likely cut off the town's supply of gas for two or three weeks.

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realise the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

Brower, Conservative, East Elgin; Dr. Jaques, Conservative, Haldimand; R. R. Butler, Conservative, North Oxford. Frontenac Liberals decided to support Dr. Spankie, Independent.

Six Thousand Police on Parade.

New York, May 11.—Led by an honor company of men who have received official recognition for valor, bravery or meritorious service, six thousand policemen clad in summer uniforms and white hats marched through New York streets on Saturday in their annual parade.

All the various departments of the force were represented in the line of march, forming eleven regiments grouped in brigades, each preceded by a brass band.

For the first time since their appointment on the force the police dogs made their appearance in the parade.

W. J. Louis, the commercial traveller who fractured his skull by a fall on the Mansion House steps at Stratford, is dead.

FOUR SCALDED TO DEATH

Steam Pipe Bursts on R. & O. Steamer Brockville.

Two Scalded to Death Instantly, Two Died In Hospital—Another Injured But Will Recover — Steamer Had Been Undergoing Repairs and the Machinery Was Being Tested—Was to Have Left In a Few Days.

Toronto, May 11.—For men are dead and one severely scalded as the result of an explosion on the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co.'s steamer Brockville, at the Canadian Shipbuilding Co.'s docks, at two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The killed are: Adolphe Shavageau, 22 years, single, fireman, Champlain, Que., and Octave Cote, 23 years, single, fireman, Champlain.

Bruno Pintal, 30 years, married, chief engineer, Champlain, and William Gouin, 30 years, married, oiler, Sorel, Quebec, died after being removed to the hospital.

Fred Charboneau, 30 years, married, second engineer, Sorel, was scalded but will recover.

The explosion took place when a six-inch circulation tube crumpled under a light head of steam after having stood a much more severe test at the hands of the Government inspectors.

The tube spread at the forward end of the boiler. This allowed the steam to burst into a closed forward compartment, where, the doors being closed, it was forced back and came out through the firehole into the firepit, where the five men were at work.

This is but a small space and quickly filled and two of the men, who seem to have stood directly before the blast, were instantly killed by inhaling the steam.

The chief and an oiler, who were standing a little to the side, escaped instant death, but were frightfully scalded, the skin peeling from their hands and faces.

Charboneau, who was working at the side of the engine, managed to escape through an exit, through which clouds of steam were pouring. Crazed with pain he was a ghastly figure as he emerged on the deck.

To those above the explosion sounded as a muffled roar. Clouds of steam poured from every aperture leading from the boiler and engine rooms below.

Knowing that the engine crew were below those above strove to rescue them, but were unable to face the steam. When reached the two men were found unconscious, but still alive. They were hurried to Grace Hospital in the ambulance, but were so scalded that they died shortly before 8 o'clock.

The Brockville has been lying in dock all winter and was undergoing repairs. Some of her boiler tubes had been renewed, but apparently not the one which gave way.

"No one would ever have thought that that kind of tube would burst in that way," said one boiler expert after viewing the crumpled iron.

The Brockville was to have left for Kingston May 26.

Shavageau's brother is employed on the boat.

Thieves Captured.

Windsor, May 11.—Thrilling capture of four men who are believed to have been connected with recent robberies in Kent and Essex Counties was made at Stoney Point yesterday morning.

They were first noticed at Comber, having aroused suspicion by trying to dispose of some cutlery. Provincial detectives here were notified and left for Comber, but before their arrival the quartette had flown.

An armed posse of farmers followed them in pursuit, and the men were located in Stony Point. Pickets, fully armed, were stationed around the village, forming a cordon through which it was impossible for them to escape.

Before daybreak the quartette crawled out of a box-car and at once a hue and cry was raised.

Detectives Campeau and Mahoney, riding a hand car, and each armed with a shotgun, started in pursuit down the railway track.

They succeeded in taking all four men into custody, and brought them to this city.

Prince of Wales' Visit to Quebec.

London, May 11.—It has been decided that the Prince of Wales and his entourage will not remain on board ship in the St. Lawrence during their visit to Quebec, but will stay at the Citadel, the residence of the Governor-General, where Earl Grey and his staff will also reside.

Nothing has been definitely settled regarding the ship in which the prince will cross the Atlantic, but it seems to be regarded as probable that he will be conveyed to Quebec either by the new cruiser Minotaur or by the still newer and larger cruiser Indomitable.

To Unite Methodist Churches.

Baltimore, Md., May 11.—The event of prime interest in Saturday's session of the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Church was the presentation of a resolution by Chairman John F. Goucher to convey to the Methodist Protestant general conference about to convene in Pittsburg, an invitation to that church to unite with the Methodist Episcopal Church, to the end "that as one great Methodist body they and we may fulfill the better our individual commissions by preventing the waste of rivalry and exalting the God of peace."

French Train Chinese Rebels.

Pekin, May 11.—Alarming news has been received here regarding the progress of a revolutionary movement in Yunan Province, on Tonking border. There have been three engagements recently between the rebels and the provincial troops, in which the former were victorious. Lachu Pass is in their possession, and the treaty seaport of Mont-tsze is endangered by them.

The rebels possess French arms and are said to have been trained by Frenchmen.

THE LAPORTE HORROR.

Is Mrs. Guinness, the Alleged Murderess, Dead or Alive?

Laporte, Ind., May 11.—Whether Mrs. Bella Guinness is alive somewhere and subject to arrest for alleged murders committed on her farm near Laporte, or whether she was burned with her three children in her house that was destroyed by fire on April 28 is the problem that looms up most prominently before the officers investigating the mystery surrounding the deaths of those ten persons whose bodies have been found buried in the Guinness barnyard and the manner in which the Guinness farm house was burned.

Two more important witnesses regarding Ray Lamphere's alleged connection with the deaths at the Guinness farm have been discovered. They are William Slater and John Rye. The latter asserts that on the day when Helgelin is supposed to have been killed he and Lamphere drove to Michigan City. They returned about 8 o'clock at night, and Lamphere alighted when they reached a point opposite the Guinness farm and cut across the fields toward the house, remarking that there would be "something doing there" that night.

Relatives of E. J. Tiefland, formerly of Minneapolis, have engaged detectives to investigate whether he was one of the victims of Mrs. Bella Guinness. Tiefland is said to have answered one of the matrimonial advertisements of Mrs. Guinness. Later, it is said, he corresponded with her and left Minneapolis for Laporte. He disappeared the day after arriving there, and his relatives have never heard from him.

Leaped Into River.

Windsor, May 11.—Passengers on the ferry Victoria were startled to see an unknown man leap overboard Saturday night.

The captain of the steamer stopped the boat to effect a rescue, but the stranger had disappeared beneath the water.

The officials of the Greenwich Observatory claim to have discovered an eighth satellite of Jupiter. During an examination of photographs of Jupiter, Mr. Melotte, one of the assistant astronomers, discovered faint markings occupying slightly different positions in the different plates. The circumstances precluded the possibility that this was one of the known satellites or a minor planet. Repeated investigation by Messrs. Cromiller and Melotte led to the conclusion that it was a new satellite with a retrograde orbical movement.

SAD STORY OF CRUELTY TO FAMILY IN BACK COUNTRY

County Constable Cochrane Went Back to Investigate To-day—Will Bring Woman and Two Children to the Shelter

County Constable Cochrane and agent for the Children's Aid Society, went back to Buckhorn today to investigate a case that has been brought before the notice of the local officers of the Children's Aid Society. It is stated that on a farm a few miles north of Buckhorn lives a man and his wife and two children. The family live almost in destitution their farm being a poor one and the husband does not take very kindly to working it. His wife is in poor health and it is alleged that her husband cruelly and brutally treats her. The home environment for the children is certainly not such as would assure one that they were being well brought up and the Children's Aid after receiving several reports as to the condition of affairs decided to take the matter into their hands. Constable Cochrane will return with the wife and children. They will be placed in the shelter until such time as the case is settled by the County Magistrate.

SAW SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER AND SENT FOR THE POLICE

Seeing a man acting suspiciously on his premises, Mr. George W. Lawson, 490 Bethune street, sent for the police on Friday night. It was about 9.20 when he telephoned for them, and they responded with promptness. P.C's. Adams and Meagher arrived before ten o'clock. A large number of young men and boys followed the officers.

The latter searched around the house. Mr. Lawson stating he had seen a man on the verandah acting suspiciously and as though he were looking for an opportunity to enter the house. Inquiries were made at several nearby residences, but none of the neighbors had been troubled with or seen the suspicious character in question. Nothing was missing from Mr. Lawson's house, but a milk pitcher that was on the verandah.

BAGGAGE CAR JUMPED TRACK AND NOON EXPRESS WAS LATE

The baggage car of the noon C.P.R. train jumped the track at Manvers this morning causing a long delay. It did not arrive at the local station until half past two and as a consequence there were no Toronto papers to read at the dinner hour to-day. It was impossible to to get the car on the track again without the aid of the auxiliary. The auxiliary passed through the city from Havelock at about 10 minutes to one. On its arrival it was not long before the express was ready to start. No damage was done as a result of the accident.

MAN HAD A SNARE BUT WAS STOPPED

Was Told That the Police Would be Notified if He Didn't Remove it From the Water

Lockmaster Wm. Collins, is not one of the fishery inspectors but occasionally he does some work in that line. Yesterday afternoon he found a man sitting on the locks holding a snare in the water. This is against the law and Mr. Collins quickly apprised the man of the fact and advised him to get rid of the snare or the police would be put on his trail. He heeded the advice given.

The fish are very plentiful in the Otonabee and yesterday hundreds of people were at the locks peeping in—people were at the locks peering into the water like children before a confectionery shop window. There will be great doings when the season for 'lunge and bass opens.

RESERVED FOR THE LADIES

Section of Seats Will be Kept for Them and Escorts at Rogers—Hurtubise Match

A great many ladies witness the wrestling bouts at Sohmer Park, in Montreal. At the wrestling match between Rogers and Hurtubise a special section will be reserved for ladies and their escorts as the management think they might wish to see the bout in view of its importance and the fast exhibition that will be put on.

The affair will be conducted as cleanly as any athletic game or sport and no smoking will be allowed.

HO FOR GUELPH ON JUNE 11TH

Arrangements Completed for Annual Farmers' Institute Excursion

All arrangements have been completed for the big Farmers' Institute excursion to Guelph on Thursday, June 11th. Mr. William Collins, secretary of the West Peterborough Institute was in Toronto on Friday and made the arrangements with Mr. J. D McDonald, district passenger agent of the Grand Trunk. The excursion as usual will be under the auspices of the Farmers' Institutes of East and West Peterborough and East Durham and will be run on the Grand Trunk this year. The train will leave Campbellford at an early hour in the morning, will come to Peterborough and proceed to Guelph by way of Port Hope and Toronto.

The excursion promises to be a great success. Fuller particulars will be announced later.

MR. CROWLEY'S NEW GROCERY

Has Opened a Store on Hunter St. Ashburnham—Hennesey's Old Stand

Mr. J. Crowley has opened a new grocery business on Hunter street, Ashburnham, at Hennesey's old stand.

He will keep a first class stock of every kind of groceries and canned goods and will conduct a prompt delivery service. He should be given a good share of public patronage.

AROUND THE CITY HALL

The Property Committee of the City Council held a meeting on Saturday afternoon, when there were present Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Johnston, Gillespie. The Mayor was authorized to send a guarantee to the consumptive hospital at Toronto for the maintenance of a local man who is being sent there. The sum is $7 per week.

Several other matters were also considered.

RALLY HELD AT THE CLUB ROOMS

A very successful rally, being the first of the regular Saturday night rallies, which will be held till election day, took place in the Young Conservative Club rooms on Saturday evening. Ald. Buller, the president of the club, was in the chair. Messrs. W. H. Moore, K.C.; Thomas Wilson, W. S. Robinson, W. Harold Cluxton, T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., and J. H. Burnham spoke. Hereafter the rallies will be held in Mr. Bradburn's new committee rooms on the ground floor. There was a large attendance and much enthusiasm. As Mr. Whitney will speak at Norwood on Friday evening next, it is possible a number from the city will attend, making arrangements for a car to be attached to a west-bound freight.

A HUNDRED YEARS OF TEMPERANCE

It is almost exactly a hundred years since the temperance movement was organized and, looking upon the situation to-day, and contrasting it with conditions that existed in 1808, we can agree with De. Quincey, who spoke of temperance effort as "the most remarkable instance of a combined movement in society which history, perhaps, will be summoned to record." The chief lesson to be learned at the present time is that marvellous progress has been made in reducing the evils of intemperance, that the whole tendency of the times is toward further reform, and that the chief danger to be apprehended is the undisciplined enthusiasm of certain agitators who are apt to go to extremes, and thus bring about a reaction that will undo the work of a generation.

SARATOGA, THE BIRTHPLACE.

Saratoga County, New York, has the honor of being the seat of the temperance movement. There on the last day of April, 1808, was formed "The Union Temperance Society of Moreau and Northumberland." The membership, according to the New York Tribune, was not quite fifty, and the rules would not be countenanced by temperance societies to-day. Nevertheless, they are perhaps more truly temperance rules than any of their successors, and certainly more so than the "touch not, taste not, handle not" slogan of so-called temperance societies, which should be properly called prohibition societies. The substance of the rules of the organizations at the early part of the nineteenth century was as follows:

No member shall drink rum, gin, whiskey, wine or any distilled spirits or compositions of the same, or any of them, except by advice of a physician or in case of actual disease, also excepting at public dinners, under the penalty of 25 cents, provided this article does not infringe on any religious rite; no member shall be intoxicated, under penalty of 50 cents; no member shall offer any of the above liquors to any person to drink, under the penalty of 25 cents for each offence.

A LIQUOR-SELLING PREACHER.

Moderate, indeed, though these restrictions seem to-day, they were considered extremely radical then, for that was a time when an orthodox church in the suburbs of New York licensed its pastor to sell grog in a room of the parsonage, in order to supplement his tiny salary. Few, indeed, were those men, not really Puritans, who considered it disgraceful to get drunk occasionally. Even those who preferred to remain sober did not condemn their friends who befuddled themselves. Therefore, the penalty for drunkenness, equal a fine of a dollar and costs to-day was sufficiently severe to attract attention to the new movement, and by advertising it to suggest similar societies in other parts of the country. Thus the way was gradually paved for Lyman Beecher's great temperance campaign, and his six famous lectures on the evils of excessive drinking, which are regarded still as classics.

THE WORD "TEETOTAL.

Twenty years after Dr. Clarke formed his little society in Saratoga County, so many other similar societies had sprung up that the American Temperance Society was formed, and in England and other countries the new idea took root and began to thrive. It remained for an Englishman, a reformed inebriate, to coin the word that has ever since described the total abstainer. Speaking at Joseph Preston's Temperance Society at Preston, Eng., "Dicky" Turner urged the superiority of abstinence over moderate drinking, using the words "I'll be right down, cut and out, tee-tee-total for ever and ever!" Thus from an ignorant man's difficulty of expression arose a new word, that signified the change that 25 years had wrought in the aim of the movement born on the other side of the Atlantic. In another quarter of a century, the "Maine law" was enacted and we are brought down to a period in the movement with which many now living are familiar.

TO-DAY'S FIGURES.

Skipping the intervening half century, we may glance for a moment at some of the figures that describe the growth of temperance more accurately, perhaps, than a recapitulation of States and counties that have gone "dry." The internal revenue statistics of the United States, as analyzed by the New York Times, show that the production of the leading American distilleries has decreased as much as 76 per cent. since last October. The imports of champagne at New York have shrunk 40 per cent. The sales of beer in the country at large have slumped 7 per cent. in two months, which means a yearly ratio of 4,000,000 barrels, valued at $24,000,000. Although the brewers' losses would appear to be the least they are in reality the most severe, on account of the enormously larger amount of money they have invested, and because, whereas whiskey sellers may continue to do an illicit business in prohibition areas, the seller of beer is handicapped both by the bulk of his commodity and by the difficulty of adulterating it.

MAKING ALLOWANCES.

It is also to be borne in mind that the serious slackening in traffic is not peculiar to the liquor business. Something must be allowed to general depression. Then, too, both distillers and brewers for the past six months have made their plans as though local option would carry in every municipality in which it was voted upon. Their reductions in output contemplated a more serious reverse than they have received. But after every allowance has been made, it is undeniable that the traffic has received, in the past few months, the hardest blows in its history.—The Mail and Empire.

NEW BARBER SHOP OPENED

Mr. George Brousseau has opened a barber shop next door to the Windsor Hotel. The shop will be equipped with all the latest improvements.

Mr. Brosseau is favorably known in this city as a barber and should enjoy a large patronage.

IN THE

Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Development Company, Limited.

Chartered by the Ontario Government.

Authorized Capital - - - $250,000.00

Par Value of Shares Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable, $1.00

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

PRESIDENT—R G. Williamson, Toronto, Ont., (formerly of Peterborough, Ont.) VICE-PRESIDENT—James Thompson, Havelock, Ont. SEC'Y-TREASURER—Dr. H. A. Wood, Peterborough. SUPERINTENDENT—D. Williamson, Haileybury, Ont.; D. A. Reid, Brandon, Man.

HEAD OFFICE - - - Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Why you should buy Casey Mountain shares ;

Casey Mountain shares are fully paid up and non assessable.

The Casey Mountain Mining Company has a large area, which is a regular net work of silver bearing veins that will go down for thousands of feet.

Casey Mountain has the goods in unlimited quantities sufficient to last for generations.

Casey Mountain estimates that they have a silver bearing vein every 100 feet across the entire property, not counting cross-veins that will be encountered with underground development, and have uncovered 12 to date varying in width from 16 in. to 8 feet.

Casey Mountain is a mining proposition (not a stock speculation) and has been developed continuously during the past ten months, over 300 feet of underground work had been done, and one of the greatest ore bodies encountered that has yet been struck in the district, being 16 feet wide.

Casey Mountain Mines are situate on the adjoining lot to a property that according to good authority was sold last year for one million dollars, and whose shares are being sold at $7.00 each.

Casey Mountain is only capitalized at $250,000.00, a very important point to be considered in a Mining Company, and to give a comparison of our capitalization and a Company capitalized at two and one-half million dollars, that is, paying a dividend at a rate of 12 per cent per cent. per annum to its shareholders, which is equal to $300,000.00 on the total capitalization ; this amount of cash would mean 120 per cent. to Casey Mountain Shareholders. This point is worthy of great consideration for those investing in mining stock.

DIVIDENDS PAID BY COBALT MINING COMPANIES

Buffalo Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid, during 1907	$ 81,000 00
The Coniagas Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid during 1907	200,000 00
Foster Cobalt Mining Company, Limited, have paid	45,000 00
The Cobalt Silver Queen, Cobalt, paid during 1907	120,000 00
McKinly, Darragh, Savage Mining Co., Limited, have paid	45,000 00
Temiscaminga & Hudson Bay Co Mining Limited, have paid	746,120 00

(These shares could have been had at 50 cents and have sold as high as $190.00)

Cobalt Camp has produced 15,000,000 dollars during the past two years.

On the famous Homestead Mine in South Dakota the ore averages about $4.90 per ton, and over $69,000,000.00 has been paid in dividends. The Tredwell Mine in Alaska is running on ore that averages $2.00 a ton and is paying big dividends.

Casey Moutain Mining Company, Limited, has in sight thousands of tons of silver ore that will run $20.00 to a ton, and by treating 100 tons per day would mean a daily output of $2000 00, and allowing the sum of $500.00 per day for all expenses of mining, concentrating, freight and smelter charges, which is a large margin, would give an annual profit of nearly $500,000, or 200 per cent. on the total capitalization of the Company. The above figures are on our low grade ore only.

Quantity is what counts in a profitable mine, providing the grade is high enough to leave a margin over and above expenses.

Casey Mountain is practically a close Corporation, only sufficient shares having been sold to enable the Company to carry on development until returns are received from shipments, and only a small block remains unsold at par value $1.00 per share.

Buy Casey Mountain shares at once while they are on the market, as this will be positively the last opportunity of securing shares of this Company at one dollar each. Wire or mail reservation for shares to the Head Office, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Additional information can be had from the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. A. Wood, 408½ George Street, Peterborough.

CONFIRMATION AT ALL SAINTS

Services Last Night of Unusual Interest—Twenty One Candidates Confirmed

The evening service at All Saints' church last night was of unusual importance and solemnity, His Lordship Right Rev. Bishop Reeve, of Toronto, being present to administer the apostolic rite of confirmation. The church was taxed to its utmost by the large congregation that witnessed the impressive ceremony of the laying on of hands, the outward form of this rite through which God sends the Holy Spirit.

Previous to the confirmation ceremony, His Lordship baptized Rev. Mr. Major's infant son. The pastor of All Saints' and Mrs. Major were the sponsors. The sacrament of baptism was duly administered, the baby being christened.

There were twenty-one candidates for confirmation, of whom fifteen were young ladies. His Lordship first referred to the rite which was about to be performed. The promises made by the sponsors at baptism are renewed by those who are confirmed and the young people are strengthened by the Holy Spirit, enabling them to struggle better against the temptations that are met with in later years. Those who are confirmed, Bishop Reeve said, must first be baptized. They must have reached their years of understanding and they must have been taught particular prayers.

His Lordship referred to, Biblical passages to show that confirmation is not merely a church ordinance, but that the divine will of God is being carried out just as in the time of the apostles. Continuing with the ceremony, Bishop Reeve recited the regular confirmation prayers and as he placed his hands on the heads of the candidates, said: "Defend, O Lord this child with thy heavenly grace, that he (or she, as the case happened to be) may continue thine forever, and daily increase in thy Holy Spirit more and more until he come to Thine everlasting kingdom." His Lordship impressed upon the candidates the importance of their new duties, urging them to be an example to others by living uprightly before God and men.

The choir's hymnal offerings were very appropriate, adding to the solemnity of the occasion.

DEPUTATION WAITS ON GOVERNMENT

To Ask for Better Terms Regarding the Regiment and Quebec Trip

Major Clegg and Major Bennett left for Ottawa last night and will form part of a deputation which will wait on the Minister of Militia to ask for better terms regarding the trip to Quebec for the tercentenary celebration. All the regiments are dissatisfied with the proposed terms and is is hoped to get a better arrangement.

A MERRY WIDOW STORY

An exchange gives the following tip on the making of a merry widow hat; Take one bicycle wheel, superimpose on the hub one deep granite saucepan, first snapping off the handle with an axe. Stitch on cover of wine-colored velvet from your season-before-last's coat suit. Put on a three-inch binding around brim of canary-colored tafetta silk from your great-grandmother's party dress. Rip nineteen yards of box ruching off you shirtwaist box, and wind about crown, and add a feather duster or two. A soup ladle and a joint fork will give a jaunty effect is used at hatpins.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

The adjourned vestry meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Rev. Dr Langfeldt made a strong appeal for a large attendance. All societies of the parish were particularly invited to enter into a discussion regarding great importance to be held in the near future. The secretaries of the societies are requested to bring their reports of their year's work.

The W.A. will meet on Thursday at 2.30 and the Mission Band on Friday at 4.15.

THE ROSS RIFLE AGAIN; SOME MORE EXPLANATIONS

Explains Alterations and Their Cost—Inspection of Militia Stores—Seed Grain for the Northwest—Debate on Election Bill.

Ottawa, May 12.—The Ross rifle was in evidence in the House yesterday.

At the opening of the sitting, Sir Frederick Borden, rising to a question of privilege, complained of a newspaper item which he said charged him with keeping back for years the report of the Imperial tests of the Ross rifle at Woolwich, England. The Minister stated that the report had been brought down in 1907, and had also been mentioned by him in a speech in the House as he showed from Hansard. He also stated that the defects mentioned in the report had been noticed and corrected by the Militia Department before the Imperial report was received.

Col. Worthington learned that the contract price of the rifles is $25 each, and in addition they cast $1,90 each for inspection. The following payments have been made, and charged to capital, having been expended on replacing tools, etc., which became obsolete in consequence of: (a) Mark I, site being changed to mark II., $11,361; (b) mark II., sight being changed to mark III., $15,000; (c) modifications in mark II. rifle, $3,648; (d) change in pattern of cocking piece, $930; expenditure for permanent gauges, $26,237.

The Minister explained that these payments were charged to capital, as they entered into the cost of all future rifles, consequently the proportion to be borne by each rifle cannot now be ascertained. For Ross rifles, to the number of 40,000 delivered to the Government, the company has been paid $1,005,000. Sir Fredericq Borden said a contract had been entered into with the Ross Rifle Co. for 52,000 bayonets and scabbards at $5.25 each complete.

Mr. Foster was informed that tests and proofs of guns and artillery for the Department of Militia made by the War Office and paid for after the work is completed and the guns delivered. Major-Gen. O'Grady Haley is employed in connection with such inspection and is paid $500 per annum for his services. Lieut.-Col Robert Brown inspects all saddlery, and is paid 2 per cent. of the value thereof. Clothing is inspected by James W. Caldwell and James Robertson, who are paid at the rate of $2,200 each per annum.

W. F. Maclean was informed by Mr. Oliver that 1,022,853 bushels of oats, 48,924 bushels of barley, and 576,536 bushels wheat were purchased by the Government for distribution as seed grain in the northwest.

The request of the Quebec Board of Trade for an experimental farm in that district will receive the most sympathetic and careful consideration of the Government, was Mr. Fisher's reply to Mr. Robertaille, who wanted to know if the request would be granted before the election.

Mr. Foster brought up the matter of the sinking of the Government icebreaker Montcalm by the Milwaukee. Mr. Brodeur said the Montcalm had been run into in the basin at Quebec and was now under water. A formal enquiry to fix responsibilty for the collision was now being conducted by Commander Spain assisted by two assessors. It is expected she will be afloat by the end of the week.

"Have any precautions been taken to save the silverware on board?" enquired Mr. Borden with assumed gravity.

The Minister replied that of course the silverware would be saved.

Duncan Ross (Liberal, Yale-Cariboo) resumed the debate on Mr. Aylesworth's bill. It was the Government's duty, he said, to interfere in those provinces where injustice was being done. He described the British Columbia lists as being "rotten" and believed the lists in Manitoba were little better.

Dr. Schaffner (Conservative, Souris) replied that it was only politicians who were interested in securing Federal interference, in the hope of capturing some seats by this desperate means. At their head was Clifford Sifton.

MOIR AT SCENE OF HIS CRIME

Murderer Has Arrived at London—The Division of the Reward

London, May 12.—Private Moir arrived in the city by the 11 o'clock C. P. R. train last night. There were several hundred people at the depot. He stepped from the train securely handcuffed in charge of Detective Nickle. He wore a neat suit and would by no means impress one as a man who had shot down another with a rifle.

Moir was captured by Chief Constable Farrell and County Constable Coughlin, of Arthur, at the farm of Mr. Charles Robb, seven miles from Arthur. He had been working for Robb for two weeks, the latter being in ignorance of who his hired man was. The reward of $500 will be divided between the two constables and a stage driver, who detected a resemblance between Robb's hired man and the published pictures of Moir and told the constables where he was.

Moir admits his guilt.

A Palace of Peace.

Washington, May 12.—President Roosevelt yesterday laid the cornerstone of the first International Temple of Peace, Friendship and Commerce to be erected — the tangible evidence of the desire of the twenty-one American republics that war shall be no more in the western world, and that material prosperity promoted by international trade shall take its place.

The new building is to be the joint property of all the republics. The site, provided by the American Congress, consists of the historic old VanNess home, the first protentious mansion erected in Washington. It faces the Mall, and is within a few hundred yards of the White House.

Three-quarters of a million dollars towards the construction of the building is the contribution of Mr. Carnegie.

Dr. Bell Honored.

Ottawa, May 12.—Dr. Robert Bell of the Geological Survey has been appointed by the Scottish Meteorological Society as their representative at the international congress, which meets at Quebec the week following the tercentenary celebration.

CHAIRMAN OF REGISTRATION

His Honor Judge Weller Has Been Appointed for Peterborough.

Toronto, May 12.—Premier Whitney anounced the following to act as chairmen of the boards of registration throughout the province: Fort William, Magistrate Polling; Port Arthur, Judge O'Leary; Belleville, Judge Fralick; Berlin, Judge Chisholm; Brantford, Magistrate Livingstone; Chatham, Judge Bell; Guelph, Judge Chadwick; Hamilton, Judge Snider; Kingston, Judge Price; London, Judge McBeth; Ottawa, Judge McTavish; Peterboro, Judge Weller; St. Catharines, Judge Carman; St. Thomas, Judge Ermatinger; Stratford, Judge Barron; Windsor, Judge McHugh; Woodstock, Judge Finkle; West Toronto, Judge Morgan.

WRECK ON C.P.R. NEAR KENORA

No One Seriously Injured, But Details Are Meagre.

North Bay, May 12.—The C. P. R. express, which left North Bay yesterday morning was wrecked at Woman River.

The scene of the wreck is 200 miles west of North Bay and details are meagre.

It is stated that no one is seriously injured.

Supt. Brady left for Woman River on the Imperial Limited.

New Connections For the C. P. R.

Detroit, May 12.—It is rumored at Bay City, on what is considered reliable authority, that the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway is negotiating with the Detroit & Mackinac Railway from Bay City to Cheboygan for a perpetual lease of the latter road. The D. S. S. & A. is controlled by the Canadian Pacific and the latter is behind the move. It is also said that the D. S. S. & A. is a bidder for the Pontiac, Oxford & Northern Railway. With these two roads connected by short lines with each other the C. P. R. would have a direct connection between its D. S. S. & A. line and Detroit.

Burned His Children.

Montgomery, Ala., May 12.—Five children of James Kennedy, a negro, were burned to death and two others are not expected to live.

Kennedy's wife alleges that her husband locked the children in the place and then set it on fire.

The man and woman have been living apart and the question of the possession of the children was being fought out in the courts.

A Young Soldier.

Madrid, May 12.—Prince Alfonso of the Asturias, the infant son of King Alfonso, who was born May 10, 1907, was enrolled in the Spanish army at the Royal Chapel on Sunday. The little prince was attired in the uniform of a private of the King's Own Regiment and was carried by the Queen to the altar, where the military oath was administered.

Town Will Buy Railway Bonds.

Dunnville, May 12.—A bylaw to assist the Dunnville, Wellandport & Beamsville Railway by the purchase of $30,000 of the companies bonds was carried yesterday by a large majority.

Hyman Again For London.

London, May 12.—The understanding here is that Hon. Charles S. Hyman will again contest London in the coming Federal elections. His opponent will be William Gray.

PUPILS GAVE FINE RECITAL

Last evening the pupils of Mr. Cecil Carl Forsythe, organist of the Cambridge St. Methodist church gave a piano and vocal recital in the Cambridge St. Sunday school hall before a large and appreciative audience. The work of Mr. Forsythe's pupils was such as to draw much favorable comment, and goes to show that a great deal of careful and painstaking labor had been expended on the lessons.—Lindsay Post.

OWEN SOUND STRIKE SETTLED AFTER RIOT AND BLOODSHED

Strikers and Special Constables Used Clubs and Pistols—Troops Ordered to the Scene But Orders Were Cancelled—The Difficulty Settled—C.P.R. Terms Accepted—G.T.R. Hands Also Struck.

Owen Sound, May 12.—The strikers have notified the C. P. R. officials that they would accept their offer of new scale of wages, which does away with the bonus system, against which there has been considerable complaint. For day work at the sheds the men will receive 15 cents an hour and 16 cents for overtime. For work on grain and coal they will receive 20 cents an hour. The company agree to take back all the old hands, and to give the strike-breakers who deserted them free transportation to Toronto.

So came to an end the strike of the freight handlers, which had been interfering with the business of the C. P. R. for the last few days.

In a pitched battle at the C. P. R. sheds in the early morning, two strikers and a spectator were seriously hurt, two of them shot, and two detectives were clubbed. One of the detectives, Wright, of Toronto, is in a serious condition. His skull was fractured and he received other injuries. The other injured were: Edward O'Brien, druggist, Toronto, one of the spectators, shot in the ankle; James Lambie, Hanover, one of the strikers, shot in the thigh; James McIntosh, Owen Sound, one of the strikers, beaten about the head.

At 4 o'clock in the morning the special train arrived from Toronto with seventy strike-breakers and twenty special constables. They were accompanied by Supt. Osborne, Divisional Supt. Nelson and Angus McMurchy, the company's solicitor. Immediately on the arrival of the special the scouts notified the men, most of whom spent the night sleeping in the Town Hall, which had been thrown open for their use.

At 7 o'clock work was commenced at the grain elevators unloading the steamer Dundee. The strikers marched toward the C. P. R. property when they heard of this. First, they went to where the S.S. Athabasca is lying ready to be unloaded. Everything was quiet there and the crowd, which numbered about 300 moved towards the elevators.

The strikers were met by several detectives who ordered them off the property. The men rushed towards the officers and a pitched battle followed. There was a terrible scene for several minutes. The detectives used clubs and revolvers, and at least 25 shots were fired. The strikers used clubs freely and won out quickly, but not before two of their number, and a spectator, were shot and a striker clubbed.

The strikers immediately went to the elevator, where the compay's officials and Mayor Kennedy were on board the steamer Dundee. The crowd threatened to attack the officials, and pieces of coal were thrown on the deck of the steamer.

Mayor Kennedy then read the Riot Act. The elevator machinery was stopped and the officials agreed that nothing would be done until a conference was held.

The two parties met in the mayor's office while the body of strikers waited in the Town Hall. In about an hour the strike committee came up and Robt. Wainwright announced the outcome of the conference. It was that the officials claimed that the men had violated the Labor Disputes Act by not giving the required notice, and that they asked the men to go on at the present rate of wages for thirty days, the dispute meanwhile to be referred to the Labor Department at at Ottawa.

This announcement was greeted with loud cries of "No, no." Then, said Mr. Wainwright, the officials ask if the men will accept 15 cents and 16 cents for overtime, and abolish the bonus. There were expressions of dissent at this offer.

The imported men agreed to leave it to the old hands and abide by their decision. That decision was soon reached. The old rate of wages, nothing less. Cheers greeted the announcement, and the men poured out of the hall.

Meantime another conference was going on, an endeavor being made to arrange for loading the steamer Dundee, whose captain offered to pay the old rate of wages if the grain gang would do this work. But the men were determined no work should go on.

A third offer was later submitted to the men. Supt. Osborne offered 15c., 16c. for Sundays and overtime, 20c. for coal, 22c., for grain, all the old employes to be taken on, the imported men to be taken back to Toronto. This offer was ultimately accepted.

Acting on the request of the mayor for troops, sent by telephone, Brig.-Gen. Cotton sent word to Stanley Barracks, Toronto, and preparations were made to send a company of 100 men, made up of fifty infantry and twenty-five each from the cavalry and artillery. They were served with 100 rounds each of ball ammunition and entrained shortly after noon on a special. At the last moment the expedition was cancelled on receipt of re-assuring news that the trouble was over.

With gangs of men unloading the company's liners, at work in the holds of the grain and coal vessels last night, there was nothing to suggest the strenuous labor contest of the last few days, while the serious affray of the morning only served to supply a theme for conversation amongst the citizens of the town.

An after-view of the situation suggests that had the men been organized and approached the company with their demands there would have been no trouble. Supt. Osborne's attitude is said to have always been conciliatory, and the fact that, devoid of the bonus feature, the men accepted the company's Saturday offer, strengthens the opinion that lack of representatives had much to do with yesterday's unfortunate affair.

The trouble spread to the G. T. R., and yesterday their dock men, who have been handling cement, went out for an increase of 2 1-2 cents. The company was paying 22 1-2 cents to men on deck, and 25 cents in the hold. The men demanded 25 cents and 27 1-2 cents, the rate being paid by private contractors. About 25 men struck.

STEALING RIDE ON TRAIN, TWO MEN MEET THEIR DEATHS

And Bodies Were Burned in Fire That Followed Bad Wreck on the C.P.R. Near Parry Sound.

Special to the Review.

Parry Sound, May 12th.—A serious accident in which two men were killed outright occurred last evening on the C. P. R., five miles north of here.

The place was a rock cut in a curve. Two construction trains containing plows and ballast cars going in opposite directions collided with great force, the vans and a number of the cars being completely demolished.

On the train coming to Parry Sound were two men, George Hannigan and Levi Sutton, his son-in-law, residents of the Township of Carding. Both of them were instantly killed and their bodies burned in the fire which broke out in the wreckage. These men were stealing a ride and their presence was unknown to the train crews. None of the train crews was injured. An inquest will be held.

LOCAL OFFICERS WERE ON DEPUTATION THAT WAITED ON MINISTER OF MILITIA

Regarding the Financing of City Regiments to the Celebration at Quebec—Don't Think Any Annual Drill Pay Should be Withheld—Consideration Promised.

The financing of the Quebec trip is the source of much discussion among the city regiments. Sir Frederick Borden, the Minister of Militia, has a fixed appropriation granted them each year, which goes to the various Canadian regiments. Considerable extra expense will naturally be entailed in connection with the transportation of the regiments to Quebec in July for the military demonstration there. Sir Frederick did not feel inclined to ask the Government for a larger grant than the one already given. He therefore decided to withhold part of the annual drill pay of city regiments in order to defray expenses in connection with the trip. The regiments didn't feel that they could be deprived of any of their annual drill pay owing to the expenditure involved in connection with financing the regiments each year. The rural corps are allowed their full pay this year and are not required to go to camp, the money that would be expended in this latter way going to pay the expenses of the trip to Quebec. The city regiments are of the opinion that they should be treated with the same consideration, and besides receiving their full drill pay, that their expenses should be met in connection with the trip.

A DEPUTATION.

A deputation from different regiments from Ontario and Montreal waited upon Sir Frederick yesterday with a view of having their full yearly drill pay granted, besides the financing of the Quebec trip being provided for. The 57th of Peterborough were represented by Major Bennett and Major Clegg. They went to Ottawa on Sunday night and returned to the city this morning. While nothing definite has been promised in the matter, it is probable an announcement will be made by the Militia Department in a short time, stating definite conditions under which the military demonstration will be conducted. It is likely that very radical changes will be made owing to the difficulties of transportation and of handling troops on limited grounds.

SPECIAL CONSTABLES BEING SWORN IN TO CATCH TRAMPS

A small army of special constables is being sworn in to do duty along the C. P. R. tracks. For some time past the audacity of tramps has been increasing and their depredations cost a good deal of money. Not content with destroying fences, to make fires, they pilfer the cars left on sidings and they ride even on passenger trains. The C. P. R. authorities have decided to deal sternly with this evil, and all tramps arrested will be prosecuted to the limit.

The trouble is reported to be general all along the line, but especially so in the vicinity of Montreal. The Peterborough division has not suffered much in this respect, but precautions are being taken to prevent any mischief being done.

MERLIN VILLAGE BADLY SCORCHED

Disastrous Fire Resulting From Gasoline Explosion.

Chatham, May 12.—The principal block in the village of Merlin was completely destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire started at 8 o'clock in the printing office of The Merlin Mirror. The gasoline can exploded, caught on a lot of paper and got past control.

There is no fire brigade in Merlin, and a bucket brigade was formed. The fire department from Blenheim responded to a call for assistance, but the Tilbury brigade refused to go. The following buildings were burned to the ground:

Arthur Smith's jewelry store, Oddfellows' Hall, Dr. Bell's store, occupied by R. Abraham as a general store; Walter Hall's store, rented by the National Supply Co.; Fraser's barber shop and The Mirror printing plant.

The upper portions of these buildings were fitted up with living apartments. The loss is estimated at $35,000 or $40,000.

At 1 o'clock the fire was under control.

EVENTS TO-NIGHT

Grand Opera House—Wilbor Stock Company present "On Russian Soil."

St. Luke's church—Adjourned vestry meeting.

Secretary's office—Special meeting of Board of Education.

Knox church—Boys' Club.

St. Paul's Church — Meeting of Session.

Dominion Bank Chambers—Meeting of Board of Managers of St. Paul's church.

All Saints' Church—Men's Association.

Drill Hall — Weekly drill of 57th Regiment.

Orange Hall — Camp Alpine, Sons of Scotland meet.

WILBOR STOCK CO. MAKES FINE IMPRESSION

The production of "Buried Alive" as presented by the Wilbor Stock Co. at the Grand last night proved to be one superior to that generally given by a repertoire company. The cast is well balanced and proved very satisfactory in the acting of their various roles. A large audience was present and gave the company a great deal of applause for their good work.

The specialties were particularly pleasing. Madame Flower, "the bronze wonder of song," possesses a voice of great range and power and was received with great favor by her listeners. She was repeatedly encored. The two tumblers with the company are unusually clever and put on a very neat act.

DAMAGED IN COLLISION; SERIOUS MARINE ACCIDENT

Bows Stove in and Forehold Full of Water—The Crew and Passengers Are all Safe—On Her Way Back to Quebec—News From Far and Near.

Montreal, May 12.—The Dominion liner Ottawa, which sailed from Montreal on Saturday with a full list of passengers and cargo, was in collision some time Sunday night with the Norwegian coal steamer Thorold, and is now on her way back to Quebec, considerably damaged, with her bows stove in and her forehold full of water. Marconigram reports, however, state that the passengers and crew of the big vessel are all safe.

It was reported that the coal steamer had been sunk in the collision, but this has not been confirmed by wireless, and the report is not credited in marine circles, as, if the Ottawa had sunk the other boat, her captain would almost certainly have mentioned it in his brief despatch.

The collision is supposed to have occurred about 150 miles before Fame Point, well down towards the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where the channel is upwards of fifty miles wide, practically open sea, and it is a mystery to shipping men here how the collision could have happened unless there was a dense fog, which, however, has not been reported by the Government signal service, which covers the gulf weather conditions very thoroughly.

The Writs Issued.

Toronto, May 12.—The writs for the coming Ontario elections have been officially issued, and the Election Act thereby came into force. Henceforth all who have been nominated by conventions or have signified their intention of going to the polls are candidates in the eyes of the law. They must be careful not to treat, or spend money in any other illegal manner.

Conference Can't Agree.

London, May 12.—(C.A.P.)—At Melbourne, the Premiers' conference concluded with little progress made towards a settlement of the financial arrangments between the states of the Commonwealth. Premier Deakin stated his Government would probably arrive at an immigration policy satisfactory to all parties.

Want Prosperity Back.

Washington, May 12.—A committee of the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis called on President Roosevelt yesterday to urge his aid in furthering their plans for encouraging the return of prosperity throughout the country.

Railway Telegraphers Meet.

Smith's Falls, May 12.—A joint meeting of railway telegraphers was held here. The Toronto, Havelock, Ottawa and Smith's Falls divisions were represented. J. C. Rooney of Montreal, assistant general chairman, urged the members to strongly support the eight-hour bill now before the House. Reports showed the brotherhood to be in a flourishing condition.

Eight-Hour Day In Nova Scotia.

Halifax, May 12.—The Local Government has appointed Prof. Magill, principal of Pinehill College; C. W. Robb of Amherst, and Henry McDonald of Glace Bay a commission to enquire into the feasibility of the eight-hour day for workingmen employed in various industries throughout the province.

Too Many Workmen.

Port Arthur, May 12.—The town officials are in a quandary to know what to do with the large influx of laboring men who are crossing over from Duluth, Minn. Five hundred have arrived here in the last few days, and as many more are expected to-day and Wednesday. Only a few have money.

Six Firemen Hurt.

Westboro, Mass., May 12.—A fire which threatened the business section of the town destroyed the offices and warehouses of the Armour Beef Co. and several other buildings. Six firemen were injured.

THE TRAGEDY AT HUNTSVILLE

Verdict of Coroner's Jury in the Case.

Huntsville, May 12.—At the inquest in connection with the murder of Mrs. Nelson Smith by her husband, who then committed suicide, the coroner's jury brought in the following verdict:

"We find that the said Martha Smith came to her death from revolver shots fired by her husband, Nelson Smith, while evidently in a fit of insanity and that the said Nelson Smith died from revolver shots fired by his own hand."

It came out in evidence that Smith and his wife did not get along well during the past two years, and that the husband was of a very jealous nature.

E. A. Smith, a brother of the deceased man, has been accused of being too friendly with the murdered woman, but he says there was no ill-feeling between himself and his brother and that he knew his brother was not at all jealous of his attention to the wife.

Mrs. Smith left her husband in Berlin three weeks ago and recently sent him a letter telling him she would attend to her own affairs and that he could have the children. This seems to have led him to come here and commit the crime.

THE RAILWAYS CANNOT AGREE

Misunderstanding Between G.T.P. and C.N.R. Regarding Winnipeg Station.

Winnipeg, May 12.—It is reported that a serious disagreement has occurred between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railway in regard to the division of the cost of the terminal union station planned for Winnipeg. The work involves an expenditure of $1,500,000, and it was understood the G. T. P. would pay two-thirds. Now they want Mackenzie & Mann to contribute one-half of the cost. These gentlemen counterback by saying they may only be willing to pay one-quarter the cost, or will build a station of their own. Donald Mann has been here for nearly a week.

The site is part of the old Hudson Bay Co. reserve, and is at present built upon by a cheap class of houses.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Insure Them Good Health.

Ninety per cent. of children, under twelve years of age, are being poisoned and parents don't realize it.

Irregular bowels are the chief cause. You parents know that your bowels should move every day. You know you must be as regular as clock-work, or the blood will become tainted.

Don't you realize that the children must be as orderly in getting rid of the waste matter of their system?

Then, if you find that any of the little ones go two or three days without action of the bowels, don't run to castor oil, senna tea, calomel, cascara or harsh "liver pills." Those simply purge the child—strain the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the ideal medicine for children. They are fruit juices and tonics in the form of a pleasant tasting tablet. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulate the liver, causing more bile to flow. It is the bile, given up by the liver, which moves the bowels. "Fruit-a-tives" regulate the liver and bowels, and thus completely cure constipation. They sweeten the stomach, and are the finest tonic in the world to build up the system and make children plump and rosy. 50c a box—six for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

THE STANSTEAD ELECTION

It would seem as if people who decide to do wrong once cannot refrain from repeating the performance. This is known as the "fatuity of crime." In January, 1906, a Dominion bye-election was held in Stanstead, P.Q. It was of the utmost importance to the Laurier Government to win it, as the tide of public opinion had been going against them elsewhere. Stanstead went Liberal heavily. It looked like a Liberal triumph. A protest was lodged. It came up for trial and lo! the ballots, electoral lists, etc, of 1906 were missing. Those of 1904 were in the boxes instead. How did this come? Oh! Someone has made a mistake and turned the wrong ballots, it was said. Fortunately a rubber stamp marked "1906" was in the box also. So the box had already been opened in 1906! A wonderfully free country Canada is getting to be but then the Examiner has said "The world has come to set up less exacting standards of morality in politics and government relations than in ordinary matters." Such an idea will account for pretty nearly anything and goes far to explain the political history of West Peterborough. Can the public secure decent, civilised treatment at all or is it at the mercy of a lot of cheap milkwage and thimble-riggers?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The political fight now on in this province is generally conceded to be between Laurier and Whitney, and not between the present insignificant Opposition and the Provincial Government. Every effort is to be made to minimize the triumph of the Ontario Conservatives as so much gained now is expected to help by so much later on.

The Aylesworth Bill is a beauty. It will enfranchise probably 30,000 men working on the G.T.P. The character of the bill is extraordinary. The returning officer is to be a special federal officer "without appeal" as in other election bills. That there should be no appeal from his decision to a judge is to usurp the liberties of the people.

It is always fair to wait until charges are proved before jumping to conclusions. Major Hodgins, C.E. one of the Government superintending engineers has charged the Laurier Government and its servants with having paid contractors on the G.T.P. for "rock" when they were merely working in sand, etc. His charges are now being investigated. We have understood from competent men who have been over part of the work that these charges are correct. Fillings also have been paid for twice, once as muskeg work and then as filling. It is said that the robbery of the public has been simply "awful."

THE PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S DEPARTMENT; GREAT CHANGE

From Confusion and a Hopeless Chaos to Modern Methods and Humane Treatment—No More Gaols for the Unfortunate—A Period of Wonderful Advancement in the Care of Insane.

It has been a boast of Mr. J.R. Stratton repeated upon many a platform, and in his own newspaper, the Examiner, that when Provincial Secretary he was a competent official and that nothing has since been shown to the contrary. As a matter of fact his administration of that department was a complete failure. It was unprogressive, stupid and expensive, as we have often shown. Add to this the gross partiality and injustice of the late government and we have a record that no man should even pretend to be proud of. When Mr. Stratton speaks of his achievements he gives no statistics to back up his assertions, but contents himself with "glittering generalities," which may do well enough to catch the unwary, but can not stand the test even of time. In this brief review of the department's recent work we will confine ourselves to one branch only, viz., that of the so-called insane. Now it is well-known that only a small proportion of the insane are incurable. Insanity, like any other disease, is frequently amenable to treatment. The scientific Germans have made simply astounding advances in this direction. In England and France great advances were also made and in the United States, in fact everywhere except in Ontario, till of late. Under the old administration if a person were charged before a magistrate with being insane, he was committed to the county gaol by that magistrate. Then in the course of a week or so he would be examined by a judge and two doctors, and after the expiration perhaps of many weeks in gaol, where he was treated as a criminal, kept in a cell and fed exactly as the prisoners were fed, he would be taken away. It was so with women also. At the close of 1907 there was not a single patient in the gaols of this province awaiting removal. The Whitney administration passed an act and enforced it, which expressly forbids the committing of the insane to gaol, except when dangerously insane. But not only in this regard has a mighty change been wrought. By the introduction of advanced methods such as those we referred to a vastly greater proportion of unfortunates have been cured and restored permanently to their friends. Moreover, instead of their estates being left during their detention in the "process of law" or in the hands of trust companies, who necessarily charge high fees, these estates are now handled by the Government itself to the very great advantage, financial and otherwise, of the owners or beneficiaries of those estates.

The unjust discrimination of a former regime whereby persistent political favorites secured admission to the non-pay wards for their friends, when as a matter of fact, there was plenty of money to pay for them, has been forever done away with. Kindly, but scrupulously fair treatment is the watchword here as in other departments of their administration. Then immigrant insane to the number of over 200, costing the province over $500,000, under the former administration, has been deported and sent back to the countries whence they came. Not a vestige of the ignorance and venality of a corrupt and godless government remains to disgrace the pages of our provincial history. At one bound the people have freed themselves from an odious tyranny and on June 8th the electors of this province will show that they appreciate this able and honest government.

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration there on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

THOSE WHO WILL SPEAK AT MERCHANTS' BANQUET

To be Held in the Oriental Hotel on Friday Night—Promises to be a Grand Event—Many Speakers Will be Present From Outside Points.

The banquet of the merchants of Peterboro will be held on Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Oriental hotel and it will be one of the finest dinners that has ever been given in this city. A number of prominent merchants will be present from outside points and will give addresses. In addition there will be an interesting programme of songs and recitations.

The speakers will be Messrs. H. Watters, of Ottawa, who will speak on "The important position retail merchants occupy in a community"; B. W. Zieman, of Prescott, whose subject will be "How we are organized"; A. L. Greene, of Belleville, whose address will be on "The power of organization"; A. M. Patterson, of Brockville, who will deal with the question, "How merchants should be organized," and E. M. Trowern, of Toronto, who will give an address on "The importance of watching legislation for retail merchants."

This will be the first banquet of the merchants and it is urged that every business man in the city turn out to this function. An association will be organized on Friday night and it is urgently requested that a large number attend.

A WARNING

To the Editor of the Review

Dear Sir,—In your issue of yesterday you make an appeal for a poor family on Denne St., Ashburnham. I heartily endorse that appeal as far as the wife and children are concerned. But I do hope means will be found by which they alone receive the benefit of help. Unfortunately, charity has been sometimes dispensed in Peterboro as well as at other places, in a manner which encourages lazy and good-for-nothing men to continue in idleness. By helping the unfortunate family these men become partakers of the assistance thus rendered. Mr. F. W. Miller, as well as myself, know the case in question, and I sincerely hope that nothing will be done for the family except through the proper channels. There are altogether too many healthy and strong men who have sponged upon the charity of the public.

Prime lots of picked butchers' sold at $5.70 to $5.90; loads of good, $5.50 to $5.75; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $4.75 to $5; cows, $3.50 to $4.75 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

About half a dozen milkers and springers sold at $40 to $60 each. More good cows would have sold, but the common and inferior kinds are not wanted.

Veal Calves.

About 100 veal calves were on sale. Prices were unchanged, at $3.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, with prices firm, as follows: Export ewes, $4.00 to $5.50; rams, $4 to $4.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3.50 to $6.50 each; yearling lambs, $6.50 to $7.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, report prices easier at $6 for selects, fed and watered, and $5.75 to $5.85, f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 11.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending May 9 were 2001 cattle, 82 sheep and lambs, 3714 hogs and 1446 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning were 800 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 2257 hogs and 250 calves. The feature of the live stock situation continues to be the strong undertone to the market for cattle, and the steady upward tendency of prices during the past three weeks, which is due to the somewhat scarcity of good to choice stock, and the high prices demanded by farmers, who are fortunate to have any finished stock on hand. This state of affairs is likely to continue for at least another month yet, or until grass cattle are in fit condition to come forward. Altho the supply was a trifle larger than a week ago, a further advance of ¼c per pound was scored this morning. The gathering of buyers was large, and, as they all wanted some beef, there was a good and active trade done. There was a fair demand from exporters, and they bought all the suitable stock available for that purpose at 6¼c per lb. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday were stronger for cattle, and noted an advance of ½c per lb. all round. American steers were quoted at 13c to 13½c; Canadian steers at 12½c to 13¼c; cows at 12c to 12¼c, and bulls at 11c to 11½c per lb. Choice beeves here sold at 6¼c to 6½c; good at 5¾c to 6c; fair at 5¼c to 5½c; common at 4½c to 5c, and inferior at 3½c to 4¼c per lb.

There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, supplies being very limited on account of the scarcity at country points. The demand for local consumption continues good and prices are firmly maintained, with sales of yearling lambs at 7c to 7½c, and sheep at 5½c per lb. Receipts of spring lambs are also small, for which the demand is good and prices are unchanged at from $3 to $6 each, as to quality.

A fairly active trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $1.50 to $5 each.

An easier feeling developed in the live hog situation this morning, and prices declined 15c to 25c per cwt., as compared with those paid a week ago. This was due to the increased offerings, there being over 2200 head on the market. There were some deliveries of selected lots on contracts made last week at $7 per cwt., but sales on the open market were made at $6.75 to $6.85 per cwt., weighed off cars.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

Shirley laughed outright, a merry, unrestrained peal of honest laughter, which made the passersby turn their heads and smile, too, commenting the while on the stylish appearance of the two Americans whom they took for sweethearts. After all, reasoned Shirley, he was right. They had been together now nearly every hour in the day for over a month. It was absurd to call him Mr. Ryder. So, addressing him with mock gravity, she said:

"You're right, Mr. Ryder—I mean Jefferson. You're quite right. You are Jefferson from this time on, only remember"—here she shook her gloved finger at him warningly—"mind you behave yourself! No more such sentimental speeches as you made just now."

Jefferson beamed. He felt at least two inches taller, and at that moment he would not have changed places with any one in the world. To hide the embarrassment his gratification caused him he pulled out his watch and exclaimed:

"Why, it's a quarter past six. We shall have all we can do to get back to the hotel and dress for dinner."

Shirley rose at once, although loath to leave.

"I had no idea it was so late," she said. "How the time flies!" Then mockingly she added: "Come, Jefferson—be a good boy and find a cab."

They passed out of the gardens by the gate facing the Theatre de l'Odeon, where there was a long string of fiacres for hire. They got into one, and in fifteen minutes they were back at the Grand hotel.

At the office they told Shirley that her aunt had already come in and gone to her room, so she hurried upstairs to dress for dinner, while Jefferson proceeded to the Hotel de l'Athenee on the same mission. He had still twenty-five minutes before dinner time, and he needed only ten minutes for a wash and to jump into his dress suit, so, instead of going directly to his hotel, he sat down at the Cafe de la Paix. He was thirsty, and calling for a vermouth frappe he told the garcon to bring him also the American papers.

The waiter returned with the vermouth and the newspapers. All he could find were the London Times, which he pronounced T-e-e-m-s, and some issues of the New York Herald. The papers were nearly a month old, but he did not care for that. Jefferson idly turned over the pages of the Herald. His thoughts were still running on Shirley, and he was paying little attention to what he was reading. Suddenly, however, his eyes rested on a headline which made him sit up with a start. It read as follows:

"Judge Rossmore Impeached—Justice of the Supreme Court to Be Tried On Bribery Charges."

The dispatch, which was dated Washington two weeks back, went on to say that serious charges affecting the integrity of Judge Rossmore had been made the subject of congressional inquiry and that the result of the inquiry was so grave that a demand for impeachment would be at once sent to the senate. It added that the charges grew out of the recent decision in the Great Northwestern Mining company case, it being alleged that Judge Rossmore had accepted a large sum of money on condition of his handing down a decision favorable to the company.

Jefferson was thunderstruck. He read the dispatch over again to make sure there was no mistake. No, it was very plain—Judge Rossmore of Madison avenue. But how preposterous, what a calumny! He paid for his vermouth and hurried away to his hotel to dress.

It was just striking 7 when he reentered the courtyard of the Grand hotel. Shirley and Mrs. Blake were waiting for him.

They drove up the stately Champs Elysees, past the monumental Arc de Triomphe and from there down to the Bois. All were singularly quiet. Mrs. Blake was worrying about her new gown, Shirley was tired, and Jefferson could not banish from his mind the terrible news he had just read. He avoided looking at Shirley until the latter noticed it and thought she must have offended him in some way. She was more sorry than she would have him know, for with all her apparent coldness Jefferson was rapidly becoming very indispensable to her happiness.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when they had finished. They sat a little longer listening to the gypsy music, weird and barbaric. Very pointedly, Shirley remarked:

"I for one preferred the music this afternoon."

"Why?" inquired Jefferson, ignoring the petulant note in her voice.

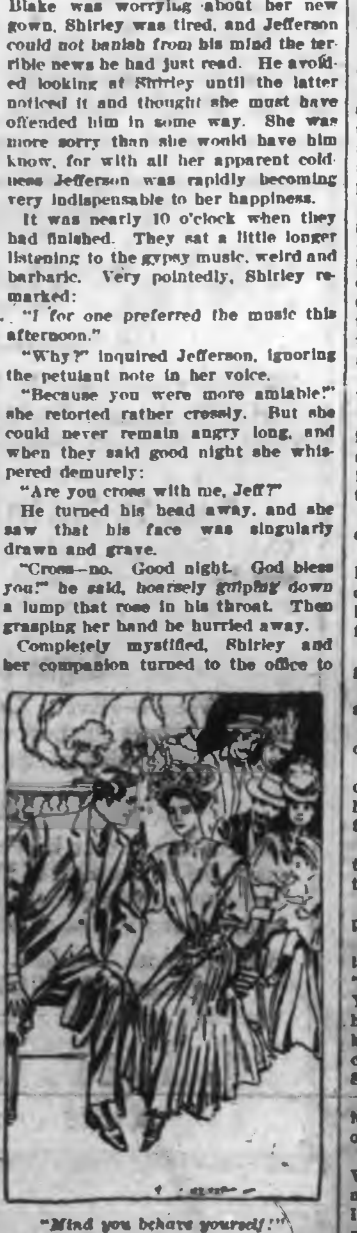
"Because you were more amiable!" she retorted rather crossly. But she could never remain angry long, and when they said good night she whispered demurely:

"Are you cross with me, Jeff?"

He turned his head away, and she saw that his face was singularly drawn and grave.

"Cross—no. Good night. God bless you!" he said, hoarsely gulping down a lump that rose in his throat. Then grasping her hand he hurried away.

Completely mystified, Shirley and her companion turned to the office to get the key of their room. As the man handed it to Shirley he passed her also a cablegram which had just come. She changed color. She did not like telegrams. She always had a dread of them, for with her sudden news was usually bad news. Could this, she thought, explain Jefferson's strange behavior? Trembling, she tore open the envelope and read:



"Mind you behave yourself!"

Come home at once. MOTHER.

CHAPTER V.

THEY were four days out from port. Two days more and they would sight Sandy Hook, and Shirley would know the worst. She had caught the North German Lloyd boat at Cherbourg two days after receiving the cablegram from New York. Mrs. Blake had insisted on coming along in spite of her niece's protests. Shirley argued that she had crossed alone when coming; she could go back the same way. Besides, was not Mr. Ryder returning home on the same ship? He would be company and protection both. But Mrs. Blake was bent on making the voyage. She had not seen her sister for many years and, moreover, this sudden summons from America had upset her own plans.

The alarming summons home and the terrible shock she had experienced the following morning when Jefferson showed her the newspaper article with its astounding and heartrending news about her father had almost prostrated Shirley. The blow was all the greater for being so entirely unlooked for. That the story was true she could not doubt. Her mother would not have cabled except under the gravest circumstances. What alarmed Shirley still more was that she had no direct news of her father. For a moment her heart stood still. Suppose the shock of this shameful accusation had killed him? Her blood froze in her veins, she clinched her fists and dug her nails into her flesh as she thought of the dread possibility that she had looked upon him in life for the last time. She remembered his last kind words when he came to the steamer to see her off and his kiss when he said goodby, and she had noticed a tear of which he appeared to be ashamed. The hot tears welled up in her own eyes and coursed unhindered down her cheeks.

Suddenly she heard a familiar step behind her, and Jefferson joined her at the rail. The wind was due west and blowing half a gale, so where they were standing—one of the most exposed parts of the ship—it was difficult to keep one's feet, to say nothing of hearing any one speak.

"It's pretty windy here, Shirley," shouted Jefferson, steadying himself against a stanchion. "Don't you want to walk a little?"

He had begun to call her by her first name quite naturally, as if it were a matter of course. Indeed, their relations had come to be more like those of brother and sister than anything else. Shirley was too much troubled over the news from home to have a mind for other things, and in her distress she had turned to Jefferson for advice and help as she would have looked to an elder brother.

He was sorry for Judge Rossmore, of course, and there was nothing he would not do on his return to secure a withdrawal of the charges. That his father would use his influence he had no doubt, but meantime he was selfish enough to be glad for the opportunity it gave him to be a whole week alone with Shirley.

Thus events, combined with the weather, conspired to bring Shirley and Jefferson more closely together. The sea had been rough ever since they sailed, keeping Mrs. Blake confined to her stateroom almost continuously. They were therefore constantly in one another's company, and slowly, unconsciously, there was taking root in their hearts the germ of the only real and lasting love—the love born of something higher than mere physical attraction, the nobler, more enduring affection that is born of mutual sympathy, association and companionship.

Jefferson had been casting furtive glances at his companion, and as he noted her serious, pensive face he thought how pretty she was. He wondered what she was thinking of, and suddenly inspired no doubt by the mysterious power that enables some people to read the thoughts of others, he said abruptly:

"Shirley, I can read your thoughts. You were thinking of me."

She was startled for a moment, but immediately recovered her self possession. It never occurred to her to deny it. She pondered for a moment and then replied:

"You are right, Jeff. I was thinking of you. How did you guess?"

He leaned over her and took her hand. She made no resistance. Her delicate, slender hand lay passively in his big brown one and met his grasp frankly, cordially. He whispered:

"What were you thinking of me—good or bad?"

"Good, of course. How could I think anything bad of you?"

She turned her eyes on him in wonderment; then she went on:

"I was wondering how a girl could distinguish between the feeling she has for a man she merely likes and the feeling she has for a man she loves."

Jefferson bent eagerly forward so as to lose no word that might fall from those coveted lips.

"In what category would I be placed?" he asked.

"I don't quite know," she answered laughingly. Then seriously she added: "Jeff, why should we act like children? Your actions, more than your words, have told me that you love me. I have known it all along. If I have appeared cold and indifferent, it is because"—She hesitated.

"Because?" echoed Jefferson anxiously, as if his whole future depended on that reason.

"Because I was not sure of myself. Would it be womanly or honorable on my part to encourage you unless I felt I reciprocated your feelings? You are young. One day you will be very rich. The whole world lies before you. There are plenty of women who would willingly give you their love."

"No, no!" he burst out in vigorous protest. "It is you I want, Shirley—you alone."

Grasping her hand more closely, he went on, passion vibrating in every note of his voice: "I love you, Shirley. I've loved you from the very first evening I met you. I want you to be my wife."

Shirley looked straight up into the blue eyes so eagerly bent down on hers, so entreating in their expression, and in a gentle voice full of emotion she answered:

"Jefferson, you have done me the greatest honor a man can do a woman. Don't ask me to answer you now. I like you very much. I more than like you. Whether it is love I feel for you, that I have not yet determined. Give me time. My present trouble and then my literary work"—

"I know," agreed Jefferson, "that this is hardly the time to speak of such matters. Your father has first call on your attention. But as to your literary work I do not understand."

"Simply this: I am ambitious. I have had a little success—just enough to crave for more. I realize that marriage would put an extinguisher on all aspirations in that direction."

"Is marriage so very commonplace?" grumbled Jefferson.

"Not commonplace, but there is no room in marriage for a woman having personal ambitions of her own. Once married her duty is to her husband and her children, not to herself."

"That is right," he replied; "but which is likely to give you greater joy—a literary success or a happy wifehood? When you have spent your best years and given the public your best work, they will throw you over for some new favorite. You'll find yourself an old woman with nothing more substantial to show as your life work than that questionable asset, a literary reputation. How many literary reputations today conceal an aching heart and find it difficult to make both ends meet? How different with the woman who married young and obeys nature's behest by contributing her share to the process of evolution. Her life is spent basking in the affection of her husband and the chubby smiles of her dimpled babes, and when in the course of time she finds herself in the twilight of her life, she has at her feet a new generation of her own flesh and blood. Isn't that better than a literary reputation?"

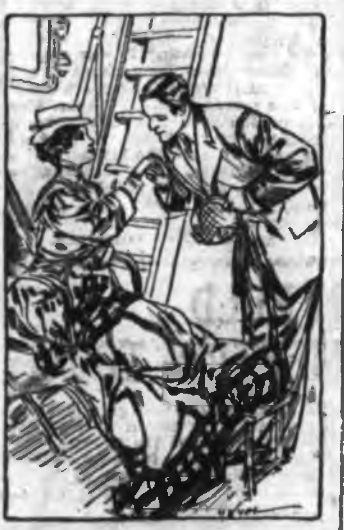
He spoke so earnestly that Shirley looked at him in surprise. She knew he was serious, but she had not suspected that he thought so deeply on these matters. Her heart told her that he was uttering the true philosophy of the ages. She said:

"Why, Jefferson, you talk like a book. Perhaps you are right. I have no wish to be a bluestocking and deserted in my old age, far from it. But give me time to think. Let us first ascertain the extent of this disaster which has overtaken my father. Then if you still care for me, and if I have not changed my mind," here she glanced slyly at him, "we will resume our discussion."

Again she held out her hand, which he had released.

"Is it a bargain?" she asked.

"It's a bargain," he murmured, raising the white hand to his lips. A fierce longing rose within him to take her in his arms and kiss passionately the mouth that lay temptingly near his own, but his courage failed him. After all, he reasoned, he had not yet the right.



"It's a bargain," he murmured.

A few minutes later they left the deck and went downstairs to dress for dinner. That same evening they stood again at the rail watching the mysterious phosphorescence as it sparkled in the moonlight. Her thoughts traveling faster than the ship, Shirley suddenly asked:

"Do you really think Mr. Ryder will use his influence to help my father?"

Jefferson set his jaw fast and the familiar Ryder gleam came into his eyes as he responded:

"Why not? My father is all powerful. He has made and unmade judges and legislators and even presidents. Why should he not be able to put a stop to these preposterous proceedings? I will go to him directly we land, and we'll see what can be done."

So the time on shipboard had passed, Shirley alternately buoyed up with hope and again depressed by the gloomiest forebodings. The following night they passed Fire island, and the next day the huge steamer dropped anchor at quarantine.

CHAPTER VI.

A MONTH had passed since the memorable meeting of the directors of the Southern and Transcontinental railroad in New York, and during that time neither John Burkett Ryder nor Judge Rossmore had been idle. The former had immediately set in motion the machinery he controlled in the legislature at Washington, while the judge neglected no step to vindicate himself before the public.

Ryder for reasons of his own—probably because he wished to make the blow the more crushing when it did fall—had insisted on the proceedings at the board meeting being kept a profound secret, and some time elapsed before the newspapers got wind of the coming congressional inquiry. No one had believed the stories about Judge Rossmore, but now that a quasi official seal had been set on the current gossip there was a howl of virtuous indignation from the journalistic muck rakers. What was the country coming to? they cried in double leaded type. After the embezzling by life insurance officers, the rascality of the railroads, the looting of city treasuries, the greed of the trusts, the grafting of the legislators, had arisen a new and more serious scandal, the corruption of the judiciary. The last bulwark of the nation had fallen. The country lay helpless at the mercy of legalized sandbaggers. Even the judges were no longer to be trusted. The most respected one among them all had been unable to resist the tempter. The supreme court, the living voice of the constitution, was honeycombed with graft. Public life was rotten to the core!

Neither the newspapers nor the public stopped to ascertain the truth or the falsity of the charges against Judge Rossmore. It was sufficient that the bribery story furnished the daily sensation which newspaper editors and newspaper readers must have. The world is ever more prompt to believe ill rather than good of a man, and no one, except in Rossmore's immediate circle of friends, entertained the slightest doubt of his guilt. It was common knowledge that the "big interests" were behind the proceedings, and that Judge Rossmore was a scapegoat, sacrificed by the system because he had been blocking their game. If Rossmore had really accepted the bribe, and few now believed him spotless, he deserved all that was coming to him. Senator Roberts was very active in Washington preparing the case against Judge Rossmore. The latter being of the party which was in the minority, and "the interests" controlling a majority in the house, it was a foregone conclusion that the inquiry would be against him, and that a demand would at once be made upon the senate for his impeachment.

Almost prostrated by the misfortune which had so suddenly and unexpectedly come upon him, Judge Rossmore was like a man demented. His reason seemed to be tottering, he spoke and acted like a man in a dream. Naturally he was entirely incapacitated for work, and he had applied to Washington to be temporarily relieved from his judicial duties. He was instantly granted a leave of absence and went at once to his home in Madison avenue, where he shut himself up in his library, sitting for hours at his desk wrestling with documents and legal tomes in a pathetic endeavor to find some way out, trying to elude this net in which unseen hands had entangled him.

What an end to his career! To have struggled and achieved for half a century, to have built up a reputation year by year, as a man builds a house brick by brick, only to see the whole crumble to his feet like dust! To have gained the respect of the country, to have made a name as the most incorruptible of public servants, and now to be branded as a common bribe taker! Could be be dreaming? It was too incredible! What would his daughter say—his Shirley? Ah, the thought of the expression of incredulity and wonder on her face when she heard the news cut him to the heart like a knife thrust. Yet, he mused, her very unwillingness to believe it should really be his consolation. Ah, his wife and his child—they knew he had been innocent of wrongdoing. The very idea was ridiculous. At most he had been careless. Yet he was certainly to blame. He ought to have seen the trap so carefully prepared and into which he had walked as if blindfolded.

Italian Peanut Man Said it Was of No Use to Him—Couldn't Stand on Corners

At last night's council meeting the foreign peanut man who has been conspicuous on the city streets lately, sent in a request that the money be paid for his peddlers' license be refunded. He stated that the police would not allow him to stand on the stree corners to sell peanuts, and consequently his license was of no use to him.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Morgan it was decided to give the man back his license fee.

ABBATOIR WAS THE SOURCE OF DISCUSSION

The Advisability of Establishing One for Peterborough Gone Into at Last Night's Council Meeting—Many Opinions Expressed—Referred to Property Committee.

The question of an abbatoir for Peterborough was the main one considered at last night's meeting of the City Council and opinions for and against it were listened to by the Mayor and alderman from the several wards.

A petition was read signed by the majority of butchers of the city, expressing the opinion that a public abbatoir was most desirable. Mr. Kennedy said he wrote Dr. J. J. Rutherford, the veterinary general for the Dominion Government, concerning the attendance of a veterinary expert to address the Council on the matter. He received a reply from Mr. Rutherford, the latter stating it was a matter for purely municipal consideration. He thought it was necessary to have one established here.

City Clerk Armstrong read a letter from F. H. Ward, chief inspector, who spoke of the necessity of an abbatoir.

Mr. Moore on behalf of those opposed to the abbatoir, read a letter signed by several butchers, who were opposed to Mr. Kennedy's scheme of establishing an abbatoir. The letter is as follows:

"The granting of a monopoly to any person or to any company is a dangerous thing to do," said Mr. Moore.

If farmers are compelled to go down to the abbatoir, a mile and a half south-east of the town, it practically excludes them from the market. The expense in connection with fees for the abbatoir would be very high. The butchers do not object to having their places inspected. He had heard no insinuations against the soundness of the meat in Peterborough. The question of an abbatoir was one that should be placed in the hands of the citizens.

We have had experience with inspectors and the Board of Health, said Dr. Gray, who spoke next, and in my opinion the Board is the greatest detriment that any community could have.

Mr. G. M. Roger said the letter of the Dominion Inspector showed the matter under consideration was for municipal consideration.

Half the butchers of the town had agreed upon the advisability of the erection of a central slaughter house and nine-tenths of the medical men of Peterborough had expressed themselves in favor of it.

"It's not a monopoly, Mr. Mayor," said the speaker, "it's a matter for the municipality to take up."

In the matter of the provision of water and electric light, etc., it had been found wise to place their supply in the hands of private concerns and might also be found well to give a private corporation the control of an abbatoir. It was a matter of public safeguard and protection.

Mr. John Mervin said he liked the idea of inspection of meat, but did not like to have all the meat inspected in one place. The butchers had spent considerable money in the erection of their own slaughter houses.

Mr. M. O'Brien didn't like the idea of having to take his animals a considerable distance to be slaughtered. He did not mind the inspection, but didn't see that it was necessary to have one carried on in view of the past records of local butchers.

Mr. Kennedy told of the large amount of meat rejected in United States and Canada, after inspection. He thought meat should be inspected as well as other artilces of food offered for sale. A dollar ahead didn't seem unreasonable as a price of inspection.

In reply to a query from Mayor Rush, Mr. Kennedy said he had spent considerable time in studying the cost of a building an abbatoir and $30,000 was the lowest figure. If the municipality were not willing to take it up he would be one of a concern to put capital in it. The matter was referred to the Property Committee, who would have the required information to work on since the question had been so thoroughly gone into at the Council meeting.

THE PAID FIRE BRIGADE WAS SUBJECT OF DEBATE

City Council Dealt With the Matter Again—Bridge Over Dickson Dam Closed—Pronounced Unsafe by City Engineer.

The paid fire brigade question came in for considerable controversy at last night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. There were present at the meeting His Worship Mayor Rush and Aldermen Phelan, McIntyre, Neill, Bradburn, Buller, Elliott, Morgan, Tovey, Johnston and Turner.

A letter was read from Mr. Thos. Rutherford, in which he tendered his resignation as chief of the fire brigade. Another letter was read containing the individual resignations of the members of the brigade.

Ald. Morgan said he thought there should be a meeting in which the citizens were allowed to attend and have the matter of a paid chief and brigade discussed openly and above board.

Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, resented Ald. Morgan's references to the committee.

Ald. Elliott said if the city were going to have a paid brigade it should have an efficient one, as the present volunteer brigade was the most efficient in the province.

Ald. Buller said that Ald. Morgan was the only one who seemed to be "sore" about the question of a paid brigade. He said he had a conversation with Chief Rutherford, who said it was time for a change.

Alderman Bradburn said a couple of the members of the brigade said they thought it was the best move possible to have a part paid and part volunteer brigade. It was in the daytime that there was trouble and delay as most of the members of the brigade were employed as mechanics or otherwise and could not get to the fire hall quickly.

A number of citizens petitioned for an arc light on Park street between Romaine and Princess.—Board of Works.

It was moved by Ald. Tovey that the bridge over the old Dickson dam be closed. The bridge had been condemned by the city engineer. The motion was seconded by Ald. Neill.

The Mayor and Alderman Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works were appointed to wait upon the Quaker Oats Company with a view of having foot passengers allowed the privilege of using the bridge, as the idea of closing it was to prevent heavy loads from being taken over it, as it was considered unsafe.

It was moved that the Mayor, Aldermen Bradburn and Buller be a committee to meet Mr. C. Richard Hall and talk over the matter of a public library. In seconding the motion, Ald. Elliott added to the committee Ald. Neill. The motion was carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

BOARD OF HEALTH HELD REGULAR MEETING TO-DAY

A meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning when several matters of minor importance were dealt with.

Those present were Dr. Burnham chairman; Dr. McNulty, Messrs. J. Edgar and J. Murty.

A letter was read from Ald. Turner calling attention to the odor in the north side of Hunter street, near the bridge over the river. On motion, the Medical Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector were instructed to remedy the trouble.

Mr. J. J. McBain appeared before the Board in regard to the instruction of the Board of Health to have the house at 460 George street connected with the sewer. Mr. McBain said the owner of the proprety, Mr Acton, of Toronto, intended erecting a new building and had authorized him to have a closet put in the yard in the meantime.

The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to investigate some complaints regarding closets on Weller street.

On motion the Medical Health Officer was instructed to ascertain, after May 15th, whether Mr. Renzetti has made sewer connections to his premises at 217 Charlotte st.

It was decided to notify Mr. J. J. McBain that if No. 460 George street, is used as a dwelling connection with the same must be made at once.

PASSENGERS ON I., B. & O. HAVE EXCITING EXPERIENCES

Lindsay, May 11.—The passengers who travel on the I. B. & O. have exciting adventures sometimes. The task of keeping a track in good shape up in the north country is no sinecure and the heavy rains in the spring cause numerous washouts. A week or so ago the passengers on one train had to take to handcars to get over one bad spot, and on Saturday last a wreck within two miles of Kinmount necessitated about a dozen travellers climbing on the tender of the engine to continue their journey.

ONE CAR DERAILED

The track was particularly bad in this spot and the train was steaming at a slow rate. Fifteen cars were attached to the engine, about a dozen passengers being in the one coach. Suddenly the fourth car from the engine jumped the track and in doing so broke for forward coupling, separating itself from the engine. The impetus from the cars in the rear pushed the wheels of the derailed car deep into the sand. The track was also torn up for a distance of about thirty yards. The remaining cars were not derailed but stopped with a sudden jolt that created a sudden panic among the occupants of the passenger car, which was at the rear.

RODE ON THE TENDER

When an examination was made it was discovered that the damages was comparatively slight. The car that had been derailed was loaded with ties, a shipment of which was being brought down from Tory Hill by Mr. Joseph Parkin. There were a number of passengers, however, who wanted to get to Kinmount to make connections with the Grand Trunk for Lindsay. Conductor Card, however was equal to the occasion. He suggested that the passengers ride down on the tender, and the idea was immediately accepted. Some twelve masculines crawled up onto the coal and water "waggon" and thoroughly enjoyed their two-mile trip to Kinmount.

TO TAKE UP IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

Trades and Labor Council Will Hold Session To-morrow Night—Will Consider Important Mattters

The regular monthly meeting of the Trades and Labour Council will be held to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, at eight o'clock sharp. Every member is requested to be present as important matters will come up for consideration. A delegate will be appointed to represent the local Council at the Labor Educational Association at Kingston on May 25th. Besides it is expected that the Carnegie Library question, the proposed permanent fire brigade and other municipal matters will be considered.

MANAGER BOXED YOUNG LAD'S EARS AND WAS FINED

Member of Well Known Local Concern in Police Court This Morning

An assault case was aired in the police court this morning, resulting in the defendant being fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $12.60. The assault arose over the refusal of a messenger boy to carry a parcel weighing 45 pounds from a certain manufacturing establishment to the C.P.R. station. A heated argument took place between the boy and the manager of the firm, finally culminating in the manager, as he himself put it, boxing the young fellow's ears. However, the boy claimed that his lip was badly swollen as a result of the blow he received.

His Worship said that another remedy might have been sought by the manager other than striking him, and he imposed the above fine.

Are Badly in Need of Being Cleaned up—What the Reporter Saw

Three dead cats.
200 tomato cans.
Seventy-five ash piles.
Thirty-nine brush piles.
Several hundred broken brick.
Fences in varying stages of repair.
A good many yards lying unmolested.

ALL OVER TOWN.

The above gives a summary of a few of the things a reporter noticed on his daily rounds in this good town of Lindsay. They are mentioned here by way of suggesting that it is about time people were doing something in the way of cleaning up their premises. For it is evident that this state of things exists in nearly every quarter of the town.—Lindsay Post.

FAREWELL DINNER GIVEN BY FRIENDS

Pleasant Evening at Home of Miss Effie McWhinnie Last Night

Last evening twelve of Mr. Ernie Brownscombe's young friends gathered at the home of Miss Effie McWhinnie, Harvey St., at her invitation, to say good-bye to Mr. Brownscombe, who left at noon to-day for Pembroke. Dinner was partaken of at 6.30 o'clock after which a pleasant evening was spent in music and games.

You will miss it if you don't see the Wilbor Stock Co. at the Opera House To-night.

BUCKET SHOPS DOWN AND OUT

And Montreal People are Bled to the Extent of $25,000

Montreal, May 11.—There has been a complete round-up of all the bucket shops doing business in Montreal, and this morning there was not a single bucket wire in operation in this city.

Late last week the two remaining bucket wires began to hang out distress signals, and when cheques failed to arrive from Cincinnati and Jersey City houses the local people saw the beginning of the end.

This morning of the patrons of the various wires were around looking for their money, but found nothing doing.

The buckets, it is estimated, have struck local people for over $25,000 in the last three weeks, and it looks now as if we had seen the last of them for some time.

Several correspondents here who have been tied up with the buckets, have arranged to go into the "legitimate" and do business with houses on the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange.

GAVE ADDRESS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Rev. J. R. Webb Gave Excellent Talk---Many Were Present

A splendid address was given at the YMCA. Sunday afternoon at the Men's meeting by Rev J R Webb. Mr. Webb drew his remarks from the incident of Uzzah touching the "ark while it was being taken back from Kirjathjearim to the children of Israel as is found in 1 Chron. 13. The speaker referred to the ark as a symbol of Christ and as Uzzah touched the ark in a way which was not right, so men touched Christ today in a way which was sinful and caused God's displeasure and anger. The first way mentioned was through profanity, which is so common today and which nevertheless is a terrible sin. The second was speaking in a patronizing way of Christ. Christ was either the Son of God and Divine, or else the greatest impostor that ever lived. He was not merely a good man as some men say. He was either the one or the other. The third was putting away the voice of God and the Holy Spirit. Postponing a decision. Leaving it to the last thing on earth to do. Fourth, the welcome hand touching Christ was the one of the repentant sinner who comes to God for forgiveness through Christ our Saviour.

Mr. Webb was listened to with much interest by everyone present.

Mr James Browne sang "O, what a change," in his usual effective manner.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my numerous customers for their much appreciated patronage at the "Delicatessen" and can recommend my successor, Mr. A. L. Talbot as worthy of a continuance of the same.

OBITUARY

ESTHER RODDY

The death occurred on Sunday, May 10, of Mrs. Esther Roddy, aged 64 years and wife of the late Samuel Roddy. During the past two months and a half the deceased has been feeling very poorly but she complained very little and her death came as a rude shock to the devoted relatives. Mrs. Roddy was born in Cavan township near Baileboro and moved to Ops about thirty years ago, settling on lot 8, concession 10. The late Mrs. Roddy was a lady possessing exceedingly fine qualities and was devoted to her family. There survive two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Cornell, Peterborough; and Mrs. Wesley Irvine, of Janetville; three sons, W. Roddy, of Cambray; Norman in Brandon, Man. and Edmund at home; also a sister, Miss Storey, at Uxbridge and a brother living in Baileboro. The remains will be interred on Tuesday, funeral services being held at two o'clock.—Lindsay Warder.

LENS GRINDER IS INSTALLED

Mr. A. A. Fowler, Optician Has One Now in His Office

Mr A A Fowler, optician with the Nugent Drug Co., has installed in his office an automatic lense grinder. It is the only one in this city, thus enabling this firm to grind all their lenses right on the premises without sending to Toronto. It is a decided improvement and will be much appreciated.

Ernest Hanna, aged 11, was drowned in Gage's Inlet at Hamilton.

MOCK TRIAL WAS MOST ENJOYABLE

Large Number at George Street Church Last Night--A Clever Performance

The "Missionary Mock Trial" held at George street Methodist Church last night in connection with the meeting of the Epworth League, was a highly successful event. Over two hundred were in attendance and were delighted with the function. Surprising ability was displayed by those taking part, the cross-examination and addresses of the lawyers being features. The cast of characters was as follows:

Judge—Dr. Middleton.
Crown Attorney—Mr. F. W. Bunton.
Asst. C.A.—Mr. F. W. Simpson.
Defence Lawyer—Mr. George Ingham.
Asst. D.L.—Mr. N. Allison.
Court Clerk) Court Crier—Mr. E. Sanderson.
Constable—Mr. Russell.
Prisoner—Miss Crafts.

WITNESSES.

1 Natooska (North American Indian.)
2 Magooshire Osawa (Japanese).
3 Mirambo (African.)
4 (Wing Yong) Chinese.
5 Krishna Pal (Hindu.)

Reporters—Mr. Lang and Mr. Fowler.

Scene—A Court Room.

A duet by Miss Mowry and Mr. Taylor was greatly enjoyed and added much to the pleasure of those present.

Great credit is due those who made the arrangements for the mock trial and to those taking part.

GRAND TRUNK REPRESENTED

At the Franco-British Exhibition, London, Eng.

It is a well known fact that at all the World's Fairs and International Exhibitions held in the past decade, the Grand Trunk has been most prominently represented with attractive displays, and in each case gold medals and diplomas have been their award. At the Franco-British Exhibition which is to be held at Shepherd's Bush, London, May to October this year, the Grand Trunk are not behind in their progressiveness and have erected a beautiful pavilion covering about 2000 square feet of space in a picturesque spot known as the French Court.

This structure follows in design the Renaissance style of architecture with an artistic pillared entrance. Over the entrance rises a group of statuary representing the Grand Trunk Railway System as "speed" with an electric star surmounting the head of the central figure emblematic of the "Star of Empire," and on each side of this figure, is represented in smaller figures the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, the central figure joining their hands, representing the spanning of the continent by the new National Transcontinental Railway. This allegorical group is a very imposing one and the idea is appropriate.

The interior of the building is arranged in a combination of color harmony of olive green and red. The scenic views of the Grand Trunk Railway as well as views of the summer tourists' districts and fishing and hunting resorts in Canada are beautifully portrayed by a series of bromide enlargements finished in a sepia tint and framed in a dull quartered oak. The photographic work has been executed by Mr. J. W. Swaine the well known landscape photographer who has excelled himself, if possible, in this collection. These pictures cover the walls to a distance of two feet from the ceiling and the entire interior has been set off by a beautiful frieze made up of grains and grasses from Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and the West. In this frieze are embedded specimens of Canadian fish and game, mounted in an attractive way, the whole forming a unique and pleasing effect.

In the centre of the room a pyramid has been erected on which is shown samples of the cereals of the Province of Ontario, as well as natural samples of fruit from the "Garden of Canada."

Animated moving picture machines, projecting fishing, hunting and railroad scenes, are other features on the floor space. Interesting and instructive literature has been specially prepared for distribution, and it is estimated that from fifteen to twenty million people will visit this exhibition during its lifetime. Canada and the Grand Trunk Railway System will secure a tremendous amount of publicity through this medium.

Among the special features on display in this building will be the two exceptionally fine moose heads, one the record head taken from the Province of Ontario, and the other a freak head that will attract a great deal of attention.

Mr H W Cummings, who until recently was General Passenger Agent of the Central Vermont Railway has been appointed to the position of Director of this exhibit.

THREW KISS TO CHIEF ROSZEL

Prisoner on Leaving the Court To-day Bade Him a Long Farewell

Wm. Carradise, was charged with being drunk in a public place at the police court this morning. Carradise belongs to Galt but came here yesterday from Port Hope.

"I was sick and took a little to make me feel better" he said this morning.

"Well, if you will go right back to Galt you may go," said His Worship.

Carradise promised to leave at once and as he left the courtroom he threw a parting kiss to Chief Roszel.

TORONTO STAR'S STORY OF EDMUNDS-MULDOON BOUT

The Toronto Star has the following interesting account of the Edmunds-Muldoon wrestling match at the Labor Temple, Toronto, Saturday night.

With his left arm pinned safely in a hammer-lock, and his body enclosed in a punishing scissors hold, Young Muldoon, the New York lightweight wrestler, cried quits in the final fall of his match at the Labor Temple with Art Edmunds, of Toronto, on Saturday night, and Referee Dunn stopped the match and awarded the victory to the Pocket Hercules.

With the hold Edmunds had on him Muldoon took the wise course when he cried quits and gave up the fall. Edmunds had him helpless, and was slowly forcing Muldoon's arm to the breaking point. He could have broken the limb a moment before Muldoon gave up but magnanimously preferred to give his opponent a chance to quit instead of breaking the arm.

If Edmunds had broken Muldoon's arm he would have been within his rights, and the crowd would have been with him to a man, too, for the New Yorker fully lived up to his reputation as a rough customer. He roughed it up all the way. Edmunds took the punishment gamely, but once or twice when the New Yorker banged him a little too strenuously, went back at him and gave him as good as he got.

LIVELY ALL THE WAY.

It was a lively go all the way. When Edmunds got the threatening hold upon Muldoon the score stood a fall each.

Muldoon got the first fall in 18 1-2 minutes. He went right at Edmunds and kept him on the defensive almost all the way. Edmunds foxily let the New Yorker do all the work. Muldoon stored away at Edmunds for 10 minutes, but the Pocket Hercules broke every hold. Then the New Yorker in exasperation commenced to maul his opponent, but Edmunds only grinned, and played safe.

Muldoon was plainly tired when he got the first fall, and Edmunds went right at him as soon as they came together again. Muldoon came back fast, but Edmunds wore him down, and after a couple of mixups, in which both went off the mat into the audience, and continued to struggle there until pulled apart. Edmunds got an arm and scissors hold and pinned him. The time was 11 minutes.

THE FINAL FALL.

Then came the final go, and it was an even break, with both men toiling desperately until at the end of nine minutes, when Edmunds got the hammerlock and scissors, which left Muldoon helpless.

Muldoon said afterwards, and the crowd agrees, that his only course was to quit rather than have his arm broken.

"It is the first time in 14 years wrestling my arm was ever held in a hammerlock I could not break," declared Muldoon, and he immediately posted a forfeit to meet Edmunds anywhere.

WANTS ANOTHER GO.

"I understand Edmunds is going to New York," he said. "Well, I'll meet him there, here, or anywhere," and he paid a tribute to the fairness of William Dunn, the ex-amateur champion welterweight of Canada, who refereed.

Edmunds says he will give Muldoon another match here or in New York.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

LEAGUE OPENS ON SATURDAY

Arrangements Made for Opening of Intermediate Baseball Season

Arrangements for the opening of the intermediate baseball league were made at a meeting of the executive at the YMCA last night. The league opens on Saturday when the Strathconas meet the Lakeviews at two o'clock and the TAs stack up against the Karnots in the second game. It was decided last night that all the teams must pay in the guarantee of $2.00 each on or before Friday night of this week. This is very important and none of the clubs should overlook it. Arrangements were also made to have an official scorer at each game in order that a record may be kept for the season.

Four strong teams will go on the diamond on Saturday and the two games should be hummers. Umpires have not yet been decided upon but arrangements are being made to have competent officials for all games.

THE COLTS WIN ANOTHER GAME

Munro's Bowlers Defeated Baker's Picks Last Night by a Comfortable Margin

The unbeaten Munro's Colts added another scalp to their belts last night, when they defeated Sam Baker's Picks by the comfortable margin of 214 pins. The game was played at the Majestic Alleys, Water street, and the Colts had something to spare the three times they were up. Kirn had the best total of the night, 369, with MacRae second with 361. Huston had his famous Otonabee curve working overtime in the second game and put in the best single score of the match, 135. For this he received a box of cigars, presented by the proprietor of the alleys, Mr. Smythe. Herb. Martin's hook ball had as many curves as a chorus girl and the result was a score far below his usual average. Sam Baker had a new one—the "Merry Widow" bender, but he didn't have the necessary control. It simply waltzed right up to the king pin and then went into the gutter. Little was the best of the Picks. The teams and scores were as follows;—

MUNRO'S COLTS.

Munro...	120	98	108—326
Kirn...	125	112	132—369
Huston...	93	135	116—344
MacRae...	108	124	129—361
Martin...	113	93	85—291
	559	562	570 1691

BAKER'S PICKS.

Baker...	82	102	103—287
Little...	99	120	134—353
McCarrol...	124	102	92—318
Fowler...	90	94	94—278
Dobbin...	84	96	61—241
	474	514	484 1477

Majority for Munro's Colts—214 pins.

The Colts are now looking for other victims.

THE RING

London, May 11.—A cablegram received there from Sydney says that Tommy Burns, the heavyweight champion, has accepted an offer of $15,000 to visit Sydney, and that it is expected he will take part in three fights while the United States battleships are at Sydney next August. Burns' representative in London says the champion has not accepted the offer to visit Sydney. He agreed to go if he was given $15,000 for one fight, but the Sydney club demanded three contests for this amount, which Burns declined.

BASEBALL

The good work of Fred Hickey, the Park Nine pitcher in last Saturday's game against Wellingtons, has already drawn the attention of some of some of the minor league player scouts. An agent of the Syracuse team has been in the city all week trying to get Hickey to sign for the New York State team.

Hickey has also received offers from the Auburn team, New York State League, and Geneva, of the Empire State League.

Hickey is showing great form at present and should undoubtedly make good in faster company.—Toronto Star.

ST. CATHERINES WALK POSTPONED

The six days' walk at St. Catharines has been postponed for two weeks, according to Mr. Geo. Stevens. The reason for the postponement of the race is because the local walkers of St. Catharines have not had enough notice of the race to get into trim for it.

The walk when held will only be open to walkers of the Dominion.

LORD CROMER ON GORDON.

Man Who Ruled Egypt Criticizes Hero of Khartoum.

Lord Cromer has some very striking things to say about General Gordon in his handbook on Egypt.

"No one who has read General Gordon's 'Journals,' with their extraordinary attacks on all the officials in Egypt, especially Lord Cromer—or Sir Evelyn Baring as he then was—can have avoided wondering what Lord Cromer thought of Gordon," writes The London Daily Chronicle. "Mr. Gladstone as we all know, was once asked the question, and refused to be drawn. All he would say was that General Gordon was a 'hero of heroes.' So he undoubtedly was. But heroes are often 'kittle cattle to deal with'; and General Gordon seems to have been no exception. Lord Cromer does every credit to the loftiness of Gordon's motives, and the heroism of his death. But he reveals by the process of simple narrative the difficulty he experienced in dealing with a man who changed his mind several times a day, and recorded every change in successive telegrams."

Lord Cromer shows in detail the changes of mind to which Gordon was liable, and thereby justifies his own opinion that the General was not a suitable agent for the Government's purpose. Yet no one better appreciated than Lord Cromer the heroism of the man whose kaleidoscopic changes of plan caused him so much embarrassment.

"In the course of this narrative.," writes Lord Cromer, "I have alluded to General Gordon's numerous inconsistencies. I have pointed out errors of judgment with which he may justly be charged. I have dwelt on defects of character which unsuited him for the conduct of political affairs. But when all this has been said, how grandly the character of the man comes out in the final scene of the Soudan tragedy. History has recorded few incidents more calculated to strike the imagination than that presented by this brave man, who, strong in the faith which sustained him, stood undismayed amidst dangers which might well have appalled the stoutest heart. Hordes of savage fanatics surged around him. Shot and shell poured into the town which he was defending against fearful odds.

"Starvation stared him in the face. The soldiers had to eat dogs, donkeys, skins of animals, gum, and palm fibre, and famine prevailed. The soldiers stood on the fortifications like pieces of wood. The civilians were even worse off. Many died of hunger, and corpses filled the streets—no one had even the energy to bury them.

"Treachery and internal dissension threatened him from within, whilst a waste of burning African desert separated him from the outward help which his countrymen, albeit tardily, were straining every nerve to afford," continues Lord Cromer. "All the anxiety he had undergone had gradually turned his hair to silvery white. 'Yet,' said an eye-witness, 'in spite of all this danger by which he was surrounded, Gordon Pasha had no fear.' 'Go,' he said, 'tell all the people in Khartoum that Gordon fears nothing for God has created him without fear.' Nor was this an idle boast. General Gordon did not know what the word fear meant. Death had no terrors for him. 'I would,' he wrote to his sister, 'that all could look on death as a cheerful friend who takes us from a world of trial to our true home.'

"Many a man before General Gordon has laid down his life at the call of duty. Many a man, too, has striven to regard death as a glad relief from pain, sorrow and suffering. But no soldier about to lead a forlorn hope, no Christian martyr tied to the stake or thrown to the wild beasts of Ancient Rome, ever faced death with more unconcern than General Gordon. His faith was sublime. Strong in that faith he could meet the savage who plunged a spear into his breast with a 'gesture of scorn,' and with the sure and certain hope of immortality which had been promised to him by the Master in whose footsteps he had endeavored to follow.

"General Gordon died nobly, but, by 'his own admission,' he disobeyed his instructions. 'Like Lord Lawrence,' he wrote to his sister, 'I have tried to do my duty.' But what is 'duty?'" asks The Chronicle. "Is it compatible with disobedience to written instructions? Lord Cromer thinks not."

Labor In Australia.

"Australia could support a population of fifty millions, but she wants that population to be white," was the remark of Mr. William Watson, of Sydney, recently at Montreal.

"Australia," said Mr. Watson, "was well called the paradise of the workingman—eight hours' work, eight hours' play, eight hours' sleep. That was the condition. Holidays at pleasure; everything stopped for a horse race—idyllic conditions, from the workingman's point of view.

"But the country suffered. The workingman did not want anybody else to poach upon his preserves. He passed laws—he obtained the supreme political power for years, preventing immigration into the country from any quarter. Of course, he always was strong against Asiatic labor, and even hedged about Kanaka labor so strictly that it was almost impossible to work the sugar plantations, which promised to become a great and profitable industry.

"The other elements, alarmed at the power of labor, and the restrictions which it sought to place upon development, combined, and labor was defeated at the polls. After that, we began to invite immigrants, and at present our agent in London is influencing the very people we want—British people with some means—people who will settle, make good citizens—people of intelligence."

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realize the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

THE CORNER STONE WAS TRULY LAID

Interesting Ceremony at Hastings --Rural Dean Langfeldt Was Present

Special to the Review.

Hastings, May 11.—The corner stone of the new Anglican church here was well and truly laid this afternoon at four o'clock by Mr. Henry Johnston, one of Hastings' most prominent citizens. The ceremony was witnessed by several hundred spectators, and was of a most interesting nature. Among those present were Bishop Reeve, Assistant Bishop of Toronto; Rural Dean Langfeldt, of Peterborough and Rev. E. A. Pickford, of Norwood. Addresses were given by Bishop Reeve and Rural Dean Langfeldt. The sum of $45 was placed on the collection plate on the corner stone.

The new church will be built of brick with stone foundation and spacious basement. It will be a handsome edifice and a credit to St. George's congregation and the energetic pastor, Rev. Wm. Burns.

SESSION WAS A SHORT ONE

Board of Works Met Last Night Before Council Meeting

A meeting of the Board of Works was held last night preliminary to the council meeting. Those present were Alderman Phelan (Chairman) Mayor Rush, Aldermen Tovey, McIntyre, Elliott, Morgan and Buller.

A letter was read from T. A. S. Hay, city engineer, saying that the bridge over the Dickson dam was in bad condition and should be abandoned, and that he had put up warning notices. There was a discussion regarding the drain at Tremaine's on Downie street. The matter was left with the chairman and Engineer.

E. P. Bowen was found guilty of manslaughter at Vancouver for killing a Hindu while drunk.

"EMPRESS" TO BE BROUGHT TO YOUNG'S POINT TO-MORROW

Mr. Frank Young in the City To-day -- Toronto Stoney Lake Cottagers Will Have Special Car to Lakefield on 22nd inst.—Many Excursions Booked for The Season.

The Stoney Lake steamers are beginning to move and a busy season is anticipated. Mr. Frank Young, of Young's Point is in the city today He expects to go to Bobcaygeon this evening where he will take charge of the steamer Empress. He will bring it around to the point tomorrow. The steamer Majestic has been busy towing stone from Frody's Quarry on Eel's Creek, ever since navigation opened. The stone is to be used in the building of the new Roman Catholic church in this city. The steamer Stoney Lake will make her first trip on Thursday to Burleigh Falls.

Mr. Young stated that the Stoney Lake cottagers were chartering a special car to come to Lakefield on the 22nd of this month. The "Stoney Lake" will meet them on their arrival and take them to their different cottages.

Mr. Young has a number of excursions booked for the season. Among them will be the Auburn Sunday School, having the "Stoney Lake" chartered for July 1st, and St. Luke's Bible Class have the "Empress" for the same day.

Mr. F. J. Goselin's name appears on both lists. He signed the petition against the building of the abbatoir after he had given the matter further consideration.

PRESENTED WITH HANDSOME RING

Miss Howson Honored by Epworth League of Mark St. Church

Miss Howson, who has been prominently identified with the Mark St. Epworth League was presented with a handsome ring and an address by the League last night. She is leaving about June 1st for Clifton Springs, to become a nurse in training. The address was read by Miss Effie Fowler and the presentation was made by Miss Clara Dodds. The address was as follows:

Dear Miss Howson:

We, as a League, feel that we cannot allow you to leave us without showing you, in some way, how we have enjoyed and been benefitted by your stay among us.

Although the time had been short we have learned many lessons from your noble Christian character. We would ask you to accept this ring as a slight token of remembrance and we pray that God's blessing may rest upon you in your new field of labor.

Signed on behalf of Mark Street Epworth League,

MISS E. FOWLER,
MISS C. DODDS.

Some Happenings of Interest--- Personal Pointers

Special to the Review

Bethel, Emily, May 12—Owing to the spring showers last week the farmers were unable to continue the cultivation of the land. However, the sun shines brightly once more, and they are again busily at the tillage.

We are pleased to learn of the recovery of Mr. Harry McElwain, who was very ill.

Miss Bertha Brown of Orillia is the guest of her aunt, Mrs R. Guthrie

Mr George Calvert is at present suffering from a fever attack of rheumatism. We hope he may soon be in his usual good health again.

Mr Seyward Switzer is at present engaged at the erection of his new house.

Mrs Henderson and Mr. Robert Henderson were in Port Hope last week attending the funeral of Mrs. Henderson's brother.

Messrs. George and Charlie Mills have purchased another farm on the 5th concession of Emily.

The East Emily cheese factory opened last Monday. There is not a great quantity of milk being delivered at present but no doubt it will increase in the future.

ADDED FOURTH BARBER CHAIR

Mr. F. B. Patterson Increasing His Tonsorial Facilities---Has Bought Out Tobacco Business

Mr. F. B. Patterson has added another chair to his barber shop — the Palace — on George street, and has secured the services of Mr. W. Lake, a well-known local barber. He has now four chairs in the shop, which is modernly equipped in every particular.

He has also purchased the tobacco business in connection with the shop. This was formerly controlled by Mr. M. Pappas.

LEAVING FOR THE COBALT

Mr. D. W. Porter, the late proprietor of Porter's Delicatessen, is leaving for the Cobalt on the 27th of this month, having disposed of his grocery and meat business to Mr. A. L. Talbot.

Mr. Porter has important business interests in the Silver City and will remain there during the summer.

The corner stone of the new Catholic school in Belleville was laid by Archbishop Gauthier.

MR. TALBOT HAS BOUGHT OUT THE "DELICATESSEN"

Has Purchased Business Formerly Conducted by Mr. D. W. Porter- Should Have Large Patronage

Mr. D. W. Porter has sold out his Delicatessen to Mr. A. L. Talbot, who will in the future conduct the business. It will be Mr. Talbot's aim to give the public the most satisfactory service possible, and he will conduct a thoroughly modern business, paying strict attention to both the grocery and meat departments of the store.

As manager of the meat department he has retained the services of Mr. Goselin, one of the best butchers in the city, and Mr. Talbot will personally look after the grocery department.

Improvements of an extensive character have been recently made to the premises and a complete stock of fresh meats and groceries have been laid in. Mr. Talbot should get a substantial share of the public patronage.

Kingston Paper Tells of Good Work of Elmer Davis

The Kingston Whig says:

The local Y.M.C.A. is being brought into prominence throughout Ontario by reason of Elmer Davis, whose addresses on the business administration of the Young Men's Christian Association are gaining wide spread notice. Mr. Davis is chairman of the the Finance Committee of the Y.M.C.A. here, and along with the other members of the board is revolutionizing the effectiveness of the institution. At the recent convention in Stratford, of the Province of Ontario and Quebec, Mr. Davis gave the address of the convention. He was largely instrumental in booming the Port Hope campaign, which was most successful in aiding the work there. He is now to address the business men of Peterborough on May 18th. R. B. Nellis, the general secretary, is fortunate in having on the board as representative and influential a body of business men as can be found in Canada.

RECEPTION TO YOUNG PEOPLE

A delightful reception and banquet were tendered Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cavanah at the Cavanah House last night on their return from their honeymoon trip. The affair at which 100 guests were present was held in the dining room of the hotel.

The tables were prettily decorated with carnations and American beauty roses.

Mr. Ross McKay acted as toastmaster and proposed the health of the bride and groom.

A pleasing musical programme was rendered at the conclusion of the banquet, consisting of songs by Miss Alta Cavanah and Messrs. T. Payton, Chas. Cavanah and Ernest Saunders.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Scott, London, Eng., and Mr. and Mrs. John Farrish, Toronto.

SCAFFOLD FELL; MR. GRAHAM HURT

Ex-Alderman Met With Painful Accident While at Work Yesterday

Ex-Ald. Jas. Graham, of Dublin st., met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon, while assisting in some plumbing operations at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Fitzgerald, Ashburnham. Mr. Graham was standing on a small board scaffold, when it gave way with him and he fell to the ground breaking a lower rib.

Dr. Burnham was called in to attend his injuries, and after receiving medical attendance Mr. Graham was removed to his home in a hack.

EXPORTS ARE FALLING OFF

Owing to the Increase in Home Consumption

The Montreal Trade Bulletin, commenting on the falling off in exports to Great Britain in several lines of Canadian agricultural products says;

"It has been stated that the increase in our home consumption has accounted for the falling off in the above exports. That may be partly true but the main reason is we are being undersold, which should not be."

The Trade Bulletin surely does not think that Canadians will ship produce abroad when it can be sold to greater profit at home, or expect us to sell regardless of profit or loss. In this connection we note in the 1907 report of the Professor of Dairy Husbandry, at Guelph, that in 1906 and 1907 the financial returns from butter shipped to London, England, were not equal to those obtained for similar butter sold on local markets and Siberian and other butter has actually been imported from England for consumption in Canada. Canada, or, at least, Older Canada is relatively less of a farming country than it once was. Manufacturing and other industries now bulk proportionately larger in the scale, and, of course an industrial population requires to be fed. A considerable share of our agricultural produce now goes to support an artisan and laboring army at home, instead of abroad. Canadian agriculture is doing very well though there certainly is room for vast extension yet. When the country's educational systems are remodelled and the intelligent youth of Canada is educated for rather than from the farm, and agriculture rises to its proper place, in popular favor, our exports of agricultural products may again increase. Canada can hold her own in economy of production but so long as home markets absorb our produce, at tempting prices, we shall have small concern about exports.—Farmers' Advocate.

FAMOUS SHOWMAN TALKS.

How King Edward Was Shewn a Whitewashed Elephant.

Few men can tell a more interesting life story than Lord George Sanger, the famous London showman, who has just announced his retirement from the Showmen's Guild, of which he has been president for eighteen years.

"My father," he says, "was a Wiltshire ploughboy, but having no fancy for the life he tied his horses' heads together one day and leaving them at the roadside he walked to London. At London Bridge he was seized by a press-gang, and he served under Lord Nelson on His Majesty's ship Victory. Indeed, he trod the very quarterdeck on which Nelson fell at Trafalgar.

"On leaving the navy, after serving for over ten years, my father carried a peepshow on his shoulders, and he used to set it on trestles in villages and the boys paid pennies to peep at the pictures. He afterward joined hands with a man named Tom Gregory, an old soldier who had been at Waterloo, and they tramped the country together."

Mr. Sanger is practically a self-educated as well as self-made man. He went to school one day, and got the cane for it. "And I deserved it," he says. "I went home to my mother crying. She said, 'Don't mind, George, you shan't go back any more.' And mother kept her word. I received most of my education out of the Bible lessons at home. We loved our Bible and we got much good from it."

Of the showmen of to-day — and there are some 70,000 moving about— Mr. Sanger has the highest opinion. These men and women are recruited from all professions, and he defies any man to point out a terrible crime which was committed by a van dweller or showman. In the old days, Mr. Sanger confesses, their morals and character were not so good as they are to-day. But it must be remembered that the old country folk regarded them years ago as being aliens, certainly not Englishmen. They were liable to be insulted and abused by hooligan villagers, who made war upon their goods and chattels. The showman had a great deal to make them bad—a bad example was set them, and unfortunately evil followed in their steps. Since those early days showmen have certainly progressed with the times.

In the past they were forced to fight some most oppressive laws, and Mr. Sanger recalls the days when their caravans were liable to be invaded at six o'clock in the morning by ploughboys in the guise of policemen, who could violate their homes with impunity.

Concerning the early fairs which he attended, Mr. Sanger says that in many cases they were held on a Monday and the showmen, with their vans, often had to remain outside the towns and villages on Sundays. "As soon as twelve o'clock struck there was a helter-skelter race to get to the ground, and, of course, it was a case of first come first served. I have known opposition showmen block up one another's wheels and put stones in the roadway and to resort to other mean dodges in order to hinder their progress.

"Among the old-timers," continued the veteran showman, "there were some very wealthy men. Chief of them was Richardson, although he had been a warkhouse boy; he left a large sum of money toward the building of a church. Mr. George Wombwell was another wealthy man, and no one gave more to charity than he did. Yet these men were travelers."

Perhaps one of the best stories which Mr. Sanger tells is of the present King, who, when Prince of Wales, visited a Sanger pantomine, in which a white elephant appeared. "It really is white, I suppose?" said the prince, as he was being conducted "behind" the scenes to get a closer view. "Your Royal Highness," replied the showman, dropping his voice, "we may deceive the public sometimes, but we must not lie to our prince. We whitewash it twice a day!"

Diabolical Deed of Drunken Man.

Brockville, May 2.—A story of vile brutality to animals comes from the rural district across the river from here. Going home drunk, a farmer went out to feed his young stock, and, finding that ten calves, which he had been fattening to sell, did not eat fast enough, he drew a knife and cut their throats. Then, continuing in his drunken rage, he started to cut the throats of his horses. The first animal he slashed at kicked him with both feet, and he was thrown back upon the floor with sufficient force to render him unconscious. On recovering he came to a speedy realization of what he had done.

British Beat All Records.

Glasgow, May 2.—It is unofficially reported that the new cruiser Indomitable, which is now undergoing her speed trials, has beaten all records, making 28 knots over a measure mile on the Clyde and 26 1-4 knots in the continuous steaming trial. The Indomitable is fitted with turbines and her contract speed is only 25 knots. She is 17,250 tons and 530 feet in length.

PHONES—DRY GOODS, 145K DRESSMAKING 145L

WILL BE DOUBLE TRACK FROM MONTREAL TO PETERBOROUGH

Victoria Harbor to be C.P.R.'s Chief Grain Port—A Great Grain Highway to the Sea-board—One Locomotive Will Haul 62 Cars.

That the Minister of Public Works has as good as promised that Victoria Harbor shall be prepared by his department for the position of the Canadian Pacific's chief grain port on Georgian Bay the plans of that company looking to a great grain route from the lakes to Montreal, becomes of paramount interest to the people of this town.

At Victoria Harbor the shore plans of the CPR are of great magnitude as the plans of the company at that point provide for an elevator of a capacity of ten million bushels, the same to be constructed in five units of two million bushels per unit The handling capacity of the projected plant will be about 60,000 bushels per hour or the exact amount of one train load over this new railway, which the company will have completed to the waters of the Georgian Bay.

As was pointed out the other evening by the Hon. Mr. Pugsley, when the system is complete from the St. Lawrence to Victoria Harbor one locomotive will be able to haul no less than 62 carloads of grain at the rate of about ten miles an hour. which at 1300 bushes a car, will foot up a total quantity of 80,000 bushels. There will be a double track from Montreal to Peterborough and a single track for the time being from Peterborough to Victoria Harbor.

There will be as a matter of fact, three sections. From Montreal to Smith's Falls there is a distance of 129 miles, from Smith's Falls to Peterborough 133 miles, and from Peterborough to Victoria Harbor a further distance of 97 miles making 359 miles ais all from the St. Lawrence to the Great Lakes in almost an air line. On the eastern section the grading is already completed to about 50 miles from Smith's Falls eastward to Finch, and the entire section to Vaudreuil will be finished early in the coming spring. Next year the double tracking of the Smith's Falls and Peterborough section will be started and the Peterborough and Victoria Harbor stretch also, supposing the government work on the harbor is sufficiently advanced to admit of active work being carried on on the railway.

This is the great highway which the CPR is preparing in order to divert the 16,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain which went to the sea last season via Buffalo. Although for the present the western section of 97 miles will be a single track it is estimated that with sufficeint sidings ten trains per day of sixty cars each can be moved eastward. From Peterborough westward the new road is being constructed under the name of the Georgian Bay and Seaboard Railway. Then the far western section of the company's grain route will constitute the newly double tracked road from Fort William to Winnipeg which is to be completed this year. With splendid equipment on the lakes the CPR. hopes to do for Canada what the Illinois Central is doing for the port of New Orleans.—Lindsay Post.

Y.W.C.A. HAVE JUST CLOSED A YEAR OF GREAT PROGRESS

Annual Meeting of Association Last Evening—Encouraging Reports Presented—Mortgage Has Been Reduced to $4,000—Excellent Address by Mrs. Parker of Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association was held last evening and passed off most successfully. The reports presented were encouraging, the keynote of the whole proceedings being one of progress and thankfulness for all the blessings vouchsafed the association during the year. The members of the board must indeed feel grateful for the grand success that has attended their efforts and start the new year with a hope that even greater things may be accomplished.

The features of last night's meeting was the address by Mrs. Parker, of Toronto, and the paper on "Domestic Science in relation to house hold affairs."

The chair was occupied by Mrs. Walter Roger, and in her opening remarks said that the Association had great reason for thankfulness. They had been marvellously helped. The immensity of work in this city to do among young women calls for the earnest co-operation of every member. Preceding Mrs. Roger's remarks Rev. Robt. Pogue conducted the devotional exercises after which a well rendered vocal solo was given by Miss Sanderson.

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR 1907—1908

In presenting this, the seventeenth annual report of the Board of the Young Women's Christian Association of Peterborough, it is satisfactory to note the general good attendance of the members. There have been 10 regular meetings with an average attendance of 14. All matters brought before the board have received the thoughtful attention of its members, the more important ones evoking much discussion which has been carried on in a keen broad-minded manner thereby enabling the members to come to an unbiassed decision in the matter on hand.

We regret that Mrs. Dennistoun and Mrs. Williamson, having left town and Mrs. Morris on account of illness, have been obliged to sever their connection with the board.

Our several committees have had many and serious difficulties to contend with and in this year of financial depression it would seem that the finance committee was more deserving than others of our recognition and gratitude but when we consider how ably supported it has been by the energetic work and business ability of the members of the 'House' and "Physical Culture" committees we feel that the honors must be divided. These departments have not depleted, but on the contrary have added to the coffers of the treasurer.

The "Domestic Science" committee has worked under most trying circumstances but nevertheless has made a most creditable showing, being in advance of last year. In the next year we look for great results.

The large expenditure entailed by the public department of this institution is not generally understood. The total expenses of this department have amounted, during the year 1907-08 to the sum of $1957.27. This large amount has been met and a balance of $89.82 left, which, however, we regret to say, has been swallowed up by the shortcomings of the previous year. The problem of meeting this large expenditure falls principally on the finance committee and we, as loyal members of the board, owe that committee our never failing support.

There is another committee which can only do efficient work when backed up by the conscientious efforts of every member of the Association, and that is the Religious Committee, and we would urge all members to lose neither time nor opportunity in extending this work.

The statement of the mortgage fund requires no comment. We would extend our gratitude to those, who, by their arduous labor and generous contributions have thus relieved the Board.

On the recommendation of Miss Haycock, the Board has placed a fire escape on the north end of the building.

Uniform prices have been placed on the different rooms which the Board has decided to rent to Societies wishing to hold meetings in the building, and upon class rooms for teaching purposes.

On October 28th an important change was made in the pre-existing arrangements between the Board and the House Committee whereby the relations between these two departments was placed on a practical business basis.

On January 29th the day of the monthly Board meeting was changed from the last Monday to the last Tuesday in the month.

The paid staff for 1907-08 has consisted of:

Miss Maynard, General Secretary.

Miss Coventry, Physical Directress.

Miss Binney, Musical Assistant to Miss Coventry.

Miss Elliott, Domestic Science Teacher.

Miss Haycock, Superintendent of Boarding House.

Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Creasman, Miss Best, Mrs. Miss Noble, Mr. Sheriff Hall, Dr. Greer and Mr. McCann, have conducted classes for the benefit of the Association and our sincere thanks are due them.

We would also thank the press for their never failing courtesies.

On March 31st, we received the resignation of our General Secretary, and the Board wishes to express its regret that Miss Maynard is about to sever her connection with the Peterborough Association.

MAUD E. STEVENSON,
Sec. of Board.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

Miss A. Maynard, secretary of the Association, presented her report, which was of a very encouraging nature, showing that splendid work had been done during the year. A Sunday afternoon Bible class, conducted by Miss Best, was begun after a visit from the Rev. Elmore Harris, who held a successful Bible study rally. Mrs. Morrow conducted the Sunday morning Sunday school class. Since February, Sheriff Hall has been most successful in leading the Bible study on the first epistle of St. Peter. In the educational department classes were held in English, Literature, Physical Culture, Home Nursing and Domestic Science. Sheriff Hall conducted the English Literature, the subjects chosen being the lives of the "Brontes" and their works, and Ruskin's "Sesame." Dr. Greer conducted a course of lectures on home nursing and the practical application of the roller bandage, which have been most interesting and instructive. Miss Coventry has successfully conducted the physical culture classes. This department of the work has been a feature of the Association. Classes in Domestic Science were conducted by Miss Elliott. Two classes in arithmetic and writing are by Miss Baur, the other by Miss Noble. A small shirt waist class was conducted by Miss Armstrong. The employment bureau has been a source of help to a large number of girls, assisting them to get positions. The social and musical committees have both done very efficient work. A choral club, under Mr. McCann, has been started in connection with the musical department. The reading room is in constant use and is furnished with five daily and two weekly papers, and three monthly magazines. The library contains nearly 400 volumes and is well assured. The senior membership for the year is 178 and the junior membership, 50, making a total membership of 228.

In addition to the departments already described there has again been the daily routine of office work, with its endless details and countless demands upon the physical strength and best wisdom, and as truly here as in any department of our work, the opportunity afforded to serve by love."

At present we have 43 in the home and the average number has been 40. The total number of transients was 82; number of meals served to non-residents 1329; during the year it has been our pleasure to entertain Mrs. Kilgour, President of the Dominion Council, and Mrs. Brown, Corresponding Secretary. Once a month we invite one of the ministers and his wife to tea. Our convenor, Mrs. Walsh, has helped very materially toward the home furnishings. We are also grateful to Mrs. Waddell and Mrs. Wood for their acceptable gifts.

Respectfully submitted,

K. H. HAYCOCK,
Supt. Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Scott moved the adoption of the report and Miss A. Weir seconded it.

TWO PORTRAITS PRESENTED

Two handsome portraits, one of the late Mrs. Geo. A. Cox and the other of Mrs. Walsh, were presented to the Association last evening, Mrs. Boucher making the presentation. In doing so she referred to the liberality of the late Mrs. Cox and the great interest she manifested in the work of the Y. W. C. A., Likewise, Mrs. Walsh was always working to further the aims of the Association and it was largely through her efforts in collecting that the mortgage had been reduced to what it is now.

A vocal solo by Mr. Cutting was then much enjoyed.

MRS. BURNETT'S PAPER

Mrs. Burnett's paper on "Domestic Science in Relation to Household Affairs," was a most comprehensive and instructive one, dealing with the subject in detail, and giving to those present a thorough grasp of domestic science in its various phases, showing the advantages one had who had studied it over one who had not.

Messrs Robt. Fair, B. F. Ackerman and John Crane, of the Board of Education, and Inspector Mowat were present. At the conclusion of the reading of Mrs. Burnett's paper, Mr. Robt. Fair and Inspector Mowat complimented the writer of it and referred to the importance of domestic science, expressing a hope that the time was not far off when it would be introduced into the local schools.

An instrumental duet was then given by the Misses Gladman in an excellent manner.

MRS. PARKER'S ADDRESS

Mrs. Parker, of Toronto, who has for many years engaged in Y. W. C.A. work in that city is an interesting speaker and her address last evening was followed with the best of attention by all present. She has a charming personality and her excellent manner of delivery could not but please and interest all fortunate enough to hear her. Commencing, she referred to the power and influence of a woman. All through the ages, woman has taken an important part. The world could not exist without her The aim of the Young Women's Christian Association was to bring young girls into its membership. Each woman that joins learns something of Christ's spirit of self sacrifice. The Association interests all classes of women in one purpose, that of lifting them up to the highest ideals of womanhood.

Fifty years ago a little band of women met in the city of London and established the first home. Eighteen years ago the first Association was opened in the United States, followed a short while after with the opening of one in Canada. Now there are twenty-six city and twenty-six college Associations in the Dominion. It is the aim of the Association to provide suitable homes for young girls who are starting out in the world. In conclusion, the speaker urged every woman present to join the Y.W.C.A. She took occasion to congratulate the Board on their successful year. She would return to Toronto, feeling encouraged at the splendid results of the work being carried on in this city.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Burnette, Mrs. Nicholls making the motion and Mrs. Kilgour seconding it.

The meeting closed with the Doxology, after which refreshments were served.

BUY CASEY MOUNTAIN SHARES

IN THE

Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Development Company, Limited.

Chartered by the Ontario Government.

Authorized Capital - - - $250,000.00

Par Value of Shares Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable, $1.00

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

PRESIDENT—R G. Williamson, Toronto, Ont., (formerly of Peterborough, Ont.) VICE-PRESIDENT—James Thompson, Havelock, Ont. SEC'Y-TREASURER—Dr. H. A. Wood, Peterborough. SUPERINTENDENT—D. Williamson, Halleybury, Ont.; D. A. Reid, Brandon, Man.

HEAD OFFICE - - - Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Why you should buy Casey Mountain shares;

Casey Mountain shares are fully paid-up and non assessable.

The Casey Mountain Mining Company has a large area, which is a regular net work of silver bearing veins that will go down for thousands of feet.

Casey Mountain has the goods in unlimited quantities sufficient to last for generations.

Casey Mountain estimates that they have a silver bearing vein every 100 feet across the entire property, not counting cross-veins that will be encountered with underground development, and have uncovered 12 to date varying in width from 16 in. to 8 feet.

Casey Mountain is a mining proposition (not a stock speculation) and has been developed continuously during the past ten months, over 300 feet of underground work had been done, and one of the greatest ore bodies encountered that has yet been struck in the district, being 16 feet wide.

Casey Mountain Mines are situate on the adjoining lot to a property that according to good authority was sold last year for one million dollars, and whose shares are being sold at $7.00 each.

Casey Mountain is only capitalized at $250,000.00, a very important point to be considered in a Mining Company, and to give a comparison of our capitalisation and a Company capitalized at two and one-half million dollars, that is, paying a dividend at a rate of 12 per cent per cent. per annum to its shareholders, which is equal to $300,000.00 on the total capitalisation; this amount of cash would mean 120 per cent. to Casey Mountain Shareholders. This point is worthy of great consideration for those investing in mining stock.

DIVIDENDS PAID BY COBALT MINING COMPANIES

Buffalo Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid, during 1907	$ 81,000 00
The Coniagas Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid during 1907	200,000 00
Foster Cobalt Mining Company, Limited, have paid	45,000 00
The Cobalt Silver Queen, Cobalt, paid during 1907	120,000 00
McKinly, Darragh, Savage Mining Co., Limited, have paid	45,000 00
Temiscaminga & Hudson Bay Co Mining Limited, have paid	746,120 00

(These shares could have been had at 50 cents and have sold as high as $190 00)

Cobalt Camp has produced 15,000,000 dollars during the past two years.

On the famous Homestead Mine in South Dakota the ore averages about $4.90 per ton, and over $69,000,000.00 has been paid in dividends. The Tredwell Mine in Alaska is running on ore that averages $2.00 a ton and is paying big dividends.

Casey Mountain Mining Company, Limited, has in sight thousands of tons of silver ore that will run $20.00 to a ton, and by treating 109 tons per day would mean a daily output of $2000 00, and allowing the sum of $500.00 per day for all expenses of mining, concentrating, freight and smelter charges, which is a large margin, would give an annual profit of nearly $500,000, or 200 per cent. on the total capitalisation of the Company. The above figures are on our low grade ore only.

Quantity is what counts in a profitable mine, providing the grade is high enough to leave a margin over and above expenses.

Casey Mountain is practically a close Corporation, only sufficient shares having been sold to enable the Company to carry on development until returns are received from shipments, and only a small block remains unsold at par value $1.00 per share.

Buy Casey Mountain shares at once while they are on the market, as this will be positively the last opportunity of securing shares of this Company at one dollar each. Wire or mail reservation for shares to the Head Office, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Additional information can be had from the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. A. Wood, 408½ George Street, Peterborough.

VOL. LVI. No. 112
PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1908
TEN CENTS PER WEEK

THE QUEBEC TRIP HAS BEEN CALLED OFF BY DEPARTMENT

The Militia Department Have Swept Away all Proposals to Assemble Canada's Army There—Would Have Involved Extra Expenditure of $300,000.

The officers of the 57th Regiment when interviewed concerning the trip of the regiment to Quebec could give no further details than those stated in yesterday's Review. The following from the Ottawa Citizen would make it appear that the troops will not be present for the celebration:

The assembling of 25,000 troops at Quebec for the 300th anniversary of the battle of the plains of Abraham will not eventuate. The four days' pay trouble, the box car transportation difficulty, and the fifty per cent. of establishment complaint have been settled with one sweep as far as the militia department is concerned, for the department will not assemble Canada's army on the old battlefields. The rural corps will go to camp just the same as usual, and the Quebec Battlefields commission will chose any regiments it desires to add military splendor to the festivities at the old capital. The camp for number four district will probably be at Rockliffe instead of Petawawa this year.

It was announced to some corps at the drill hall last night that the Quebec affair was "off," and there was general surprise, of course, but at once the corps settled down to change their arrangements for about the fifth time since it was first announced toto Canada's soldiery that the flower of Canadian youth was to be assembled at Quebec in the 25,000 troops of the active militia.

The cause of this last change as announced by the militia department is lack of money to carry out the scheme. It was given out at the militia department this morning that every alternative had been tried to accomplishe the task with the money at hand, but it could not be done. The cutting down of the drill pay had been suggested as the last chance of bringing th etroops to Quebec, and and it was not accepted by the active militia, so there was no other course to pursue, since the money was not forthcoming, than to call the affair of. It would have taken $300,000 or so more than allowed the department, it is claimed, to have taken the number of troops asked for to Quebec, and it was not forthcoming, thus the bolt from the blue.

Yesterday about fifteen commanding officers from corps of various parts of Canada waited on the Minister of Militia to explain that they could not comply with the terms that they would only draw pay for four days. The Min-

The work of choosing what regiments will go to Quebec will be left to the Quebec Battlefields commission, so any regiment that is not invited will please not blame the militia department, but the commission. In fact the Militia Department will not have anything to do with the affair except to arrange transportation for the troops chosen to go to Quebec, etc.

The militia officers in Ottawa do not know what to think. There have been so many changes, so many alternatives, that they are not quite decided whether to accept this last as final or not. At any rate that is the orders now, and will appear, unless suddenly cancelled, in a few days in general orders. It is taken differently by the different corps, but it is safe to estimate that in all the corps, the majority of the members would have preferred to go to Quebec. The majority of them have been making few arrangements, as the orders have been changed so often that they thought it better to wait until the storm had cleared away and they knew what was going to be done.

It has cleared away just as if there had never been a storm, and the corps will have to settle down for the few remaining weeks and get ready for camp in early June.

The artillery was willing to go to Quebec half strength, or 60 per cent. of the establishment. The city corps however, found it impossible to thus divide up their regiments and allow half to go and the remainder to stay at home. They were willing to drill as usual at their headquarters and many of the regiments have nearly completed their drill season and receive the usual allowance for this, and go to Quebec without any drill pay at all for the days they were there. The officers considered this as much as they could willingly agree to for the good of their commands, and had there been enough money this would probably have been done and all would have been satisfactory, that is so long as bo xcars were notpressed into service.

THE GOVERNMENT RECEDES PERSISTENCY HAS WON OUT

Difficulty Over Election Bill in Fair Way of Settlement—The Judges to Revise the Lists and Delimit the Boundaries of Constituencies—Opposition Have Not Yet Decided to Accept the Compromise.

Ottawa, May 13.—In the House yesterday afternoon the Premier was interrogated upon the question of the separation of the northern part of Ontario from the older province. Was it true, he was asked, that he had said that if the movement were supported by 75 per cent. of the people of New Ontario, the will of the majority would be carried into effect? Also, had any representations been made to the Government on the subject?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he was not aware that there was any "vigorous campaign" in the northland for separation. He had seen some letters in the press, but had never expressed any opinion on the question.

Dr. Sproule referred to the statement that Canada would be represented by Sir Charles Fitpatrick at The Hague tribunal on the question of the Newfoundland fisheries.

The Prime Minister was unable to give the House any official information at this time. He thought that the appointment of Sir Charles Fitzpatrick would be satisfactory to all if such an appointment were made. He was in communication with Colonial and Foreign Offices and would have all the papers brought down.

The debate on the election bill was resumed.

Sir Wilfrid said at the outset that as Mr. Borden had appealed to him "in the name of fairness, of natural justice and broad equity" against the bill as an intensely partisan measure, so now he appealed to Mr. Borden in the same terms against the intensely partisan laws of Manitoba.

For the bill before the House he accepted entire responsibility. Without pretending to be better than other men, while admitting himself a partisan, Sir Wilfrid assured the House he would not willingly strike below the belt.

"The Opposition members for Manitoba," he said, "dread the effect of the law of their own province, if it is not to be administered by officers appointed by themselves, but by officers appointed by this Government. But there are men on this side of the House who dread the effect of that law if it is to continue to be administered, as it has been, by officers appointed by their opponents, as will be the case if this bill, or some other bill, is not passed by this House. Those who oppose this bill dread it in anticipation; those who support it dread the effect of the existing law of Manitoba from past experience."

Conservatives did not want to go to the country on electoral lists prepared by their opponents; Liberals did not care to go to the country on lists prepared by their opponents. Such was the problem.

Replying to an objection that the new law was not to apply to all the provinces, Sir Wilfrid said that was because in Ontario the lists were prepared by municipal officials.

He objected to the refusal to grant supplies, thus disorganizing the public service.

Mr. Foster followed, maintaining that there had been absolutely no proof of any grievance against the Manitoba election lists. The bill, said Mr. Foster, was remarkable for what it did not contain. There was no provision for simultaneous polling and nothing to remedy the grievance against long-delayed bye-elections; nothing to prevent the growing abuse of using the officials under this Government as active political partisans; nothing about the use of public works in order to influence the electorate in favor of the Government. That was a grievous wrong in this country—no adequate penalties for some election crimes and no effective power to see that the election law is carried out. Nothing had been said in explanation of the omission to prevent corporate companies from distributing alms among the political parties. The clause regarding the ballot opened the way for the purchase of votes, making it possible for any ballot to become known.

"I make this proposition," said Mr. Foster. "Let him bring in a bill establishing the Dominion branches on lists by this Government in all the provinces of the Dominion and put the lists in the hands of a non-partisan body and he will have this side of Parliament House at his back."

Mr. Foster concluded by observing that if he were a resident of Manitoba he would fight against this invidious distinction imposed upon his province, and he was sure when the time came both Manitoba and British Columbia would resent the indignity this Government sought to impose upon them.

At a later stage Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, "After having conferred with the Minister of Justice and my other colleagues, we are ready to accept the suggestion made by my hon. friend, Dr. Roche, in his speech the other day." He was loudly cheered by the Opposition when he made the anouncement in a speech remarkable for its tone of conciliation.

The agreement means that the work of revision of the Manitoba voters' lists shall be entrusted to a board of judges, so that there may be no question as to the fairness of whatever is done. Assurance will be given also that ample time is to be left for the hearing of appeals, so that absolutely none who have the right to the franchise may be left off.

This means that the main objection to the Aylesworth election bill has been swept away by the Government.

The election bill debate has not, however, ended with Sir Wilfrid Laurier's removal of two of the main objections. The Conservatives are still full of fight, but until the party gets together, it will be hard to say what their attitude as to the passage of the bill in the way the Prime Minister proposes to amend it will be.

The special committee on the charges made by Major Hodgins, met and adjourned till to-day.

In the Senate a resolution by Senator MacDonald of British Columbia, declaring that the purchase of supplies through middlemen should be discontinued, and that all supplies over $1,000 in value should be advertised for, was passed.

A BRUTAL MURDER OCCURS IN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Met His Victim With His Girl on the Railway Track—Shot Him Three Times and Hid His Body in the Bushes—Confessed Crime to Priest.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., May 13.—On Sunday night at Miscouche, a small village about five miles from Summerside, Joseph D. McMillan was shot and killed by Alonzo Docherty, aged 21.

On Sunday afternoon McMillan, accompanied by Stella MacDonald and her sister, walked from Miscouche to Summerside. In the evening McMillan and Stella left on the return to Miscouche. When about one and one-half miles from their destination they met Docherty coming towards them. It was a bright, moonlight night. He had a revolver in his hand. "Hold on," he said. "Is that a revolver you have?" asked McMillan. "Yes," replied Docherty, and pulled the trigger. A 32-calibre bullet crashed into McMillan's heart. "I am shot," he said, and staggered and fell.

As he lay on the ground, Docherty fired two more bullets into the head of his victim, whose struggles ceased. The railway track was bordered with thick bushes. Docherty dragged the body into the woods, and accompanied the horror-stricken girl to her home. He stayed there several hours, and at daybreak went with the girl to Father Monaghan, the priest, and told him the whole story, and where to find the body.

Father Monaghan informed the authorities, and the body was found at the spot indicated.

Docherty went to the house of his father, informing him of the terrible deed. The old man, a respectable farmer, fell in a faint when he heard the awful news. The murderer then drove to Miscouche, waited the arrival of the police officer from Summerside, and gave himself up. He is now lodged in Summerside jail.

He said: "I did the deed and know I shall suffer for it. It means either the gallows or penitentiary for life. I would not like the latter, for I would pine away and die anyway. I had no quarrel with McMillan, he was one of the best fellows in Miscouche. I was in the habit of carrying a revolver through the woods and had placed that one in my pocket on Sunday. Some uncontrollable impulse seized me when I met McMillan and Stella. I had kept company with her for three years."

Docherty then told how he dragged the body into the woods so that no one would see it. Docherty is a fine strapping, good-looking fellow, about six feet. McMillan was also a splendid specimen of physical manhood.

WILL PROVIDE ELECTRIC POWER

City of Brantford Will Take Action Immediately.

Brantford, May 13.—The contract submitted by the Hydro-Electric Commission will be taken up immediately by a special committee of the council and a representative citizens committee. It was stated that the Toronto and Niagara Power Co., which has lines already built to Gainsville, have announced that it was to come on to Brantford. This gives competition between the commission and the Western Counties Power Co. The latter's contract with the city for street lighting expires in September. The council has asked the company for terms as to a renewal of its contract, also a price of rental and purchase of its plant in this city. Under the terms of the franchise the city can buy the plant out, which may be done.

FITS WILL BE MOIR'S DEFENCE

Some Further Facts About the London Soldier's Career

London, May 13.—Private William Alexander Moir, the slayer of Color-Sergt. Lloyd, appeared in the Police Court yesterday, and was remanded until Friday.

Joseph Lawrence has offered to start a fund to aid in his defence.

It is stated that Moir will seek to prove that he is subject to epileptic fits.

Moir is 25 years of age. At 16 he enlisted in the Gordon Highlanders for seven years. After serving five years he was granted his discharge on account of good service. He then went to Glasgow, where he spent six months in the gymnasium, receiving a certificate as an all-round athlete.

When the Boer war broke out, he was one of the first to enlist. He saw active service at Bloemfontein. After the close of the war he went to India, where he served on the Indian frontier.

Four years ago he came to Canada, where he worked for six months on a farm and six months in a factory. Six months ago he enlisted at Wolseley Barracks, London, and stayed there till the shooting.

"I never had trouble with Lloyd," declared Moir, brokenly. "We were good friends, and I have no enemy in the world that I know of."

Overestimating the Crops.

London, May 13.—(C.A.P.)—The Mail complains of the glowing character of the Canadian crop reports and says they would carry more comforting conviction if they contained less hyperbole.

AFTERMATH OF THE OWEN SOUND RIOT

Toronto Constables Tell the Story of the Affair.

Toronto, May 13.—A dozen of the special constables who went to Owen Sound in connection with the strike returned yesterday. Among them were Herbert Somerville, John Power, Fred Wright, William Bray and G H. Lawrence. Somerville, who is a former police inspector, had 16 stitches put in the top of his head, and is carrying around a broken finger. Fred Wright had his head badly cut and a bad gash over the right eye.

The constables claimed that they only had four revolvers among 50 of them. Lawrence, who fired the first shot, said that when he did so the workmen had Somerville and Power down and were hammering their heads with lumps of coal.

In discussing the affair Angus McMurchy, solicitor for the C.P.R., gave the credit of obtaining the settlement to Provincial Detective Rogers who mingled among the men, got them to appoint a committee and enter into negotiations, which finally ended in a settlement.

THE FISHERIES IN LAKE CHAMPLAIN

Under the Bryce and Root Agreement Seining Will be Stopped.

St. Albans, Vermont, May 13.—United States Senator John W. Stewart has announced to persons in this state who petitioned him to use his influence to have the seining of fish in the waters of Lake Champlain by Canadians stopped, that the matter will be adjusted to their satisfaction under the terms of a treaty agreed upon by Secretary of State Root, acting for the United States, and Ambassador James Bryce, acting for Canada, and which awaits ratification by the Great Britain and United States Governments before it becomes operative.

Arrested For Stealing Silver.

Toronto, May 13.—Joseph J. Hall, a Cobalt jeweler, was arrested at the Palmer House upon a charge of stealing $1,000 worth of silverware from the Silver Queen Mine at Cobalt. The ore was got in a trunk in his room. He admitted the theft.

The arrest was made pursuant to a wire from the Cobalt police asking the local authorities to locate the trunk which contained fine selected samples.

Powers Withdrawn From Crete.

Canea, Island of Crete, May 13.—After nearly 11 years of occupation the four powers that have had in hand the protection of Crete—Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy—have decided that the people of the island have settled down sufficiently to justify the withdrawal of the international troops. The soldiery will be removed from the island by degrees.

TELEGRAPHERS HELD MEETING

Toronto, Ottawa, Havelock and Smith's Falls Divisions in Convention

Smith's Falls, May 12.—A joint meeting of railway telegraphers was held here on Saturday night. The Toronto, Ottawa, Havelock and Smith's Falls divisions were represented and in all seventy-five delegates were in attendance. Among those present was Mr J C. Rooney, of Montreal, assistant general chairman, who gave an excellent address in which he warmly urged the members to support the eight-hour bill now before the House.

The different reports presented, showed the Brotherhood to be in a most flourishing condition financially and otherwise.

At the conclusion of the meeting the visitors were entertained to a supper by the local telegraphers,

MOIR TELLS THE STORY OF HIS ADVENTUROUS LIFE

Has Seen Much Active Service Having Been in Army Since He Was 16 Years Old—Has Been Four Years in Canada—A Career of Activity.

Arthur, May 12.—Private Moir arrested on Saturday night for the shooting of Sergt. Lloyd at Wolseley Barracks, was taken to London on the 5.05 C. P. R. train in charge of Detective Nickle, of London, and Chief Farrell, of Arthur. Before leaving, he was seen in his cell by Police Magistrate Hudson and a reporter, and gave a short outline of his life.

ENLISTED AT SIXTEEN

Moir was born in Roxboroughshire, Scotland. When only sixteen years of age he enlisted with the Gordon Highlanders for a peeriod of seven years. After serving five years he was granted his discharge on account of good service. He then went to Glasgow, where he spent six months in the gymnasium receiving a certificate from that institution as an all-round athlete.

IN CANADA FOUR YEARS

Four years ago he came to Canada. He went first to Guelph where he worked for 6 months on a farm there, and later put in six months at one of the factories. From there he went to Lansdowne, where he spent two years. Six months ago he enlisted at Wolseley Barracks, London, and stayed there till the shooting.

"I never had trouble with Lloyd," declared Moir, brokenly. "We were good friends. I have no enemy in the world that I know of."

After leaving Stratford the Monday after the murder, Moir made for Goldstone, and from there took to the railroad track, tramping down the ties, reaching there on Tuesday. From there he went to the Robbs' farm and secured work.

CAN SLEEP NOW

"The worst is over now, I think" continued Moir. "I have not had a sound sleep since I woke in that barn, near London."

Moir bought a new suit of clothes yesterday with the money received from the Robbs.

There is much sympathy aroused here at Arthur, and yesterday a subscription was taken up to help pay for his defence.

Rev. J. P. Doherty, Cathlic Priest, Rev. Dr. Richardson, Presbyterian and Rev. Mr. Smith, Methodist, interviewed Moir a short time.

HOW HE GOT SCARS.

Moir is 25 years of age. The mark on his ear which helped to identify him is a birthmark. The tatooing was done when he was a boy at school. The scar on his finger is the result of a wrestling match at London, when the finger was broken. The scar on his face was also the result of a fight when a boy at school.

THE REPUBLICANS ARE VICTORIOUS

Win in the Sensational Election in New York State.

Lockport, N.Y., May 13.—William C. Wallace, Republican, was yesterday elected Senator from the 47th district with a plurality of 264 votes over Henry A. McMahon, the Democratic candidate.

The total vote was: Wallace 7,601, McMahon 7,353. This is about two-thirds of the normal vote in the district.

An unusual feature of the campaign was the obliteration of party lines, the real issue being the anti-gambling attitude assumed by Governor Hughes. The successful candidate supported his attitude.

Regina, Sask., May 13.—The text book debate was concluded at the session yesterday, and the second reading of the bill was allowed to pass without division.

The Opposition will move an amendment on the third reading and refer the bill back to the committee.

The Premier made the statement that the readers being secured were the best in America and that the contract was the best ever entered by any Government in any province of Canada.

The Liberal Won the Seat.

London, May 13.—At the bye-election for the Montrose district of burgs, Robert Harcourt, the Liberal candidate, was returned with 3,083. Joseph Burgess, who stood in the Labor and Socialist interest, polled 1,937, and A. H. B. Constable, Conservative, 1,576. The vacancy was caused by the elevation of Mr. John Morley to the peerage.

THE DAMAGED S.S. OTTAWA

Terrible Impact—The Other Vessel Beached at Gaspe.

Father Point, May 13.—The S. S. Ottawa took a pilot on board at Father Point, and proceeded for Quebec. Her damage is all on her port side and she carries as evidence of the vessel she collided with a portion of the latter's bow fast and firmly attached by the impact. The vessel she collided with was the Norwegian collier Trold.

The collision occurred during a dense fog early on Monday morning about 65 miles below Fame Point. The vessels struck nearly stem on and the Trold immediately disappeared in the fog. She reached Gaspe safely, where she is now beached, but her damage is considerable.

When the collision took place the Ottawa was proceeding slowly and sounding her whistle.

MORE OPERATIVES ARE ON STRIKE

Workers in Cotton Mills at Montreal Quit Work—350 Have Gone Out.

Montreal, May 13.—Three hundred and fifty employes of the Stannes' mill, Hochelaga, went on strike yesterday, in sympathy with the mule spinners and the employes of the Merchants' Cotton Mills. About the same time the employes of Magog Cotton Mills of the Dominion Textile Co., also went out on strike, as a protest against the proposed cut of ten per cent. in their wages.

As soon as it became known that the Magog cotton operatives had decided to fight, Wilfrid Paquette, secretary-treasurer and business agent of the Canadian Federation of Textile Workers, left for Magog, where a big meeting will be held. He will then leave for Montmorency, where the employes are restless.

It is thought here by the strike leaders that a strike will be declared at Montmorency.

THE ELECTION OF A PRESIDENT

Taft Appears to Lead for the Republican Nomination.

Washington, D.C., May 13.—All but [illegible] out of the [illegible] delegates to the Republican National Convention have been elected. Only one week of the contest remains. With next Sunday the last convention for delegates must be held, under the call of the National Committee, and all contests must be filed by May 20th.

Taft appears to be in the lead, so far that it would seem impossible to defeat him at Chicago.

Franco-British Exposition.

Ottawa, May 13.—Mr. William Hutchinson, Canadian Commissioner of Exhibitions, has cabled the Minister of Agriculture a denial of the report that the Franco-British Exposition will not open till June. It will be open to the public on May 26. Mr. Hutchinson says the Canadian exhibits are in fine shape.

Indian Saniterium.

Brantford, May 13.—At a special meeting of the Six Nation Indians' council, at which Dr. Bryce was present, it was decided to erect a hospital on the reservation for the treatment of tuberculosis. The building will cost $5,000. There are 50 cases of consumption in the reserve among a population of 4,000.

Killed Under Roller.

Gorrie, May 13.—At the farm of George Johnson, near Belmore, a young Englishman by the name of Hynes, only out from the old country a couple of months, was driving a land roller when the team became unmanageable and Hynes was thrown under the roller and fatally crushed.

I.C.R. EMPLOYEES JOIN THE UNION

President Neil Says Government Roads Recognize It.

Boston, May 13.—Eight thousand union railway men in the United States and Canada were represented by 120 delegates at the opening of the fourth biennial convention of the International Brotherhood of Railway Employes here. President Robert F. Neil, of Boston, in his report said that the organization is to-day in the best conditions in its history. He stated that the Canadian Government railways had agreed to recognize the union, and that [illegible] employes of the Intercolonial Railway had joined the organization.

STORM WORKS DESTRUCTION

Eight Killed and More Injured by a Storm in Oklahoma.

Woodward, Okla., May 13.—At least eight persons were killed and scores of others injured in the several tornadoes in Northwestern Oklahoma Sunday evening. Telephone communication is entirely cut off from the storm-swept area, and the only other means of getting information is by stage.

The most serious results were in the vicinity of Arnett, where fully thirty persons are believed to have suffered broken limbs. Nearly all of these victims are residents of farms.

The only town known to have been destroyed is Vici, a postoffice in the southern part of Woodward County, where it is said there is not a house left standing.

To Protect Bird Life.

London, May 13.—With the object of checking the wanton slaughter of birds, Lord Avebury (Sir John Lubbock) introduced a bill in the House of Lords prohibiting the importation of plumage, except that of certain species of birds set forth in the bill.

He pointed out that this measure was framed on the same lines as the New York State law. It enacts heavy penalties for contravention of the law.

In a memorandum attached to the bill, Lord Avebury says that unless the British Parliament follows the example of the New York Legislature, the extinction of the most beautiful species of bird life is only a question of time.

Were Stealing a Ride.

Parry Sound, May 13.—Two men were killed and two injured as the result of a collision on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Two trains, runnings at a good speed, came together in a cut at a sharp curve about five miles north of here, piling the lighter train upon the heavier and involving in the wreck both conductor's vans, the car of timber and the steam plow, smashing them up in a heap, which immediately took fire.

Two farmers of Carling Township, who had been stealing a ride on the plow car, were instantly killed, and their bodies burned beyond recognition. They were George Hamilton and his stepson, Levi Sutton.

The two dead men had been put off the train at Barber's Corners, but were hiding on the plow.

Cardinal Will Visit Montreal.

New York, May 13.—Cardinal Logue left this city yesterday for Rochester, accompanied by Bishop Brown of Cloyne, Rev. James Brown, Monsignor Hayes and Rev. Michael Quinn, the cardinal's secretary. The party will go to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Montreal.

Foul Play Suspected.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., May 13.—The body of Edward C. Chilton, who disappeared March 28, was found floating in the St. Lawrence river by fishermen. Foul play is suspected. Chilton's watch and money were missing. He sold his saloon the day he disappeared.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures female ills and carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Mrs. Letitia Blair, Cannifton, Ont., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was sick for five years. One doctor told me it was ulceration, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor, and advised an operation. No one knows what I suffered, and the bearing down pains were terrible.

"I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It has cured me of all my troubles, and I did not have to have the operation after all." The Compound also helped me to pass safely through Change of Life."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

NEMESIS

There is only one thing certain, humanly speaking, and that is the evening-up process which ultimately overtakes all things human. We live and move and have our being in the shadow of this mighty fact. The man or woman who strives to do well does not fear it. Evening-up cannot hurt him either. On the contrary that process furnishes the reward which all good deeds and all good actions ultimately or proximately bring with them. This mighty law of compensation for good or ill broods over the world as surely as does what we call physical death. There is but one thing it cannot kill,—the good that lives after men. Such was the belief of the ancients and such seems in the light of history to be the principle of fairness running through the universal life. For those who are Christians there is a still higher life but to the "World without God" there remains the Nemesis. Whether this fate is part or parcel of the underlying law of self-protection which is in turn the natural outcome of human life and our desire to prolong it, or not, it is difficult to say. But one thing is sure. No man or set of men can deprive the public of what belongs to it and escape punishment. It is all very well for the Examiner to say that "the world has come to set up less exacting standards of morality in politics and governmental relations than in ordinary matters." This means that the public is indifferent to being robbed. Is it? Self-protection would suggest a prompt denial even if religion, morality, a sense of decency—all had vanished. Brigands, the forty thieves boy bandits, etc., insist on the fair thing with each other. Why? Because fair-dealing is the necessary basis of living. To say that we can rob people with impunity is to say that we have made them our slaves.

Nemesis would seem to correspond to that verse in the Bible which assures us that God is not mocked. Men may laugh at religion but even those same men quail before the facts of history. We may rest assured that "time is the measure of all things.' Not even death can relieve us from the great law of Vengeance. The Good may seem to be at the mercy of the Bad but only to those who neither read nor observe.

CHANGED METHOD OF CONDUCTING TIMBER SALES

The Whitney Government has not found it necessary to hold any large timber sales during its term of office. During the last four years of the Ross Administration it was necessary to procure six millions of dollars from this source, which, it must be admitted, was a considerable draft on capital account.

Not only have there been no big sales but the Government has materially changed the methods of its predecessors in sales—it was found necessary for the supply of local demand to hold. One of the great complaints about old sales was the fact that such large blocks were put up so that only the very wealthy could buy, and the conditions of sale made the bidding hazardous unless one had time enough, or timber cruisers enough to estimate thoroughly the large berths offered, or unless one could get a hint of the Government's estimate and upset price from the gentlemen conducting the sale—as one dealer has sworn he did.

Such timber as the Department has had for its disposal has been sold in small blocks, and with a time limit, and one objection of the small dealer was thus removed. Another was overcome by making the cash deposit as small as was consistent with a guarantee of bona fides and safe business methods. Then, the Minister removed the element of guess by the simple expedient of selling the timber by the thousand feet, B.M., which made a close estimate of the berth of less importance to the purchaser. He pays only for what he takes out, and on the other hand, the Government gets paid for every foot of timber on the limit, as it appoints its own scalers. By this method of sale the element of guess work has been eliminated, and a timber sale takes its place as a business transaction rather than a big guess. Under old conditions, if a bidder found he had paid too much for his timber, he sometimes failed to pay after the sale, and left the limit with the Crown. If he found he had several millions more than he thought he was buying he was simply that much in—and the Government that much out. There will be no more guessing.

Some of the prices obtained at these sales have been remarkable. One small sale near the Soo brought a bonus of $10.62 per M. feet and dues of $2.00, or a total of $12.62 per thousand. The Department sold the pine on Franklin Island, in the Georgian Bay, at $12.62 per M., and a bonus of $2—or $14.26 in all.

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

Every One Elegible Should Get on the Voters' List—Where Sittings of Registration Board Will be Held—Qualifications Neccessary—Visit the Committee Rooms.

Sittings of the local Board of county registrars will be held as follows:

Monday, May 18th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Tuesday, May 19th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Wednesday, May 20th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Saturday, May 23rd, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

From Ward No. 1—At Lewis Spry's shop, 214 Stewart street.

For Ward No. 2—At the Council Chamber.

For Ward No. 3—At the Police Chamber.

For Ward No. 4—At Wm. Lee's shop, corner of Smith and George streets.

For Ward No. 6—At the Ashburnham town hall.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration there on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a dodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

NEW ELECTION METHODS

The late Liberal Government of Ontario had every opportunity of committing frauds in elections and we regret to say, they took advantage of it. All their protestations of honesty were useless in the face of the most up-to-date methods of cheating from the immortal Cap Sullivan down to the switchiest of switching ballot-boxes. The introduction of an absolutely secret ballot by Mr. Whitney put an end to this performance so far as it was part and parcel of bribery schemes. It was useless to bribe unless it could be traced. Then a penalty of $200 was added for the benefit of any "smart Alec" who insinuated that the new ballot was not secret. Then, to prevent the spoiling of ballots by deputy returning officers, who, as we know, inserted pieces of lead in their finger-nails for that purpose, a black ballot paper has been introduced with a white space for the name and cross so that there can be no longer any doubt, if there is a mark at all, what that mark means. Then, instead of having the ballots printed by the candidates as was done once by the Examiner Printing Co. on a very specious plea, such a thing can no longer be done. The returning officer now looks after the printing and not the Government and its minions, as before. There is a heavy penalty for printing more than the required number of ballots also. Formerly if the majority of the winner was over 200 there could be no recount. An extra handful of bogus balots could therefore save any situation. At present no majority can block a recount, however large. In addition all the dirty little tricks of the people who have "come to set up less exacting standards of morality" are provided for. We can now have a fair election anyhow, no matter which way it goes. Is not this a great and praiseworthy advance?

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Aggravated assault," means to many people, a provoked or justifiable assault. Needless to say this is not the true meaning of the term.

The Globe in its political notes says West Peterborough is in the doubtful list for the coming election. We beg leave to challenge the Globe to produce any authority for such a statement. We have not met a single Liberal who entertains any such dream.

A little Chicago girl was called upon to give a definition of millinery. She answered "Hats, Caps and Women." How strong the association of ideas sometimes is!

We hear that there is a "recrudescence of discontent," in the East Riding in Liberal circles over some (or one) of the prospective candidates for the Commons. If the facts were known they would surprise some people.

The St. Catharines Star-Journal, in announcing the approaching walking contest there, advertises our Davy Hartley as from Port Hope. This is a little too much. The Council will send a delegation to "see about it." Probably the Board of Works will go.

Anything more absurd than the cable purporting to hand out King Edward's supposed indignation over Tommy Burns' demand for a large purse in his fight with Johnson, it would be hard to imagine. King Edward may take an interest in such things as most Englishmen do, but as for his assuming the role of ringside critic—hardly.

Cheese—Steady, unchanged; receipts, 3838.

Eggs—Steady, unchanged; receipts, 34,-600.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—American Markets Are Generally Steady.

LONDON, May 12.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12c to 13¼c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10¼c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, May 12.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways, were 80 carloads, composed of 1277 cattle, 752 hogs, 244 sheep, 332 calves and 11 horses.

Exporters.

A very few export steers, weighing 1200 lbs. and over, sold at from $5.75 to $6; export bulls sold at $4.25 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought 12 carloads of fat cattle, some of them export weights, for the Harris Abattoir Company, reports the following prices: Choice steers and heifers, 1000 to 1200 lbs. each, $5.70 to $5.90; loads of good, $5.40 to $5.70; fair to medium, $5.15 to $5.35, good to choice cows, $4.70 to $5.25; fair to good cows, $4.25 to $4.60; medium cows, $3.70 to $4; canners and rough cows, $2 to $3.25; butcher bulls, $4 to $5 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report few of either class on sale to-day, altho there is a good demand at steady prices. Mr. Murby bought two carloads at following prices: Good steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, at $4.75 to $5 per cwt.; good steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $4.25 to $4.75; good steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.90 to $4.25; good steers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.90; light stockers, 400 to 600 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and forward springers, of good to choice quality, were not large enough to supply the demand. Desirable milkers and springers sold at from $35 to $55, and one or two were reported at a little more. Common quality light cows are not wanted and are slow of sale at $25 to $30 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of calves were liberal, the bulk of which were of the dairy kind. Prices remain about steady at $3 to $5.50 per cwt., with an odd new, milk-fed calf going at a little more money.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, with prices firm, as follows: Export ewes, $4.50 to $5.50; rams, $3.50 to $4.50; yearling lambs, $6.50 to $7.75 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3 to $7.50 each.

Hogs.

Receipts light and prices lower. Mr. Harris quotes selects at $6 per cwt. and lights at $5.75 per cwt., and the market none too strong at that.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, May 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 125 head; steady; prime steers, $6.75 to $7.25.

Veals—Receipts, 350 head; active and 25c higher, $5 to $7.25.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

Will be glad to explain our plan.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

That extra $50,000 worth of stock, on which he had never received a cent interest, had been the decoy in a carefully thought out plot. They, the plotters, well knew how ignorant he was of financial matters, and he had been an easy victim. Who would believe his story that the stock had been sent to him with a plausibly worded letter to the effect that it represented a bonus on his own investment? Now he came to think of it, calmly and reasonably, he would not believe it himself. As usual, he had mislaid or destroyed the secretary's letter, and there was only his word against the company's books to substantiate what would appear a most improbable if not impossible occurrence.

It was his conviction of his own good faith that made his present dilemma all the more cruel. Had he really been a grafter, had he really taken the stock as a bribe, he would not care so much, for then he would have foreseen and discounted the chances of exposure. Yes, there was no doubt possible. He was the victim of a conspiracy; there was an organized plot to ruin him, to get him out of the way. The "interests" feared him, resented his judicial decisions, and they had halted at nothing to accomplish their purpose. How could he fight them back, what could he do to protect himself? He had no proofs of a conspiracy; his enemies worked in the dark; there was no way in which he could reach them or know who they were.

He thought of John Burkett Ryder. Ah, he remembered now! Ryder was the man who had recommended the investment in Alaskan stock. Of course. Why did he not think of it before? He recollected that at the time he had been puzzled at receiving so much stock, and he had mentioned it to Ryder, adding that the secretary had told him it was customary. Oh, why had he not kept the secretary's letter? But Ryder would certainly remember it. He probably still had his two letters in which he spoke of making the investment. If those letters could be produced at the congressional inquiry they would clear him at once, so, losing no time and filled with renewed hope, he wrote to the Colossus a strong, manly letter, which would have melted an iceberg, urging Mr. Ryder to come forward now at this critical time and clear him of this abominable charge, or in any case to kindly return the two letters he must have in his possession, as they would go far to help him at the trial. Three days passed and no reply from Ryder. On the fourth came a polite but frigid note from Mr. Ryder's private secretary. Mr. Ryder had received Judge Rossmore's letter and in reply begged to state that he had a vague recollection of some conversation with the judge in regard to investments, but he did not think he had advised the purchase of any particular stock, as that was something he never did on principle, even with his most intimate friends. He had no wish to be held accountable in case of loss, etc. As to the letter which Judge Rossmore mentioned as having written to Mr. Ryder in regard to having received more stock than he had bought, of that Mr. Ryder had no recollection whatever. Judge Rossmore was probably mistaken as to the identity of his correspondent. He regretted he could not be of more service to Judge Rossmore and remained his very obedient servant.

It was very evident that no help was to be looked for in that quarter. There was even decided hostility in Ryder's reply. Could it be true that the financier was really behind these attacks upon his character? Was it possible that one man, merely to make more money, would deliberately ruin his fellow man whose hand he had grasped in friendship? He had been unwilling to believe it when his friend ex-Judge Stott had pointed to Ryder as the author of all his misfortunes, but this unsympathetic letter, with its falsehoods, its lies, plainly written all over its face, was proof enough. Yes, there was now no doubt possible. John Burkett Ryder was his enemy, and what an enemy! Many a man had committed suicide when he had incurred the enmity of the Colossus. Judge Rossmore, completely discouraged, bowed his head to the inevitable, but he sent for his old friend ex-Judge Stott.

They were lifelong friends, having become acquainted nearly thirty years ago at the law school, at the time when both were young men about to enter on a public career. Stott, who was Rossmore's junior, had begun as a lawyer in New York and soon acquired a reputation in criminal practice. He afterward became assistant district attorney and later, when a vacancy occurred in the city magistrature, he was successful in securing the appointment. On the bench he again met his old friend Rossmore, and the two men once more became closely intimate. The regular court hours, however, soon palled on a man of Judge Stott's nervous temperament, and it was not long before he retired to take up once more his criminal practice. He was still a young man, not yet fifty, and full of vigor and fight. He had a blunt manner, but his heart was in the right place, and he had a record as clean as his close shaven face. He was a hard worker, a brilliant speaker and one of the cleverest cross examiners at the bar. This was the man to whom Judge Rossmore naturally turned for legal assistance.

Stott was out west when he first heard of the proceedings against his old friend, and this indignity put upon the only really honest man in public life whom he knew, so incensed him that he was already hurrying back to his aid when the summons reached him.

Meantime a fresh and more serious calamity had overwhelmed Judge Rossmore. Everything seemed to combine to break the spirit of this man who had dared defy the power of organised capital. Hardly had the news of the congressional inquiry been made public, than the financial world was startled by an extraordinary slump in Wall street. There was nothing in the news of the day to justify a decline, but prices fell and fell. The bears had it all their own way, the big interests hammered stocks all along the line, "coppers" especially being the object of attack. The market closed feverishly, and the next day the same tactics were pursued. From the opening, on selling orders coming from no one knew where, prices fell to nothing, a stampede followed, and before long it became a panic.

Pandemonium reigned on the floor of the Stock Exchange. White faced disheveled brokers shouted and struggled like men possessed to execute the orders of their clients. Big financial houses which stood to lose millions on a falling market rallied and by rush orders to buy attempted to stem the tide, but all to no purpose. One firm after another went by the board, unable to weather the tempest, until just before closing time the stock ticker announced the failure of the Great Northwestern Mining company. The drive in the market had been principally directed against its securities, and after vainly endeavoring to check the bear raid it had been compelled to declare itself bankrupt. It was heavily involved, assets nil, stock almost worthless. It was probable that the creditors would not see 10 cents on the dollar. Thousands were ruined, and Judge Rossmore among them. All the savings of a lifetime—nearly $55,000—were gone. He was practically penniless at a time when he needed money most. He still owned his house in Madison avenue, but that would have to go to settle with his creditors. By the time everything was paid there would only remain enough for a modest competence. As to his salary, of course he could not touch that so long as this accusation was hanging over his head, and if he were impeached it would stop altogether. The salary, therefore, was not to be counted on. They must manage as best they could and live more cheaply, taking a small house somewhere in the outskirts of the city, where he could prepare his case quietly without attracting attention.

Stott thought this was the best thing they could do, and he volunteered to relieve his friend by taking on his own hands all the arrangements of the sale of the house and furniture, which offer the judge accepted only too gladly. Meantime Mrs. Rossmore went to Long Island to see what could be had, and she found at the little village of Massapequa just what they were looking for—a commodious, neatly furnished two story cottage at a modest rental. Of course it was nothing like what they had been accustomed to, but it was clean and comfortable, and, as Mrs. Rossmore said, rather tactlessly, beggars cannot be choosers. Perhaps it would not be for long. Instant possession was to be had, so a deposit was paid on the spot, and a few days later the Rossmores left their mansion on Madison avenue and took up their residence in Massapequa, where their advent created quite a fluster in local social circles.

Stott was given a room in the cottage so that he might be near at hand to work with the judge in the preparation of the defense, and he came out from the city every evening. It was now June. The senate would not take action until it convened in December, but there was a lot of work to be done and no time to be lost.

The evening following the day of their arrival they were sitting on the porch enjoying the cool evening air after dinner. The judge was smoking. He was not a slave to the weed, but he enjoyed a quiet pipe after meals, claiming that it quieted his nerves and enabled him to think more clearly. Besides, it was necessary to keep at bay the ubiquitous Long Island mosquito. Mrs. Rossmore had remained for a moment in the dining room to admonish Eudoxia, their new and only maid of all work, not to wreck too much of the crockery when she removed the dinner dishes. Suddenly Stott, who was perusing an evening paper, asked:

"By the way, where's your daughter? Does she know of this radical change in your affairs?"

Judge Rossmore started. By what mysterious agency had this man penetrated his own most intimate thoughts? He was himself thinking of Shirley that very moment, and by some inexplicable means—telepathy modern psychologists called it—the thought current had crossed to Stott, whose mind, being in full sympathy, was exactly attuned to receive it. Removing the pipe from his mouth, the judge replied:

"Shirley's in Paris. Poor girl, I hadn't the heart to tell her. She has no idea of what's happened. I didn't want to spoil her holiday."

He was silent for a moment; then after a few more puffs he added confidentially in a low tone, as if he did not care for his wife to hear:

"The truth is, Stott, I couldn't bear to have her return now. I couldn't look my own daughter in the face."

A sound as of a great sob which he had been unable to control cut short his speech. His eyes filled with tears, and he began to smoke furiously, as if ashamed of this display of emotion. Stott, blowing his nose with suspicious vigor, replied soothingly:

"You mustn't talk like that. Everything will come out all right, of course. But I think you are wrong not to have told your daughter. Her place is here at your side. She ought to be told even if only in justice to her. If you don't tell her, some one else will or, what's worse, she'll hear of it through the newspapers."

"Ah, I never thought of that!" exclaimed the judge, visibly perturbed at the suggestion about the newspapers.

"Don't you agree with me?" demanded Stott, appealing to Mrs. Rossmore, who emerged from the house at that instant. "Don't you think your daughter should be informed of what has happened?"

"Most assuredly I do," answered Mrs. Rossmore determinedly. "The judge wouldn't hear of it, but I took the law into my own hands. I've cabled for her."

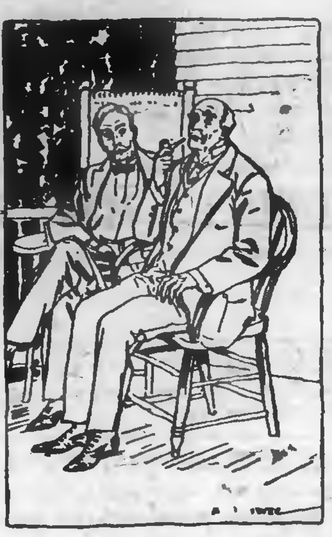
"You cabled for Shirley?" cried the judge incredulously. He was so unaccustomed to seeing his ailing, vacillating wife do anything on her own initiative and responsibility that it seemed impossible. "You cabled for Shirley?" he repeated.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Rossmore triumphantly and secretly pleased that for once in her life she had asserted herself. "I cabled yesterday. I simply couldn't bear it alone any longer."

"What did you say?" inquired the judge apprehensively.

"I just told her to come home at once. Tomorrow we ought to get an answer."

Stott meantime had been figuring on the time of Shirley's probable arrival. If the cablegram had been received in Paris the previous evening, it would be too late to catch the French boat. The North German Lloyd steamer was the next to leave, and it touched at Cherbourg. She would undoubtedly come on that. In a week at most she would be here. Then it became a question as to who should go to meet her at the dock. The judge could not go, that was certain. It would be too much of an ordeal. Mrs. Rossmore did not know the lower part of the city well and had no experience in meeting ocean steamships. There was only one way out—would Stott go? Of course he would, and he would bring Shirley back with him to Massapequa. So during the next few days while Stott and the judge toiled preparing their case, which often necessitated brief trips to the city, Mrs. Rossmore, seconded with sulky indifference by Eudoxia, was kept busy getting a room ready for her daughter's arrival.



"By the way, where's your daughter?"

Eudoxia, who came originally from County Cork, was an Irish lady with a thick brogue and a husky temper. She was amiable enough so long as things went to her satisfaction, but when they did not suit her she was a termagant. She was neither beautiful nor graceful; she was not young nor was she very clean. Her usual condition was disheveled, her face was all askew, and when she dressed up she looked like a valentine. Her greatest weakness was a propensity for smashing dishes, and when reprimanded she would threaten to take her traps and skidoo. This news of the arrival of a daughter failed to fill her with enthusiasm. Firstly, it meant more work; secondly, she had not bargained for it. When she took the place it was on the understanding that the family consisted only of an elderly gentleman and his wife, that there was practically no work, good wages, plenty to eat, with the privilege of an evening out when she pleased. Instead of this millennium she soon found Stott stalled as a permanent guest, and now a daughter was to be foisted on her. No wonder hardworking girls were getting sick and tired of housework!

That evening Stott and the judge came home earlier than usual, and from their dejected appearance Mrs. Rossmore divined bad news. The judge was painfully silent throughout the meal, and Stott was unusually grave. Finally the latter took her aside and broke it to her gently. In spite of their efforts and the efforts of their friends the congressional inquiry had resulted in a finding against the judge, and a demand had already been made upon the senate for his impeachment. They could do nothing now but fight it in the senate with all the influence they could muster. It was going to be hard, but Stott was confident that right would prevail. After dinner as they were sitting in silence on the porch, each measuring the force of this blow which they had expected, yet had always hoped to ward off, the crunching sound of a bicycle was heard on the quiet country road. The rider stopped at their gate and came up the porch, holding out an envelope to the judge, who, guessing the contents, had started forward. He tore it open. It was a cablegram from Paris and read as follows:

Am sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm today. SHIRLEY.

CHAPTER VII.

THERE was greater activity in the Rossmore cottage at Massapequa than there had been any day since the judge and his wife went to live there. Since daybreak Eudoxia had been scouring and polishing in honor of the expected arrival, and a hundred times Mrs. Rossmore had climbed the stairs to see that everything was as it should be in the room which had been prepared for Shirley. It was not, however, without a passage at arms that Eudoxia consented to consider the idea of an addition to the family. Mrs. Rossmore had said to her the day before:

"My daughter will be here tomorrow, Eudoxia."

A look expressive of both displeasure and astonishment marred the classic features of the hireling. Putting her broom aside and placing her arms akimbo, she exclaimed in an injured tone:

"And it's a dayther you've got now? So it's three in family you are! When I took the place, it's two you tould me there was!"

"Well, with your kind permission," replied Mrs. Rossmore, "there will be three in future. There is nothing in the constitution of the United States that says we can't have a daughter without consulting our help, is there?"

The sarcasm of this reply did not escape even the dull edged wits of the drudge. She relapsed into a dignified silence and a few minutes later was discovered working with some show of enthusiasm.

The judge was nervous and fidgety. He made a pretense to read, but it was plain to see that his mind was not on his book. He kept leaving his chair to go and look at the clock; then he would lay the volume aside and wander from room to room like a lost soul. His thoughts were on the dock at Hoboken.

By noon every little detail had been attended to, and there was nothing further to do but sit and wait for the arrival of Stott and Shirley. They were to be expected any moment now. The passengers had probably got off the steamer by 11 o'clock. It would take at least two hours to get through the customs and out to Massapequa. The judge and his wife sat on the porch counting the minutes and straining their ears to catch the first sound of the train from New York.

"I hope Stott broke the news to her gently," said the judge.

"I wish we had gone to meet her ourselves," sighed his wife.

The judge was silent, and for a moment or two he puffed vigorously at his pipe, as was his habit when disturbed mentally. Then he said:

"I ought to have gone, Martha, but I was afraid. I'm afraid to look my own daughter in the face and tell her that I am a disgraced man, that I am to be tried by the senate for corruption, perhaps impeached and turned off the bench as if I were a criminal. Shirley won't believe it; sometimes I can't believe it myself. I often wake up in the night and think of it as part of a dream, but when morning comes it's still true—it's still true!"

He smoked on in silence. Then happening to look up he noticed that his wife was weeping. He laid his hand gently on hers.

"Don't cry, dear; don't make it harder for me to bear. Shirley must see no trace of tears."

"I was thinking of the injustice of it all," replied Mrs. Rossmore, wiping her eyes.

"Fancy Shirley in this place, living from hand to mouth," went on the judge.

"That's the least," answered his wife. "She's a fine, handsome girl, well educated and all the rest of it. She ought to make a good marriage." No matter what state of mind Mrs. Rossmore might be in, she never lost sight of the practical side of things.

"Hardly with her father's disgrace hanging over her head," replied the judge wearily. "Who," he added, "would have the courage to marry a girl whose father was publicly disgraced?"

Both relapsed into another long silence, each mentally reviewing the past and speculating on the future. Suddenly Mrs. Rossmore started. Surely she could not be mistaken! No, the clanging of a locomotive bell was plainly audible. The train was in. From the direction of the station came people with parcels and hand bags and presently there was heard the welcome sound of carriage wheels crunching over the stones. A moment later they saw coming round the bend in the road a cab piled up with small baggage.

"Here they are! Here they are!" cried Mrs. Rossmore. "Come, Eudoxia!" she called to the servant, while she herself hurried down to the gate. The judge, fully as agitated as herself, only showing his emotion in a different way, remained on the porch, pale and anxious.

To be continued.

THEATRICAL

"Our Russian Soil" was the play presented by the Wilbur Stock Company last night. The piece was well received by the audience and Arnold C. Baldwin, as Ivan Korvick, and Charlotte Bolton, as Countess Dr-Badleon, were given good support by the rest of the cast.

The pair of tumblers did some stunts that pleased the audience very much. Madame Flower, the bronze Melba, was given a most enthusiastic reception. She has a soprano voice of wonderful range and was encored no less than four times singing in the order named, "Goodbye, Sweetheart, Goodbye," "Dreaming Love, of you" "My Old Kentucky Home," Bonnie Annie Laurie."

A movement has been started to raise a fund for the purpose of making a presentation from the people of Nova Scotia to the Prince of Wales on the occasion of His Highness's visit to Canada.

FIRE ALARM BOXES MUST NOT BE TAMPERED WITH

Stealing of Keys Has Became so Common That Something Has to be Done to Prevent—One of the Key Boxes Has Been Carried off.

Persons who meddle with the fire alarm system will be severely punished if apprehended. This has been firmly decided on by those in charge of the system as a result of the trouble experienced for some time by persons sending in false alarms, stealing the keys of the fire alarm boxes, and other acts of a similar nature. The officials have had one or two chances to prosecute in the past for offences of the above nature but did not go ahead with the matter. In the future, however, such leniency will not be shown. Any offenders who are apprehended will be prosecuted to the utmost extent.

Last night some one went further than in the past and stole the little box containing the key at the fire alarm box at the corner of King and George streets. The key box was taken from the pole and the key went with it. On being informed of what had happened, the superintendent of the system Mr. Packenham, had another box containing a key was placed on the pole but this morning it was open and the key gone.

The matter has become so serious that the city will likely offer a reward for information that will lead to the conviction of any one tampering with the fire alarm boxes.

"COME ON NOW IF YOU ARE GOING TO BLACKEN MY EYES"

The Above Was the Challenge a Bethune St. Lady Held Out to Her Neighbor a Few Days Ago—Lively Fracas Aired in Police Court This Morning—One Woman Fined Five Dollars.

Babies crying and a fierce outburst of language on the part of two women put the police court in an uproar this morning. The most amusing case that has been in the local court for some time was heard before His Worship Magistrate Dumble. Mrs Wm. Johnston was fined five dollars for assaulting Daisy Richards. She also was charged with using abusive language towards her but this case was dropped.

Mr F. D. Kerr appeared for Mrs. Richards and Mr G. M. Gordon defended Mrs. Johnston.

Mrs. Richards lives at 385 Bethune street and Mrs. Johnston at 383 Bethune street. There is no fence separating their backyards.

"On Wednesday evening last I went to the tap in the yard to get a pail of water," said Mrs. Richards in the witness box. "Mrs. Johnston came running out and grabbed me by the throat and threw me down. My husband rushed out and pulled her off. Mrs. Johnston picked up a chair and tried to hit, but she wasn't smart enough. A man living with Mrs. Johnston rushed out to help her."

"He doesn't live with me," shouted Mrs. Johnston.

"I told her that she had put her husband out to live with another man," continued Mrs. Richards. "and she threatened to kill me if she got me in the backyard. I had to have two doctors attend me as a result of abuse she gave me."

"Did you throw the pail of water on her," the complainant was asked.

"No sir," was the emphatic reply.

John Richards, the husband of the first witness was called.

"What do your know about the fracas," he was asked by Mr Kerr.

"Well," he began. "I saw Mrs. Johnston catch my wife with one hand and with the other she swung on her, knocking her to the ground. I then stepped on to the scene, simply as it was my duty, as my wife was not able to defend herself. I separated them and brought my wife unconscious to the house. I went out again to the yard and our boarder and Mrs. Johnston were tussling with a broom. My wife never spoke to the defendant but for some time has lived in terror of her."

Jas. Richards, a brother of the previous witness and the complainant's boarder were called and told about the affair, on Wednesday last. They each played a part in the fracas, Mrs. Johnston evidently making it lively for them all.

Mrs. Johnston went into the box, and told her story. "I saw my neighbor come out to the tap to get a pail of water," she said.

"Come on now, if you are going to blacken me," said Mrs. Johnston.

"Go and sit with your greasy Italians" replied Mrs. Richards.

"I'll make you kiss the dirt the Italians and I walk on, and with that reply I rushed at her and rubbed her face in the mud. Her husband came at me but I hit him with a chair."

"Were you mad" asked Mr Kerr of the witness.

"Why wouldn't I get mad when a woman yells at you 'get into the house with your fancy man.'" replied Mrs. Johnston.

"I'll let no one run on me if I am only a little thing," she continued.

"The better you treat people, the worse they treat you. I had to give Mrs. Richards the clothes she wears."

His Worship after giving both parties some good advice, imposed the above fine.

"I'd rather pay $25 than come here and face the class of people in this court," were Mrs. Johnston's parting words.

"That is rather hard on the court" said His Worship.

GOOD PROSPECTS OF LOCAL REGIMENT GETTING A RANGE

There is some prospect of the Dominion Government's providing the Peterborough Rangers with a rifle range some time before Gabriel sounds the last trump, and that's encouraging, if nothing else. While at Ottawa on Monday, Major Clegg and Major Bennett of the 57th Regiment, interviewed the Deputy Minister of Militia, Col. Fiset, and the chief engineer of the Militia Department, Mr. Ransom, and laid before them the need for a rifle range at Peterborough. The matter was gone into very fully and the Government officials agreed that something should be done at once to remedy the defect. Mr. Ransom was in favor of securing the old Curtis range and converting it into a first class range. Mr. Ransom, it may be mentioned, has visited Peterborough and is familiar with local conditions. Col. Fiset asked Majors Bennett and Clegg to submit to him particulars of properties available for a rifle range and assured them that the matter would be taken up at once.

BIG CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD

Religious Workers of America to Gather at East Northfield

East Northfield, Mass., May 13.—The annual series of conferences will begin on June 26th, and continue until August 16th. Some of the best known religious speakers of America and Europe have been engaged.

Among them are Rev. J. Stuart Holden, pastor of St. Paul's, Portman Square, London; Rev. R. A. Torrey, who is well known all over the country; Rev. A. T. Pearson, D. D., editor of "The Missionary Review of the World," Rev. Hugh Black, author of "Friendship;" Rev. Len. G. Broughton, of Atlanta; Rev. John A. Hutton, M.A., and Rev. W.L. Watkinson, both of London; Rev. C. A. R. Janvier, the Rev. John Douglas Adam, Mr. Robert E. Speer, Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, jr., the Rev. James E. Freeman and many others.

The student conference, the first of the series, June 26 to July 5, over which Mrs. John R. Mott presides, is to be attended by delegates from leading Eastern colleges and preparatory schools. Athletic, and out-of-door sports will not be neglected; swimming, rowing, tennis, and one or more baseball games taking place every day.

The young women's conference which follows is not especially designed for college women, but this year, delegations are expected from colleges and boarding schools, such as Wellesley, Dobbs Ferry School, and Dana Hall. During the conference the afternoons will be devoted to social affairs, or driving, boating, tennis, etc.

The latter half of July will be given over to the Women's Home Missionary Conference, July 16 to 20; and the summer schools the first for Sunday school workers, July 18 to 25; and the second for Women's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 21 to 28.

The general conference, July 31 to August 16, founded by Mr. D. L. Moody is responsible for that sort of sanctity with which the name of name of Northfield is invested. This year Mr. W. R. Moody has engaged four speakers from abroad. The singing alone, in which at times more than three thousand voices are joined, under the leadership of Mr. Charles M. Alexander, is always beautiful.

OBITUARY

MR. PATRICK WALSH

Mr. Bernard Walsh of this city has been bereaved by the death of his father, Mr. Patrick Walsh, who has passed away in Lindsay. Concerning his death, the Lindsay Post says,

Mr Patrick Walsh, of 30 St. Paul street; Lindsay, died on Wednesday night at the advanced age of 83 years. His wife predeceased him nearly five years ago. He leaves three sons and three daughters to mourn his loss: John and Armand, Lindsay, and Bernard, of Peterborough; also Lizzie, of Lindsay; Mrs. R. Gillespie, of Bobcaygeon, Mrs. John Maguire of Galway township. The deceased gentleman was a lifelong member of the Roman Catholic church. He never acquired much of this world's goods, although in fairly comfortable circumstances. He underwent the hardships incident to the early settlers in Canada.

He was born in Ireland in the county of Tipperary, and came to this country with his parents in the year [illegible] an infant at the time. His mother settled in the township of Otonabee when the present city of Peterborough was only a hamlet, his father dying shortly after landing in the vicinity of Cobourg, like many more Irishmen, with the terrible fever that was raging at the time. He never reached his destination.

Patrick Walsh was brought up and lived in Cavan township until he married Ellen Quinn, of Cavan township Ont., in 1853. He lived in Otonabee for a while then moved to Emily, township in a few years to Lindsay, where they lived for some years. Mr Walsh then went to the township of Harvey to locate a new home and subsequently brought his family there. They all remained there on a farm for over 30 years when he returned to Lindsay last July, somewhat broken in health. Since that time he had gradually become weaker his life passing out on Wednesday.

Interment was made in the Roman Catholic cemetery in Fenelon township.

AN ADDRESS TO CANON DAVIDSON

From St. John's Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew

The members of St. John's Chapter of the Brotherhood of St Andrew met last night and, after the usual business was transacted, adjourned to the schoolroom where refreshments were served by Messrs. Coleman Bros.

Mr. S. Jay, director, in a few well chosen words presented Canon Davidson with a framed address, on the occasion of his departure for England for four months.

Canon Davidson feelingly responded thanking the Brotherhood for the way they had supported him in his work in the parish during the last nineteen years.

"For he's a jolly good fellow" was heartily sung and three cheers for the Canon and Mrs. Davidson were given in right royal style.

Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Conway, Linton, Bell, Hooper, Devey, Williams, Pretty, Lumley, and others, all speaking of the sterling, self-sacrificing qualities of the rector, and wishing him God speed.

The address was as follows:

To the Rev. Canon Davidson, M.A., Rector of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

Reverend and Honored Sir, — We, the members of St. John's chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew wish to take this opportunity of expressing our continued confidence in you as our spiritual adviser and leader, on this, the eve of your departure for England to attend the great Pan-Anglican Congress.

Although you are leaving us for the short period of only four months, yet we cannot help feeling that this will seem a much longer period, owing to the absence of your kindly presence at our meetings, and of your inspiring influence throughout the whole parish of St. John's.

We know how you have labored unceasingly for the advancement of God's Kingdom, by your self-sacrificing efforts so unostentatiously put forth for the uplifting and wellbeing of your fellow men.

The strenuous work done by you during the past three months is, we think, without parallel in the history of this parish, and has, we are sure, borne good fruit. Your rest is well deserved.

It is our earnest wish and prayer that you will receive renewed strength and vigor, by your trip to the old land.

We pray that God's blessing may rest upon you and we look forward with feelings of joy to your safe return amongst us.

Signed on behalf of the Brotherhood.

A DREAM CASE IS REPORTED FROM LINDSAY

Lindsay, May 12.—Dreams are the essence of mystery. Their causes and origin are unknown. By curious and undiscovered mental processes, impressions are left on the brain of a person during the hours of slumber, and so vividely are these impressions made that the remembrance of them lingers with the dreamer long after he awakens. Extraordinary cases of dreams being instrumental in the discovery of crime are on record, and many people believe implicity in the power of dreams to foretell events.

A curious case of this nature is reported from the neighborhood of Haliburton. At Craig & Austin's siding some time ago a man, who had previously committed a robbery and for whom a warrant was out, was missing. He was but scantily clad when seen last during a cold day in March, when he had taken to the woods. A woman in the vicinity twice dreamed, according to a traveller, who had spent some time in that vicinity, that she saw the man lying dead beside a log. The repetition of the dream has awakened a good deal of interest in the locality.

To go back to the story of the missing man, it will be remembered that some time in March last an Englishman named Maddock, working in the camp of the chemical company, near Craig & Austin's siding, stole $110 and a gold watch from a fellow Englishman. The same day of the theft Superintendent T. Hodgins, of the gang working at the chemical works, saw the thief about twelve miles from the camp, while he was riding on the train. He stopped the train and gave pursuit, catching his man and taking the gold watch and, $80 from him. The thief then escaped and was chased for a mile by the athletic superintendent, finally taking to the woods and escaping. Nothing was heard of him since. A warrant was issued for his arrest shortly after the time. Maddock was dressed very thinly, and the weather was piercing cold at the time, while no refuge could be found within miles of where he went into the woods. The theory of him being lost and ultimately frozen to death is not improbable. The location of the body in the women's dream was not definite.

You Can Easily Operate This Typewriter Yourself

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt—that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos — or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own handwriting.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you cant afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memos—make out your accounts, or a hotel menu—or do any kind of writing you need, on ANY kind, size or thickness of paper, and SPACE any way you want, on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn, with a little practice, to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly, as an expert operator on the OLIVER. Because the OLIVER is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 80% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

80% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humoring"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance polices, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate.

You can adjust the OLIVER to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the OLIVER is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man who does his own writing.

Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the OLIVER.

WILL DISROBE IN A BOX THAT IS EIGHTEEN INCHES SQUARE

An Unusually Interesting Act Secured for Programme on Night of Rogers-Hurtubise Bout—George Clapp the Performer—Has Done Aerial Work With Japanese Partner

A special feature of more than ordinary interest will be put on at e Grand Opera House on the night the Yankee Rogers-Hurtubise bout. hen Mr. George Clapp, of Toronto, d an aerial artist of repute, will a novelty box act which has never t been put on by any performer. is interesting turn will be given part of the programme of the ening. The box in which the stunt ll be performed will be 16 inches h and 18 inches square, the space ing remarkably small for anybody double up in. The act is a most iginal one and requires anyone do it to be more or less of a contortionist, and a great deal of skill and actise besides. It is by no means rely a contortionist feature contortionists have been foiled in tempting to do the act.

DISROBES IN BOX.

Besides getting into the box, which a wonderful feat in itself, Mr. app takes off the full dress suit he ars when he goes into the box and pears in a suit of tights he wears derneath his clothes. There is trickery or deceit in connection th the performance and it is simply acquired by constant rehearsal allowed for by the possession of unusually agile and supple physi- make-up. While the disrobing being done the cover of the box held secure by a strong padlock.

AN AERIAL PERFORMANCE.

Mr. Clapp has had much experience and has appeared in company with a partner, Clarence Van Horne, in trapeze, flying rings and revolving ladder work. For two years they were on the Taylor and Taylor circuit giving exhibitions at Fort William, Sudbury, North Bay and other towns east after coming over from the Michigan circuit, and also at Lindsay, Belleville, Kingston and other eastern places.

HOLDS RECORD.

At the Carmen Opera House, Belleville, Mr. Clapp established the barrel jumping record, clearing nine barrels laid down on the stage. A jump of eight barrels was the record previous to this clever accomplishment.

JAPANESE PARTNER.

Mr. Clapp's partner, from whom he separated about seven months ago, was Clarence Van Horne, who is now giving aerial exhibitions in company with another performer, at Sunlight Park, San Francisco. Although his name would not indicate it, Van Horne is a Japanese. He adopted the above name on coming to the Western world. He is a fine artist in his line of work.

QUIT 7 MONTHS AGO.

Clapp is 5 feet 6 inches and a half in height, and weighs in tights about 128 pounds, a good sized man to get in so small a box. He quit the business of doing aerial stunts about seven months ago and decided to take up his trade as a barber.

ATURDAYS'S BALL GAME SHOULD BE A LIVELY ONE

iverside Park is drying up in fine pe and will be in good condition Saturday's game between the Pet prough and the Alerts of Toronto local fans are on tip toe in their iety to get a line on Manager son's bunch and the attendance uld be well up in the hundreds. Alerts are bringing down a great line-up and are intent on victory. Judging by the form they have shown in practice the Petes are all to the candy and hope to open the season with a win. There will be something doing all the time and the game should abound in sensational features. Clements and Edmunds will be the battery for the local nine.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings, which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

GUESS AT MAKEUP OF THE CANADIAN OLYMPIC TEAM

o only fifteen athletes are to go ngland in the Canadian track . ell, six should be Marathon runners. ow is this for a selection for the athon:

n—Longboat, Irish-Canadians, Toronto.

Tom Coley, St. Patrick's, Hamilton.

Harry Lawson, West Ends, Toronto.

Fred Simpson, Peterborough.

Hans Homer, Halifax Harriers.

Art Burn, Calgary.

That selection gives both the East and the West representatives in the big race though at that runners around here cannot see that Burn has any chance.

DON'T LIKE BURN.

"He won't be within the first ten in the run," remarked one runner here who know shim. "Homer is a dangerous man."

The Eastern and Western champions should get a chance, unless they are badly trimmed here in the finals.

HOW ABOUT THE OTHERS?

Here is a guess at the other nine men of the team:

100 and 200 metres—Bobby Kerr, Hamilton.

400 metres—Lukeman, of Montreal.

800 metres—Irving Parkes, West Ends, Toronto.

5 miles—George Adams, Irish-Canadians, Toronto, with Tom Coley, Jack Tait, and Harry Lawson from the other events to help him out.

3,500 metres walk—George Goulding, Centrals, Toronto.

Running high jump—M. J. Creed, Irish-Canadians, Toronto.

Running hop, step and jump—M. J. Creed, Irish-Canadians, Toronto.

Pole Vault—Halpenny, of Montreal.

400 metres hurdles—George Barber, of West End Y.M.C.A.

Longboat, Coley, Lawson, Kerr, Creed, Tait, Parkes, and Goulding look like certainties, but in the 400 metres Lukeman will have to step some to beat Lou Sebert, Joe White and Geo. Barber if they try a whirl at it. Adams will have to step lively to beat Don McCuaig, of Hamilton, if he cares to try; Galbraith and Goldsboro, of Centrals; Fred Meadows, of West Ends, Tom Shipman, of Montreal, and half a dozen other lively steppers, and in the pole vault the Montreal man will have to reckon with Ed. Archibald, of West Ends.

Barber, in the hurdles, too, will have to meet Bricker and Worthington. But Barber has the speed for the distance, though it is just a chance if he has enough to journey the distance fast enough to have a chance across the water. In weights and standing broad jump and short hurdles we haven't a chance. The javelin and discus, too, are beyond us and so is the steeplechase, unless some one does unexpected time. We will have no tug-of-war team, but might make up three-mile team race and relay teams from the distance runners and sprinters. A nice relay team would be Kerr, Lukeman, Barber and Parkes. In this race two men go 200 metres each, one does 400 metres, and one 800 metres, roughly eight, quarter, and half mile.—Toronto Star.

PRACTICE OF "Y" LACROSSE TEAM

HAVELOCK CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Will Have Strong Team in the Midland Football League

Havelock, May 12. — An enthusiastic football meeting was held in the council chamber on May 6th, with a large number in attendance. It was decided to put a team in the Midland League, and a strong one at that, that will make the other teams in the league look wise.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—E. J. Murphy.

Hon. Vice-Pres.—Jas. E. Thompson.

President—H. Roche.

1st Vice-Pres.—V. V. Harshaw.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Dr. J. Holdcraft.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Jas. E. Fowler.

Manager—K. McKay.

Captain—H. Meade.

Treasurer—T. Dineen.

Secretary—T. P. Lancaster.

Curator—F. Watson.

Grounds Committee—J. White, F. Watson, Wm. Bulfied, E. Robinson, W. H. Vair, H. Matheson.

Executive—Dineen, Lancaster, McBurney, Patterson, Andrews.

Committee to select team — Andrews, Quackenbush, Plunket, McKay and Meade.

The membership fee was set at 50c for seniors and 25c for juniors.

Havelock will put a good team in the field this year and will play their initial game with Warkworth on Saturday, May 16th.

The following is the list of games which Havelock will play:

May 16th—Havelock at Warkworth.

May 25th—Hastings at Havelock.

May 30th—Havelock at Hastings.

June 6th—Warkworth at Havelock.

June 13th—Campbellford at Havelock.

June 20th—Havelock at Campbellford.

Hastings is booked to play a game at Havelock on May 25th, but Havelock has already agreed to play an exhibition game with Norwood on that date.

Havelock will have a lineup the equal of which has never been seen in this league, something like the following:

Goal Wm. Rose.

Backs—H. T. Andrews, W. McMullen.

Half Backs—K. McKay, Wm. Bulfied, E. Robinson.

Centre—H. Meade.

Right wing—W. Vare, Lancaster.

Left wing—H. Mathison, M. Neil.

THE WALK AT ST. CATHARINES

Newspaper There Says it Will be a Successful Event

The last number of the St. Catharines Star-Journal contains an article on the six day walk to be held there commencing Monday, June 15th. The article which is illustrated with cuts of Chas. A. Stevens, the champion boy walker, and Jas. Harrison, a being taken in the event and let- who is referred to as the champion walker of Canada is as follows:

Monday, June 15th, will see the opening of a great six days' walking contest in the Phelps Street Roller Rink. Great and widespread interest ters of inquiry have already been received from distant points in Canada and the United States. Some of the fastest men in Canada will compete, among them, Jas. Harrison, the champion of England, Stevens of Peterborough, the "Boy Wonder of Canada," and Hartley the long distance champion.

The contest will commence at 8 o'clock Monday evening, June 15th, and will continue for three hours nightly from 8 till 11 p.m. until Saturday, when the start will be made at 2 p.m and the great event will finish at 11 o'clock.

The rink management is sparing no effort to make this event one of the most notable and successful of the season. There is little doubt that scores of contestants will be attracted by it as a number have already written asking for full particulars.

WILL MEET ON THE MAT AGAIN

Muldoon and Edmunds to Come Together—Forfiet of $50 Posted

That Young Muldoon's challenge to Art Edmunds, his conqueror in Saturday night's match, was in earnest was evidenced by the fact that he posted a $50 forfeit to meet Edmunds again any place Edmunds named, either public or private. Edmunds covered the money this morning, and after some negotiations the new Crescent Athletic Club secured the bout for the Labor Temple Saturday night. This match is at catch weights. Edmunds refunded Muldoon's weight forfeit which was turned over to him before Saturday night's bout because Muldoon was over 138 pounds.

PORT HOPE TO HAVE A WALK

36 Hour Grind Will be Held There From July 1st to 4th Inclusive At Old Boy's Reunion

A big 36 hour walking grind will be held at Port Hope on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th of July, the days of the Old Boys' reunion in that town. Mr. George Stevens had been the promoter of the walk.

The event will be open to the world and it is expected that Jimmy Reynolds, Jim Harrison, Charlie Stevens and American cracks will enter. It will be held nine hours a day for the four days. The occasion for holding the walk seems a more opportune one as there will be a great majority of Port Hope's sons and daughters in the lakeside town for the reunion. The long grind will give Reynolds a better chance than a shorter hour walk would.

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realize the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

LAKEFIELD

Special to the Review

Lakefield, May 12 — The school board has engaged J E Belcher, C.E. to go on with the extension of the public school. The intention is to add four new rooms to the present building and increase the teaching staff so that fifth class work may be taken up after the summer holidays, thus raising the standing to Grade A, which will entitle the school to an increased grant from the Provincial Government.

The Sherin Estate are putting in new plate glass fronts in the stores occupied by Messrs Hurl, Hendron, and Lakefield News. This will be a decided improvement to the business section of the town.

There will be considerable building going on this summer in Lakefield including the new Methodist church, a $10,000 structure on Regent St. The extension of the school, mentioned above. A E Kennedy will also erect a large residence on Smith St. and there are one or two dwellings going up on Queen street north.

The town council have added a quantity of new hose to the fire fighting apparatus of the village. In addition to this the Lakefield Portland Cement Company have added a new pump house and hose and the Cavendish Lumber Company a considerable amount of hose to their buildings, which will be very beneficial in case of fires.

Mr R R Darcy and Miss Anastasia Hannahan were united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the Roman Catholic church at seven thirty this morning. The Rev. Father Phelan officiated.

Mr George Agnew of Toronto spent Sunday in the village visiting friends

Mrs. C. R. Tanner who has been visiting her parents at Enniskillen, returned home on Saturday.

The Cavendish Lumber Company are unable to start operations in their mill on account of the exceeding high water in the river at present. This is proving a drawback to the season's work.

Mrs. J. P. Lillicrap has returned to the village after a very pleasant vacation with her daughter, Mrs. H. Stuart of Claresholm, Alta.

Mr Dickson Davidson and Mr. Fred Dixon passed through the village on Monday en route to Jack's Lake.

Rev. S. S. Burns left on Monday for Toronto, where he will attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church.

Miss L. Montgomery spent a few days in Young's Point this week visiting friends.

It is understood that the Lakefield Milling Company intend installing on their premises at the Grand Trunk station an elevator, in the near future, where they will be prepared to do chopping and purchasing of grain.

The contract for the new Methodist church has been let to Mr. Abel Hendren, who will commence operations at once.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE PAN-ANGLICAN CONGRESS

To be Held in London, England, From June 15th to the 23rd—Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's Church Sails on Saturday for the Old Country—Will Represent the Diocese of Moosonee

Rev. Canon Davidson leaves on Friday for Montreal from which place he will sail on Saturday morning by the steamship "Kensington" for London, England, where he will attend the Pan-Anglican Congress. Mr Davidson has had the honor bestowed upon him of representing the diocese of Moosonee, at London. The Pan Anglican Congress will be the greatest assemblage in the history of the Church of England. Nearly five years have been spent in preparation for it.

ITS OBJECT

The object of this great congress is to give expression to thoughts opinions and counsels of churchmen regarding the present mission of the church. It will be a consultation between bishops, clergy and leading laity throughout the world as to what the present and future mission of the church is and to discuss the underlying principles of Christianity. Congress will also consider principles of Gospel, the social, ecclestiastical and scientific sides of religion and especially the importance of giving the Christian religion to heathen races.

REPRESENTATIVES TO CONGRESS

This great assembly will be composed of all the Bishops, and six elected representatives from over 250 dioceses and to which is added as many representatives from the different dioceses in England as can be accommodated. The number of tickets issued two months ago had passed the five thousand mark and arrangements are being made for extra meetings.

SECTIONS OF CONGRESS.

The Congress will be divided into seven sections which will meet in the great halls of London, beginning Monday, June 15th, and ending, June 23rd. In the evenings great united meetings will be held in Albert Hall, which accommodates 10,000 persons. The different sections will deal with different departments of the church's thought and activity.

SUBJECTS TO BE DISCUSSED.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be:

"The Church and Human Society."
"The Church and Human Thought."
"The Church and Human Ministry."
"The Church and Ministry."
"The Mission Problems in Christian and Christian Lands."
"The Training of the Young."

Canon Davidson will be a member of Section F, the subject being the Anglican Commission, dealing with its essentials and non-essentials — its possibilities of intercommunion and reunion with separated bodies. Canon Davidson received a letter a few days ago from Bishop Montgomery, head of the Section, asking him to take part in the discussion.

SERVICE IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY

The opening communion service will be held in Westminster Abbey on the morning of June 15th. Another great service will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral on June 21th, when the offerings from the several dioceses will be made and which, it is expected, will total fully $500,000. At this service, too, a large number of men will offer themselves for work in the mission field. An English Bishop has set a good example by giving up his position in England and going into the foreign mission field.

SOCIAL SIDE OF CONGRESS

The social functions of the Congress will include a reception at Lord Strathcona's residence and multitudes of offers have been received to entertain the representatives during and after the sessions. Two large country homes have been placed at the disposal of the visitors. The Westminster Palace Hotel will be placed in the hands of the representatives for use.

Following the great congress, the Lambeth Conference of Bishops will be held.

Mr. N. F. Davidson, a leading layman of Toronto, and brother of Rev. Canon Davidson, will be one of the representatives at the Congress.

CHIEF RUTHERFORD'S DENIAL; CONTRADICTS ALD. BULLER

Chief Rutherford, of the Peterborough Fire Brigade desires to deny the statement of Ald. Buller that he told that gentleman that it was time, for a change in the local fire brigade and says he never made such a statement to any person. Ald. Buller at the last meeting of the City Council on Monday, May 12th, said the chief had informed him that in his opinion it was time for a change in the brigade.

Chief Rutherford informed the local press to-day that he never had been consulted by any alderman or aldermen or any municipal committee concerning the question of a paid brigade and was never given an opportunity of expressing an official opinion in the matter.

LOOKS LIKE TROUBLE AHEAD FOR PERSONS RESPONSIBLE

For Removal of Bodies From Cemetery at Port Hope Without the Consent of Parties Interested

Apparently there is trouble ahead for the trustees of the Port Hope Presbyterian church. Below will be found an excerpt from a letter received by the wife of a prominent Peterborough citizen from a cousin in Toronto:—

"You will be shocked to hear that the trustees of the Port Hope Presbyterian church have sold the graveyard for building lots and turned the church into six dwellings. They took up the remains of our dear ones and moved them to another part, moved monuments, posts, etc., without consulting any of us, and coolly sold the ground. Cassie has empowered Percy to go down and call them to account. We feel very badly about it, but will force them to give us a plot in the new cemetery and pay all costs of a second removal. They were told by Judge —— they could not do it, and also by another lawyer, and they thought we would never hear of it, and it was only by the merest chance we did. But they will be sorry for disturbing our dead. Your husband's grandfather and mother were there; my father and mother, two sisters, brother, and Jimmy's child, were all put into two boxes and re-buried. Is it not dreadful?"

C. P. R. REDUCE THE NUMBER OF MEN IN THEIR SECTIONS

Owing to the decrease in business on the C.P.R. during the past month, the company have decided to reduce the number of men in their sections. They have discharged a man from each one. Now there is only a foreman and two men in each section. This means that there are an exceedingly large number of men out of employment, as there are sections every six miles on the railroad.

On the local C.P.R. siding is a car in which are living a number of Italians, who are out of work. They were discharged some days ago, but continue to live in the C.P.R. car.

CHILD'S SEVERE BURNS
HEALED BY ZAM-BUK

The little girl of Mrs. Lewis Best of Carlisle, P.O., recently fell against the stove and burned her forehead very badly. Mrs. Best says; "The burn was about the size of a fifty cent piece and was near the bone. It made my little girl's eye swell till it almost shut, and then she got cold in it. It began to run matter very badly and I could not stop it, although I bathed it good every night and morning. At last I sent for some Zam-Buk which soon stopped the matteration and very quickly healed the wound. I have never seen a burn heal so quickly and I am sure Zam-Buk has no equal for curing cuts, or burns, and I shall always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

Every home needs Zam-Buk! All diseases of the skin quickly yields to it. It is also an excellent remedy for piles—blind or bleeding —rheumatism, etc. All druggists and stores 50 cents a box, or post paid from the Zam-Buk Co. Toronto.

Napanee will be without gas for the rest of the month, as the gas house was burned on Saturday, causing a $5,000 loss.

CHISEL CUT AN ARTERY

Accident to Mr. John Williams at Normal School Yesterday—Taken to St. Joseph's Hospital

Mr. John Williams, a carpenter who came here yesterday from Guelph, was injured while working on the new Normal school building the sharp edge of a chisel striking him on the wrist and severing an artery.

The chisel fell from the edge of an overhead platform, Mr. Williams having occasion to remove a ladder that was resting against the platform and the jar caused the chisel to fall. He was removed to Dr. McGrath's office and later to St. Joseph's Hospital. He was able to leave the hospital to-day. Mr. Williams was weakened considerably by the cut, losing much blood.

Alex. Hamilton, of Sturgeon Falls one of Nipissing's leading Lumbermen, is dead.

Chase's grist mill, near Napanee, was razed to the ground by fire on Friday night.

STAR BOWLER AT LOCAL ALLEYS

Bowled at P.B.C. Yesterday Afternoon—Had to Leave for Home

W. V. Thompson, manager and captain of Thompson's Colts, Chicago, the champion of the world, was at the Peterboro Bowling Club yesterday afternoon. Bowling against W. Stroud, he made 230, 176 and 203 and ran up 768 in a game with C. Fletcher of the Brunswicke, Balke, Collander Co., using only his left hand, except on spares. Thompson is a very skilful bowler and was simply working out for his exhibition at night. He was suddenly called home, however, and was forced to leave the city on the 4.18 C. P. R. train.

I. RICHEA MADE GOOD SCORES

Won Three Consecutive and Single Game Prizes at Majestic Bowling Alleys

Mr. J. Richea is the winner of the prize of $5 in gold presented by Mr. J. T. Smyth, proprietor of the Majestic Bowling Alleys, for the bowler making the highest score in three consecutive games during the month up to May 9th. Richea's score was 561, and it came pretty close to the three successive game record for the alleys, which is 568.

He also won the box of cigars for the best single score made during the above mentioned period, establishing the alley record of 243. Mr. Clare Gutterson held the previous record of 244. Mr. Richea has been given both prizes.

LADIES TAKING MUCH INTEREST

In Coming Wrestling Match—Special Section Reserved for Them

The ladies of the city are apparently taking quite an interest in the wrestling match between Yankee Rogers and "Gene" Hurtubise, and promise to turn out for it as well as they did for the walk at Brock street rink, and as they do for other athletic games and sports.

A bill of clean and fascinating sport will be provided. Wrestling is one of the most fascinating sports imaginable and very fast and scientific. The contests on the 22nd will be unusually interesting. The first will be a three-round boxing go between Corney Burns and "Buddy" Edmunds an English boxer, for a decision. The second will be a match for the featherweight championship of Peterborough between Bobby Long and A. C. Yokome, and the third will be the bout of the evening, when Gene Hurtubise and Yankee Rogers will come together in a handicap contest. Rogers to throw Gene three times in an hour or lose the match. Rogers is one of the best heavyweights in the world and is wonderfully strong and well scienced.

The big athletic entertainment will be held in the Grand Opera House and a special section of seats will be reserved for ladies and their escorts. No smoking, of course, will be allowed and the affair will be conducted under the best of auspices.

BOWLING

A team composed of five Johns will play Munro's Colts at the Majestic Bowling Alleys on Friday night.

Bob Browne, of the Review staff, would like to play Sam Baker's Picks some evening next week.

ATHLETICS

It is understood that "Reg" Bloomfield, champion trick canoeist of the world, comes to Lindsay in the near future. He will take the position of accountant in the Dominion Bank, here, vice Mr. Harry Rush, transferred to Montreal.

THIS INSPECTION IS A SPECIAL ONE

57th Regiment Will be Inspectde Twice This Year

It is learned that the inspection of the 57th Regiment, which is to take place on May 20th, will not be the regular inspection of the corps. The regular annual inspection will take place towards the end of June, the same as in past years. The inspection by General Lake on May 20th is a special event. It will take place at Riverside Park, if the grounds are dry enough by that time.

Partridges' Devotion.

Few birds are so devoted to one another as partridges; but, like other much less affectionate birds, they seem to get over their bereavements in a remarkably short space of time. When a covey in September takes a fancy to lying in a particular bit of clover or a little patch of rough grass and thistles you may be almost sure of finding them there at certain times of the day, and unless they are disturbed too frequently there they will be found so long as any of them are left. They are devoted alike to each other and to particular spots, but their family fondness is only existent so long as the object of their affections is visible.

DISTRICT CONVENTION OF W.M.S. HELD AT NORWOOD

Encouraging Reports Presented by Several Branches—Programme One of Much Interest—Other News From the East Peterborough Capital.

Special to the Review.

Norwood, May 12—The annual convention of the Campbellford district of the Woman's Missionary Society, was held in the Methodist church, on Wednesday, May 6. Mrs G W Hammond, district organiser was in charge. The morning session was opened at ten o'clock when devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Anderson of Hastings. After a good deal of business routine, a question debate was conducted by Mrs. Hammond and at noon adjournment was made for luncheon, which was most daintily laid, served in one of the large parlors of the church by the ladies of the Norwood Auxiliary.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock, Mrs. Rev. Balfour, of Havelock, conducting devotional service. Mrs. Rev Adams, read a paper on the "Origin and progress of our Society," and Mrs. Rev. Harrison, read one on "How shall we interest our women in missions" and Miss Curry of Stirling one on the "Importance of training children in mission work.' Discussion were led by Mrs. Hamilton of Warkworth, and Mrs. Ashton of Campbellford while the session was varied by solos rendered by Miss Duffield and Mrs H. Houson. The records of the year are of a gratifying nature There are at present tne ing nature. There are at present ten auxiliaries in the district which have received $377 and increase of $30. There are also four Mission Bands and one Mission Circle which are spreading missionary knowledge among the young.

The afternoon session was closed by an exercise the "Movement of truth' by nine of the Norwood Methosidt Mission Band girls.

Miss Curry of Stirling, who is visiting Miss Una Duffield, rendered a very pleasing solo in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

Rev Mr Frost, of South Dummers, took charge of the morning service in the Methodist church here while tne Rev Mr. Adams conducted the service in South Dummer.

Rev Mr. Stirling, of Havelock, preached morning and evenig in the Presbyterian church while Rev G A McLennan took charge of the services in the Presbyterian church in Havelock.

Mr and Mrs J Frappy have returned from Stirling where they have been visiting for some time.

A lively runaway took place last Thursday morning. Mr. Johnston's horse which he had delivering milk became frightened and started off at a lively rate. However it did not run far being stopped at Finlay's factory, but not before doing considerable damage. Mr Johnston hired another wagon and was soon on his rounds again.

The Board of Education met on May 11th at the chairman's office at 4.30 o'clock. There were present.—Messrs J L Squire, chairman; C W. Waters, W Webster, E P Cuffe, F. Anderson, W Campbell, A S Harrison J Doherty, A J Robertson, T Drain, and Mr. Brackenridge. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted. The property committee reported that the fence between the schools and the park had been completed.

The matter of fire escapes was laid over for the next meeting.

The auditors' report was presented to the board and on motion of Messrs Robertson and Drain was handed to the financial committee.

The report of the High School Inspector was read by the chairman.

Moved by Mr Campbell, seconded by Mr Waters that the Inspector's report be accepted and laid over for further consideration at the next meeting of the Board.

Moved by Mr Brackenridge, seconded by Mr Webster, that the board meet on Wednesday, June 10, at 7.30 o'clock instead of Monday, June 8th—Carried.

Accounts were received as follow Messrs. W H Tucker and Bros.

John Monogue, building HS fence, $63.58.

Moved by Mr. Waters, seconded by Mr. Drain, that Mr Monogue's account be left with Mr Doherty and Mr Tucker's be left with Mr Cuffe, to be paid on their order.

Board then adjourned.

Mrs Mills of Campbellford spent Sunday in Norwood, the guest of Mrs G E Mills, Peterborough street.

Miss Gertie Hill of Hastings was in town on Wednesday last.

We are pleased to say that Mr Richard Nicol, who has been confined to the house for some time, is able to be out again.

Mr H W Stevenson who has been very ill is recovering very slowly.

Miss Olive Stevenson, of Montreal, is at her home in this village owing to the serious illness of her father, Mr. W H Stevenson.

Funeral of Late Alex. Hamilton Took Place Yesterday---Held Under Masonic Auspices

The funeral of the late Alexander Hamilton, who passed away in Sturgeon Falls on Saturday last, took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of Dr. Morrison, 312 Hunter street, to the Little Lake cemetery. It was held under Masonic auspices and many turned out to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of a former well-known and highly respected resident of Peterborough.

Revs. R. A. Pogue and H. M. Manning conducted the service at the house, while the Masonic service was conducted by Worshipful Master Lord, of Peterborough Lodge, and Rev. Wm. Major, who acted as chaplain. At the grave Revs. Pogue and Manning officiated, while the Masonic service was in charge of Rev. Wm. Major and Worshipful Master Spence.

The pall bearers were Messrs Wm. Irwin, W. H. Hill, Peter Campbell, Robert Fair, Young, of North Bay, and Nixon, of Sturgeon Falls.

The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous.

Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs Herbert accompanied the remains to Peterborough. The family have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review Does Not Hold itself Responsible for Opinions Expressed by Correspondents

TIME FOR A CHANGE

Editor of the Review:

Sir.—The public have heard now at least four times from Mr. Stratton that Cochrane, Moore and Elliott had been fired through the instigation of Mr. Bradburn. Suppose Mr. Stratton changes the tale and gives a little bit of ancient history about the part he played in the Ludgate-McWilliams affair. I am sure it would be interesting if told just as happened, and as he has never told it from the platform, it looks as if he were ashamed of it and would like to let sleeping dogs lie. Play fair, Mr. Stratton, and don't harp on one string all the time, as it gets "darned" monotonous, and I am sure the above named very unfortunate trinity would sleep just as soundly if you'd drop the subject of their being fired. Let us know when you will give that bit of history, for we'd all be there to applaud.

ONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO HEAR.

A RETROSPECT

Editor of the Review:

Sir—Since the Grit convention in Peterborough the Examiner has done considerable whining in Mr. Gillespie's name, for bonds binding the candidates and of course, their supporters, to conduct a pure election.

Quite a flood of crocodile tears has been shed by the Examiner over the refusal of Mr. Bradburn to pay any attention to the insulting proposal and in that flood he may see himself reflected as others saw him in other days.

When as Byron would say into himself he threw himself and in himself was drowned. Now, Sir, I am one of those who think that the importance of pure elections to a self-governing community cannot be over-estimated.

Unless the ballot box is regarded as sacred the foundation on which the whole superstructure rests becomes insecure—when tampering with ballot boxes and all the machinery of election goes as far as it did under Ross rule, then popular government ceases to be a reality and becomes a sham and a pretence.

In proof of this I need only point you to the switching of ballot boxes by deputy returning officers acting under false names in West Elgin and the hiring of a gang of personators carried by the Minnie M. to outstanding polls in the Soo election which were parts of the general system by which Government by the people was replaced by government by the pluggers and personators.

Have we not had several bye-elections since the Whitney Government came into power, and I have yet to hear of even a breath of suspicion cast on the fairness with which they were conducted.

If the Whitney Government had done nothing else upon which to base its claims for a renewal of confidence it would be justified in asking for that renewal on these grounds alone.

Yours truly,

MILITIA CAMPS WILL BE HELD

It is Now Proposed to Take Only the City Corps to the Quebec Celebration

Ottawa, May 13—It is understood that the programme of holding a review on the Plains of Abraham at the Quebec Tercentenary are being subjected to extensive alterations in the direction of reduction. The proposal to take virtually all the rural corps of Eastern Canada to Quebec has been abandoned and the proposal now is to take the city corps at full strength. In this connection the question of allowing them full pay is under debate.

As a result of the re-arrangement the annual camps will be held.

The abandonment of the larger plan is believed to be due largely to the railway difficulty.

FROM KEENE

Mr. Arthur Scriver spent Sunday in Keene, the guest of his parents.

Misses Marry Dell and Pansy Pue attended the Missionary convention at Peterborough last week as delegates from the Keene Methodist church.

Misses Agnes and Nellie McCrae visited friends in Peterborough last week.

Beginning Tuesday, May 15th, the village stores will close at 6 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Miss Annie Hare visited friends in Peterborough last week.

Miss McKittrick who has been the guest of Miss Maud Eason, returned to her home in Petrolea this week.

A meeting in the interests of the Liberal party will be held in the town hall, Friday evening, May 15, Mr. Patrick McNulty, the candidate, and Mr. Sam Clarke, Cobourg, will give addresses.

Arbor Day was celebrated on Monday, both the previous Fridays being unfit days for cleaning up. A good number of men turned out and a considerable amount of cleaning was done.

The suckers are up at the dam and quite a number are being caught.

BUY CASEY MOUNTAIN SHARES

IN THE

Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Development Company, Limited.

Chartered by the Ontario Government.

Authorized Capital - - - $250,000.00

Par Value of Shares Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable, $1.00

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

PRESIDENT—R G. Williamson, Toronto, Ont., (formerly of Peterborough, Ont.) VICE-PRESIDENT—James Thompson, Havelock, Ont. SEC'Y-TREASURER—Dr. H. A. Wood, Peterborough. SUPERINTENDENT—D. Williamson, Haileybury, Ont.; D. A. Reid, Brandon, Man.

HEAD OFFICE - - - Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Why you should buy Casey Mountain shares;

Casey Mountain shares are fully paid-up and non assessable.

The Casey Mountain Mining Company has a large area, which is a regular net work of silver-bearing veins that will go down for thousands of feet.

Casey Mountain has the goods in unlimited quantities sufficient to last for generations.

Casey Mountain estimates that they have a silver bearing vein every 100 feet across the entire property, not counting cross-veins that will be encountered with underground development, and have uncovered 12 to date varying in width from 16 in. to 8 feet.

Casey Mountain is a mining proposition (not a stock speculation) and has been developed continuously during the past ten months, over 300 feet of underground work had been done, and one of the greatest ore bodies encountered that has yet been struck in the district, being 16 feet wide.

Casey Mountain Mines are situate on the adjoining lot to a property that according to good authority was sold last year for one million dollars, and whose shares are being sold at $7.00 each.

Casey Mountain is only capitalized at $250,000.00, a very important point to be considered in a Mining Company, and to give a comparison of our capitalization and a Company capitalised at two and one-half million dollars, that is, paying a dividend at a rate of 12 per cent per cent. per annum to its shareholders, which is equal to $300,000.00 on the total capitalization; this amount of cash would mean 120 per cent. to Casey Mountain Shareholders. This point is worthy of great consideration for those investing in mining stock.

DIVIDENDS PAID BY COBALT MINING COMPANIES

Buffalo Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid, during 1907	$ 81.000 00
The Coniagas Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid during 1907	200,000 00
Foster Cobalt Mining Company, Limited, have paid	45,000 00
The Cobalt Silver Queen, Cobalt, paid during 1907	120 000 00
McKinly, Darragh, Savage Mining Co., Limited, have paid	45,000 00
Temiscaminga & Hudson Bay Co Mining Limited, have paid	746,120 00

(These shares could have been had at 50 cents and have sold as high as $190.00)

Cobalt Camp has produced 15,000,000 dollars during the past two years.

On the famous Homestead Mine in South Dakota the ore averages about $4.90 per ton, and over $69,000,000.00 has been paid in dividends. The Tredwell Mine in Alaska is running on ore that averages $2.00 a ton and is paying big dividends.

Casey Monntain Mining Company, Limited, has in sight thousands of tons of silver ore that will run $20.00 to a ton, and by treating 100 tons per day would mean a daily output of $2000 00, and allowing the sum of $500.00 per day for all expenses of mining, concentrating, freight and smelter charges, which is a large margin, would give an annual profit of nearly $500,000, or 200 per cent. on the total capitalization of the Company. The above figures are on our low grade ore only.

Quantity is what counts in a profitable mine, providing the grade is high enough to leave a margin over and above expenses.

Casey Mountain is practically a close Corporation, only sufficient shares having been sold to enable the Company to carry on development until returns are received from shipments, and only a small block remains unsold at par value $1.00 per share.

Buy Casey Mountain shares at once while they are on the market, as this will be positively the last opportunity of securing shares of this Company at one dollar each. Wire or mail reservation for shares to the Head Office, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Additional information can be had from the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. A. Wood, 408½ George Street, Peterborough.

APPLICATION

THE CASEY MOUNTAIN COBALT MINING AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY, Limited, Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

A PETERBORO' YOUNG LADY'S GREAT SUCCESS

Completed First Year at McMaster University—Won Scholarship in Latin and German

Miss Mamie Montgomery, daughter of Mr James Montgomery, Bethune street, has successfully passed her first year in Arts at McMaster University, and has carried off two prizes. She won the Elmore Harris prize in Latin and the James Ryrie prize in German. Miss Montgomery graduated from the local Collegiate Institute last midsummer, entering McMaster University in the fall. Her many friends in Peterborough will join in extending their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for continued success in her University career.

SPURIOUS FIFTY-CENT PIECES

A Number of Them are in Circulation in Peterborough

Bogus fifty-cent pieces are in circulation in Peterborough. They are a poor imitation of the genuine coin and are not likely to fool many. They are made of aluminum and of course are much lighter than the real thing. They are dated 1881 and have the queen's head upon them. The coin would be a good imitation were it not in the difference in weight from the genuine.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 82, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother, her home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

REGIMENT TO BE INSPECTED ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 20TH

The 57th Regiment will be inspected by General Lake on Wednesday evening, May 30th. The inspection, it is understood, will take place at Riverdale Park and judging by the hard work the officers and men are putting in should be one of the best in the history of the regiment. The date of the inspection was announced in the orders at the Armouries last night, after the weekly drill. There was a big turnout of the regiment and two hours active drilling was put in. The park was in good condition and the two hour's drill was very profitable. All the companies were well represented, and the new members, as well as the more seasoned soldiers, showed much proficiency.

The following orders were read:

Headquarters, Peterborough, May 12th, 1908, officers by Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

1. Detail of duty for the week ending May 19th, 1908, Captain for the week, Capt. Wilson; next for duty, Capt. Watt, subaltern for the week, Lieut. Higgins, next for duty, Lieut. Gemmell.

2. The following have been taken on the strength of the regiment:—G. Co., Ptes. Elliott and Ingham.

3. The regiment with both bands signallers and stretcher bearers section will parade in drill order at the Armouries on Wednesday, May 20th, at 7.10 p.m. sharp. As this parade is for the purpose of being inspected by General Lake, Inspector-General of the Canadian forces, the commanding officer desires the attendance of all ranks. The regular parade on Tuesday, the 19th inst., is hereby canceled.

By extract from general orders of May 10th, it is noted that Pte. W.H. Armstrong, of No. 3 Company, 57th regiment, has been awarded the "Best Shot Badge," he having made the highest figures of merit in the shooting in 1907.

4. The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions:—E. Co., To be color-sergeant, Sergt. Manly, Vice, Sturgeon; time expired. To be corporal, Pte. Foster. G. Co., To be color-sergeant, Sergt. Hall, Vice, Color-Sergeant Lehar, left limits. To be sergeant, Corps. Henry and Logan, from May 4th.' 08

TORNADOS DO MUCH DAMAGE; DEVASTION IN THE WEST

Casualty List Continues to Grow—The Injured Number at Least Fifty—Loss Half a Million Dollars—Five Towns in Nebraska Wiped Out.

Omaha, Neb., May 14.—Reports which came in slowly from the tornado stricken district south of this city added three victims to the list of dead. The monetary damage is estimated at a half million dollars.

The casualty list continues to grow as communication is partly restored with the five towns which suffered most from the storm and the list of the injured, some of whom are fatally hurt, will reach at least 50. At least three other persons are believed to have received injuries which will prove fatal.

Nearly every one of the five towns in the path of the storm — Bellevue, Papillion, Richfield, Meadows and [illegible] were badly wrecked and the village of Fort Creek and the post at the point suffered heavy damage.

A Dallas, Texas, despatch says: One person is known to have been killed, several others sustained serious injuries and considerable property damage resulted from a tornado which swept through the northern section of this state. At Crandall, about fifty houses were wrecked and several persons were injured.

The town of Gilliam, 30 miles north of Shreveport, La., is reported wiped out and a number of persons killed. A relief train has been sent to Gilliam, which is a village of about 100 inhabitants.

DAMAGE FROM A TIDAL WAVE

More Lives Lost Than by the Hong Kong Typhoon.

Vancouver, May 14.—News of one of the greatest disasters that China has ever known, a sudden tidal bore in the Yangtse Kiang, which involved the loss of nearly 10,000 lives at Hangkow, was brought by the steamer Titan, just arrived. A bore 26 feet in height flooded without warning down the river, overturning thousands of junks, sampans and small boats and wrecking some large river steamers.

News of the catastrophe had previously come by cable.

Mr. Bell of Yokohama, who arrived by the Blue Funnel liner states that the disaster has caused tremendous loss of life, far greater, it was estimated, than the great typhoon at Hong Kong of 18 months ago, when 10,000 Chinese were snuffed out.

It is usual, said Mr. Bell, to send a telegram down the river when such a freshet occurs. The telegram was delayed, finally arriving about the same time as the wall of water which swept down upon the sleeping river people in the early morning, overturning thousands of Chinese in the torrent that swept seaward. Some 3,000 Chinese were sleeping in sampans and small craft, in sheds and huts by the river side at Hangkow, and were enveloped by the great wave which swept broken junks, splintered sampans and a heterogenous mass of debris with swarms of drowned Chinese mixed with the wreckage.

The scene for many days after the disaster was horrible, the river side being strewn with dead and debris of wrecked craft for many miles.

Kaiser to Meet King.

Madrid, May 14.—With reference to the sojourn at Palma Majorca, the capital of the Balearic Islands, of a German diplomatist, it is asserted that the forthcoming visit of the Kaiser and King Alfonso, on the occasion of the celebration of the independence centenary, the King wil visit Palma and other Mediterranean ports, escorted by the whole Spanish navy.

Political circles, therefore, are beginning to discuss the probability of the meeting of the Kaiser and the Spanish King.

A Successful Flying Machine.

Elmira, N.Y., May 14.—A special to The Star-Gazette from Hammondsport says:

Prof. Alex. Graham Bell's flying machine, "White Wings," which he is making for the U. S. Government, made a successful flight near this village. Prof. Bell was accompanied on the aerial voyage by Lieut. Selfridge of the U. S. Signal Corps, who has been detailed to inspect the experiments. The machine is heavier than air.

Conference at Washington.

Washington, May 14.—The White House was the scene of the assemblage of many of the most distinguished figures in the political and industrial life of the United States. The occasion was the conference of President Roosevelt with the governors of nearly all the states and territories to consider the question of conservation of the country's natural resources. The conference will continue until Friday.

More Contracts on the T. & N. O. R.R.

Toronto, May 14.—Several important contracts were awarded by the Temiskaming & Ontario Railway Commission yesterday. Several concrete culverts and abutments will be constructed by Demens & Fraser of New Hamburg. H. C. Dunbar of Haileybury will build the freight shed there, and R. R. Woods of Latchford will build the icehouse at Englehart. About $80,000 will be spent by the commission this season in new buildings and improvements. The work was eagerly sought after by contractors and in all 69 tenders were considered. Besides these over twenty-five tenders were sent in too late.

To Have a City Regiment.

Guelph, May 14.—It is stated in military circles that Guelph is to have a city regiment in the immediate future. Some years ago an agitation was started to similar effect and the names of 400 prospective recruits were pledged, but, owing to the lack of an armory at that time, the project did not come to a head. Now that objection has been removed, two companies of the 30th regiment will serve as a nucleus and the name will be the Wellington Guards. The uniform will resemble that of the famous Coldstreams, with scarlet tunics and busbies.

NEW GOLD FIELD IS DISCOVERED

A Second Klondyke Being Opened up at Findlay River.

Vancouver, B.C., May 14.—The first authentic news from the new gold fields of Findlay River has reached Vancouver, and indicate that the district is likely to become a new Klondyke. Early in February a syndicate of Vancouver and Victoria men sent forth G. Rosenthal and George Barnes to make quick investigation and report.

The men rushed overland to Ingenika river and have now returned to Hasleton. A telegraph states that the new field is very promising. Practically all the gold has been found on McConnell Creek, a tributary of the Ingenika. Seventy men are working and nearly the whole creek is staked. The net return on the best claims averaged $20 per day per man in gold.

Rural Telephone Lines.

Brockville, May 14.—Permission has been granted to the Addison and North Augusta Rural Telephone Companies to make connections with the Brockville exchange of the Bell Telephone. Both will construct their lines to the corporation limits of Brockville. When the work is completed fully one hundred and fifty farmers will have communication with Brockville.

Woman Suffrage in New Brunswick.

St. John, N.B., May 14.—A large delegation from the recently reorganized Woman's Suffrage Association, appeared before the Government at Fredericton and asked that the franchise be extended to women. A similar request was made ten years ago, when Mr. Emmerson was Premier. He prepared and introduced a bill satisfactory to the Suffrage Association, which, however, met with scant support. Although the Government to-day promised consideration, the movement does not appear promising.

Would Impeach Judge Martin.

Vancouver, B.C., May 14.—A singular deadlock exists with regard to the efforts of the Vancouver Bar Association to secure the impeachment of Justice Martin for alleged refusal to perform judicial duties.

Every Dominion, Parliamentary and Senate representative of British Columbia has in turn refused to present a petition. That the matter will be officially brought to the attention of the Dominion Parliament is unquestioned.

WAS STRUCK BY BUGGY

Florrie Harrison, 7 Year Old Daughter of Jim Harrison the Walker, Has Lucky Escape

Florrie Harrison, the seven-year-old daughter of Jim Harrison, the local pedestrian, had a very narrow escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon about a quarter to five. A horse took fright on Hunter street and dashed madly towards A'burnham. Its driver was not in the buggy when the runaway started.

At the corner of George and Hunter Sts. Florrie Harrison was crossing the road in company with her aunt. The horse came along so suddenly that one of the wheels of the buggy struck the child on the thigh. The wheel simply grazed by, however, and no serious injury was done. The child was not able to attend school to-day.

WILL APPEAR ON CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

Constable Cochrane Brought John Dixon and Family of Harvey to City Last Evening

County Constable Cochrane arrived back from Harvey township last evening. He brought with him. John Dixon, his wife and two children. Dixon was committed to the county gaol until this morning when he appeared before Magistrate Edmison on a charge of non support. He was further remanded until 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The woman and two children were placed in the Children's Shelter. It is alleged that Dixon cruelly and brutally treats his wife and that the children are not receiving the proper care and training that they should.

THE COMPROMISE IS REFUSED DEBATE WILL BE CONTINUED

Caucus Declines Government Offer to Drop Certain Clauses—Mr. Borden Admits Sir Wilfrid's Offer to be Honorable—Mr. Staples Produces Copy of Bill of 1903—The Premier Had Denied Its Existence.

Ottawa, May 14.—Two things happened yesterday during the debate on the Aylesworth election bill.

R. L. Borden said he regarded the Prime Minister's proposals of Tuesday as reasonable and honorable, but he could not understand his intentions regarding further modifications. He demanded that the first clause be dropped altogether, but did not announce what would happen if the Prime Minister neglected to comply. The Conservatives, however, in caucus, decided to continue the fight indefinitely and refuse supply, until the bill is amended in accordance with their desires.

The other event was W. D. Staple's spectacular production of the election bill, framed by Sifton and turned down by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, which bill Sir Wilfrid Laurier had declared had never existed.

Mr. Borden spoke just before the adjournment at 6 o'clock. Just what the Prime Minister's proposals on Tuesday were he was not able to perfectly understand. Referring to the suggestion that the revision names would be left to the county judges, he said: "We are prepared to accept the proposal in that regard; indeed, we regard the proposal as reasonable and honorable, but beyond that, whether he intends to abide by the terms of the bill, I confess I am not able to seize his intentions. I can only repeat what I have said that we on this side of the House think that the first section ought to be withdrawn altogether. We do not consider it fair that two provinces which have reasonable laws on their statute books should be singled out merely for the reason that some parties within those provinces have made complaints as to the unfairness of the laws."

He thought the Prime Minister was disposed to believe that it was not the intention to interfere with the secrecy of the ballot and that he was impressed with the vital necessity of preserving the secrecy. Instead of this clause Mr. Borden would make the instructions to the deputy returning officers so distinct that they would not fail to understand them and he would provide for adequate punishment for those deputies who failed to carry out those instructions. He would also provide for simultaneous elections, except in the Yukon.

Reverting to the refusal to grant supply Mr. Borden reminded Sir Wilfrid of his action in 1896 in refusing to vote money for the actual expenditure of the country.

In closing he said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement that the Manitoba lists were "not satisfactory to the Grits" was frank, but what would be the result of, when the Conservatives came into power, they would adopt the principle that the provincial lists of Quebec and Nova Scotia should not be used, simply because the Legislatures of those provinces happened to be in the hands of the Liberals? The bill as brought down was an offence against common-sense, in view of the absence of any complaint by the Liberal members of the Manitoba Legislature.

W. D. Staples (Macdonald, Man.) said he had hoped the Premier would have the courage of his convictions and withdraw the bill, so as to allow the business of the country to go on. Why did he not withdraw clause 17 regarding the ballot? Why was Sir Wilfrid so anxious to get a slap at the people of Manitoba? He had refused to allow the people of the province one stick of timber, an acre of land or an ounce of mineral, and now he was attempting to put his hands on the franchise, to pluck it from the people.

He asked the Liberals from Manitoba who were forcing this legislation to come out and fight fairly. Mr. Staples then referred to the bill drafted in 1903 and which was strangled in infancy by the then Minister of Justice, Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had denied the existence of such a bill.

"If," said Sir Wilfrid, "such a bill was drafted it never was to my knowledge."

Mr. Staples produced it from his pocket. It was printed at the Dominion Printing Bureau.

Sir Wilfrid said: "I can't deny it, but if it was done it was without my knowledge."

Holding up the bill Mr. Staples proceeded. It was "conceived in iniquity, born in sin, killed by a Minister of Justice and buried by the same Minister of Justice, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, and now resurrected by a Minister of Injustice." The bill of 1903 incorporated the principles of the present bill for the purpose of gagging the will of the people of Manitoba. Mr. Staples then proceeded to read the bill.

"To my knowledge it was never presented to me," repeated the Prime Minister.

"Fortunately," continued Mr. Staples, "we had as Minister of Justice a man who would not allow such an iniquitous and nefarious piece of legislation to pass, but now we have a Minister of Injustice."

Mr. Speaker ruled the expression unparliamentary and it was withdrawn.

The Prime Minister again rose. He explained that all bills introduced by the Government were first discussed by council and if they were not approved they were not brought down. He had no recollection that this bill had been brought before council, but he promised to enquire of his colleagues. If brought before council, certainly it was adopted.

Mr. Staples declared that the bill was drafted by Mr. Sifton, assisted by Liberal lawyers; that it was submitted to Sir Charles Fitzpatrick and he refused to allow any such iniquity to be brought down.

Concluding Mr. Staples announced his intention "to stay here and fight as long as I have the opportunity. We are prepared to stand behind our leader and he is prepared to stand behind us."

Mr. Carvell followed, entering into a long discussion of the Manitoba registration and announcing that he gave support to the bill, which, however, did not go far enough to suit him. He would like to see the principle of registration eliminated from the voters' lists of every province of the Dominion.

In reply to Col. Sam Hughes, Sir Frederick Borden said it was not correct to say that troops were not going to Quebec. It was a fact, however, that the annual camps of instruction would be held throughout the Dominion this year as usual, and not at a central point near Quebec, as had been proposed. The annual drill of the city corps would be held at headquarters as in the past. The railways could not carry the troops and the public at the same time.

Mr. Borden was told by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he hoped Judge Cassels' investigation into the Marine Department would be completed before Jan. 1.

Mr. Bennett further probed the dredging at Matchedash bay, and claimed to have established that the country was overcharged for the work done. According to Coghill, a witness from Toronto, one Gendron, acted not only as a Government inspector, but as manager of the company whom he was supposed to be watching.

Some further evidence was offered in the charges made by Major Hodgins. The latter took the stand and commenced his evidence.

In the Senate the adoption of the closure was advocated by Senators McMullen and G. W. Ross in discussing a resolution of the former to invite the Commons to consider the advisability of arranging a more equal division of legislation between the two Houses and the adoption of rules governing debate which will limit the time of discussion.

Sir Richard Cartwright thought it would be well if a larger portion of private legislation originated in the Senate. He favored the abolition of the Hansard. Sir Mackenzie Bowell agreed as to Hansard. After others had expressed their views the motion carried.

FUTURE FUEL OF THE DOMINION

Important Peat Industry About to be Established.

Montreal, May 14.—That peat may be the future fuel of the Dominion is the contention of Charles E. Jenkins of Boston, who is about to organize a company for the exploitation of the Canadian peat industries. He has already purchased a tract of land at Caledonia Springs and has obtained an order from the G.T.R. for three thousand tons per day as soon as the plant is running.

The Grand Trunk will use it for traction purposes and say it is both more economical and more convenient for use on locomotives than coal.

MORE COWS ALLOWED TO RUN AT LARGE

Owners Appeared in Police Court To-day—One Was Fined

Arthur Lasure was fined two dollars for allowing his cows to run at large on Romaine street. Two residents stated that the cows were tied to fence posts but the chains were so long that the bovines were at liberty to go where they pleased. They ran over people's property and had to be chased off several times.

His Worship said that residents could not tolerate such a nuisance.

George Stevens, Ashburnham, was charged with allowing his cows to walk at large.

Mr. Stevens explained that he had pasture for his cows but on Monday the wind blew the fence down and the bovines got out and roamed the streets for about an hour and a half.

His Worship accepted Mr. Steven's explanation and dismissed the case.

THEATRICAL

"A BOY OF THE STREETS."

The brightest offering put on thus far by the Wilbor Stock Company at the Grand last night, the play being "A Boy of the Streets." The specialties again were excellent, the tumblers being well received, while Madame Flower, the bronze Melba, was encored until she was forced to make a short speech, thanking the audience for their enthusiastic report and requesting them to attend again this evening.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR EAST LAMBTON COMMITS SUICIDE

Tragic Death of Montagu Smith, of the Banking Firm of L. H. Smith & Co., at Forest—Mental Aberration the Cause of the Rash Deed.

Special to the Review

Forest, Ont., May 14, —The whole town was shocked this morning when the terrible announcement was made that Montagu Smith, of the Banking firm of L. H. Smith & Co., Liberal candidate for East Lambton, had committed suicide.

The act was committed about eight o'clock, in the lavatory at the rear of the bank. When J. D. Livingstone, the accountant, came to the bank at 8 a. m., he found a letter addressed to himself in Mr. Smith's handwriting, which intimated the deed. Mr. Livingstone at once searched and found the body of Mr. Smith in the lavatory with three bullet holes in his head and a revolver in his hand. Coroner Dr. Totten was called and, on examination, found another bullet hole in his breast. Mr. Smith was apparently in his usual good spirits until the last moment. At eleven last night he completed arrangements for holding a series of political meetings the first to be held at Florence this evening. This morning he arose early went to the livery and ordered a team for the trip and then went to the bank where he evidently wrote his farewell letter. The letter referred to the mental strain caused by his position as candidate and other matters.

Deceased was 57 years of age and unmarried. His business affairs are in splendid shape in every way both in connection with the bank and privately. No inquest will be held, Coroner Totten deciding that sudden sudden mental aberration was the cause of his committing the awful act.

LOCAL LADY'S THRILLING EXPERIENCE WITH REVOLVER

A Woman While Suffering From a Temporary Mental Derangement Fired Revolver at Peterborough Young Lady—Escaped Being Killed by the Merest Chance.

To have a revolver shot go whizzing by her head within an ace of killing her instantly was the rather thrilling experience of a young lady whose home is on Burnham St., Ashburnham, but who is at present residing in Rochester, N.Y.,

It appears that the young lady who is a professional nurse, had been attending a lady ill with paralysis. She was in constant attendance, never leaving her bedside. One night about a week and a half ago, she was told that she might sleep in her room. Consequently she did so, but through the night her patient called her. Upon going to her room and opening the door, she was astounded to see the woman with a revolver, pointing it at the young lady's head. She rushed in and grabbed the firearm, but as she did so, the lady fired and the bullet went flying by the nurse's head and struck the wall, making a big hole.

The woman was suffering from a temporary mental derangement when she committed the act. It was by the merest chance that the Peterborough lady escaped being instantly killed.

SAFETY VALVE OF STEAMER HAD BEEN TAMPERED WITH

Verdict of Coroner's Jury—Neligence of Some One to Blame—Valve Had Been Ignorantly Interfered With—Clamped so it Would Not Work.

Toronto, May 14.—"That Adolphe Savageau came to his death by scalding on the steamer Brockville, through the negligence of some person or persons unknown, by interfering ignorantly with the valves on said boilers."

This was the verdict of the coroner's jury, enquiring into the death of the chief engineer of the steamer Brockville, on which the collapse of a boiler tube cost the lives of four men Saturday last.

The evidence showed that the boiler had been cut off from the only guage, which would indicate the rise of steam after one side of a twin safety valve had been clamped down and the second screwed to a point where 260 to 265 pounds' pressure was needed to even start relief, when the rated strength of the boiler was 160 pounds. All this had been done under Savageau's orders.

James J. Conlan, chief engineer on the steamer Kingston and formerly on the Brockville, said he had found a clamp on one safety valve clamped down so that it could not work. The other valve looked all right, but he did not think it could have been in working order or the accident could not have happened.

John Dodds, Government inspector of boilers and machinery, gave evidence as to the boiler and safety valve. The tube which burst should have carried 235 pounds pressure.

After some other evidence the above verdict was rendered.

METHODISTS AT PACIFIC COAST

Opening of Annual Conference at Vancouver.

Vancouver, B. C., May 14.—The Methodist Conference opened yesterday with an attendance of forty ministers. The formal opening was preceded by an address on the attitude of the church towards present day issues by Rev. G. W. Dean. Rev. Dr. Carman also gave an address. Only two withdrawals were reported. One from New Westminster caused considerable discussion, owing to the member having married without leave of the conference. The following members were received into full connection and will be ordained in due course: Charles F. Connor, B.A., J. Wesley Miller, B.A., B.D.; Frederick Odell, B.A.; D. M. Perley, B.A., B.D.

Dominion Steel vs. Dominion Coal.

Montreal, May 14.—A most important announcement is made that the Dominion Steel Co.'s lawyers have applied to the judicial committee of the Privy Council to postpone the hearing of the Coal-Steel case till the month of October. This move is very significant in view of the rumors of settlement which have been in circulation for some time past.

The Dominion Coal Co. will not oppose the application of the other corporation, as it will further ensure them at least the extra price they are now being paid for the coal.

Kept the Bishop Busy.

London, May 14.—At a meeting in support of the Pan-Anglican Conference, the Bishop of London spoke on the growth of Anglicanism in Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and London, explaining humorously how his idea of taking a quiet holiday across the Atlantic was upset by finding the largest halls in the towns visited crowded with people wanting to hear what is being done in the old country.

Wharves Submerged.

Kingston, May 14.—The wharf at Stella is said to be the only one between Kingston and Picton, a distance of forty miles, that is above water. All the others are submerged, and when boats land, the crew have to wade through six inches and a foot of water.

Western Insane Asylum.

Edmonton, May 14.—The plans are under preparation in the Department of Public Works for an asylum to be erected at Ponoka, Alberta, at a cost of $200,000. Eight hundred acres of land have been purchased by the Government.

EVENTS TO-NIGHT

Grand Opera House — Wilbor Stock Co. present "The Prisoner's Sweetheart."

City Hall — Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Drill Hall —Company shooting.

HE MAY DIE AS THE RESULT OF FIGHT

Kid Farmer Knocked Out by Jack Morgan—Unconscious in Hospital

Peoria, Ill., May 13. — Jack Morgan, of Indianapolis, knocked out the original "Kid" Farmer in the tenth round in a fight here last night. The first six rounds were slow, but the last four were furious, though Morgan clearly outclassed his man. Farmer did not recover promptly and after half an hour's work by three physicians he was removed to a hospital where he lies in a semi-conscious condition. Examination showed the man to be suffering from concussion of the brain, with slight chances for recovery. Morgan and his seconds, Chas. Barthen the promoter, and Referee Ryan were arrested pending the outcome of the injuries.

JUDGE SAYS THE CASE MUST GO ON

Trial of Dr. A. G. Fletcher Charged With Death of Jessie Gould.

Toronto, May 14.—The trial of Dr. A. G. Fletcher, at the Criminal Assizes, for causing the death of Jessie Gould in March, through an illegal operation, commenced yesterday. T. C. Robinette, counsel for the prisoner, submitted to Justice Anglin after the crown witnesses had given their evidence, that the crown had not brought forward any evidence connecting his client with the alleged operation. He argued that the story as told by Harry Saunders pointed out that there had been no bargaining as to the price of the alleged operation, and that the doctor had responded to regular call. Judge Anglin decided that the case must go on.

Pacific Mail Route.

London, May 14—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons Postmaster-General Buxton stated that if a route more advantageous than the C.P.R. for the far east mails should hereafter become available, its adoption would not be precluded by the proposed contract with the Canadian Pacific.

ONCE MORE WELL

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ALONE CURED HIM

Clarence J. Placey is a farmer of Ulverton, Que., known as a man of integrity and good judgment. He writes in no uncertain terms of the great benefit he derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a long standing kidney trouble.

Ulverton, Que.

I suffered for many years with kidney trouble, with bad pain in the back and all symptoms of disease of the kidneys. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill but nothing gave me relief and I was getting discouraged. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so—and this medicine cured me when every other remedy failed. I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset they give me relief and I am now practically well again, no pain in the back, no distress, and all the symptoms of severe kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I suffered and to them I say "Try "Fruit-a-tives." 151

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1908.

OPPOSITION'S VICTORY

It begins to be universally conceded by the Liberal press that Sir Wilfrid will "compromise" re the Aylesworth Bill. It is proposed to leave the lists to a board of judges— exactly what the Opposition demanded, with a right of appeal. The Civil Service Commission report also is leading to a revision of the whole system. This is another triumph for the Opposition. It looks as if but for Mr. Borden and his men the Laurier government would have had to commit hari-kari or suffer the fate of the "Montcalm." The duties of state and its responsibilities seem to exhaust the resources of most men in time. It is by the competitive system of government, that the development of our system of administration expands from year to year and the "people" get their dues.

THE QUEBEC CELEBRATION

It was difficult for a time to understand how any body of sane men could make such a botch of national affairs as the Laurier Government appeared to be making at Ottawa. But now we understand it. The grand military spectacle in which Canadian corps were to take part, for which all sorts of preparations were being made and concerning which there was more big talk and hot air than would fill a balloon—has come to naught. It has proven a huge mix-up and disappointment. As an organizer Sir Frederick Borden belongs to the class of '28 when everything and everybody went to pot and there was no help for it. The Militia Department evidently needs a commission. But the Minister and the foreign detachments will enjoy themselves all right unhampered by the "rude inglorious colonial corps." It looks like a put-up job from the beginning.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is related of a Scotchman that he went to consult a physician who asked him what he drank. It was a bottle of "whuskey" per day. "You will have to stop that," said the doctor. Andy took his hat to go. "But you've not paid for my advice" said the doctor, "Ahm no takkin' it" replied Andy.

"The Inevitable is happening in Toronto University —Toronto General Hospital affairs. There has been too much "pull" on the board of the latter institution and the former is protesting. We are cultivating the back door habit and the "relation" touch all right.

Hon. A. G. MacKay's meeting at Norwood was well attended, but there was no enthusiasm. The general opinion seemed to be that Mr. MacKay is a rather weak man.

What is the matter with the rural corps? The Militia Department seems to have jockeyed them—first into believing that they were to go to Quebec and then out of the whole scheme altogether. The allegation is that they are not really presentable. This means that they are not so showy as the city corps we suppose. We will venture to assert however that in a fight they would show up equally well. The Tercentenary is to be "a big splash" at the expense of the men who are not allowed to take part.

HAVE WE A SPOILS SYSTEM? ALLEGATIONS BY ORATORS

At Young's Point and elsewhere the Hon. J. R. Stratton has devoted a large portion of the time allotted to him by Mr. Gillespie to a severe criticism of what he is pleased to call the spoils system in Peterborough.

In the first place we frankly admit that the condition of the liquor trade in Peterborough at the time of Mr. Whitney's coming into power was such that the very atmosphere was rank with corruption and called for trenchant measures. So serious had the disease of the itching palm become, and so far-reaching in its effects, that even men of so-called prominence had become infected and were unable to distinguish between their own interests and common bribery and "pull." The lobby and the pull had become unbearable. Why? Because Hon. J. R. Stratton had made himself the centre of patronage. The dispenser of favours and the universal provider for the needy and unscrupulous. It is not so now. Be good enough to mark that! Let us take the case of Mr. Cochrane. Mr. Cochrane personally is an excellent citizen, for whom both parties cherish much respect. Did Mr. Cochrane carry out or try to carry out the law as he knew it ought to be carried out? Ask him. He is honest, and if he will say that the enforcement of the License Law during his term of office was all that it reasonably should have been we will then be prepared to believe that he was the victim of circumstances or even of a spoils system, as alleged. But it was not his fault. This is a bold stand, we are aware, but we know the facts and we know Mr. Cochrane to be both an honest and a fearless man. We want the public to know the truth and we want to know it ourselves. There is but one end to serve—the public good. Now, then, as to Mr. Elliott. Ald. Elliott was not on the permanent list when his time expired. Why should he, a very strong and active partisan, expect to be re-engaged? Governments must have at least sympathetic employees. Ald. Elliott did not expect to be retained himself. Neither did Mr. Moore, who is making more money at insurance. Mr. Moore was not on the permanent staff either. Mr. Stratton had never placed either Mr Moore or Ald. Alliott on the permanent staff. Why? Then let us take Mr. George W. Fitzgerald. Mr. Fitzgerald is a staunch supporter of Mr. Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Whitney. He is not kicking. Why should Mr. Stratton exercise his "noble soul" about him? But what about Charles Hartley, who, because he would not vote for Mr. Stratton was fairly hounded to death? What about those office-holders and license-holders who had to fork over to the local campaign fund at election time under the old regime? There is room for an oration there. Mr. Stratton slaps at Mr. Joseph Stewart. To our knowledge Mr. Stewart did not ask for, and at first would not accept the position of inspector. It was because the authorities wanted a man who knew the ropes already and could be relied upon that Mr. Stewart was appointed. There are many things that we know of the lurid past that would explode like a bomb if we were at liberty to tell them. Do not fash yourselves, gentlemen, the people know a thing or two. Do the people want the era of pull, bluster, bullying, bluff, lobbying and corruption back again? They will probably answer on June 8th. Has there been a bye-election in Mr. Whitney's time with a Cap. Sullivan in it—with a Pritchett in it? with switched, stolen, strayed or burned ballots in it? We promised to take the liquor license system out of politics, did we? And haven't we done it? We don't find "the trade" running round like a lot of scared rabbits after Mr. Bradburn. They can call their souls their own nowadays. They are treated as men, and what is more, appreciate it. It is a spoiled system, not a spoils system which we have here.

At the Liberal convention in Toronto on November 25th, 1904, Dr. James Spence, of Toronto, spoke as follows regarding the situation. (We quote from the Globe:—

"I want to state that in the City of Toronto the law has not been administered fairly. What is the condition of affairs here? The condition is Mr. Stratton, who administers this department. (Uproar and hisses.) The condition of affairs here is the condition of affairs throughout the length and breadth of Ontario. One condition of affairs in Toronto is that the License Department, the administration of that department, is a farce."—The Globe, November 26th, 1904."

It was the same here. The convention was the last sad farewell of Mr. Stratton to politics. It was probably final.

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

Every One Elegible Should Get on the Voters' List—Where Sittings of Registration Board Will be Held—Qualifications Neccessary—Visit the Committee Rooms.

Sittings of the local Board of county registrars will be held as follows:

Saturday, May 23rd, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

From Ward No. 1—At Lewis Spry's shop, 214 Stewart street.

For Ward No. 2—At the Council Chamber.

For Ward No. 3—At the Police Chamber.

For Ward No. 4—At Wm. Lee's shop, corner of Smith and George streets.

For Ward No. 5—At the Ashburnham town hall.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration here on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

WEDDING BELLS

McINTYRE—McGINNIS.

The wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at Pym's Hotel of Mr. Dan McIntyre, of Lornville, to Flora McGinnis, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. McGinnis, of Grass Hill. Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Keene, formerly of Lornville, officiated. The ceremony was performed in the parlor of the hotel, and only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present. Miss Maggie Morrison, of Lornville, was the bridesmaid, while Mr. A. McIntyre was the best man. The happy couple leave to-morrow for Peterborough and other points east. On their return they will reside in Lornville. Miss Kate Jewell and Mr. Henry Jewell, of Lornville, were in town to attend the wedding. —Lindsay Warder.

Incensed at previous church robberies in the place the whole population of a village near Courtrai, Belgium, set upon a robber caught in the act yesterday and killed him before the authorities could interfere. Seven implicated have been arrested.

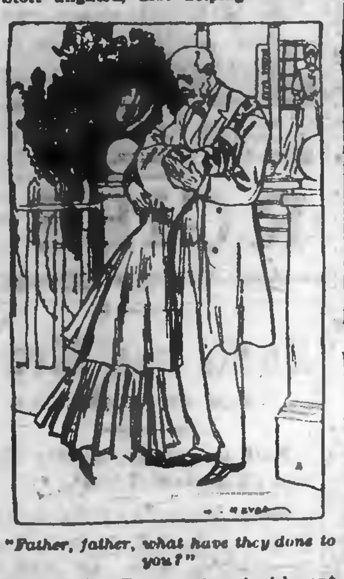
THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.



"Father, father, what have they done to you?"

The cab stopped at the curb, and Stott alighted, first helping out Mrs. Blake. Mrs. Rossmore's astonishment on seeing her sister was almost comical.

"Milly!" she exclaimed.

They embraced first and explained afterward. Then Shirley got out and was in her mother's arms.

"Where's father?" was Shirley's first question.

"There—he's coming!"

The judge, unable to restrain his impatience longer, ran down from the porch toward the gate. Shirley, with a cry of mingled grief and joy, precipitated herself on his breast.

"Father, father," she cried between her sobs, "what have they done to you?"

"There, there, my child! Everything will be well—everything will be well!"

Her head lay on his shoulder, and he stroked her hair with his hand, unable to speak from pent up emotion.

Mrs. Rossmore could not recover from her stupefaction on seeing her sister. Mrs. Blake explained that she had come chiefly for the benefit of the voyage and announced her intention of returning on the same steamer.

"So, you see, I shall bother you only a few days," she said.

"You'll stay just as long as you wish," rejoined Mrs. Rossmore. "Happily we have just one bedroom left." Then, turning to Eudoxia, who was wrestling with the baggage, which formed a miniature Matterhorn on the sidewalk, she gave instructions:

"Eudoxia, you'll take this lady's baggage to the small bedroom adjoining Miss Shirley's. She is going to stop with us for a few days."

Taken completely aback at the news of this new addition, Eudoxia looked at first defiance. She seemed on the point of handing in her resignation there and then. But evidently she thought better of it, for, taking a cue from Mrs. Rossmore, she asked in the sarcastic manner of her mistress:

"Four is it now, m'm? I suppose the constitution of the United States allows a family to be as big as one likes to make it. It's hard on us girls, but if it's the law, it's all right, m'm. The more the merrier!" With which broad side she hung the bags all over herself and staggered off to the house.

Stott explained that the larger pieces and the trunks would come later by express. Mrs. Rossmore took him aside while Mrs. Blake joined Shirley and the judge.

"Did you tell Shirley?" asked Mrs Rossmore. "How did she take it?"

"She knows everything," answered Stott, "and takes it very sensibly. We shall find her of great moral assistance in our coming fight in the senate," he added confidently.

Realizing that the judge would like to be left alone with Shirley, Mrs. Rossmore invited Mrs. Blake to go upstairs and see the room she would have, while Stott said he would be glad of a washup. When they had gone Shirley sidled up to her father in her old familiar way.

"I've just been longing to see you father," she said. She turned to get a good look at him, and, noticing the lines of care which had deepened during her absence, she cried: "Why, how you've changed! I can scarcely believe it's you. Say something. Let me hear the sound of your voice, father."

The judge tried to smile.

"Why, my dear girl, I"—

Shirley threw her arms round his neck.

"Ah, yes, now I know it's you," she cried.

"Of course it is, Shirley, my dear girl. Of course it is. Who else would it be?"

"Yes, but it isn't the same," insisted Shirley. "There is no ring to your voice. It sounds hollow and empty, like an echo. And this place," she added dolefully, "this awful place"—

She glanced around at the cracked ceilings, the cheaply papered walls, the shabby furniture, and her heart sank as she realized the extent of their misfortune. She had come back prepared for the worst, to help win the fight for her father's honor, but to have to struggle against sordid poverty as well, to endure that humiliation in addition to disgrace—ah, that was something she had not anticipated! She changed color, and her voice faltered. Her father had been closely watching for just such signs, and he read her thoughts.

"It's the best we can afford, Shirley," he said quietly. "The blow has been complete. I will tell you everything. You shall judge for yourself. My enemies have done for me at last."

"Your enemies?" cried Shirley eagerly. "Tell me who they are so I may go to them."

"Yes, dear, you shall know everything, but not now. You are tired after your journey. Tomorrow sometime Stott and I will explain everything."

"Very well, father, as you wish," said Shirley gently. "After all," she added in an effort to appear cheerful, "what matter where we live so long as we have each other?"

She drew away to hide her tears and left the room on pretense of inspecting the house. She looked into the dining room and kitchen and opened the cupboards, and when she returned there were no visible signs of trouble in her face.

"It's a cute little house, isn't it?" she said. "I've always wanted a little place like this all to ourselves. Oh, if you only knew how tired I am of New York and its great ugly houses, its retinue of servants and its domestic and social responsibilities! We shall be able to live for ourselves now, eh, father?"

She spoke with a forced gayety that might have deceived any one but the judge. He understood the motive of her sudden change in manner, and silently he blessed her for making his burden lighter.

"Yes, dear, it's not bad," he said. "There's not much room, though."

"There's quite enough," she insisted. "Let me see." She began to count on her fingers. "Upstairs, three rooms, eh, and above that three more"—

"No," smiled the judge; "then comes the roof."

"Of course," she laughed; "how stupid of me—a nice gable roof, a sloping roof that the rain runs off beautifully. Oh, I can see that this is going to be awfully jolly—just like camping out. You know how I love camping out. And you have a piano too."

She went over to the corner where stood one of those homely instruments which hardly deserve to be dignified by the name piano, with a cheap, gaudily painted case outside and a tin pan effect inside, and which are usually to be found in the poorer class of country boarding houses. Shirley sat down and ran her fingers over the keys, determined to like everything.

"It's a little old," was her comment, "but I like these zither effects. It's just like the sixteenth century spinet. I can see you and mother dancing a stately minuet," she smiled.

"What's that about mother dancing?" demanded Mrs. Rossmore, who at that instant entered the room. Shirley arose and appealed to her:

"Isn't it absurd, mother, when you come to think of it, that anybody should accuse father of being corrupt and of having forfeited the right to be judge? Isn't it still more absurd that we should be helpless and dejected and unhappy because we are on Long Island instead of Madison avenue? Why should Manhattan Island be a happier spot than Long Island? Why shouldn't we be happy anywhere? We have each other, and we do need each other. We never knew how much till today, did we? We must stand by each other now. Father is going to clear his name of this preposterous charge, and we're going to help him, aren't we, mother? We're not helpless just because we are women. We're going to work, mother and I."

"Work?" echoed Mrs. Rossmore, somewhat scandalized.

"Work," repeated Shirley very decisively.

The judge interfered. He would not hear of it.

"You work, Shirley? Impossible!"

"Why not? My book has been selling well while I was abroad. I shall probably write others. Then I shall write, too, for the newspapers and magazines. It will add to our income."

"Your book, 'The American Octopus,' is selling well?" inquired the judge, interested.

"So well," replied Shirley, "that the publishers wrote me in Paris that the fourth edition was now on the press. That means good royalties. I shall soon be a fashionable author. The publishers will be after me for more books, and we'll have all the money we want. Oh, it is so delightful, this novel sensation of a literary success!" she exclaimed with glee. "Aren't you proud of me, dad?"

The judge smiled indulgently. Of course he was glad and proud. He always knew his Shirley was a clever girl. But by what strange fatality, he thought to himself, had his daughter in this book of hers assailed the very man who had encompassed his own ruin? It seemed like the retribution of heaven. Neither his daughter nor the financier was conscious of the fact that each was indirectly connected with the impeachment proceedings. Ryder could not dream that "Shirley Green," the author of the book which flayed him so mercilessly, was the daughter of the man he was trying to crush. Shirley, on the other hand, was still unaware of the fact that it was Ryder who had lured her father to his ruin.

When at last she could lock herself in her room where no eye could see her, Shirley threw herself down on the bed and burst into a torrent of tears. She had kept up appearances as long as it was possible, but now the reaction had set in. She gave way freely to her pent up feelings; she felt that unless she could relieve herself in this way her heart would break. She had been brave until now, she had been strong to bear everything and see everything, but she could not keep it up forever. Stott's words to her on the dock had in part prepared her for the worst; he had told her what to expect at home, but the realization was so much more vivid. Then to have come to this all in the brief space of a few months! It was incredible, terrible, heart rending! And what of the future? What was to be done to save her father from this impeachment which she knew well would hurry him to his grave? He could not survive that humiliation, that degradation. He must be saved in the senate, but how—how?

She dried her eyes and began to think. Surely her woman's wit would find some way. She thought of Jefferson. Would he come to Massapequa? It was hardly probable. He would certainly learn of the change in their circumstances, and his sense of delicacy would naturally keep him away for some time even if other considerations less unselfish did not. Perhaps he would be attracted to some other girl he would like as well and who was not burdened with a tragedy in her family. Her tears began to flow afresh until she hated herself for being so weak while there was work to be done to save her father. She loved Jefferson. Yes, she had never felt so sure of it as now. She felt that if she had him there at that moment she would throw herself in his arms, crying: "Take me, Jefferson—take me away—where you will—for I love you! I love you!" But Jefferson was not there, and the rickety chairs in the tiny bedroom and the cheap prints on the walls seemed to gibe at her in her misery.

Suddenly she thought of Jefferson's promise to interest his father in their case, and she clutched at the hope this promise held out as a drowning man clutches at a drifting straw. Jefferson would not forget his promise, and he would come to Massapequa to tell her of what he had done. She was sure of that. Perhaps, after all, there was where their hope lay. Why had she not told her father at once? It might have relieved his mind. John Burkett Ryder, the Colossus, the man of unlimited power! He could save her father, and he would. And the more she thought about it the more cheerful and more hopeful she became, and she started to dress quickly, so that she might hurry down to tell her father the good news. She was actually sorry now that she had said so many hard things of Mr. Ryder in her book, and she was worrying over the thought that her father's case might be seriously prejudiced if the identity of the author were ever revealed, when there came a knock at her door. It was Eudoxia.

"Please, miss, will you come down to lunch?"

CHAPTER VIII.

A WHIRLING maelstrom of human activity and dynamic energy—the city which above all others is characteristic of the genius and virility of the American people—New York, with its congested polyglot population and teeming millions, is assuredly one of the busiest, as it is one of the most strenuous and most noisy places on earth. Yet, despite its swarming streets and crowded shops, ceaselessly thronged with men and women eagerly hurrying here and there in the pursuit of business or elusive pleasure, all chattering, laughing, shouting amid the deafening, multisonous roar of traffic incidental to Gotham's daily life, there is one part of the great metropolis where there is no bustle, no noise, no crowd, where the streets are empty even in daytime, where a passerby is a curiosity and a child a phenomenon. This deserted village in the very heart of the big town is the millionaires' district, the boundaries of which are marked by Carnegie hill on the north, Fiftieth street on the south, and by Fifth and Madison avenues respectively on the west and east. There is nothing more mournful than the outward aspect of these princely residences which, abandoned and empty for three-quarters of the year, stand in stately loneliness, as if ashamed of their isolation and utter uselessness. Their blinds drawn, affording no hint of life within, enveloped the greater part of the time in the stillness and silence of the tomb, they appear to be under the spell of some baneful curse. No merry voiced children romp in their carefully railed off gardens, no sounds of conversation or laughter come from their hermetically closed windows, not a soul goes in or out; at most, at rare intervals, does one catch a glimpse of a gorgeously arrayed servant gliding about in ghostly fashion, supercilious and suspicious and addressing the chance visitor in awed whispers as though he were the guardian of a house of affliction. It is, indeed, like a city of the dead.

So it appeared to Jefferson as he walked up Fifth avenue, bound for the Ryder residence, the day following his arrival from Europe. Although he still lived at his father's house, for at no time had there been an open rupture, he often slept in his studio, finding it more convenient for his work, and there he had gone straight from the ship. He felt, however, that it was his duty to see his mother as soon as possible; besides he was anxious to fulfill his promise to Shirley and find what his father could do to help Judge Rossmore. He had talked about the case with several men the previous evening at the club, and the general impression seemed to be that, guilty or innocent, the judge would be driven off the bench.

Europe, thought Jefferson as he strode quickly along, pointed with envy to America's unparalleled prosperity, spoke with bated breath of her great fortunes. Rather should they say her gigantic robberies, her colossal frauds! As a nation we were not proud of our multimillionaires. How many of them would bear the searchlight of investigation? Would his own father? How many millions could one man make by honest methods? America was enjoying unprecedented prosperity not because of her millionaires, but in spite of them. The United States owed its high rank in the family of nations to the country's vast natural resources, its inexhaustible vitality, its great wheatfields, the industrial and mechanical genius of its people. It was the plain American citizen who had made the greatness of America; not the millionaires who, forming a class by themselves of unscrupulous capitalists, had created an arrogant oligarchy which sought to rule the country by corrupting the legislature and the judiciary. The plutocrats—these were the leeches, the sores in the body politic. An organized band of robbers, they had succeeded in dominating legislation and in securing control of every branch of the nation's industry, crushing mercilessly and illegally all competition.

Jefferson turned abruptly and went up the wide steps of an imposing white marble edifice which took up the space of half a city block. A fine example of French renaissance architecture, with spire roofs, round turrets and mullioned windows dominating the neighboring houses, this magnificent home of the plutocrat, with its furnishings and art treasures, had cost John Burkett Ryder nearly $10,000,000. It was one of the show places of the town, and when the "rubberneck" wagons approached the Ryder mansion and the guides through their megaphones expatiated in awestricken tones on its external and hidden beauties, there was a general craning of vertebrae among the "seeing New Yorkers" to catch a glimpse of the abode of the richest man in the world.

Only a few privileged ones were ever permitted to penetrate to the interior of this $10,000,000 home. Ryder was not fond of company; he avoided strangers and lived in continual apprehension of the subpoena server. Not that he feared the law, only he usually found it inconvenient to answer questions in court under oath. The explicit instructions to the servants, therefore, were to admit no one under any pretext whatever unless the visitor had been approved by the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, Mr. Ryder's aristocratic private secretary, and to facilitate this preliminary inspection there had been installed between the library upstairs and the front door one of those ingenious electric writing devices, such as are used in banks, on which a name is hastily scribbled, instantly transmitted elsewhere, immediately answered and the visitor promptly admitted or as quickly shown the door.

Jefferson did not have to ring at the paternal portal. The sentinel within was at his post. No one could approach that door without being seen and his arrival and appearance being signaled upstairs. But the great man's son headed the list of the privileged ones, so without ado the smartly dressed flunkey opened wide the doors, and Jefferson was under his father's roof.

"Is my father in?" he demanded of the man.

"No, sir," was the respectful answer. "Mr. Ryder has gone out driving, but Mr. Bagley is upstairs." Then after a brief pause he added, "Mrs. Ryder is in too."

Jefferson went up the grand staircase hung on either side with fine old portraits and rare tapestries, his feet sinking deep in the rich velvet carpet. On the first landing was a piece of sculptured marble of inestimable worth, seen in the soft warm light that sifted through a great pictorial stained glass window overhead, the subject representing Ajax and Ulysses contending for the armor of Achilles. To the left of this, at the top of another flight leading to the library, was hung a fine full length portrait of John Burkett Ryder. The ceilings here as in the lower hall were richly gilt and adorned with paintings by famous modern artists. When he reached this floor Jefferson was about to turn to the right and proceed direct to his mother's suit when he heard a voice near the library door. It was Mr. Bagley giving instructions to the butler.

The Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, a younger son of a British peer, had left his country for his country's good, and in order to turn an honest penny, which he had never succeeded in doing at home, he had entered the service of America's foremost financier, hoping to gather a few of the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table and disguising the menial nature of his position under the high sounding title of private secretary. His job called for a spy and a toady, and he filled these requirements admirably. Excepting with his employer, of whom he stood in craven fear, his manner was condescendingly patronizing to all with whom he came in contact, as if he were anxious to impress on these American plebeians the signal honor which a Fitzroy, son of a British peer, did them in deigning to remain in their "blarsted" country. In Mr. Ryder's absence, therefore, he ran the house to suit himself, bullying the servants and not infrequently issuing orders that were contradictory to those already given by Mrs. Ryder.

57th Regiment Will be Inspected Twice This Year

It is learned that the inspection of the 57th Regiment, which is to take place on May 20th, will not be the regular inspection of the corps. The regular annual inspection will take place towards the end of June, the same as in past years. The inspection by General Lake on May 20th is a special event. It will take place at Riverside Park, if the grounds are dry enough by that time.

BIG POULTRY FARM IS THIS

Is Home of 25,000 Ducks and 10,000 Chickens at the Present Time

W. R. Curtiss & Co., who have a poultry plant at Ransomville, N.Y., near the Canadian borders, do things on a large scale. A Peterborough man has received a letter from them in which it is stated that at present time they have 25,000 ducks and 10,000 chickens on their poultry farm. Last week, the letter states, they sold one ton of ducks. This is enough to make the ordinary poultry man feel kind of small.

Pure carelessness is the reason given for an explosion in a Pennsylvania mine yesterday in which seven men lost their lives.

Paris Photographer Claims That He Has Photographed the Soul

A Paris despatch says:

Dr. Baraduc declares that he has photographed the soul.

Dr. Baraduc is a well known French scientist but is especially fond for his investigations of occult things.

"I am neither a spiritualist nor a doctrinaire," he says, "but speak from experience. I have found forces surrounding man, forces which have been registered on photographic plates. Man is surrounded by an atmosphere of personal ether. Every human being has an impalpable double which reproduces his form and which allows us to explain ghost stories and the phenomena of double sight. Spiritualism, you call it, soul, if you like, or astral body. When one dies this particular ether survives, but not generally more than eighty hours after death. Occasionally, however, this double lasts very long and becomes visible as phantom. I have photographed this ether double eighty hours after death. When my wife died I photographed a nebulous globe, which escaped from her like a soul.

"You see, there are forces in this world and forces in the other world. When, in the name of truth, spiritualist scientists unite with material scientists, we will arrive at a knowledge of the synthesis of the forces which regulate our life and our immortality for man does not belong to this planet alone, but to the far-py spaces in which his thoughts revolve"

BOUGHT A BASS UNKNOWINGLY

A Case Where it Would Have Been Folly to be Wise

A man who came to Peterborough only a short time ago, has had a striking example of the truth of the proverb that where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise. He came here from a town where the only place to secure fish is at the shop, and consequently does not know a great deal about the finny fellows. One day last week a man called at the place where he was working and had some fish for sale. The man above referred to purchased them and carried them home in the usual fashion in broad daylight. There were several suckers and a bass in the string and the man was liable to a fine for having the bass in his possession but no one notified the authorities. It was a case of breaking the law unknowingly as the man did not know what kind of fish he had. They were fish and nothing else to him.

HE MAKES THE WORLD LAUGH

Etienne Giradot Fulfils Great Mission in "Charley's Aunt" Which Appears Here Soon

What a clever little fellow Etienne Girardot is. He serves a great purpose in the economy of life; he makes for the joy of nations. For two hours he causes us to forget that the glass is 30 degrees below zero; that the coal is getting low in the cellar; that there is such a thing as dyspepsia or the "blues"—he makes us forget everything in the merriment of the moment. We laugh and laugh and laugh until the tears run down our face and our sides ache. What a droll little figure he is as "Charley's Aunt, with his voluminous skirt and black lace cap, and merry blue eyes—at least they looked blue in the distance. The audience last night at the new Walker theatre laughed itself tired, and it was rather a select audience too; one of those audiences which thinks it is rather bad form to laugh out good and loud. But Etienne Girardot would make the starchiest person unbend. The popular little actor was honored by the presence of His Honor Sir Daniel McMillan and Lady McMillan and a large party from government house.

There is no need to write anything about "Charley's Aunt," that clever farce comedy by Brandon Thomas. Everybody knows it. It has probably been played more times and in more countries than any piece of modern days. But it is like good wine; one can always return to it with zest and pleasure. It is a performance of which one can write that it is positively flawless. Mr. Wilfrid North, the manager of the company, has not made the mistake, which is not uncommon, of having a brilliant comet and a very indifferent tail. On the contrary the company is exceptionally good. The ladies are all most pleasing to gaze on, the loved ones of the three young undergrads, viz, Amy, Kittie and Ela do what little they have delightfully. They are Miss Pauline Neff, Miss Helena Byrne and Miss Alice Martin, and they all wear most dainty frocks. Miss Nina Herbert makes a good Donna Lucia. Jack Cheeney and Charley Wyckman are breezily and naturally played by Frank Hollins and Galway Herbert, respectively. Wilfrid North looks the cavalryman all over and his Sir Francis Cheeney is a most aristocratic personage. Sol Aiken has an extremely clever makeup as Spettigue, and withal show much ability in his rendering of the part. A rattling good study was the Brassett of Jacques Martin. He was the college scout to the life. His by-plays was admirable never overdone, never obtrusive, but just fitted in to the feature. It was an exemplification of how a small part may be made to stand out, in the hands of a clever actor.—Winnipeg Free Press.

"Charley's Aunt" appears at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, on Tuesday, May 19th.

THESE TWO QUESTIONS SHOULD BE SUBMITTED TO THE PEOPLE

Trades and Labor Council's Opinion on the Carnegie Library Proposition and Permanent Paid Fire Brigade Scheme—In Favor of Establishing a Public Abattoir

The regular monthly meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening with President John Alexander in the chair and a good attendance of delegates.

TEXTILE WORKERS

A representative of the Carpet Weavers' Association of Peterborough, local 663, United Textile Workers of America, addressed the council on matters pertaining to that organization. Any textile workers in the city desiring to join the union will be cordially welcomed.

DELEGATES TO KINGSTON

President John Alexander and S. J. Angsley were appointed delegates to the convention of the Labor Educational Association in Kingston on May 25th and Mr. Westbrook was appointed alternate. Invitation is to be extended the convention to meet in Peterborough next year.

PUBLIC ABATTOIR

The proposed establishment of an abattoir in the city was introduced by a delegate and was discussed at some length. A resolution was passed placing the Trades and Labor Council on record as being in favor of the proposition.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY

The Carnegie Library question was again opened up, and while the Trades and Labor Council had previously voiced its opposition to the proposed acceptance of a grant from Andrew Carnegie that body last evening commended the action taken by Mr. Richard Hall in reference to the recent gift of quarters suitable for library purposes and adopted a resolution in favor of submitting the question to the ratepayers for their verdict.

PERMANENT FIRE BRIGADE

This matter evoked considerable discussion and Aldermen Morgan and Elliott were commended for the stand they had taken on the matter. It was felt by the delegates that the fire brigade had been treated shabbily in regard to the proposition. A resolution was unanimously adopted calling upon the city council to submit the question of the organization of a permanent fire brigade to the people for their discussion.

CURLING RINK ASSESSMENT

The delegates jumped good and hard on fixed assessments last evening and characterized as a "hold up" the application of the Curling Rink Company for a fixed assessment on their new structure. A resolution was passed condemning the proposition.

The meeting then adjourned.

Scene from Brandon Thomas' successful comedy drama "Charley's Aunt," at the Grand next Tuesday, May 19th. Plan opens Saturday at 10 a.m.

WORK ON NEW SECTION OF TRENT CANAL IS COMMENCED

Beginning of Portion to Connect Newmarket With Holland Landing—Will be Completed in Three Years

Newmarket, May 13.—Work has commenced on the proposed section of the Trent Valley Canal from Newmarket to Holland Landing, and if it is to be in earnest it means a lot to this section. Laborers have been busy for several days, and the indications are that their numbers will be increased rapidly, as the contractors state that, "all things favorable," the proposed stretch of canal will be completed within three years. The first little unfavorable circumstance has already occurred. A gang of Italian laborers has refused to work because the contractors would not pay the commission they had handed to the employment agent. Both sides were obdurate and the navvies departed.

There is a suspicious feeling among the towns people that this long anticipated show of activity on the work of the canal is not without its political significance, particularly at this time when the kettle is beginning to sing and the election bee is buzzing in many bonnets. However, the towns people admit that in the event of the sincerity in the intention to go on with the work this district is going to liven up a bit.

This undertaking will require an army of men and horses, and the employment of these is one of the problems that must be made workable during the progress of operations between the present and that fortunate day in the future when Newmarket will have gained all the advantages of a lake port.

The contractors on the work will want men; they say they are not particular as to what nationality they are so long as they can work or make a noise such as can be taken as conclusive proof that they are earning their money.

Dill & Company, engineers and contractors, who have sub-let a part of the work to Grant Bros., declare that they are not responsible for any sign or statement to the effect that, white men are wanted, no Englishmen need apply. They assert that they have no aversion whatever to Englishmen so long as they have the qualifications for industry. There are Italians already on the scene. The first batch came a few days ago, when a gang of these laborers arrived from Toronto, and intimated that they expected the boss to make good the fifty cents per head that they had paid to an employment agent. This was flatly refused, and that is why the Italians returned to Toronto.

One of the foremen for Grant Bros. was asked as to industrial prospects on the canal. His statement was similar to that of Dill & Company. A large number of men would be employed, but there would be no tight lines when it came to a question of nationality. His firm, he declared, were not debarring Englishmen who could work, and he denied the existence of an order giving them to understand that it would be useless for them to apply.

Newmarket expects great things of the canal even before it is complete. The weekly wage list will before long run well into the thousands and it is reasonable to assume that a considerable portion of it will find circulation locally. Good wages are being paid and there appears to be no excuse for idleness on the part of any man who can wield a shovel with any degree of intelligence.

THE "BOB HALL" IS IN SERVICE

The steamer "Bob Hall" came up from Bobcaygeon yesterday morning, completing the last of her trips from Lakefield to Lindsay. Mr. Sam Clegg, superintendent of local marine districts, was on board and had the boat wait for a couple of passengers who came by train from Peterborough, before the trip was continued to Kirkfield.—Lindsay Post.

SYMPATHY FOR MURDERER MOIR

He Captures the Hearts of the Arthur People---Slayer of Color-Sergt. Lloyd is Brought Down From Arthur

London, May 13—Private Moir was brought back to London last night from Arthur, Ont, whisked from the train to the patrol waggon and placed in a cell at police headquarters. This morning he will be remanded for a week. The proceeding will be entirely of a formal nature. The preliminary hearing will be held in a week's time. Moir was brought back from Arthur, where he was taken following his capture, by Detective Thomas Nickle. At no time did The make an attempt to circumvent the ends of the law. All day long he waited for the moment when he should be shackled and taken away, and though he was nervous, he exhibited none of the signs of the ill-temper which he is said to possess. He chatted on ordinary matters on the journey home a distance of 153 miles and slept or appeared to sleep some of the time. He was never in an arbitrary mood. His appearance gained him sympathy.

At the CPR station a crowd of several hundred people had gathered to meet the train on which the soldier was to arrive. The platform was crowded and the manner in which morbid curiosity overroad good sense was positively brutal. Moir was hurried to the patrol and taken to police headquarters. The crowd jeered after the manner of such crowds.

On the journey down Moir was subjected to great curiosity. At every station there was a crowd which clamored about the doors of the car and sought to catch a glimpse of him

Moir felt his position keenly and was in a highly-strung state along the entire journey.

A reporter was in Arthur all day yesterday and the impression in that village was entirely in favor of the prisoner. He had been seen by almost every resident of the village when Detective Nickle arrived at noon and the "sob squad" had gotten in some splendid work. The entire population, individually and collectively was Moir's friend. With the unreasoning sympathy which, is, after all, nothing but the direct dictate of human nature, the residents lived up as his supporters to a man. Man, woman and child suffered the pangs of remorse that the murdered did. A few reasoned coolly and calmly. They thought of the crime, as they thougt of the smooth faced youngster who incited sympathy by his quiet demeanor.

Less than two hours after Moir had been brought to jail, and the news of his desperate struggle for life was ringing in their ears, the leading men of the town got together and organized a subscription list for the prisoner and a considerable sum was collected, "as an expression of sympathy."

In the lock-up of the village, situated in the typical town hall building, Moir sat and smoked all day. Sunday Mr. James Robb brought in $12 for Moir, which he had earned while working on his farm.

At Moir's suggestion this money, was put to the use of buying him a new suit of clothes. Clean linen, new underwear, had practically an entire new outfit was provided by the villagers.

When yesterday morning Mr M Wilkins of Arthur, a solicitor, who was acting in Moir's interests permitted a Free Press reporter to have a brief interview with the man, the newspaper man was puzzled for a minute when he entered the lock-up and was confronted by a complacently, quiet and unassuming young man who shook hands readily enough and smiled at a quip about the curiosity of the crowd outside.

Moir wore a new dark brown suit, It was ready-made, but fitted him perfectly. He sat upon a barrel in the space between the two cells, which the town boasts in his shirt sleeves. He was smoking a cigar, not without enjoyment.

The first thing that struck the reporter, a man who had been on the chase with the officers and primed to the ears with the seriousness of the affair, was that Moir was not a vicious looking character. He was perfectly calm and chatted quietly. He had been clean shaved and in his shirt sleeves, he presented the picture of a care-free young old countryman. The reporter did not know him either from the many pictures of him or the description given. The donning of a new suit and clean linen, and the application of the razor had brought a transformation greatly in his favor

Moir talked freely enough when questioned but had no volunteer conversation to offer. He made friends from the first.

People who knew nothing of the crime unreasonably lined up as an indignant disclaimer of the hard-handed law. Moir's appearance and attitude appeared to win the respect of one and all. His explanations were quickly gobbled up, sinking into the mind of the hearer as a complete vindication.

To do Moir justice and at the same time with no desire to cater to the cheap sympathy element, it must be mentioned in Moir's favor that he makes no play to the gallery. He is ready to answer questions, when his counsel allows, but he does not seek to parade excuses.

Moir has said to everyone who asked him that he did not know that he had slain Lloyd until he read an account of it in the hotel of Buff Richardson where he claims to have stayed on the Sunday night following the murder. He says that when he awoke on a straw stack six miles northeast of London he found his rifle beside him. There was an empty cartridge in it, and he realized that he had committed an outrage. He says he became excited and desired to get away. He told the officers who captured him that if he had had a chance he would not have been taken so easily. He does not pretend to hide the fact that he was trying to escape. It was his intention, so he states to one of those who talked with him, to stay on the Robb farm for six months and save his money. He was then going to make for the States and finally go to Australia.

Arthur is a sympathetic village. To the residents the capture of Moir was the event of a decade, and every one of note saw him before he was taken away. No one saw him after Detective Nickle arrived. The looseness ended then. But there was no harm done by the lapse in discipline, Reeve H J Colwill, Rev W. G. Richardson, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and Rev. Father Doherty, of St. John's church saw Moir on Sunday. Their impression was one that placed the soldier as being a young man who had unfortunately committed a crime when he was not responsible.

These gentlemen decided to do something to show Moir that the village had sympathy for him. A subscription list was commenced and a considerable sum was given to the soldier.

Those who subscribed to the fund were: Rev. Father Doherty, pastor of St. Johns' Church; Rev. W. G. Richardson, pastor of St. Andrew's Church; J. A. McGill, Manager Traders' Bank; M. J. Brown, proprietor Arlington Hotel; Geo. A. Shoner, jeweler; Rev. Mr. Russell, pastor of the Latter Day Saints' church; Reeve Colwill.

"We collected a good sum for Moir" said the last named gentleman to The Free Press. We don't know both sides of thee case, but Moir certainly made a good impression here. We believe him to be only the unfortunate victim of circumstances. It was not because we wanted to do something to be talked of. We liked this man. He excited our sympathy and we wanted to show him that Arthur was a sympathetic town.

The village turned out en masse to see Moir away. Everyone who has come into the town had been photographed by one of the many camera artatists who were in the vicinity.

"I wouldn't care about this thing" he said to a reporter, "at least not so much, if it were not for my poor old mother. I can suffer whatever whatever is in disgrace upon one's mother and sister and brother.

Moir talked freely enough. There were with him in the cell two or three men residents of Arthur. No effort had been made to keep out the curious before the arrival of the detective. It was a holiday for the people of Arthur; people were let in by twos and threes.

"No, I have no recollection whatever of shooting poor Lloyd." he said. "I would not be guilty of such a thing in my senses. Lloyd was a friend of mine — a good fellow who always treated me right. I must have been drunk, indeed I know I was drunk drunk, indeed I know I was drunk when I reached the barrack that horrible night"

Moir makes one remarkable statement however.

"At first when I realized what I had done the impulse was strong within me to return to London and give myself up. I wanted to rid myself of the whole thing even if it cost me my life. But I hadn't the pluck to do it. Then I made up my mind to get away if I could."

"No, I do not ask for any sympathy now," he said. "All I want is fair trial. If I am guilty of this thing I must take the consequences. But I feel that I was not responsible."

Moir denies absolutely that he ever ate cordite. He says it was drink entirely that is responsible for his present position.

The face of the young man wears a saddened expression. He is undoubtedly aware of the seriousness of his position.

Mr. Edmund Meredith, K.C., of London, has been communicated with with a view to securing his services as counsel for the defence.

Mr. M. Wilkins, of Arthur, was acting in Moir's behalf yesterday.

Rev. W.G. Richardson, Presbyterian minister here, is taking an active interest in Moir's case. He has befriended the young man in every possible way, and has talked to him of his spiritual condition.

"Moir told me," said the reverend gentleman, "that no matter what may be his fate he is confident that he will be forgiven."

Rev. Mr. Richardson says he believes that Moir is an honest man. He had always attended church when at Guelph and again when at London, he attended Rev. Mr. Ross' church. Moir had been well brought up. He has a sister, a motheer and a brother at a place called Hawick, Scotland. His grandfather is also alive and very well-to-do. He would not give his grandfather's name, on account of the position in which he (Moir) is placed.

"General" he said. "I am sorry to inform you that the moving picture machine is out of order, and the battle must be postponed."

With a muttered curse the commanding officer gave the order to cease firing.—From the February Bohemian.

LIMERICK CRAZE.

The Lindsay Free Press is publishing a daily Limerick. This is deplorable. Once upon a time in Peterborough a certain young man essayed to write Limericks in connection with a famous hockey contest and as a result he lost his best girl, was put out of the church, held on suspicion by the police and had to go before a lunacy commission. The Free Press man should beware. There is enough sorrow in the world, especially in Lindsay, without increasing it with Limericks.

WILL NOT LET INDIAN AWAY; COMMITTEE CAN'T ARRANGE IT

Ottawa, May 13—Will Tom Longboat be allowed to go to England ahead of the other members of the Canadian Olympic athletic team?

Interviewed today by The Star representative on the chances of the champion Marathon runner being sent to England shortly suggested Manager Tom Flanagan a member of the Central Committee stated that they had not received a direct request from Flanagan. "We have been requested by the CAAU to allow Longboat to go, that he may train in Ireland. The chances are that Longboat will have to stay and take his chances with the rest of the Canadians. The committee consented to allow Coley and Kerr to go, but so many kicks have been heard as the result that Col Hanbury Williams and his confreres would hardly consent to Longboat's going."

No reply has yet been received from Sherring of Hamilton in answer to the letter offering him the post as assistant trainer and advisor to the athletic team.

Of all the short sighted athletic policies ever promulgated the one which keeps Tom Longboat at home is the worst.

Tom Longboat, Canada's hope in the English Marathon kept here in Canada where he cannot be trained and handled anything like he could be if he were across the water—why?

Simply because some knockers in the East got their hammers out and the men on the Olympic Committee were not big enough to over-rule them and send the Indian over.

There are rumors, too, that the CAAU didn't persist in the proposal to send him any more than the law allows.

Why?

Well, rumor has it that the CAAU wanted the Indian to draw a gate here at the Ontario and Canadian trials here.

What do you think of that—if it is true? Crib Canada's strongest chance in the whole Olympic programme at the instance of a few knockers or for a couple of big gates. Isn't it nonsensical?

The Indian can and will win the Marathon if he can be put in shape, and the only way to get this piece of redskin preverseness in shape is to get him across the water away from his friends.

Get him away from Canada!

We need that Marathon!

True, Coley and Lawson have a chance but both have been beaten.

The Indian has never been beaten in a road race.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings, which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

QUESTION THAT IS TROUBLING THE SPORTING FRATERNITY

Will ball players be allowed on Nicholls' Oval on Saturday? This is the question that is troubling a section of the local sporting fraternity, and the Review regrets that no definite answer can be given to-day. The whole question hinges on the weather. If there is no more rain this week it is likely that the oval will be open on Saturdy, but if more moisture descends it will be kept closed. Those in charge of the park are acting wisely in the course taken. It may seem a hardship to the ball players, but if the oval was thrown open with the sod in the soft condition it is in at present it would be so badly cut up that it would take all summer to get it into shape again.

Two intermediate ball games are scheduled for Saturday and it is hoped they can be played.

A definite announcement as to the oval will be open on Saturday will be made to-morrow.

MONTREAL MAN SAYS GENE'S CONTRACT IS A HEAVY ONE

Mr. E. Auger, of Montreal, Has Good Opinion of Yankee Rogers' Ability—Powerful Man and Has Great Speed and Science

A Review man had a conversation this morning with Mr E. Auger, travelling representative of the Kenegraph Company, Montreal, who is in the city on a business visit to Mr W. A. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal. Mr. Auger in speaking about the bout on the 22nd between "Yankee" Rogers and "Gene" Hurtubuise said he thought the local man was taking a big task on himself when he signed the articles for the match. When Rogers was working out about six years ago Mr Auger had a friendly go with him. The latter weighs considerably over 200 pounds himself. He said Rogers was a man of great strength and considerable science at that time and has improved greatly in both respects during his brilliant career on the mat.

"I have seen Rogers wrestle on different occasions" said Mr Auger, and he displays great science and speed and uses his strength to the best advantage. He will give Hurtubuise a great go and if your Peterborough wrestler stays with him he will certainly be deserving of much credit.

The Review's informant has never seen Hurtubuise work and so could express no opinion concerning him.

Gouthier, the well known French-Canadian heavyweight is a cousin of Mr Auger. Gouthier has wrestled with Rogers and in a hard bout stayed with him for about forty minutes before the celebrated American mat artist managed to pin his shoulders to the carpet.

SOME INTERESTING DOPE ABOUT PETERBOROUGH TEAM

In view of the fact that the Peterborough baseball team play their first game of the season on Saturday, the information about the players will be of interest.

FREDDIE EDMUNDS, CATCHER

Better known as Jerry Edmunds, jumped into fast company two years ago and played with the crack Grandview team of the North-Western League. Edmunds caught in the neighbourhood of 75 games last year for Grandview and was always there with a good throwing arm and a beautiful eye for the ball when handling the willow. He is a husky boy and a strenuous worker and should prove the goods in the position, making a worthy success to Harry Burridge.

FREDDIE CLEMENTS, PITCHER

Clements is well known to the baseball fans of Peterborough, Port Hope and Cobourg. He made his debut in Midland League ball last year when he pitched a great game against Port Hope, in Port Hope, and another the following week in Cobourg. Clements has barrels of speed and good control, with a fine bunch of benders, and with such a heady catcher as Edmunds behind him should prove one hard to beat.

WALTER, "CAKER" THORNE, 1st BASE

Thorne is the tallest man on the team and therefore, has the position suitable for his length. Thorne covers the bat to perfection and should prove one of the hardest hitters in the league. "Caker" hails from the North-Western League and led the batsmen with the handsome average of .408.

JAMES O'HEARN, 2nd BASE.

"Jimmy" is well known to the Midland League fans as a sharp, neat fielder, and a beautiful hitter. Fans of Peterborough can call to memory his great work with the willow against Cobourg's Eastern League battery last year, when the little midget clouted the sphere for five safeties, including a home run. "Jimmy" will no doubt we welcomed in Peterborough. He is captain of the St. Mary's team, of Toronto.

EDWARD "TED" MDADOCK, ss.

"Ted" will make his first appearance in a Peterborough uniform this Saturday, when he will cover the space between Cheatham and O'Hearn. Maddock is a fast fielder, and has the advantage over most infield men by his being able to shoot the Spalding from any position. He is a strong left-handed batter and a great base-runner, and his experience in fast company should be of worth to the "Petes". Last year he played with the champions of the Cleveland City League, a semi-professional organization.

HARRY, "RED" CHEATHAM, 3rd b.

"Red" needs no introduction to the Peterborough fans. His great work around short-stop last year will long be remembered. "Red" made the hard ones look easy with his neat style, and for batting the dope says he is due to have his banner year with the willow.

JAMES, "CONNY" MURPHY, lf

Murphy has had experience in the Midland League before playing for the Petes the last three games last year. His great work in the final game in Cobourg proved him to be one of the best amateur outfielders in the business. Murphy is a good sticker and a speedy base runner, and one of the most amusing coachers to be found. He was with the St. Mary's of Toronto last year and Jack Toft wanted him for his Cotton State League team this season.

FRANK "FRIZ" O'BRIEN, C. F.

O'Brien will hold down the centre field position and his fleetness of foot and good judgment will make the batters work to keep the sphere away from him. O'Brien is a good batter and should prove a valuable man. He was with the Charlotte, N. Y. semi-professionals last year.

CORNEY BURNS

Right field is too well known to Peterborough fans to need much introductioin. His work last year will long be remembered. He was always true with the big stick, stinging the pellet to the tune of .390 and driving many runs in ahead of him. He is a neat, accurate fielder, covers a lot of ground while his base running can not be surpassed.

WILL ACCOMPANY JIMMY REYNOLDS

When he is making his walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return Jimmy Reynolds will be accompanied by Charlie Stevens.

Reynolds took quite a fancy to the local boy when he saw him walking here.

RUNNING

It is said that a number of local athletes are going to attempt a run from Peterborough to Lindsay. They will be able to contribute an article on "the strenuous" life to these pages by the time their pedal extremities carry them through the adhesive compound which is thickly spread on the highways between here and the Porridge City.—Lindsay Warder.

The British Postmaster-General in the House of Commons today, speaking on the proposal mail contract with the C.P.R. for the Far East, said that this contract would in no way prevent them making another should a more advantageous route become available.

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realise the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

RURAL PHONES GREAT BENEFIT

Experience of Mr. F. Birdsall, President of Norwood Agricultural Society.

An evidence of the greatest benefit derived through having a telephone in the house was given recently by Mr. F. Birdsall, of Birdsall, Ont., President of the Norwood Agricultural Society, Peterborough County, Ont. "I have a telephone in my house," said Mr. Birdsall, "and I find that it is a great saver of time as well as of horse flesh. For instance, formerly, when I wanted to ship any stock or grain, I used to have to drive to Hastings to see the agent to find out when I could get a car. Sometimes it was necessary to wait around for several hours before I could secure the information that I desired. I thus lost not only my own time but the time of the horse as well. Now all I have to do is to call up the agent over the telephone. Thus I am able to do in a few minutes what used to necessitate a loss of several hours' time.

"One man in our section saved $45 on a sale of cattle by having a telephone. A buyer called at his farm and offered him a certain price for the stock. He felt disposed to take it as he had not received a better offer. He asked for a little time, however, and called up a buyer in Peterborough over the telephone, with the result that he succeeded in selling his cattle for $45 more than he had been offered by the first drover. This saving was sufficient to pay for the cost of his telephone for several years. What we farmers want is rural free delivery, farm telephones and electric power."

LAYMEN ARE IN CONVENTION

Annual Meeting of Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement at Toronto

The annual convention of the Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement of Ontario and Quebec opened in Jarvis street Baptist church, Toronto, this afternoon, and will be continued this evening and all day to-morrow. This afternoon there will be two important addresses on "Missions, the Business of the Church," by Mr. Geo. McLagan, of Stratford, and "Missions, the Business of the Individual," by Prof. A. L. McCrimmon. This evening there will be three addresses by Mr. A. B. Stovel, of Winnipeg, Mr. J. A. Paterson, K.C., and Rev. C. A. Cook, of Bloomfield, N.J. To-morrow afternoon the proceedings will commence with a luncheon to the delegates, followed by several important conferences.

Mr. A. E. Marling, of New York, will deliver an address to-morrow evening on the larger work outside Canada. Mr. B. P. Devasahayam, a Hindu, will deliver an address on the "Evangelization of India," and Mr. D. E. Thomson will also speak.

"MERRY WIDOW" HAS PROVED MONEY MAKER

Remarkable Success of a Comic Opera That was at First Considered of Little Merit.

Perhaps the title, "The Merry Widow," is not new to some readers. Indeed, it is more than possible that some of them may have heard "The Merry Widow" waltz, or even have seen "The Merry Widow" hat. At the same time, the story of the light opera that gives its name to both waltz and hat is not generally known. It is not the purpose of the writer to attempt an explanation of the amazing popularity of the hackneyed waltz, but merely to note some of the unusual features of the composition's history.

To begin then, "The Merry Widow" is an Austrian production, its librettists being Victor Leon and Leon Stein, and its musical composer Franz Lehar. The librettists admit their obligations to a French original, whose name will not, alas, go thundering down to posterity. The three composers wrote "The Merry Widow" with no thought that it would become at all famous, in which pessimistic views they were confirmed by the manager of the An der Weir the Viennese theatre where it was produced. Indeed, so certain were they all that the piece would fail that another light opera was being hurriedly mounted to take its place when the premier of the "Widow" was announced in the papers. With the idea of getting through with a bad job, the piece was rushed on the public after only three rehearsals of the full company.

Its reception quite staggered the modest people who were responsible for the piece, and as the press and public united in approval, plans were made to let it run. It was the music that made the chief "hit," and Franz Lehar, ex-bandmaster of the 26th Infantry in the Russian Army soon became the lion of the hour. The little restaurant he visited suddenly became one of the most popular in Vienna. There nightly, after the performance, his friends would take him in their arms, and carry him on their shoulders to the piano, where he was obliged to play favorite passages from his opera. Success has not spoiled Lehar, although up to date he has drawn $300,000 profit on his jingles. He has become musical director of an important Vienna theatre, and his one ambition is to make it a famous comic opera house. As he is only 37 years old, his ambition is by no means an unlikely one, for Lehar must be far from "written out."

The librettists, up to date, have drawn $200,000 from the venture, and the music publisher, Bernhardt Herzmansky, has made $350,000. He got the concession for a mere trifle from the composer at the time no one had any faith in the piece, and expected a short, inglorious run for it. Indeed, Herzmansky was looked upon as an exceedingly rash man to venture a few pounds on "The Merry Widow." To his honor it must be said that having got the score for a song, he tore up the agreement and made a new one with Lehar when the golden tide began to flow in. Had he not done so, his own profits would have been much larger, and those of the ex-bandmaster much smaller. As it is, Bernhardt is now in line to publish other comic operas from the pen of Lehar, so his square dealing is not likely to prove costly after all.

During the two years that have passed since that night when the little bandmaster was told that his work would not bring him fame or money, the "Merry Widow" has captivated the whole of civilized Europe. In the United States, where five companies are appearing in it, the rush for tickets at the New Amsterdam Theatre has been likened to the feverish crowding round the doors of a threatened bank. In Vienna the "Merry Widow" has been performed 450 times, Berlin 400 times, St. Petersburg 350, Copenhagen 300, Cologne 200, Munich 200, Hamburg 800, Christiania 200. The total number of performances given in German has been more than 12,000; in other than German, 7,000. It is playing every evening in Europe in nine languages, and its performance has been witnessed by every monarch in the countries to which these languages belong. Our own King, says the London Mail, has seen it four times; the Queen once. The King and Queen of Spain and the Queen of Portugal witnessed it in London. And yet no play, so far as its production is concerned, has ever had a calmer career in England than this one. Every week its receipts are the same; the theatre is always full. There is a positive monotony in the way this mascot play sweeps in the money everywhere every night!

In London, 50,000 copies of the complete vocal score and 200,000 copies of the famous waltz from the second act had been sold a month ago. Figures for other cities are not available, but they would surely be staggering if they were known. Perhaps one of the regrets of "The Merry Widow" people is that the piece had to run eighteen months in Vienna before they could get it going in London, the reason being that they had made no preparations for a great financial success, and were too dazed to take early advantage of it. Once in London, however, they struck the real gold mine. It is said that hundreds of people have gone to every performance regularly once a week since the run began. There were so many of them that they were able to prevent Mr. Edwardes, the manager of Daly's Theatre, from tampering with the play, his idea being that he could smarten it up a bit. This incident is reported to be unique; and another peculiarity is that no matter what cast appears, the play prospers, for its charm appears to dwarf that of singers and comedians.

Woman's World

SELMA LAGERLOF.

Popular Swedish Author, Who Is Poet, Philosopher and Romanticist.

Selma Lagerlof, the popular Swedish author, whose last book, "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," has been compared to Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales, began her literary career at the age of thirty-five.

In 1890 she was awarded the highest literary prize by a Stockholm magazine for some fragmentary sketches from "Gosta Berling."

Their substance matter and style were so unusual that the critics at once recognized a coming literary star.

At that time Miss Lagerlof was a teacher in a country school. Through the substantial influence of the Baroness Alelssparre, an editor and writer of note, Miss Lagerlof was enabled to give up teaching and devote her time and energies to the completion of her novel.

When "Gosta Berling" came out it created a furore. It has been called the "David Copperfield" of Swedish literature.

The author has broken away from hackneyed literary forms and tells her stories in her own way, and her way has revolutionized Swedish fiction and has practically founded a new school of Swedish writers.

SELMA LAGERLOF.

Miss Lagerlof is an idealist, a combination of poet, philosopher and romanticist.

Today she is the most beloved writer in Sweden, and justly so, for she mirrors the very soul of her race. Nothing morbid, hurtful or degrading does she send broadcast. Her influence is pure and uplifting, and her books are instructive as well as entertaining.

Last year she was the Swedish people's candidate for the Nobel literary prize, which was finally awarded to Kipling. But when the Swedish academy concludes to give the prize to one of their own writers the choice will undoubtedly be Selma Lagerlof.

Some of the leading German critics consider her the foremost woman writer of our time, and one of our own American reviewers has said that "Selma Lagerlof is the greatest imaginative genius in modern literature."

"The Wonderful Adventures of Nils" is beyond doubt the author's best work. American reviewers were quick to see that here was a juvenile classic—one that will live and stand cheek by jowl with the "Arabian Nights," Grimm and Andersen. This very beautiful story has been cleverly translated into English by Mrs. Velma Swanston Howard.

Selma Lagerlof, like her famous countrywoman, Fredrika Bremer, is an enthusiastic advocate of woman suffrage and takes an active interest in all matters pertaining to the advancement of women.

She was the first woman in Sweden to receive the honorary degree of literary doctor. This title was conferred upon her by the University of Upsala last year.

This greatest of Swedish writers is as simple and unaffected as a child.

Her home—a quaint, old fashioned villa in Delecarlia—is a model of simplicity and good taste.

She is an ardent lover of nature and spends her leisure time with the flowers and trees in her beautiful garden.

Art of Taking a Nap.

This part of a day's routine is not often looked upon as an accomplishment, yet sleeping is among those kindly offices of nature that are most abused. Our sleep is imperative, but when and how and where we get it is usually the last consideration. Irregularity of rest is more and more marked among people today. The old fashioned phrase "early to bed and early to rise" is no longer anything more than a passing pleasantry. This new order of things is chiefly supported by young people. Just at the time in their lives when proper rest would do most for them in building strength and health for later years the coming of night is regularly the signal for greater activities. Social gayeties or studies or home occupations push all nature's peaceful intents to one side. Another old saying quite ignored these days is about the "beauty sleep" necessary before midnight. There is no doubt that this is true. Without any scientific explanation it is easy to believe that nature planned for rest time at nightfall. The first two or three hours of sleep witness the greatest relaxation of the body. Then there should come five or six hours of light sleep that would be broken shortly after dawn. At the first hour of fresh, bright daylight one should be awake.

So much, in a few words, for the night sleep. The daytime nap is a matter not so easily disposed of. In the first place, the fact of its being possible at all depends upon individuals. It is generally acknowledged that some people require more sleep than others. This excess is often made up in the day nap. But ofteuer a woman rests during the day because of sheer weariness. To this it can only be said that there is no time more soothing and effective. Since the night sleep is not long enough or refreshing enough, a rest between times is good, but the manner of the taking is seldom what it should be. There is much difference of opinion about naps at mealtime, though it seems to the writer that sleep immediately after a meal is heavy and halts the activity of the digestive organs. When the stomach has received the food of a regular meal, the need of a fresh, plentiful blood supply is unquestionable. Exercise is the best way to stimulate it—that is, moderate exercise, walking or moving about some occupation in the house.

Monkey Brand Soap makes copper like gold, tin like silver, crockery like marble, and windows like crystal.

A Steamer Present.

One of the newest and at the same time most practical things to give a woman before she sails is what is called the "fishwork basket."

It includes a number of silver pieces, all decorated with fish, oyster shells, oars or something relating to the sea on them. The scissors have miniature fish for handles, the bodkins or ribbon runners are in the shape of fish, while the thread is wound like coils of rope one is familiar with on decks of vessels.

The needles are of course like those ordinarily used, but are stuck in a pretty piece of flannel covered with red silk that resembles a small rowboat.

The box in which these are fitted is of willow, lined with red silk, and looks like the basket that fishermen carry with them on trips. The cost of it is $4.50 and up, according to the size.

Woman In Advertising Art.

Woman has taken her place permanently as the central figure in advertising illustration. Not many years have passed since she began to glide into it to an appreciable extent, yet already most of the advertisements in the magazines are beautified with pictures of women. Within the memory of men still in vigorous health time was when a certain hair restorer, a soap and a dentifrice were about the only commodities set forth by means of feminine pictures, and then the faces were only ideals, not portraits. A brick company in the Blue Grass State this month appeared on the first pages of industrial magazines through a picture of five smiling young women behind a brick pile. Under the group is the legend: "They're Kentuckians. There are plenty more at home like them. If you're a Missourian, write us. We'll show you."

For the Guest Chamber.

A certain ingenious matron who has a charming little guest chamber and entertains many visitors has discovered a delightfully novel scheme of decoration for that special bedroom. Just before each of her guests leaves she insists upon taking a parting snapshot of her, and the often amusing photographs are mounted, framed and hung in the spare room. As may be imagined, the collection of pictures soon grows both large and varied and is very interesting to each succeeding guest, who is thus enabled to study the counterfeit presentments of every visitor who has been sheltered within the pleasant room.

Dainty Corset Cover.

A dainty corset cover seen the other day was simplicity itself compared with its fellows, but was well worth copying.

Made of striped sheer dimity, it was faced neck, armholes and belt line with a large dotted swiss. Through this was run rather wide pink ribbon. That was all, except where dotted swiss and dimity joined it was featherstitched, but it made a most charming little affair to wear, especially with breakfast jacket or matinee.

Fresh Air For Baby.

If too busy to give baby an airing outdoors, dress the child warmly, put him in the sunniest room you have. Pull the shades clear to the top and open the window wide. The temperature ought to be 50 degrees. Cover the baby well and as an extra precaution place a hot water bottle or iron at his feet. Protect his eyes and if windy place a screen in front of him. Let him sleep here from 9 to 3, and he will thrive and enjoy it.

An Ideal Summer Drink.

Owing to its acidity, buttermilk is of laxative property and is supposed to make a general impression on the liver. It can often be taken by those unable to take fresh cow's milk and has been found valuable in the treatment of diabetes, gastric ulcer and cancer of the stomach. It is said to be one of the most digestible of milk products and is recommended to serve the double purpose of food and beverage.

If you have something to give, you will be wanted. And this is true not of money alone. One who sees the humorous side and can help others to see it brings his welcome with him. A sympathetic nature, responding readily to every appeal, rejoicing in the joy of others and grieving in their grief, brings bounty with it. Only the self engrossed have nothing to give away.

Don't forget that birth and breeding show up more clearly at the dinner table than at any other time. As a man eats, so is he.

When beauty consists of nothing more than surface loveliness, time offers nothing but grief.

A Man of Many Places.

By virtue of his office the lord mayor of London is admiral of the port of London, gauger of wine and oil and of other articles, measurer of coals, grain, salt and fruit and inspector of butter, hops, soap, cheese, etc. He is governor of four hospitals, a trustee of St. Paul's cathedral and a magistrate "in several places." He is also coroner.

CORN CROPS.

Influence of Climate and Soil on Size of Yield.

The leading varieties of corn grown in the west have been developed on rich land. What the effect of attempting to grow them on poor land would be is a matter of general interest, and to study this point three samples of Leaming corn were grown on three plats of sod land and three plats where cowpeas had been plowed under in 1905 at the Virginia experiment station. The purpose of this test was to see what the effect of turning under a large amount of vegetable matter would have on the yield of corn.

Cowpeas Add Nitrogen.

Cowpeas, being a leguminous crop, add much nitrogen to the soil, and, decaying readily, the plant food contained becomes quickly available. The samples of corn compared were from Illinois, Virginia and from ear No. 37, one of the best yielding ears from the breeding plat. On rich land notice that the Illinois sample had a clear lead, yielding 76.34 bushels; ear No. 37 followed with 67.84 bushels, while the Virginia strain made a yield of 59.81 bushels.

On Sod Land.

On sod land the results were quite different. In the first place, the yield was much lower with the Illinois sample than with ear No. 37, while all the varieties made practically the same yield of about sixty bushels per acre, indicating that the Leaming sample developed on rich land responds quickly to good soil treatment. When placed on land of fair quality it will not yield any better than the native sorts which are accustomed to growing in such an environment. Corn brought from the west, therefore, should be put only on rich land, while the native corn if placed under the most favorable conditions must be bred up to the point where it will give corresponding yields. We believe this explanation accounts for the complaint made by some farmers that plowing under cowpeas and other leguminous crops has failed to give them an increased yield of corn. This is a very important matter and shows how much the corn plant is a product of environment and special selection and breeding.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

Will be glad to explain our plan.

LIVELY TIME AT THE CORNER

Citizen Poorly Repaid for Attempt to Stop Horse That Was Walking off

There was a lively time at the post office corner for a few minutes this morning. A horse, attached to a buggy, and, no doubt, wishing to emulate and, no doubt, wishing to emulate recent pedestrian stunts started to walk across the road. A passerby rushed out to stop the animal and in doing so frightened it. The horse started to run and swung around in front of the Crown Hotel and upset the buggy. The shafts broke and the horse broke away from the vehicle. It ran across the road but was stopped in front of the Munro House. The buggy was badly damaged.

VOLUNTEERS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Young Men at Port Hope Greatly Put Out by Ottawa Announcement

The news that the assembling of 20,000 troops at Quebec for the 300th anniversary of the Battle of the Plains of Abraham will be reduced to 5000 comes as a great disappointment to many Port Hopers. Of the 5000 the permanent force will make up the balance. The eighty-four young men in charge of Capt. Ralston, who have been drilling twice a week for the past month at the drill shed, are greatly put out by the announcement and hope that matters may yet be arranged to their satisfaction.

THE MERCHANTS BANQUET WILL BE GREAT SUCCESS

At a meeting of the executive held last night final arrangements were made for the merchants' banquet, to be held at the Oriental Hotel tomorrow evening. There is every assurance that it will be a success. It is stated that the merchants were never more enthusiastic in their approval of the proceedings and are now confident that an association would be of material benefit to all. The speakers from a distance who will be present are all merchants of wide experience in general merchandise, and from all accounts will have a great deal to tell their brethren in Peterborough.. It is important that every merchant should be in attendance, and any who have not yet secured tickets can do so by calling on any of the following gentlemen;—Messrs. Robt. Fair, Jas. Connal, R. Kingan, Walter Oke, W. E. Conway and J. R. Bell. Secretary of the committee.

There will be another meeting of the executive at the Examiner tonight.

CHILD HID IN CYLINDER TO AVOID BEING TAKEN TO CHILDREN'S SHELTER

Mr. Geo. Cochrane Visited Home in Ashburnham This Morning and Brought Three Children to the Shelter —Father Refuses to Work

In order to escape being taken to the Children's Shelter by Mr. Geo. Cochrane, the little eight-year-old daughter of an Englishman by the name of Eglanton, who resides on Douro street, Ashburnham, hid in a large cylinder in the creek that runs by her home.

The agent went to the home this morning to bring three children to the Shelter. Eglanton is a strong, robust man, but apparently refuses to work. The city has been keeping his family, but concluded that if they continued to do so. Eglanton would never go to work. The woman is in poor health and it is the intention to remove her to a hospital.

The three children are exceedingly bright, and were loath to leave their home. Two are girls 14 and 8 years respectively, while the youngest is a boy aged 6. They will be kept at the Shelter until they can be placed where they can be properly taken care of.

SEVENTEEN YEAR OLD BOY DROWNED IN PIGEON CREEK

Michael Flaherty, Son of Mr. Jas. Flaherty, the Victim—Few Particulars Yet to Hand—May Have Relatives Here.

A Lindsay despatch says:—

A sad drowning accident occurred in Emily township near King's Wharf late last evening. Very few particulars are at hand, owing to the fact that there are neither telegraph, telphone, or raiwaly connections at King's Wharf.

The victim was Michael Flaherty, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. James Flaherty, who is exceedingly well known in Lindsay, being a cousa cousin of Mr. P. Hickey, of town.

The drowning is reported to have occurred in Pigeon Creek, the waters of which are very deep in many places.

Mr. Michael Costello, of the vicinity, was in town this morning, and is the Warder's authority for the statement that the drowning actually occurred.

Mr. Costello said that he himself did not hear how the drowning actually occurred.

Two stories are advanced. One is to the effect that as the young lad, who is only seventeen years of age, fell into the creek and took a cramp. The other is that he slipped off the log he was standing on and hit another log in his fall, and that he remained lying in the water in a dazed and stunned condition.

Mr. Costello stated that the Flahertys lived on the opposite side of the creek from his home, and therefore he was not very well acquainted with the facts of the case.

The boy who was drowned may be a cousin of Mr. Edward Flaherty, of Peterborough. No news of the fatality has been received here, except that contained in the despatch.

THERE ARE NOW OVER 600,000 UNEMPLOYED IN THE STATES

Over 250,000 in New York City Alone—The Figures for the Different States of the Union.

New York, May 13—In a canvass of the country to ascertain the number of unemployed men dispatches have been received from many industrial centres with reports of conditions and from these it is estimated that more than one million men are minus jobs. The reports indicate more than 600,000 unemployed in the chief cities and nearly 600,000 in the states outside the cities;

Following are estimates;

In the cities—

Birmingham	14000
Little Rock	1200
San Francisco	27000
Denver	6500
Wilmington	900
Chicago	90000
Indianapolis	7700
Des Moines	600
Lewiston	1200
Boston	40000
Detroit	15000
St Louis	30000
Butte	6500
Omaha	40000
Goldfield	200
Concord	2500
Newark	5000
Trenton	5000
New York	250000
Philadelphia	100000
Providence	8677
Knoxville	4500
Montpelier	5000
Wheeling	6000
	611,827

No definite figures could be obtained from some states but from the best information the number of idle in the States outside the big cities are;

Alabama	20000
California	74000
Colorado	18000
Connecticut	30000
Delaware	11000
Illinois	200000
Iowa	2000
Kansas	10000
Maine	13000
Massachusetts	25000
Missouri	45000
Montana	8500
Nebraska	9000
New Hampshire	2500
Rhode Island	18292
Tennessee	25000
Texas	10500
Vermont	5500
Virginia	7500
West Virginia	60000
Total	506,793

That there are more unemployed men and women in New York City to-day than at any previous time in many years past is the belief of union leaders, charity workers and students of social conditions. Estimates of the number out of work vary from 100 000 to 500,000. It is probable that half of the latter number, or 250,000, is about correct.

The following estimate is given by responsible labor leaders;—

Carpenters	10000
Tailors	8000
Tailors	8000
Rock men and excavators	8000
Bricklayers	7000
Laborers	20000
Housesmiths	9000
Asphalt workers	2000
Painters	7000
Rock drillers	2000
Engineers	2000
Pavers	2000
Plasterers	2000
Steamfitters	500
Sheet metal workers	500
Compositors	2000
Pressmen	1000
Miscellaneous trades	20000
Unorganized labor	145000
Total	250000

Secretary Dounelly, of the General Arbitration Board of the New York building trades, spoke with pride when commenting upon the almost entire absence of destitution among union men despite the fact that at least half of them are out of work at present.

PETERBOROUGH MAN SAW PTE. MOIR AT VILLAGE OF ARTHUR

"Moir is a modest looking little fellow, you would never take him to be a murderer."

This is the statement of Mr. Webber Turner, who has returned home from a business trip to Western Ontario, during the course of which he saw Pte. Moir, the man who has been the talk of the country for the past three weeks. Mr. Turner was at the village of Arthur on Monday, at which time Moir was in the gaol there. He had been captured on Saturday night and was lodged in the Arthur gaol until he could be taken back to London, where the crime was committed. Mr. Turner was at the gaol where Moir was confined and saw the soldier prisoner. He is a young man and is anything but a desperate looking character. Mr. Turner says that the citizens of Arthur all sympathized with Moir and took up a collection for him. A good sum was realized and part of it was expended in purchasing clothes for the unfortunate fellow. He had on the new suit when Mr. Turner saw him and would never be picked out as a desperado. He seemed to feel his position keenly, but was most grateful for what the citizens of Arthur had done for him.

BUY CASEY MOUNTAIN SHARES

IN THE

Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Development Company, Limited.

Chartered by the Ontario Government.

Authorized Capital - - - $250,000.00

Par Value of Shares Fully Paid Up and Non-Assessable, $1.00

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS:

PRESIDENT—R G. Williamson, Toronto, Ont., (formerly of Peterborough, Ont.) VICE-PRESIDENT—James Thompson, Havelock, Ont. SEC'Y-TREASURER—Dr. H. A. Wood, Peterborough. SUPERINTENDENT—D. Williamson, Haileybury, Ont.; D. A. Reid, Brandon, Man.

HEAD OFFICE - - - Manning Chambers, Toronto, Ont.

Why you should buy Casey Mountain shares;

Casey Mountain shares are fully paid-up and non assessable.

The Casey Mountain Mining Company has a large area, which is a regular net work of silver-bearing veins that will go down for thousands of feet.

Casey Mountain has the goods in unlimited quantities sufficient to last for generations.

Casey Mountain estimates that they have a silver bearing vein every 100 feet across the entire property, not counting cross-veins that will be encountered with underground development, and have uncovered 12 to date varying in width from 16 in. to 8 feet.

Casey Mountain is a mining proposition (not a stock speculation) and has been developed continuously during the past ten months, over 300 feet of underground work had been done, and one of the greatest ore bodies encountered that has yet been struck in the district, being 16 feet wide.

Casey Mountain Mines are situate on the adjoining lot to a property that according to good authority was sold last year for one million dollars, and whose shares are being sold at $7.00 each.

Casey Mountain is only capitalized at $250,000.00, a very important point to be considered in a Mining Company, and to give a comparison of our capitalization and a Company capitalized at two and one-half million dollars, that is, paying a dividend at a rate of 12 per cent per cent. per annum to its shareholders, which is equal to $300,000.00 on the total capitalization; this amount of cash would mean 120 per cent. to Casey Mountain Shareholders. This point is worthy of great consideration for those investing in mining stock.

DIVIDENDS PAID BY COBALT MINING COMPANIES

Buffalo Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid, during 1907	$ 81 000 00
The Coniagas Mines, Limited (Cobalt) paid during 1907	200,000 00
Foster Cobalt Mining Company, Limited, haye paid	45,000 00
The Cobalt Silver Queen, Cobalt, paid during 1907	120 000 00
McKinly, Darragh, Savage Mining Co., Limited, have paid	45,000 00
Temiscamings & Hudson Bay Co Mining Limited, have paid	746,120 00

(These shares could have been had at 50 cents and have sold as high as $190.00)

Cobalt Camp has produced 15,000,000 dollars during the past two years.

On the famous Homestead Mine in South Dakota the ore averages about $4.90 per ton, and over $69,000,000.00 has been paid in dividends. The Tredwell Mine in Alaska is running on ore that averages $2.00 a ton and is paying big dividends.

Casey Mountain Mining Company, Limited, has in sight thousands of tons of silver ore that will run $20.00 to a ton, and by treating 100 tons per day would mean a daily output of $2000.00, and allowing the sum of $500.00 per day for all expenses of mining, concentrating, freight and smelter charges, which is a large margin, would give an annual profit of nearly $500,000, or 200 per cent. on the total capitalization of the Company. The above figures are on our low grade ore only.

Quantity is what counts in a profitable mine, providing the grade is high enough to leave a margin over and above expenses.

Casey Mountain is practically a close Corporation, only sufficient shares having been sold to enable the Company to carry on development until returns are received from shipments, and only a small block remains unsold at par value $1.00 per share.

Buy Casey Mountain shares at once while they are on the market, as this will be positively the last opportunity of securing shares of this Company at one dollar each. Wire or mail reservation for shares to the Head Office, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Additional information can be had from the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. A. Wood, 408½ George Street, Peterborough.

DOURO MAN IS MAKING WALK

Mr. P. G. Towns Covered 47 Miles in 9½ Hours Yesterday---Will go for Thirty-Six Hours

Mr. P. G. Towns, of Douro, is attempting to set a record for a thirty six hour walk. He started yesterday and went 9 1-2 hours on a sod track, covering 47 miles. The track is ten laps to the mile and at some places there is almost an inch of mud on it. Mr. Towns is walking ten hours to-day and will walk four or five hours to-morrow and on the following days until he has completed the 36 hours. He should establish a good mark. On the same track yesterday, Mr. Harry Flinders walked 20 miles in four hours, and is becoming a fast walker.

Great interest is being taken in pedestrian stunts in Douro, and the township promises to provide a number of good men.

It is the tea grown on the hillsides of the world-famous Nuwara Eliya district in Ceylon, used in "Salada" Tea that gives it that rich, uniform, delicious flavor.

REPORTS READ AT QUARTERLY MEETING

Of Charlotte St. Church Last Evening--Stewards Appointed

The Quarterly Board of Charlotte street Methodist church met last evening. Rev. H. M. Manning presided and opened the meeting with devotional exercises. He also read a report, showing that there had been an increase in membership and an increase in missionary giving. The reports of the Finance Committee was presented and was very encouraging.

Mr. A. Brown was appointed a representative to the annual district meeting of the Methodist church.

The following were appointed stewards, Messrs. Dr. Morrison, Dr. Neal, R. Neill, J. C. Elliott, Wright, and Jas. Stevenson.

THE KICKER

The Review is pestered to death with people who think a newspaper's duty is to kick about everything. If the council does not act to suit them they want us to get after the Mayor and Aldermen with what they call a "roast." They look upon the newspaper as the vehicle of all their complaints. They even intimate that they would like us to get after the men with whom they have had personal differences. A man said the other day, "The Review doesn't knock half hard enough," and he was right. The Review is not in the knocking business. "These fellows we speak of remind us of the lines we read in an exchange the other day:

He kicketh in the morning.
He kicketh in the night.
He kicks when things go wrong.
He kicks when things go right.
He's kicking in the afternoon.
He's kicking when in bed.
I wonder if he still will be Kicking when he's dead."

HOLD THE DATE

Monday, May 18th. for the entertainment. George Street Sunday School. Splendid program, Music, Songs and six old timers ten minute speeches. Novel and interesting. Admission 15c, or two for 25c

Rev Dr. Langfeldt will conduct the weekly cottage meeting on Thursday May 21st, at 8 pm. at the home of Mr. H MacKay, Douro.

A NECESSITY

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Why don't the Board of Works put a proper crossing across the street at St. Joseph's Hospital gate? The hundreds who go there have to cross in the mud.

Yours,

THE FRENCH AND SPANISH TROOPS HAVE AN ENCOUNTER

Outcome of a Quarrel Between Spanish Soldiers and Algerian Sharpshooters — One Killed, Several Wounded—Explanations Demanded.

Casablanca, May 15.—There was an encounter here May 12 between French and Spanish troops quartered in the port. The Spaniards fired first, it is alleged, and the French Zouaves replied in kind. One Spaniard was killed and another was wounded, while the French had two men wounded. At the conclusion of the incident Col. Desmoutiers assumed command over the area reserved under the policing agreement to Spain.

The encounter, which took place at one of the city gates, was the outcome of a quarrel between some Spanish soldiers and an unarmed Algerian sharpshooter. The Algerian was knocked down and beaten by the Spaniards and is now dying. A sergeant of the Zouaves, who was in charge of the gate, rushed to the rescue of the sharpshooter and with the aid of a French subaltern tried to intervene. The sergeant and the officer were without arms. At this point some Spaniards behind a wall opened fire. The interchange of shots continued several minutes. The firing from the French side was done by Zouaves.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, upon being informed of the encounter at Casablanca between French and Spanish troops, demanded details and explanations from Paris.

The matter has created considerable excitement here. Some newspapers advise the immediate withdrawal of the Spanish troops, saying there is bad blood between them and the French and that a repetition of the trouble is likely if they remain in contact.

Paris, May 15.—It is declared in official circles to-day that the Casablanca incident is not expected to in any way strain the diplomatic relations between France and Spain.

CROWN JEWELS ARE MISSING

Lord Aberdeen and Mr. Birrell are Accused of the Theft

London, May 15.—A warrant for the arrest of Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, "for the theft of the crown jewels from Dublin Castle," was the demand made by an elderly man before the magistrate of the Westminster police court.

The applicant, who claims to be an Irish barrister, handed up a statement charging that "Lord Aberdeen, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Mr. Birrell had committed the theft in conjunction." He declared that in support of this charge he had circumstantial evidence of an extraordinary character. The magistrate took the statement and read it, after which he told the applicant that he could, if he desired, proceed through the Attorney-General, the public prosecutor.

The Irishman thereupon commenced to argue in favor of immediate action on the part of the magistrate, but the latter instructed the officials to remove him from court.

Miners Must Not Drink.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 15.—The H. B. Frick Coke Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has ordered into effect a new code of rules governing its mines and miners, the most remarkable provision of which is the prohibiting of the company's miners from drinking, whether on duty or off.

Rev. J. Robson is President.

Vancouver, B.C., May 15.—At the Methodist Conference, Rev. John Robson of Wallace street Church, Nanaimo, was elected president of the conference by a vote of 62 out of 88.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy Entertained.

London, May 15.—(C.A.P.)—T. P. O'Connor entertained Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who visited the House of Commons, to meet Lloyd-George, Churchill and Seely.

Penny Postage With United States.

London, May 15.—Addressing a trade conference in London John Henniker Heaton, M.P., "the father of the Imperial penny postage," in advocating a penny telegraphic rate between Great Britain and the continent of Europe, said that it was common knowledge that penny postage with the United States would shortly be adopted.

Vreeland Currency Bill.

Washington, May 15.—The Vreeland currency bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, was put through the House, under a special rule, by a vote of 184 to 145. Fifteen so-called insurgents of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

One Man Was Killed.

Montreal, May 15.—When the steamer Ottawa arrived in port the captain reported that when his steamer came into collision a man named John Taylor was killed in his bunk, and four other men injured by the falling of a large quantity of iron on them.

President Roosevelt Accepts.

Washington, May 15.—President Roosevelt has accepted the presidency of the international conference on tuberculosis, which will be held in the city in the autumn.

China Won't Sign.

Pekin, May 15.—Contrary to expectations, China has unexpectedly refused to sign the agreement proposed by Japan for the settlement of Yalu timber controversy. The statement given out that an agreement on this matter was reached was erroneous. This proposal confirmed the creation of a joint stock lumber company of Japanese and Chinese, with a view to carrying on a business of cutting lumber in the forests on the right bank of the Yalu.

Exposition Opens.

London, May 15.—The gates of the Franco-British exposition were thrown open to the public at noon yesterday, and in spite of the threatening weather, a large crowd was present to witness the inaugural ceremonies, which occurred later in the afternoon.

The Prince of Wales, who was accompanied to the exhibition by the princess, delivered the pronouncement, which started the wheels going.

FLYING MACHINE OF PROF. BELL

Has Not Started Yet---U.S. Government is Interested.

Elmira, N.Y., May 15.—A special to The Star-Gazette, from Hammondsport yesterday, says:

Showers which had softened the track yesterday, prevented the intended flight of Prof. Alex. Bell's aeroplane, the "heavier-than-air" flying machine, in which the United States Government is interested, and which prematurely was reported successful.

Prof. Bell's machine, "White Wings," is equipped with a 30-horse power motor, and great sails which spread between 40 and 50 feet. In form and equipment it is not unlike the "Red Wings" machine with which Prof. Bell had considerable success.

Until such time as the White Wings makes a successful flight, which the inventor confidently hopes will not be long distant, he will not discuss publicly the smaller details of the mechanism.

Lieut. Selfridge of the United States signal corps is here, detailed by the Government to watch the progress of the experiments and report the feasibility of utilising the aeroplane in warfare. Within the next few days it is expected Prof. Bell will attempt a flight with his new machine.

The Erindale Murder.

Toronto, May 15.—So positive was the testimony at the inquest at Erindale that the jury returned a verdict of murder against Stephen Swyryda in connection with the death of Olecka Liuteck, the youth who was found on May 3 with his head crushed in at Fasken's bush, near Clarkson's. The jury took less than half an hour to arrive at the following conclusion:

"That Olecka Liuteck came to his death on or about the night of April 16, from being struck on the head with a club or weapon of similar character by one Stiffin Swyryda, who did thereby kill and murder the said Olecka Liuteck." Swyryda was arrested here a few days ago on suspicion.

Twice Derailed In One Trip.

Moncton, N.B., May 15.—The Maritime express leaving Montreal on Wednesday was twice derailed.

Five miles west of Millstream as the train was running about 30 miles an hour, the locomotive left the rails and was followed by the entire train. The Pullman cars Bellechasse and Gloucester, dining-car Yamaska and locomotive careened into the ditch and lay on their sides; the other cars left the rails, but remained standing. Despite the fact that there was a numbere of passengers in the derailed cars, none were hurt, only Fireman Coulombe being injured.

Increased Police and the Lash.

Toronto, May 15.—As a remedy for the increasing prevalence of crime the grand jury in its presentment to Mr. Justice Anglin advocated increased police service in Toronto, shorter sentences and the use of the lash as punishment for all cases of aggravated assaults, and life imprisonment for criminals of hereditary tendencies.

A Great New University.

New York, May 15.—Thousands of graduates of the College of the City of New York came back to their alma mater yesterday to join with distinguished public men and educators in dedicating the handsome new college buildings on Washington Heights. The buildings were erected at a cost of nearly $7,00,000, and the work of construction required nearly five years.

Seized for Poaching.

Vancouver, May 15.—The Seattle halibut fishing steamer Francis Cutting was towed into harbor yesterday by Dominion Government cruiser Kestrel. The Cutting is the largest of Seattle's steam fishing fleet. She was caught fishing in Canadian waters and will be confiscated.

Recovered Five Bodies.

Shreveport, La., May 15.—The relief train which was sent to Gilliam, La., returned here bearing five dead bodies and 31 injured of the tornado which passed over the northern portion of this parish.

Earl of Dudley to Visit Canada.

London, May 15.—The Earl of Dudley, newly-appointed Governor-General of Australia, accompanied by the countess, will leave London early in June and will travel by way of Canada.

THE SITUATION AT OTTAWA; SHORT TRUCE IS DECLARED

Election Bill Laid Off to Allow Some Non-Contentious Matters to be Disposed of—Mr. Jackson Attempts to Read a Letter Denying Statements Made by Mr. Foster But is Ruled Out—May be an Immediate Dissolution.

Ottawa, May 25.—Yesterday the House was occupied with miscellaneous matters, a temporary truce being signed for the purpose of getting through a few Government bills of a non-contentious nature.

To-day the fight on the election bill will be resumed, and will continue till one side gives way or the Government is forced to ask for dissolution. This was decided at a Conservative caucus.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved the appointment of the following committee to investigate the finances of the Quebec Bridge Co.—Maclean (Lunenburg), Talbot, Galliher, Chisholm (Antigonish), Monk, Barker and Walsh (Huntingdon).

Mr. Foster moved the adjournment "to discuss a matter of urgent public importance," namely, the present condition of the Marine Department in view of the slow progress of the Cassels' enquiry. He discussed the matter at some length when Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he was out of order in discussing a matter that had been referred to a commission.

After Mr. Borden had said a few words the motion to adjourn was declared lost.

On a question of privilege Mr. Jackson asked leave to read a letter from Mr. Cyr, M. P., denying certain statements made by Mr. Foster. After reading part of the letter it was ruled out.

Mr. Robitaille drew attention to certain remarks made by Mr. Hunter, Deputy Minister of Public Works, derogatory to French-Canadians. It was ruled not to be a question of privilege.

A resolution providing a salary of $8,000 to the chief justice and $7,000 each to three justices of the British Columbia Court of Appeal, was passed, and the bill establishing the new court was put through its initial stages.

The House went into committee on Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's bill to amend the Exchequer Court Act, which provides for the appointment of substitutes for judges absent on leave or for a judge who may be interested in any particular case, or for a substitute to obviate delay.

A bill making some changes in the Railway Commission was read a third time.

Replying to Mr. Foster, the Finance Minister said bonds to the amount of £3,200,000 had been guaranteed and issued to date in respect of the western division of the G.T.P. The bonds had been delivered to purchasers and the proceeds remitted to Canada, amounted to $14,599,673. This included interim interest accretions on instalment payments up to date of remittance.

Mr. Brodeur told Mr. Taylor in the House yesterday that the purchase price of the ice-breaker Montcalm was $265,233; repairs for four years cost $119,377, expended for furnishing $6,853 and total expenditure, including salaries of crews, $657,725.

Answering Dr. Roche, the Minister of Customs said rebates of duty paid the Massey Harris Co. in the past three years amounted to, on goods for export, 1905-06, $83,153; 1906-07, $90,559; 1907-08, $142,410. On goods for home consumption, 1907-08, $34,486.

Mr. Brodeur informed J. J. Hughes (Kings) that the contract for the new ice-breaker steamer for Northumberland Straits had been let to Vickers, Sons & Maxim, at a cost of £103,000, the ship to be ready in ten months.

The abstract of insurance companies' business for 1907 was laid on the table. Net amount of life insurance in force $689,324,506, an increase of over thirty-three millions. Fire insurance companies received for premius $8,595,041 and paid for losses $5,894,959.

An attempt will be made to-day to break the deadlock that has arisen over the election bill.

Meanwhile the talk of dissolution is heard everywhere. The Government will renew the request for a supply bill covering one-eighth of the estimates and if this is refused it will rest with the leader of the House to withdraw the objectionable clauses or appeal to His Excellency for a dissolution.

The Liberals are to hold a caucus to consider the situation.

THE ICELANDERS AND THE DANES

Future Relations Between Two Countries are Defined.

Copenhagen, May 15.—A report on the future relations of Denmark and Iceland has been presented to King Frederick with a draft bill. It must be approved by both Parliaments. The bill constitutes Iceland "a free, autonomous and independent country united to Denmark by a common king and common interest, and forming with Denmark a state federation—the United Danish Empire." King Frederick will be entitled to call himself King of Denmark and King of Iceland. Various concessions have been granted to Iceland giving a greater degree of independence.

Strikers Advised to Go Back.

Montreal, May 15.—There is a split in the ranks of the textile strikers. A circular issued in the name of A. Gignac, general president, advises the strikers to go back to work, and further states that when a vote was taken on May 3 as to whether they should accept the reduction of ten per cent. or go on strike, the vote for accepting the reduction stood 5,960 to 1,450, and that the decision should be to bow to the inevitable, with the understanding that the rate of wages would be increased again as soon as possible. W. Paquette, the general secretary, has gone through the country urging the hands to go on strike.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

Vancouver, May 15.—Mrs. Lalo Reveira, a Portuguese, was probably fatally stabbed by a countryman named Matsemo, who attempted suicide after he believed he had killed the woman. The latter's husband was absent when Matsemo forced his way into the woman's home.

When the police arrived the place was a shambles. With a pocket knife Matsemo had cut Mrs. Reveira in many places, slashing her breast and back, one cut being two feet long. Then the man cut his own throat. Both may recover, though the woman's condition is precarious.

Building Laws Should Be Enforced.

New York, May 15.—Speaking of the burning of the schoolhouse at Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland, in which nearly 200 children lost their lives, President Burchell of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, says it is but another of many instances where the interests of the underwriters are linked with the public welfare. "Such examples as that and the burning of the Iroquois Theatre at Chicago, make it nothing short of criminal for municipalities to go on under the old methods when the remedy lies in adequate building laws rigidly enforced."

Plenty of Room at Quebec.

Quebec, May 15.—A careful census of the houses, rooms, etc., to let for the tercentenary just completed shows accommodation ready for at least thirty thousand, and as the tent city with accommodation for six thousand is now assured, not much apprehension is felt as to lack of housing room.

Information just received from Ottawa by local military indicates that at least ten to twelve thousand troops will be here for the fetes.

Will Camp at Goderich.

Ottawa, May 15.—As a result of the conflict between the military and the moral reformers of London, over the sale of liquor at the military camp, the men of District No. 1 will this year encamp at Goderich, instead of at London. There will be 3,500 men in the camp. It had at first been intended to go to London, but the military protested.

Robbed of $35,000.

El Paso, Texas, May 15.—A Santa Fe passenger train was held up near East Las Vegas yesterday and robbed of $35,000.

REDUCTION PLANT SOON TO BE READY

One Will Soon be Working at Sturgeon Falls

North Bay, May 15.—The Northern Ontario Refining & Reduction Co. at Sturgeon Falls is completing its plant and expect soon to be ready for operations. Small furnaces have been operated for some time, and tests have been very satisfactory. The process is electrical and every by-product is utilized. A reorganization of the company, just effected, brings in additional working capital. Mr. George Gillies of Toronto secured the controlling interest and is now in Montreal hastening delivery of machinery and equipment.

Want the Opium Trade.

Hong Kong, May 15.—The utmost indignation prevails in Hong Kong at the action of the Liberals in peremptorily closing the opium divans. The revenue from the opium trade is one-fifth of the total, and the closing of the divans will, it is expected, cause serious losses, which the merchants are unable to recoup.

The Liberals acted without consulting the governor or the people.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS FROM ALL OVER THE CONTINENT

Fall wheat a foot high is the report from the west.

Hon. A. G. MacKay spoke at the Russell Theatre, Ottawa.

Natural gas has been discovered in the vicinity of Schreiber.

Thomas A. Dawes of Dawes & Co., brewers, died at Montreal.

Virginia Paul, an actress, committed suicide at Philadelphia, by inhaling gas.

After July 1 The Toronto News will be published as a Conservative morning paper.

Hamilton Board of Education decided to erect a technical school to cost $75,000.

The annual camp for eastern Ontario military district will open at Kingston on June 15.

Lady Johana, wife of the late Sir Malachi Daly, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, is dead.

Col. Taylor, commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston, denies that he has resigned.

Mrs. A. C. Bannatyne, widow of one of the pioneers of Red river, and a prominent business man and M.P., is dead.

An explosion of natural gas in a vacant shop at Hamilton, seriously injured three men and damaged considerable property.

It is thought H. J. Pettypiece, the ex-member, may accept the nomination in East Lambton, in place of M. A. Smith, who shot himself.

After rescuing his wife and four children from his burning home Joseph Fortier, baggageman, Kenora, went back for their clothing and lost his life.

J. H. Miles, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, Ridgetown, had six charges laid against him for violation of the liquor act and was acquitted on all of them.

Mrs. Massey-Treble will pay the cost of a new domestic science building for Toronto University. The university will participate in the Carnegie pension fund.

Mrs. Patten, wife of an Evanston grain magnate, was swindled out of $30,000 by a book agent, who got her to sign notes thinking she was signing orders for books.

Minnesota Democratic convention endorsed John A. Johnson as a Presidential candidate and refused to declare in favor of William Jennings Bryan as second choice.

An inspection of gas meters in Toronto by the Dominion Government is recommended by the Board of Control, as a result of a test which showed that a meter registered 100 per cent. too much.

Lieutenant-Governor Bulyea of Alberta and Chief Commissioner Chipman of the Hudson Bay Co. were in Toronto and both speak with enthusiasm of western crop prospects. Confidence reigns from Winnipeg to the mountains.

The following candidates for the Legislature have been nominated: Manitoulin, Dr. John Carruthers, Lib.; Centre Grey, P. McCullough, Lib.; Centre Huron, Andrew Porter, Lib.; West Hastings, Henry Pringle, Lib.; W. Toronto, T. Crawford and W. D. McPherson, Cons.; North Toronto, Rev. D. C. Hossack, Independent Liberal; W. Middlesex, H. E. Elliott, Liberal. In North Toronto the Liberals decided not to place a candidate in the field against W. K. McNaught in Class A, and to endorse the candidature of Mr. Hossack, who had announced himself a candidate in response to a requisition, for Class B.

EVENTS TO-NIGHT

Drill Hall —Company shooting.

Grand Opera House —Wilbor Stock Company present, "The Westerner."

All Saints' Church —Men's Association "At Home."

Oriental Hotel —Merchants' banquet.

Sensational Scene In Court.

New York, May 15.—A sensational scene was enacted in the Harlem Police Court when a young Italian woman named Michelena Carbisiere, tried to shoot Joseph Negri, who was accused of the betrayal of her sister. She probably would have been successful in her design had it not been for the prompt action of a reporter who stood near her and seized the weapon. The woman struggled so desperately that it required the assistance of several policemen to subdue her. She was placed under arrest.

NEW ONTARIO GENERALLY AND COBALT ESPECIALLY BOOMING

Peterborough Boy Located at the Silver City Contradicts Some Pessimistic Reports—Mining Industry is Flourishing.

Cobalt, May. 13, 1908
Editor of the Review

Dear Sir—I would like a little space in your valuable paper to write on a matter which might be of interest to the readers of the Review and which I have been prompted to take up by several—I may say mis-leading—articles and items appearing in your paper of Cobalt and vicinity. I might say that I refer especially to the one which is given such prominence in your issue of Friday, May 8th. The article in question is entitled "Local man says business is dull in New Ontario." The composition shows that the gentleman interviewed is a Mr. M. Carton of Sophia street, Ashburnham. Speaking as one who has been in Cobalt almost since the time of its inception as a genuine mining camp and thoroughly familiar with the conditions of this section of New Ontario. I have no hesitation in saying, Mr. Editor, that almost the entire information as given in that article is just the reverse of the truth. I can only think that our friend from Ashburnham is either practicing the thread-bare game of "knocking" or else he has availed himself of the largest opportunities of knowing nothing about New Ontario. If the interview is reported correctly, his remarks are idiotic and painful to say nothing about their absolute inaccuracy. New Ontario must certainly stand sadly between your informant and the light of prosperity.

I would like to give a little statistical information which I have on file and which I think will "nail" ounce of both which Mr Carton handed out to your paper. It is true, that there are but a few lines recording his pessimistic comments and it may appear injudicial on my part to put forth any lengthy discourse in reply, but I might say, Mr. Editor, that this is only one case in thousands where individuals have attempted to give our district an undeserved set-back. There is a strong impression left that our great industry is waning and then you must remember that there are several Peterborough people who are becoming interested in Cobalt and many of them are already promoting the most promising prospects in the whole district. The item would appear to start out with the groan that "things are very dead." What does he mean by that. There is so much I could say to entirely dis-prove this statement that I do not know where to start. I take it that he is hinting at a laxity in the mining industry.

Last month's official record of shipments showed an output of 1,326.735 tons of ore from the camp. In the month of April, 1907, 535.15 tons went out from the camp or just about one-third of the out-put for April 1908. Then again the out-put for the year 1907 was composed of a very creditable percentage of third-grade or the poorest and coarsest ore, while last April the out-put mainly consisted of the finest and second grade of ore. We have now on the ground five concentrating mills and four of them running —the fifth is not completed yet. These concentrators are massive buildings, all standing five storeys high and covering on an average forty thousand square feet of ground. They are erected for the treatment of the third grade ores instead of shipping them to foreign mills Another one is being built at the McKinley Darragh. They all stand as pillars of evidence of the confidence of capital in the Cobalt camp to the extent of millions of dollars The shipments from this camp for last week were composed almost entirely of first and second-grade ore and they aggregated ten cars of 263.11 tons or nearly half that of the whole month of April 1907 I could go on and give you other figures to show that any period so far this year is as far in excess of a corresponding period of last year. The world's production of silver for 1907 was 186,035,000 ounces, for the United States alone 56,925,000 ounces and for Cobalt 9,000,000 ounces. Cobalt then has produced in the past year nearly a sixth of the total silver production of the United States or five per cent of the silver production of the world for 1907. Further statistics show that for the first quarter of the year 1907 the shipments were 8452.7 tons and for the first quarter of 1908 they are 5494.256 tons and there is every indication that Cobalt's increase in production will make her out-put at the end of this year double last year's production. Out of the thirty-seven mines shipping there are fifteen mines paying large dividends. The present horse power capacity of the camp is 8468 while at the beginning of the year 1907 it registered 3405. In the neighboring mines alone there are 365 steam drills at work. The failure in business of the merchants is then spoken about, especially it seems of those whose line is hardware supplies Your informant leaves entirely the wrong impression there. There are other Peterborough subscribers here who said stronger things than this about him when they read that part.

There have been a few business failures in Cobalt, Liskeard, Haileybury and other towns along the line. Most of these were in places of business owned and controlled by foreigners who came here and attempted to undersell the hale and hearty Canadian or American retail man. The result was for them a bankrupt sale. But where were the failures of our own merchants, who came here and had an eye to business. Taking the hardware business, the main line of retail trade I can quote you dozens who have been successful here and the same can be said of those in the provision business keeping prospectors' and miners' supplies. I can remember well in the early days of Cobalt, when many of these started business in little shacks with a handful of merchandise. They now have large business establishments in Cobalt and they have branch stores in Haileybury, Liskeard, Englehart and up the Montreal River as far as Elk Lake, which is as far as man has so far ventured in pursuit of the white lucre. In this entire section of New Ontario there has only been one failure in the hardware line out of about sixty-two, which have been in business and the failure mentioned was under the most exceptional circumstances. The next piece of appaling information conveys the idea that the rush of prospectors to the silver fields has minimized. Last Monday morning the first steamboat that ever left Latchford carried with it nearly four hundred prospectors. Elk Lake has just started to make itself known to the outside world, and so great has the rush been since the beginning of March that there are now about a dozen stores forty dwelling houses, a law office, several boarding houses, one large hotel, and last, but not least, a newspaper bureau, where there is printed the most enterprising journal of this whole northern section, The Montreal River Explorer. The circulation of this paper registers, I believe, 6,120. Then as to Larder Lake, (I may as well let you have a little news of the whole country.) Prospectors are pouring into the region of Spoon Bay. I was up there a short while ago and I had occasion to visit Mining Recorder Hough, who, up till a few weeks ago, did business in a tent, outside of which hung the placard labelled "Positively no Business Done on Sunday." It simply means of course, that the business throughout the week-days is so tremendous that the Sabbath is for the Recorder, a well-earned day of rest. As for the spring rush to Cobalt, I should like our friend to see the crowds of prospectors that get off at the station when the morning and afternoon trains arrive from the south. Some starting for the first time to the new fields in South Lorrain, while others are returning to further develop their last year's claims, in Coleman, Bucke and James. I think there is a climax to this little piece of nonsense, when he says that several of the mines have been closed down. I would like him to name me just one that he knows to be closed down here. There are about fifty-six mines in the camp and all working. At the end of December there were thirty-two mines on the shipping list. So far this year five have been added viz., the Cobalt Lake, the Provincial, the Silver Cliff, the Crown Reserve and the Casey, of New Liskeard. In the last one I believe there are interested some Peterborough people. Two more will soon be added to the list of shippers, in South Lorrain. There are at least five more in Coleman that could start now and ship abundance of the richest silver ore, but at the present time it is not their policy to do so. Farming is spoken of in an optimistic strain. It is true that the great clay belt the north is proving up wonderfully and Liskeard and Ville Marie are to-day great farming centres. The recent report of the Hon. Nelson Monteith describes this country fully. Financial stringency is spoken of and without a doubt this region has felt the stringency and perhaps worse than any other place in Canada. How could it be otherwise with a young country, where there have been three thousand on strike for a whole summer, where unscrupulous promoters have taken so active a part in wholesale "Wild-catting" and where hundreds of representatives of finance in the States, have for private reasons of their own parties, given this country an undeserved "black eye," and rapped it the same as this individual has done except on a larger scale. We admit the financial depression and to such an extent have we felt it that cases were not uncommon where many a young man here was forced to pawn his moustache to take his best girl to the opera. Nevertheless we have the resources in the ground and they are to-day as they always were, being worked extensively amid the hum of industry and we feel confident that when the financial wave starts to roll, we will get our share of the benefit.

Yours very truly,
J. D. O'BRIEN.

PULP AND PAPER INVESTIGATION

Newspaper Publishers in the United States Take Action

Washington, May 15.—When the wood pulp and print paper investigating committee of the House met yesterday John Norris, the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, placed in evidence a telegram from George Calhoun, Jr., general manager of the Laurentide Paper Mill of Canada, and a letter from Carl Riordan, general manager of the Riordan Paper Mills of Ontario, showing that labor per ton of production is as high in Canada mills as in the United States mills, and in some instances higher, according to Mr. Riordan.

Mr. Norris submitted a copy of a letter which was sent out by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to 18,000 publications, in addition to a telegram to 1,300 newspapers, urging a full and prompt reply by newspapers to the printed questions forwarded them by the committee.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A London journal says that the "sob squad" is getting to work over Moir.

Hon. A. G. Mackay has been in this neighborhood again without telling us who pays his retaining fee of $4,000 per annum. Since it can't be explained away, it ought at least to be explained.

A married ruffian in Toronto sent a young girl threatening letters by which he tried to get her into his power. The police got him and now the magistrate is for treating him leniently. This is the way to bring on lynch law.

The civil servants are starving. The combined actions of the Laurier government and the Borden opposition in bring affairs of state to a deadlock, is producing its dire effect. It is feared that many will die. Even the most blue-blooded and de are living on pork and beans.

Son—Pa, why does Mr. Bing say his head is as clear as a bell.

Pa—Because there is nothing in it but his tongue.

This is a peculiarly biting reference to the political spell-binder before whose burning words the audience warms its hands and takes stock of the country.

What's the use of Hon. A. G. Mackay talking about the seats he is going to carry when Ontario will bury him so deep that his own dredging plant won't be able to dig him out after June 8?—Toronto Telegram.

The daily papers, especially the Globe, continue to quote the Telegram's "that last awful week" phase, but here's something of a later date for them to indulge in.

"I had to leave my last situation because the missus said they were going to lead the sinful life and they wouldn't want any servant about the place."—(Punch.)

These people must have heard of the Examiner's statement that the world had come to set up less exacting standards of morality, &c.

WHY AND WHEREFORE

Men bare their heads because they had to unmask in the days of chivalry before the queen of beauty.

We bow the head in passing others because our ancestors were wont to bow before the real yoke of the oppressor.

We sit up with our dead because long ago our ancestors kept watch by night evil spirits come and bear the body away.

We shake hands with the right hand because that is the dagger hand and means that we disarm ourselves in the presence of a friend.—Exchange.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

THE LA ROSE MINING DEAL THE REAL FACTS OF THE CASE

Mr. O'Brien, chairman of the T. & N. O. Railway Commission, together with a little company of friends blanketed Cobalt properties chiefly along the right-of-way of the railway to the extent of some 277 acres. Should an officer of the Government have been allowed to do any such thing? Most people will say "No." What, however, did the O'Brien crowd pay for the 277 acres? In the neighbourhood of seven hundred dollars! But this claim of the O'Brien crowd to the fat of the land was not allowed to go through without vigorous protest by a company of prospectors known as the "La Rose Mining Co." This company applied to the Whitney Government shortly afterwards for a fiat, which is the usual governmental permission as required by law, to attack this O'Brien claim as allowed by the Ross Government. The Whitney Government, however said "Wait a bit. If this claim is upsetable, perhaps, the Government may be able to acquire it and it is a very valuable claim." Investigation followed. All the evidence was necessarily furnished by the La Rose prospectors. They were assured that if they would lend a hand and collect the evidence they would be fairly dealt with. To make a long story short, the O'Brien company went to the Government and offered to compromise. At last their offer to pay as much down and 25 per cent at the pit's mouth was accepted. It netted the Government the first year $240,000. Out of this the Government paid the La Rose Company $130,000, being $30,000 for actual disbursements and $100,000 for their work in collecting evidence and for their claim to the property. Now, the $100,000 may appear too much to some people but it did not appear to the Government which felt under both a legal and moral obligation to the La Rose people and under a legal obligation to the O'Brien people. It therefore gave the one $130,000 and the other a confirmed claim less 25 per cent royalty, or say a property worth $5,000,000. If there was anything crooked it was in allowing the O'Briens any rights at all. As a matter of fact they would not have been allowed any but for innocent purchasers who had got mixed up with them. If the Government had granted the fiat to the La Rose Co. the whole district would have been tied up in law suits and the result would have been, perhaps, a division of the claim among the disputants, but the Government would have got nothing, or the people of Ontario. Surely the action of the Whitney Administration was correct and sensible throughout and it certainly stands out in glaring contrast to the action of the Ross Minister of Crown Lands, the Hon. A. G. MacKay, who admits that he endorsed and carried out what he maintains was the award to the O'Briens, as made by a competent board, which, as a matter of fact, was a wholly ministerial board. Ross and MacKay got $700 for what Whitney got and will get $1,000,000. One of the La Rose prospectors was a relative of Hon. Mr. Cochrane's. That is not enough to condemn the award. A relative has as much right to anything if properly and squarely acquired, as anybody else. But what of the O'Brien deal? Why do Ross and MacKay put that through and just on the eve of an election? If there is any explaining to be done Mr. MacKay is the man to do it.

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

Every One Elegible Should Get on the Voters' List—Where Sittings of Registration Board Will be Held—Qualifications Neccessary—Visit the Committee Rooms.

Sittings of the local Board of county registrars will be held as follows:

Saturday, May 23rd, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

From Ward No. 1—At Lewis Spry's shop, 214 Stewart street.

For Ward No. 2—At the Council Chamber.

For Ward No. 3—At the Police Chamber.

For Ward No. 4—At Wm. Lee's shop, corner of Smith and George streets.

For Ward No. 5—At the Ashburnham town hall.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration here on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a dodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

LEGAL COMMITTEE DEALT WITH NUMBER OF CLAIMS

The city will fight the action taken by Miss Brown against the city for damages for injuries sustained in a fall at the Post Office corner last winter. Miss Brown's solicitors, Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, have issued a writ against the corporation for unstated damages. It is claimed that their client's fall was the result of the defective condition of the walk at the place specified.

The Legal Committee considered the matter last night and on the advice of the City Solicitor, decided to fight the action. It was stated at the committee meeting that the walk at the Post Office corner was one of the best kept in the city and that the corporation was not responsible in any way for Miss Brown's injuries.

Mr. W. H. Moore appeared before the committee in support of the claims for damages of Mr. D. W. Morris and Mr. Morris' horse ran away after an upset at the corner of Crescent and Lake streets last March and was so badly injured that it had to be destroyed. Mrs. Graham keeps a grocery at the corner of McDonnel and Aylmer streets and his cellar was flooded and damage done groceries stored therein last spring. The flooding, it is claimed, was the result of the overflowing of the city's drain.

Reports were read from Street Commissioner Evans and the City Engineer regarding Mr. Morris' claim, showing that the Radial Railway Co. was implicated in the case and the chairman of the committee was authorized to interview Mr. Larmonth regarding the matter.

Mr. Graham's claim is being considered by the committee.

Those present were Ald. Elliott, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. McIntyre, Turner and Phelan.

"AJAX" BRINGS SCOW OF WOOD

From Back Lakes to Lakefield Could Not Come Down Canal Owing to High Water

The steamer tug "Ajax" is the first boat that has brought down any wood from the back lakes this season. It brought down a scow load of dry hard wood yesterday from Burleigh Falls for Mr. J. E. Fitzgerald, coal and wood dealer. Owing to the great height of water in the canal the steamer could only come as far as Lakefield. The wood had to be brought to the city by train

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Cattle Steady, Hogs Lower at Chicago.

LONDON, May 14.—London cables for cattle are steady at 13c to 13¾c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10½c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, May 14.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market for Wednesday and Thursday, as reported by the railways, were 87 carloads, composed of 1482 cattle, 1001 hogs, 131 sheep, 606 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

Some very choice cattle, not many, were on sale, and the highest price recorded on this market was paid for one load. Prices ranged from $5.75 to $6.25 per cwt. for steers, and $4.50 to $5.25 for export bulls.

Butchers.

Choice picked lots sold from $5.90 to $6.20; loads of good to choice, $5.60 to $5.90; medium, $5.35 to $5.60; light steers and heifers and good cows, $4.60 to $5.15; fair cows, $4.25 to $4.50; common cows, $3.75 to $4; bulls, $4 to $5; canners, $2 to $3 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report the market active, the demand for choice stockers and feeders being good. Good steers were very scarce, and when a few were found killers pay more than the feeder buyers can afford. Country buyers seem to have an idea that prices will go down as soon as the grassers start to come, and many are holding back. Messrs. Murby did a fair trade and report prices as follows: Good steers, 1050 to 1100 lbs. each, at $4.75 to $5 per cwt.; good steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $4.25 to $4.75; good steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.90 to $4.25; good steers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.90; light stockers, 400 to 600 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers of good quality sold readily to-day at strong rates. Sales ranged from $30 to $60 each, and one extra choice quality cow brought $70; the bulk of the best sold from $40 to $50 each. Light common cows were slow sale at $25 to $30 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were liberal and prices easy, at $3 to $4.75, with a few of the picked at a little more money.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light; prices firm. Export ewes, $5.25 to $5.75; rams, $4 to $4.75; yearling lambs, $6.50 to $7.50; spring lambs, $3 to $6.75 each. A few selected butcher sheep sold up to $6 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts moderate. Mr. Harris reports prices unchanged but easy, selects at $6 and lights at $5.75.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, May 14.—Cattle—Good demand and strong, prime steers, $6.75 to $7.25.

Veals—Receipts, 300 head, active and steady.

Hogs—Receipts, 600 head; slow and 10c to 15c lower; heavy and mixed, $5.80 to $5.85; yorkers, $5.50 to $5.80; pigs, $4.50 to $5.15; roughs, $4.65 to $4.90; stags, $3.50 to $4; dairies, $5.50 to $5.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2000 head; sheep, steady; lambs, slow and 10c lower; lambs, $5 to $7.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Beeves—Receipts, 3975; no trading; feeling steady; exports to-day, 3000 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 778; none on sale; feeling nominally steady.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 4644; sheep, almost nominal; lambs, practically at a standstill. The feeling was lower for both clipped and wooled stock; spring lambs slow; common to choice clipped at $4 to $6 per cwt.; clipped yearlings, at $6.

Hogs—Receipts, 2699, feeling steady; $6 to $6.10.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Cattle—Receipts estimated at about 6000, market steady, 10c to 15c lower; steers, $5 to $7.30; cows $3.75 to $6.25; heifers, $3.50 to $6.75; bulls, $4.40 to $5.75; calves, $2.50 to $6; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $5.40.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at about 25,000; market 10c lower; choice heavy shipping, $5.45 to $5.50; butchers, $5.45 to $5.52½; light choice, $5.45 to $5.50; light mixed, $5.40 to $5.45; packing, $5 to $5.45; pigs, $4.15 to $5.15; bulk of sales, $5.40 to $5.45.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts estimated at about 11,000; market steady to 10c lower; sheep $5 to $6; lambs $6 to $7.50, yearlings $5.50 to $6.20.

Cheese Markets.

KINGSTON, May 14.—To-day, at the Frontenac Cheese Board, 205 boxes of white and 148 boxes of colored were offered. Some 350 boxes were sold at 11⅝c for white and 11¾c for colored.

Hat Factories Close.

Orange, N.J., May 15.—The eight hat manufacturers in this place have closed their doors, throwing about 2,800 operatives out of employment, because of a failure to reach an agreement as to wages and labor conditions.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

Jefferson could not bear the sight of him. In fact, it was this man's continual presence in the house that had driven him to seek refuge elsewhere. He believed him to be a scoundrel as he certainly was a cad. Nor was his estimate of the English secretary far wrong. The man, like his master, was a grafter, and the particular graft he was after now was either to make a marriage with a rich American girl or to so compromise her that the same end would be attained. He was shrewd enough to realize that he had little chance to get what he wanted in the open matrimonial market, so he determined to attempt a raid and carry off an heiress under her father's nose, and the particular proboscis he had selected was that of his employer's friend, Senator Roberts. The senator and Miss Roberts were frequently at the Ryder house, and in course of time the aristocratic secretary and the daughter had become quite intimate. A flighty girl, with no other purpose in life beyond dress and amusement and having what she termed "a good time," Kate thought it excellent pastime to flirt with Mr. Bagley, and when she discovered that he was serious in his attentions she felt flattered rather than indignant. After all, she argued, he was of noble birth. If his two brothers died, he would be peer of England, and she had enough money for both. He might not make a bad husband. But she was careful to keep her own counsel and not let her father have any suspicion of what was going on. She knew that his heart was set on her marrying Jefferson Ryder, and she knew better than any one how impossible that dream was. She herself liked Jefferson quite enough to marry him, but if his eyes were turned in another direction—and she knew all about his attentions to Miss Rossmore—she was not going to break her heart about it. So she continued to flirt secretly with the Hon. Fitzroy while she still led the Ryders and her own father to think that she was interested in Jefferson.

"Jorkins," Mr. Bagley was saying to the butler, "Mr. Ryder will occupy the library on his return. See that he is not disturbed."

"Very good, sir." The butler bowed and went downstairs. The secretary looked up and saw Jefferson. His face reddened, and his manner grew nervous.

"Hello! Back from Europe, Jefferson? How jolly! Your mother will be delighted. She's in her room upstairs."

Declining to take the hint and gathering from Bagley's embarrassed manner that he wanted to get rid of him Jefferson lingered purposely. When the butler had disappeared, he said:

"This house is getting more and more like a barracks every day. You've got men all over the place. One can't move a step without falling over one."

Mr. Bagley drew himself up stiffly, as he always did when assuming an air of authority.

"Your father's personality demands the utmost precaution," he replied. "We cannot leave the life of the richest and most powerful financier in the world at the mercy of the rabble."

"What rabble?" inquired Jefferson, amused.

"The common rabble, the lower class, the riff-raff," explained Mr. Bagley.

"Pshaw!" laughed Jefferson. "If our financiers were only half as respectable as the common rabble, as you call them, they would need no bars to their houses."

Mr. Bagley sneered and shrugged his shoulders.

"Your father has warned me against your socialistic views." Then, with a lofty air, he added: "For four years I was third groom of the bedchamber to the second son of England's queen. I know my responsibilities."

"But you are not groom of the bedchamber here," retorted Jefferson.

"Whatever I am," said Mr. Bagley haughtily, "I am answerable to your father alone."

"By the way, Bagley," asked Jefferson, "when do you except father to return? I want to see him."

"I'm afraid it's quite impossible," answered the secretary with studied insolence. "He has three important people to see before dinner. There's the national Republican committee and Sergeant Ellison of the secret service from Washington, all here by appointment. It's quite impossible."

"I didn't ask you if it were possible. I said I wanted to see him, and I will see him," answered Jefferson quietly but firmly and in a tone and manner which did not admit of further opposition. "I'll go and leave word for him on his desk," he added.

He started to enter the library when the secretary, who was visibly perturbed, attempted to bar his way.

"There's some one in there," he said in an undertone. "Someone waiting for your father."

"Is there?" replied Jefferson coolly. "I'll see who it is," with which he brushed past Mr. Bagley and entered the library.

He had guessed aright. A woman was there. It was Kate Roberts.

"Hello, Kate! How are you?" Jefferson decided to say nothing of the interrupted tete-a-tete, but mentally he resolved to spoil Mr. Bagley's game and save Kate from her own folly. On hearing his voice Kate turned and gave a little cry of genuine surprise.

"Why, is it you, Jeff? I thought you were in Europe."

"I returned yesterday," he replied somewhat curtly. He crossed over to his father's desk, where he sat down to scribble a few words, while Mr. Bagley, who had followed him in, scowling, was making frantic dumb signs to Kate.

"I fear I intrude here," said Jefferson pointedly.

"Oh, dear no, not at all," replied Kate in some confusion. "I was waiting for my father. How is Paris?" she asked.

"Lovely as ever," he answered.

"Did you have a good time?" she inquired.

"I enjoyed it immensely. I never had a better one."

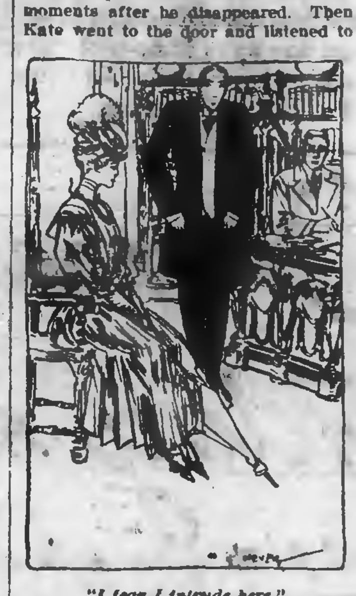
"You probably were in good company," she said significantly. Then she added: "I believe Miss Rossmore was in Paris."

"Yes, I think she was there," was his noncommittal answer.

To change the conversation, which was becoming decidedly personal, he picked up a book that was lying on his father's desk and glanced at the title. It was "The American Octopus."

"If you'll excuse me, I'll go and pay my filial respects upstairs," said Jefferson. "I'll see you again." He gave Kate a friendly nod, and without even glancing at Mr. Bagley left the room.

The couple stood in silence for a few moments after he disappeared. Then Kate went to the door and listened to his retreating footsteps.



"I fear I intrude here."

When she was sure that he was out of earshot she turned on Mr. Bagley indignantly.

"You see what you expose me to. Jefferson thinks this was a rendezvous."

"Well, it was to a certain extent," replied the secretary unabashed. "Didn't you ask me to see you here?"

"Yes," said Kate, taking a letter from her bosom; "I wanted to ask you what this means?"

"My dear Miss Roberts—Kate—I"—stammered the secretary.

"How dare you address me in this manner when you know I and Mr. Ryder are engaged?"

No one knew better than Kate that this was not true, but she said it partly out of vanity, partly out of a desire to draw out this Englishman who made such bold love to her.

"Miss Roberts," replied Mr. Bagley loftily, "in that note I expressed my admiration—my love for you. Your engagement to Mr. Jefferson Ryder is, to say the least, a most uncertain fact." There was a tinge of sarcasm in his voice that did not escape Kate.

"You must not judge from appearances," she answered, trying to keep up the outward show of indignation which inwardly she did not feel. "Jeff and I may hide a passion that burns like a volcano. All lovers are not demonstrative, you know."

The absurdity of this description as applied to her relations with Jefferson appealed to her as so comical that she burst into laughter, in which the secretary joined.

"Then why did you remain here with me when the senator went out with Mr. Ryder, senior?" he demanded.

"To tell you that I cannot listen to your nonsense any longer," retorted the girl.

"What?" he cried incredulously. "You remain here to tell me that you cannot listen to me when you could easily have avoided listening to me without telling me so! Kate, your coldness is not convincing."

"You mean you think I want to listen to you?" she demanded.

"I do," he answered, stepping forward as if to take her in his arms.

"Mr. Bagley!" she exclaimed, recoiling.

"A week ago," he persisted, "you called me Fitzroy. Once in an outburst of confidence you called me Fitz."

"You hadn't asked me to marry you then," she laughed mockingly. Then, edging away toward the door, she waved her hand at him playfully and said teasingly: "Good by, Mr. Bagley. I am going upstairs to Mrs. Ryder. I will await my father's return in her room. I think I shall be safer."

He ran forward to intercept her, but she was too quick for him. The door slammed in his face, and she was gone.

Meantime Jefferson had proceeded upstairs, passing through long and luxuriously carpeted corridors with paneled frescoed walls and hung with grand old tapestries and splendid paintings, until he came to his mother's room. He knocked.

"Come in!" called out the familiar voice.

He entered. Mrs. Ryder was busy at her escritoire looking over a mass of household accounts.

"Hello, mother! How's father?" he cried, running up and hugging her in his boyish, impulsive way. Jefferson had always been devoted to his mother, and, while he deplored her weakness in permitting herself to be so completely under the domination of his father, she had always found him an affectionate and loving son.

Mrs. Ryder sighed while she looked her son over proudly. In her heart she was glad Jefferson had turned out as he had. Her boy certainly would never be a financier to be attacked in magazines and books. Answering his question, she said:

"Your father is as well as those busybodies in the newspapers will let him be. He's considerably worried just now over that new book, 'The American Octopus.' How dare they make him out such a monster? He's no worse than other successful men. He's richer, that's all, and it makes them jealous. He's out driving now with Senator Roberts. Kate is somewhere in the house—in the library, I think."

"Yes, I found her there," replied Jefferson dryly. "She was with that cad, Bagley. When is father going to find that fellow out?"

"Oh, Jefferson," protested his mother, "how can you talk like that of Mr. Bagley? He is such a perfect gentleman. His family connections alone should entitle him to respect. He is certainly the best secretary your father ever had. I'm sure I don't know what we should do without him. He knows everything that a gentleman should."

"And a good deal more, I wager," growled Jefferson. "He wasn't groom of the backstairs to England's queen for nothing." Then changing the topic, he said suddenly: "Talking about Kate, mother, we have got to reach some definite understanding. This talk about my marrying her must stop. I intend to take the matter up with father today."

"Oh, of course, more trouble!" replied his mother in a resigned tone. She was so accustomed to having her wishes thwarted that she was never surprised at anything. "We heard of your goings on in Paris. That Miss Rossmore was there, was she not?"

"That has got nothing to do with it," replied Jefferson warmly. He resented Shirley's name being dragged into the discussion. Then more calmly he went on: "Now, mother, be reasonable. Listen. I purpose to live my own life. I have already shown my father that I will not be dictated to and that I can earn my own living. He has no right to force this marriage on me. There has never been any misunderstanding on Kate's part. She and I understand each other thoroughly."

"Well, Jefferson, you may be right from your point of view," replied his mother weakly. She invariably ended by agreeing with the last one who argued with her. "You are of age, of course. Your parents have only a moral right over you. Only remember this: It would be foolish of you to do anything now to anger your father. His interests are your interests. Don't do anything to jeopardize them. Of course you can't be forced to marry a girl you don't care for, but your father will be bitterly disappointed. He had set his heart on this match. He knows all about your infatuation for Miss Rossmore, and it has made him furious. I suppose you've heard about her father."

"Yes, and it's a dastardly outrage!" blurted out Jefferson. "It's a conspiracy against one of the most honorable men that ever lived, and I mean to ferret out and expose the authors. I came here today to ask father to help me."

"You came to ask your father to help you?" echoed his mother incredulously.

"Why not?" demanded Jefferson. "Is it true, then, that he is selfishness incarnate? Wouldn't he do that much to help a friend?"

"You've come to the wrong house, Jeff. You ought to know that. Your father is far from being Judge Rossmore's friend. Surely you have sense enough to realize that there are two reasons why he would not raise a finger to help him. One is that he has always been his opponent in public life, and the other is that you want to marry his daughter."

"Yes, I see now, mother. You are right." Then he added bitterly: "That has always been the trouble at home. No matter where I turn, I am up against a stone wall—the money interests. One never hears a glimmer of fellow feeling, never a word of human sympathy, only cold calculation, heartless reasoning, money, money, money! Oh, I am sick of it! I don't want any of it. I am going away where I'll hear no more of it."

His mother laid her hand gently on his shoulder.

"Don't talk that way, Jefferson. Your father is not a bad man at heart. You know that. His life has been devoted to money making, and he has made a greater fortune than any man living or dead. He is only what his life has made him. He has a good heart, and he loves you, his only son. But his business enemies—ah, those he never forgives!"

Jefferson was about to reply when suddenly a dozen electric bells sounded all over the house.

"What's that?" exclaimed Jefferson, alarmed and starting toward the door.

"Oh, that's nothing," smiled his mother. "We have had that put in since you went away. Your father must have just come in. Those bells announce the fact. It was done so that if there happened to be any strangers in the house they could be kept out of the way until he reached the library safely."

"Oh," laughed Jefferson, "he's afraid some one will kidnap him? Certainly he would be a rich prize. I wouldn't care for the job myself, though. They'd be catching a tartar."

His speech was interrupted by a timid knock at the door.

"May I come in to say goodby?" asked a voice which they recognized as Kate's. She had successfully escaped from Mr. Bagley's importunities and was now going home with the senator. She smiled amiably at Jefferson, and they chatted pleasantly of his trip abroad. He was sincerely sorry for this girl whom they were trying to foist on him. Not that he thought she really cared for him—he was well aware that hers was a nature that made it impossible to feel very deeply on any subject—but the idea of this ready made marriage was so foreign, so revolting to the American mind! He thought it would be a kindness to warn her against Bagley.

"Don't be foolish, Kate," he said. "I was not blind just now in the library. That man is no good."

As is usual when one's motives are suspected, the girl resented his interference. She knew he hated Mr. Bagley, and she thought it mean of him to try and get even in this way. She stiffened up and replied coldly:

"I think I am able to look after myself, Jefferson. Thanks, all the same."

He shrugged his shoulders and made no reply. She said goodby to Mrs. Ryder, who was again immersed in her tradespeople bills, and left the room, escorted by Jefferson, who accompanied her downstairs and on to the street, where Senator Roberts was waiting for her in the open victoria. The senator greeted with unusual cordiality the young man whom he still hoped to make his son-in-law.

"Come and see us, Jefferson," he said. "Come to dinner any evening. We are always alone, and Kate and I will be glad to see you."

"Jefferson has so little time now, father. His work and—his friends keep him pretty busy."

Jefferson had noted both the pause and the sarcasm, but he said nothing. He smiled, and the senator raised his hat. As the carriage drove off the young man noticed that Kate glanced at one of the upper windows where Mr. Bagley stood behind a curtain watching. Jefferson returned to the house. The psychological moment had arrived. He must go now and confront his father in the library.

CHAPTER IX.

THE library was the most important room in the Ryder mansion, for it was there that the Colossus carried through his most important business deals, and its busiest hours were those which most men devote to rest. But John Burkett Ryder never rested. There could be no rest for any man who had a thousand millions of dollars to take care of.

Here the money Moloch held court like any king, with as much ceremony and more secrecy, and having for his courtiers some of the most prominent men in the political and industrial life of the nation. Corrupt senators, grafting congressmen, ambitious railroad presidents, insolent coal barons who impudently claimed they administered the coal lands in trust for the Almighty, unscrupulous princes of finance and commerce, all visited this room to receive orders or pay from the head of the "system." Here were made and unmade governors of states, mayors of cities, judges, heads of police, cabinet ministers, even presidents. Here were turned over to confidential agents millions of dollars to overturn the people's vote in the national elections. Here were distributed yearly hundreds of thousands of dollars to grafters, large and small, who had earned it in the service of the "interests."

Here secretly and unlawfully the heads of railroads met to agree on rates which by discriminating against one locality in favor of another crushed out competition, raised the cost to the consumer and put millions in the pockets of the trust. Here were planned tricky financial operations with deliberate intent to mislead and deceive the investing public, operations which would send stocks soaring one day, only a week later to put Wall street on the verge of panic. Half a dozen suicides might result from the coup, but twice as many millions of profits had gone into the coffers of the "system." Here, too, was perpetrated the most heinous crime that can be committed against a free people—the conspiring of the trusts, abetted by the railroads, to arbitrarily raise the prices of the necessaries of life—meat, coal, oil, ice, gas—wholly without other justification than that of greed, which with these men was the unconquerable, all absorbing passion. In short, everything that unscrupulous leaders of organized capital could devise to squeeze the life blood out of the patient, defenseless toiler was done within these four walls.

When Jefferson entered, his father was seated at his desk, a long black cigar between his lips, giving instructions to Mr. Bagley. Mr. Ryder looked up quickly as the door opened, and the secretary made a movement forward as if to eject the intruder, no matter who he might be. They were not accustomed to having people enter the sanctum of the Colossus so unceremoniously. But when he saw who it was Mr. Ryder's stern, set face relaxed, and he greeted his son amiably.

"Why, Jeff, my boy, is that you? Just a moment until I get rid of Bagley, and I'll be with you."

Jefferson turned to the bookshelves and ran over the titles while the financier continued his business with the secretary.

"Now, Bagley, come, quick! What is it?"

He spoke in a rapid, explosive manner, like a man who has only a few moments to spare before he must rush to catch a train. John Ryder had been catching trains all his life, and he had seldom missed one.

"Governor Rice called. He wants an appointment," said Mr. Bagley, holding out a card.

"I can't see him. Tell him so," came the answer quick as a flash. "Who else?" he demanded. "Where's your list?"

Mr. Bagley took from the desk a list of names and read them over.

"General Abbey telephoned. He says you promised"—

"Yes, yes," interrupted Ryder impatiently, "but not here. Down town, tomorrow, any time. Next?"

The secretary jotted down a note against each name and then said:

"There are some people downstairs in the reception room. They are here by appointment."

"The national committee and Sergeant Ellison of the secret service from Washington," replied Mr. Bagley.

"Who was here first?" demanded the financier.

"Sergeant Ellison, sir."

"Then I'll see him first and the committee afterward, but let them all wait until I ring. I wish to speak with my son."

He waved his hand, and the secretary, knowing well from experience that this was a sign that there must be no further discussion, bowed respectfully and left the room. Jefferson turned and advanced toward his father, who held out his hand.

To be continued.

RESIDENTS ON BURNHAM ST. COMPLAIN

About Wretched Condition of Street—Should be Levelled off

The residents on Burnham street, Ashburnham, are anxious to know when the city council are going to put that street in fit condition for driving. When the waterworks was put in the road, of course, had to be torn up and on filling it in it was never properly levieled. Now every time it rains the mud is deeper than on any other street in the city. Also when the waterworks was put in to the McAllister property, the stones at were dug up were piled along the driveway. It is up to the city council to have these removed as they greatly decrease the beauty and attractive appearance of the properties they are in front of.

A postmistress at Gray's Lake, Ill., was arrested on a charge of opening a minister's love letters.

Woman Who Got on Train at Millbrook Smoked Like a Veternan — Caused Sensation

On Tuesday morning of this week when the Midland train in charge of Conductor Boundy, reached Millbrook, a lady got on board and entered the smoking car. On being told by a drummer who travels for a Brantford House, that she was in the smoker, he was politely informed that she knew it, and if he would give her a match she would have a smoke. She was soon smoking away like a veteran. Her mode of lighting the match was as wonderful as it was masculine, and the way she expectorated would cause a drummer to turn green with envy. Her ticket read Millbrook to Lindsay and return. Wonder who she was! —Millbrook Reporter.

PROMISED NOT TO GET DRUNK AGAIN

North Harvey Resident in Court To-day---Was Allowed to go

Jonathan Ferguson, of North Harvey came to the city yesterday and got intoxicated, with the result that he was arrested by P. C. Adams. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. "I will go right back to Harvey and I won't come back again, he said, if you allow me to go, your worship. If I want anything to drink I will send down here for it." he added.

His worship accepted his argument and allowed him to go.

Committee Appointed at Meeting of Peterboro' Lodge

At a meeting of Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows last evening a committee consisting of Messrs. Dr. Morrow, H. Ling, and A. A. Fowler were appointed to meet a committee from Otonabee Lodge, to make arrangements for Decoration Day and to decide on what date it would be held.

It has been the custom in past years to hold it on the third Thursday in June.

BOYS GROWING ENTHUSIASTIC

About the Walk to be Held at the Y.M.C.A.---The Entries are Coming in

The "Y" Boys are getting very enthusiastic over the coming walking race. Since the age limit has been raised, several older fellows have signed, among whom are Norman Saxby, Will Saxby, and Jimmie O'Brien. Norman Saxby is certainly a wonder for a boy of 15 years and looks good for first place. Any boy in the town of 16 years and under who wishes to get in this race may sign between now and the 20th of May.

LOCAL MAN WILL GO TO LINDSAY

Mr. T. J. Begley Has Accepted Position on Staff of the Lindsay Post

Mr. T. J. Begley, who has been connected with the staff of the Review for the past five years, leaves at the end of next week for Lindsay, where he has accepted a responsible position on the staff of the Lindsay Post. His departure from Peterborough will be greatly regretted, but Mr. Begley will have the best wishes of many friends for success in his new sphere of labor. He will be a valuable addition to the Post staff, as he has had thorough experience in several branches of newspaper work. There are now three daily papers in Lindsay and all of them are strengthening their staffs to meet the stiff competition.

MUCH MONEY TO BE SPENT ON THE CANAL

Work on New Dam and Locks at Lindsay to be Commenced in the Fall--To Expend $300,000 at Rosedale

Special to the Review

Lindsay, May, 16th.—From local authorities it is learned that the work on the new cement dam and locks for which $75,000 was set aside, by the Government, will commence some time next fall. Work has now commenced on the building of a new locks at Rosedale and a cut will be made there that will save about a mile. The present channel is narrow and winding.

At Rosedale $300,000 will be expended. The Scugog river will also be dredged this year and will be made more navigable.

CASE AGAINST DR. FLETCHER HAS TO GO TO THE JURY

Toronto, May 14.—Dr. A. G. Ashton Fletcher takes notes of his trial on the fly leaf of a book as he sits in the dock at the assizes.

His counsel, Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., in his cross-examination of physicians called as Crown witnesses, indicates that the defence may show that Jessie Ellen Gould, the young woman whose death Dr. Fletcher is alleged to have caused, was in a diseased condition, that her condition when his services were requested was the logical result of a disorder from which she suffered.

DEATH WAS SWIFT.

Dr. G. Silverthorne, who conducted the post-mortem examination on the body of Miss Gould, found that death resulted from blood poisoning. In her case it resulted with a suddenness surprising to him. There was no evidence that deceased suffered from some infection as suggested by the defence.

Dr. J. H. Todd, who was called at Dr. Fletcher's request, when the operation was performed, was sworn.

GAVE HER ETHER.

"Dr. Fletcher told me he wanted to give the girl an anaesthetic. He said there had been a miscarriage. Her pulse was weak, but her heart was fairly strong. Ether was administered."

PROPER AND NECESSARY.

"Supposing there had been a miscarriage, this was a perfectly proper operation"?

"Yes, and necessary."

The next time he saw her, she was lying dead in the hospital. Septicaemia was the cause of her death, in his opinion.

Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson, called by the Crown, admitted when cross-examined, that if Miss Gould suffered from the disorder suggested by the defence, a miscarriage would result and leave her in the condition Dr. Fletcher found her when he called on her in Saunders' rooms after her visit to his surgery on Sunday.

MUST GO TO JURY.

The discharge of Dr. Fletcher was moved by Mr. Robinette, the defence counsel, when the Crown's case closed. Mr. Robinette maintained the conduct of the accused doctor in Miss Gould's case was justifiable and and legitimate.

Mr. Blackstock admitted that the Crown's evidence was not as complete as it might be. But Saunders' evidence connected the accused with the death of the young woman, though no one could be produced by the Crown who witnessed the operation which is alleged to have been performed.

Justice Anglin decided to leave the case with the jury, though he considered the evidence largely negative.

SEVEN APPLICATIONS FOR POSITION OF FIRE CHIEF

Brantford Man Asked to Come to the City to Meet Fire, Water and Light Committee—Other Matters Dealt With

Applications for the position of position of chief of the Peterborough fire brigade were considered at a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night, but no decision was reached. There were seven applications and the committee were most impressed with the qualifications of Leslie G. Finch, of Brantford, and he will be requested to come to Peterborough to meet the Committee.

Several other matters were dealt with by the committee.

Applications for the chiefship of the Fire Brigade were received from the following. W. Pakenham, Peterborough; Leslie G. Finch, Brantford; Thos. Bayes, Thos. Davis, Thos. Sargent, Toronto; W. A. Howard, Owen Sound, and T. W. Sheffield, Lindsay.

Ald. McIntyre moved that the choice of a chief be left to the committee of the whole council.

There was no seconder for the motion.

Ald. Turner and Ald. Buller then moved that the committee make a recommendation.

This was carried.

It was moved by Ald. Buller, and seconded by Ald. Turner, that the clerk write to Leslie G. Finch and ask him to come to Peterborough to meet the committee.

The resolution carried, Ald. McIntyre voting against it

LIGHT WANTED

A petition was received for an arc lamp on Park St., between Romaine and Princess Sts.

The chairman was instructed to look into the matter.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Buller, it was decided to place an incandescent light at the north-east corner of King and Bethune Streets.

Those present were Ald. Johnston, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Turner, McIntyre and Buller.

FAMOUS COLLIE IS DEAD BUT MYSTERY IS STILL UNSOLVED

Port Hope, May 15—"Collie," the famous dog, whose faithful and mysterious vigil on the shore of the lake at the foot of King street, caused a sensation during the winter of 1905, and led many to believe that a tragedy had taken place, is dead. It expired on Sunday. For the week previous it could not be induced to eat and it is now dead, leaving the mystery to which it was the only key, still unsolved.

One morning late in January 1905, the dog was first noticed among the iceburgs opposite Mr Burt's house. On the evening of the same day it was still at the same spot still gazing mournfully out into the lake. Its peculiar conduct aroused the curiosity of Mr. Thomas Burt, and Mr. William Ray who made an investigation. As they approached the dog ran away, but returned as soon as they had left. All night it remained in the same spot although nearly frozen. Next day food was taken to it but it refused to eat. At last Mr. Ray succeeded in taking the dog to his house, but as soon as it was released it ran back to the lake where it lay on an iceberg, gazing into the water or sometimes making as though it would jump into the lake.

Lately it has made its home at Mr. Fred. Wright's house on King street but every day for three years it has made its way back to the lake still watching apparently for its long lost master.

No solution of the mystery has ever been found. The dog was a black collie with a white face and until it was noticed among the iceburgs, it had not been seen in the neighborhood. The general impression was that a tragedy had taken place and that the dog's owner, a stranger in Port Hope, had met with his death by drowning either by suicide or by misadventure. The faithful dog seemed never to abandon hope that its beloved master would return. Its faithful watch is now at an end and the lake still shrouds a mystery which will never be solved.

ANOTHER SOCIETY ACCEPTS THE GOVERNMENT'S OFFER

Special to the Review

Keene, May 15—At a meeting of the directors of the Otonabee Agricultural Society held in the council chamber on Friday evening, May 8th, it was decided to hold a field crop competition this summer taking advantage of the offer of the Provincial government of a special grant for this purpose. After discussion it was decided to have the variety of crops in which competition should be held, white oats. The competition will be open to all members of the society to the number of twenty-five. All entries must be made by the first day of June. Competitors must reside within fifteen miles from Keene and must not enter into any similar competition in connection with any other Agricultural Society. The plot must consist of not less than five acres of white oats.

The prize money will be divided up as follows: First, $15; second $12 third $10; fourth $8 and fifth $5.

The seed branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture will provide judges free of cost to the Society. Already the society has a number of entries and those wishing to compete would do well to get their entries in as soon as possible, to Mr. Andrew Shearer, the secretary of the Otonabee Agricultural Society as the maximum number of entries is likely to be made.

The government grants twenty dollar and supplies the judges, so that the competition will only cost the Society thirty dollars. There has been an appropriation made of $3000 for this purpose and it is expected that about a hundred or more associations will take up this competition. Last year three hundred societies took up this work and it gave universal satisfaction. The farmers who were prize winners received as high as fifty percent over the market prices for their grain last year.

MR. McNULTY'S MEETING AT STEWART SCHOOL HOUSE

There was a large attendnace at the meeting held in the spacious schoolhouse of the Stewart Settlement in Otonabee last evening, in the interests of Mr. McNulty, the Liberal candidate for the Legislature. By mistake Mr. Thompson, the Liberal-Conservative had billed his meeting for Zion on Wednesday evening, and Stewart's last evening. The Zion meeting had as a consequence to be given up, but Mr. McNulty, on being informed of the mistake at Stewart's, graciously offered an hour to his opponent or his representatives. It will be seen that "they do things differently" in the East Riding.

On motion of Hon. J. R. Stratton, Mr. Sam Stewart took the chair.

Mr. McNulty, who was well received, began by remarking that he and his opponent were the best of friends, and that they intended to remain so. He asked for the support of the electors because he was a farmer seeking to represent a farmers' riding, and also because he was a Liberal. He was prepared to give all questions a thorough consideration and would do all in his power to merit the confidence of the electors in the future, as he hoped he had done in the past. (Applause.) He was not satisfied with the action of the Government in regard to rural schools, which looked to him like coercion. It was all very well to seek to improve education, but that should have been left more in the hands of the trustees themselves The Government should have fair play, but so should the people. The three-fifths clause was also a mistake. A majority was the usual way of carrying all important measures. It was needless and unwarrantable to change the law in this respect. It was not receiving the endorsement of public opinion. He referred also to the C.N.R. guarantee and several other matters. Mr. McNulty sat down amidst the hearty plaudits of the large audience.

Mr. W. S. Robinson followed for Mr. Thompson, and for forty minutes held the close attention of the audience in a fair and forcible presentation of the case for the Government. Particularly he refered to the change in the conditions of existence. The licensees, who formerly had to jump when the string was pulled, being the slaves of the numbered ballot and unscrupulous superiors, were now free, but were compelled to observe the law. That in these two respects alone the Government was entitled to their confidence he thought all would admit.

Mr. Thompson, the Conservative candidate, offered himself to the electors as a supporter of Mr. Whitney. He had the best opinion of Mr McNulty, but it was not a question of Mr. McNulty or himself, but of the measures and men now in power or likely to be in power. As a critic Mr. Mackay was doing good work, but he had no policy, probably not having time to formulate one. In fact he had not even begun one, for he had not so much as the first plank. The record of the Whitney Government in its three and a half years of power was the best ever put together in any part of Canada at any time. Honesty, efficiency and thoroughness characterized every department.

Mr. Burnham, who took the few minutes left, thanked Mr McNulty for his kindness and said that Mr. McNulty would undoubtedly be a credit to any riding as a representative, but that the people could not ignore the excellent record of the present Government, in their interests. He just wished to call their attention to one undisputable fact regarding the C.N.R. guarantee. He produced the statute, being Cap. 20, Ed. VII., which being passed in 1904 was the Ross guarantee in black and white. The word "terminals" did not occur therein and it was extremely doubtful if an equivalent for it existed in the Act. To say that suspicions were justified was absurd.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, who with Mr. G. M. Roger, appeared for the Liberal interests then came forward and went rapidly into a detailed statement of the excellencies of the old regime and the record of broken promises of the present one. The license system as administered by him had been a success. It was not true to say that complaints had been general and justified. The three-fifths clause was an absurdity. It was neither justifiable nor necessary, and he was sure the electors would resent the Government's interference with their liberties. Mr. Mackay would restore the bare majority. With regard to the statement that the public buildings of the province were in state of disrepair when he left office, he denied it. There was no policy like that of the Liberal party as time had proved, and would prove again.

Mr. Roger took up the gerrymander and characterized it as an unworthy attempt to make the ridings secure for the next election.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers.

FAITHFUL WORKERS' BAND

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band of St. Paul's church met last evening and transacted business.

CAME TO PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. Kenneth Morris left last week for Peterborough where he has secured an excellent situation in the barber shop of the Oriental Hotel. His many friends in town and vinity regret his departure very much.—Havelock Standard.

NEW BANDSMEN.

Three new members have been added to the Ideal Concert Band; John Holden, baritone, Toronto; Fred Millar, clarionet, Peterborough; and Robert Chappel, solo cornet, Toronto. The first two gentlemen have taken positions at the Standard Ideal and the latter one at the Central Foundry.—Port Hope Guide.

TELEPHONE SOLD.

The Bell Telephone Company have sold out their system, in Clarke township to Mr. Joseph Coulson, of Newcastle. Mr. Coulson, in company with a Bell representative, was in Orono on Tuesday taking over the business. The Coulson system include direct lines to Bowmanville and Port Hope. Overtures will be made at once with the Durham union for an interchange of service on liberal terms and it is altogether probable that an agreement can now be arrived at to the mutual advantage of both systems. It would give Durham Union 'phone holders free service with Bowmanville, Port Hope and other points and long distance connection over the Bell.—Orono News.

SPORTING NEWS

MADE GOTCH GO HIS FASTEST TO DEFEAT ROGERS IN AN HOUR AND NINETEEN MINUTES

Rogers will be in perfect shape for his match here with Hurtubuise. He is shown about as fine as he can get. He stands 6 feet 1 and a half inches and weighs when he steps on the mat 207 pounds. As he does nothing else for living but wrestle Rogers has the game studied thoroughly and knows all the locks, holds and doubles of the wrestling game and has originated many effective surprise plays of his own. Besides his knowledge of the game Rogers has a great physique and is capable of standing all kinds of punishment. He naturally has a much wider knowledge of every part of the science than Hurtubuise has but it must be remembered that he has signed to throw "Gene" three times in an hour.

The latter is using every moment to the best advantage and is working out regularly and systematically. On account of his regular habits and the splendid care he takes of himself, he is always in good shape but will be in the best condition he ever has for the bout of his life. He knows a great many of the fine points of the mat business and will be given a chance to show his skill when he shakes hands with the redoubtable Yankee.

GAVE GOTCH A BIG RUN

Last year Rogers wrestled in Buffalo with Frank Gotch the champion of the world and vanquisher of Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion and gave the champion one of the toughest arguments he has ever had. Gotch managed to get him twice but only after the closest kind of wrestling on the part of both contestants. Gotch secured two falls one in 47 minutes and the next in 32 minutes. It will be seen from the times of the above falls that it took the world's champion an hour and nineteen minutes to win the match.

Another big bout of Rogers' took place at Sohmer Park in Montreal four weeks ago when he won from Fitz Mobile, the former champion of Germany, in two straight falls getting the first one in 25 minutes and the second in 29 minutes.

TALK OVER 'PHONE

C. G. Graham, Hurtubuise's manager, had a talk with Rogers over the long distance 'phone last night and the latter said he was thoroughly satisfied with all conditions and arrangements in connection with the match with Hurtubuise. He stated he would arrive in Peterborough next Thursday, the day before the bout. A forfeit of $100 to bind the match has been placed in the hands of Chas. Hayden, sporting editor of the Montreal Herald.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

CHURCH JUNIOR LEAGUE SCHEDULE WAS DRAWN UP

Messrs. Wilkie and Ernie Reid met last evening at the Y.M.C.A. and drew up a schedule for the Church Junior Baseball League;—

The teams will be divided up into two sections. All Saints', St. Andrew's and Knox, comprising the first division, and George street, Y.M.C.A. Chieftains and St. Luke's in the second.

May 28—All Saints' vs. St. Andrew's; George street vs. Y.M.C.A., Knox and St. Luke's—byes.

June 1—St. Andrew's vs Knox; Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Luke's. All Saints' and George street, byes.

June 4—Knox vs All Saints'; St. Luke's vs. George street. St. Andrew's and George street.—Byes.

June 8—St. Andrew's vs. All Saints. Y.M.C.A. vs. George street. Knox and St. Luke's—Byes.

June 8—St. Andrew's vs. All Saints. Y.M.C.A. vs. George street. Knox and St. Luke's—Byes.

June 11—Knox vs. St. Andrew's; St. Luke's vs. Y.M.C.A. All Saints' and George street—Byes.

June 15—All Saints' vs. Knox; St. Luke's vs. George street. St. Andrew's vs. Y.M.C.A.—Byes.

All teams in section one will play their games on Boswell field. Charlotte street and teams in the second section will play their games on the Central School grounds.

"PLAY BALL" WILL BE THE WATCHWORD HERE TO-MORROW

Johnston's Petes Stack Up Against the Alerts of Toronto at Riverside Park, Tomorrow—Athletics Meet Y.M.C.A. Team in Practice Match —City League Opening

The baseball season will open in Peterborough to-morrow and the fans are all agog with excitement. The Peterboroughs will meet the Alerts of Toronto at Riverside Park at 3.30 o'clock and the Athletics will play a practice game at the Driving Park at 2.30 o'clock against the Y. M. C. A. city league team. At the Nicholls Oval the City League will open with the Strathconas' playing the Lakeviews at 2 o'clock, and the Hornets' hooking up with the T.A.S. team at 4 o'clock. Four great games are assured. Fair weather is the only thing that is now an uncertainty.

Petes — Clements, p; Thorne, 1st b; O'Hearne, 2nd b; Maddock ss; Cheatham, 3rd b; Burns, Murphy and O'Brien, fielders.

Alerts — Macwhinney, Wilson and Smith, p; Dalzell, c; Spence 1st b; Morgan, 2nd b; White, ss; Haliburton, 3rd b; Gibson, Outfield and Morgan, fielders.

An umpire has not yet been decided upon.

The field is in good condition and seats will be provided. This will be a great chance to see the Petes at work. It is claimed that they are the fastest bunch ever playing in the Midland League. The Alerts will prove worthy opponents. The Toronto boys will be accompanied by "Ace" Cooper, their manager, and a number of rooters.

ATHLETICS VS Y.M.C.A.

At the exhibition ground an exhibition game will be played between the Athletics and the Y.M.C.A. This will be a good opportunity to see the Athletics in action and the "Y" bunch will put on a lineup that should give them a big argument. Many of the fans will undoubtedly be on hand to witness the contest.

It will commence at 2.30 o'clock and Mr Jack Mulhall will act as umpire. No admission fee will be charged.

The teams will be;

Athletics		Y.M.C.A.
Quinlan Flaherty	Pitcher	Len Patterson
Marshall	Catcher	Westbrook
Graham	1st base	Chris Graham
Wareham	2nd base	Dormer
Landry	3rd base	McDonald
Cahill	Shortstop	Porter
Sheridan	Left field	Barber
Connors	Centre field	Gibson
Callaghan	Right field	Waram

Umpire—J. Mulhall.

ROGERS' TRIUMPH; BESTS A CELEBRATED CHAMPION

Defeated August Faust, Champion of Germany, in Boston on Wednesday Night—One of the Victories of His Lifetime—Two Straight Falls.

Yankee Rogers is adding further laurels to his already big collection. One of the most notable victories of his career was achieved at Boston on Wednesday night when he threw August Faust, the German champion, in a great contest, getting two straight falls in 8 and 12 minutes respectively. The outcome of the battle must have been a big surprise to the supporters of the man from over the seas as he is looked upon as one of the best ones in the heavyweight ranks. Although he is thoroughly posted both in the Graeco-Roman and catch-as catch can styles Rogers handled him in comparatively easy fashion as is shown by the short order in which he secured the falls. Rogers showed great form and jumped right after his man from the first call of time. Faust put up a fierce but ineffective resistance as Rogers was out to win as quickly as possible. He took all kinds of chances in getting after the big German Hercules but apparently had the greatest confidence in his ability to bring down his opponent quickly. In the matter of pure momentary strength Faust would perhaps have it on Rogers as he is one of the most powerful wrestlers but Rogers himself is also unusually strong and his superior science and speed stood him in good stead.

The victory is one of the most important in Rogers' career and he is receiving the congratulations of his friends and the international sporting public as well on his magnificent show. He is in the pink of condition and felt fine after his spectacular go with the German champion.

ATHLETIC NOTES FROM THE Y.M.C.A.

Lacrosse Team Will Practice To-night—Hiking Club Going to Springville

The Y. M. C. A. Lacrosse Club will practice at Central Park to-night at 6.30 sharp. The following men are asked to turn out:

Ray Best, Len Dobson, A. Emerson, J. A. McKone, Geo. Robertson, G. Galley, F. Turner, R. M. Glover, Norman Darwng, Stan Wade, J. Hardwicke, Ernie Wilson, P. Wallace, J. Geale, D. Loomis, J. Sanderson, and any others who wish to become members of the club.

HIKING CLUB.

The Y. M. C. A. Hiking Club will walk to Springville to-morrow afternoon, and return, weather permitting. Every member of the Club is asked to be on hand at 1.30 sharp at the Y. M. C. A. building and to bring a good lunch. Those having cameras are asked to bring them along.

LINDSAY RINK TO BE REBUILT

Joe Parkin Given Permission to Erect New Structure—Will be Larger Than Old One

Special to the Review

Lindsay, May 15. — Mr. Joe Parkin, proprietor of the rink here, which was burned some time ago, received permission from the council last night to rebuild. The rink will be extended by 30 feet and will be made 8 feet higher. A gallery will also be placed around it. It will be used for roller skating and as an ice rink.

PORT HOPE AND PETERBOROUGH

May Meet in Lacrosse Match on May 25th

Port Hope, May 14.—Representatives from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Trenton and Port Hope will meet at the Royal Hotel here on Friday afternoon to arrange a schedule. Mr. Frank J. Flood has been appointed convenor.

An effort is being made to arrange an exhibition game here for May 25th and it is likely that Peterborough will cross sticks with the Ontarios. The locals have a very strong line up, many of the young men who brought glory to the town in days gone by having signified their intention of turning out. Lacrosse is a great game and no doubt will receive liberal patronage here this summer.

THE CATCHER FOR THE ATHLETICS

Will Arrive Here on 7.33 C. P. R. This Evening—Will Catch Against "Y" Nine To-morrow

A telegram was received today from Toronto that Catcher Marshall of the Athletics would be here today. As seen by the line-up of the team in another column he will do the receiving for the Athletics' game to-morrow against the Y.M.C.A. nine. He will arrive in the city tonight on the 7.33 C.P.R. local.

Until the telegram was received it was not expected that Marshall would reach here until Tuesday.

HAVING CHILDREN'S EYES EXAMINED

People Suffer Through Life With the Disadvantages of Impaired Vision, as a Result of the Neglect of the Eyes in Childhood.

It is a familiar fact that the acuteness of vision varies extremely among adults, and that certain defects of the eye, such as shortsightedness, can be so completely remedied as to restore to the individual almost perfect sight. Now, there exists among children just such differences in the acuteness of vision as is observed in adults, and many of the defects of the eye originate in the failure of the parents to appreciate these differences. It is a pity to put glasses upon a child, but a greater pity to neglect such when the future well-being of the eyes depend upon their help. Many parents and teachers nowadays realize the importance of having children's eyes properly examined to know whether or not glasses are necessary.

HINT FOR LAUNDRESS.

How to Set Colors and Starch Wash Dresses.

Every one should know how to give explicit directions to the laundress. Take, for instance, a jumper suit in tobacco brown linen or boys' Russian suit in the same color. After being washed with pure white soap and having salt in the last rinsing water the starch should be mixed with boiling coffee (previously strained) instead of water, or it will leave white streaks and smudges over the surface.

For one suit take a tablespoonful of starch, one-half teaspoonful of borax (dissolved in a spoonful of boiling water), a quarter of an inch of tallow candle and mix into a smooth paste with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, and add enough boiling coffee to make a stiff jelly. For ordinary hot water starch these are the correct proportions, using boiling water in place of the coffee. While tan linen does not require special coddling, still some shades of buff and gray are liable to spot and streak. To obviate this use a tablespoonful of black pepper in the first water. This will also keep them from fading, says the Housekeeper.

Most colors require either salt or vinegar in the last rinsing water to fix them. As a general rule, the lighter colors take salt, the darker vinegar. Both are used in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a quart of water. When in doubt, use both. For lilac, mauve or purples vinegar will be found to slightly intensify as well as preserve the color. Blues are often ruined by their first trip to a careless laundress. Any shade of blue may be permanently fixed by soaking first in a bucket of water into which an ounce of sugar of lead has been poured.

If one wants a suit stiff it should be dried before starching, but in the shade, never in the sun, as colored clothes are sure to fade while wet, on the same principle that one bleaches white garments in strong sunshine. They should of course never be boiled. Pale green is a color that fades easily, but a little alum in the rinsing water will fix it.

Tussore and other washing silk are so easy to wash and iron, requiring no starch, that they are very practical for summer outings where there is difficulty in getting regular laundry work satisfactorily done. One can wash and iron three or four little girls' tussore dresses in half an hour oneself at a pinch, as they are ironed while wet.

White wash silk waists are useful in the same way, making it easy to have a supply of fresh waists, independent of delayed laundry bundles.

PRUNING TREES.

Proper Treatment of Roots and Top at Planting Time.

All are agreed that trees intended for orchard purposes are best if nursery grown. Nursery grown trees, however, are produced under conditions which subject them to more or less crowding, with the result that the normal development has been changed. The planter should at planting time have in mind the natural form and habits of the plants with which he is dealing and should therefore use the knife so as to bring about results which will allow the tree to assume its normal shape.

From the Nursery.

As the trees or plants are removed from the nursery a greater or less proportion of the roots is necessarily lost in the operation of digging. If the trees are large only the main roots will be left upon the plant, while if small a very much larger proportion of the fine fibrous feeding roots can be retained. Then, too, the distance which plants are removed has a direct bearing upon the amount of root surface which is left at planting time. Plants which can be dug and immediately reset suffer much less than do those which have to be shipped long distances. The planter should take these factors into consideration in pruning the tree at planting time.

Growth of the Branches.

As the growth of the branches depends entirely upon the food supply made available to them by the roots of the plant, it follows that in order that the roots shall be able to furnish food for the branches and leaves the area of the top of the tree must be reduced in proportion to the loss which the root has sustained—in fact, the pruning of the top should be somewhat more severe than has been the pruning of the roots, because the demand for water which is made by the growing parts cannot be so successfully met by a newly transplanted tree as by one thoroughly established.—L. C. Corbett.

Applying Lime.

In view of the renewed interest in liming of soils and a widespread desire for information regarding the best methods of applying lime, the following statements by C. E. Thorne of the Ohio experiment station on the latter subject are believed to be especially timely:

One way of applying lime is to distribute the freshly burned lump lime in piles over the field after the land has been prepared for the crop, throw a little water on the lime, cover it with fine earth and after it has thoroughly slaked mix it with more earth and distribute with the shovel. Half a peck of lime to the square rod would give twenty bushels, or 1,400 pounds, to the acre. As lime absorbs nearly one-fourth its weight of water (24 per cent) in slaking, this would give about 1,750 pounds of slaked or hydrated lime per acre.

Slaked lime is a disagreeable material to handle, but it is sometimes applied in this condition, being spread from wagons, but any method of hand spreading involves irregularity in distribution and therefore a waste of material. Slaked lime may be successfully spread with the ordinary manure spreader by first placing a quantity of litter on the spreader apron to prevent the lime from sifting through and to bring it within reach of the teeth of the spreader and setting the apron to travel slowly.

The best manure spreaders are now fitted with hoods and slow gearing for lime spreading.

It is very difficult to spread lime satisfactorily with the ordinary fertilizer drill, because the fine powder packs above the feeders and fails to run out evenly. Moreover, these drills are not usually made of sufficient capacity to apply more than about 500 pounds of material per acre.

The best form of lime for this work is the ground quicklime which is now made by several manufacturers for building purposes, it being more convenient to handle in this form than in lumps. Such lime can be used in the fertilizer drill when fresh and coarsely ground, though it usually contains considerable fine dust, which interferes with distribution by that implement.

The most satisfactory implement for distributing lime is one made especially for that purpose. Such machines are made by several manufacturers of fertilizer drills.

Henroosts.

Make all roosts on the same level. The ladder arrangement is a nuisance and offers no advantage. Arrange the roosts so that they may be readily removed for cleaning. Do not fill the chicken house full of roosts. Put in only enough to accommodate the hens and let these be on one side of the house. The floor under the roosts should be separated from the feeding floor by a board set on edge, or, better still, a tight roost platform may be built under the perches. By this latter scheme the entire floor of the house is available as a scratching floor.—Oscar Erf.

Ammonia In Commercial Fertilizers.

Ammonia occurs in commercial fertilizers as sulphate of ammonia and furnishes nitrogen in one of its most active forms of combination. The commercial article of high grade contains about 20.6 per cent of nitrogen, equivalent to 25 per cent of ammonia.

Land For Tomatoes.

Land that would produce from ten to twelve barrels of corn per acre should, other things being properly looked after, easily produce six or eight tons of tomatoes. This would be called average or medium conditions.—Maryland Experiment Station.

At Brownsville, N.Y., while hunting muskrats, Warren White, aged 16, was killed by the accidental discharge of his shotgun.

His Ideal

By DESTA
E. BROWN WOODS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Jessie Morgan.

"Now, Harry, honestly you don't believe that?"

"Yes, I do. A true woman is always a coward. Brave is a masculine adjective, incapable of being used with a feminine noun."

"Oh, bosh! You are old fashioned, my boy."

"I grant you—mediaeval, in fact—but neither Joan of Arc nor Boadicea stirs my heart like a certain little girl who faints when she pricks her finger with a pin."

"That's what it is to be in love. Your ideal is based on what you think to be Miss Osborne's character. Now, for my part, I believe that young lady capable of heroism."

"And I tell you, George Evans, that the very thought of physical pain turns her cheek pale, but in the matter of moral courage—well, I could stake my life on her there. She has such a high ideal of truth and honor. She is so"—

"Oh, yes, yes! Spare me! Remember I am not in love."

An hour later he was sitting with his fiancee, a puzzled, pained expression on his face.

"I don't think I understand you," he said slowly. "You don't mean that you told your father the money was for charity when you were spending it on this silly speculation?"

Jessie Osborne's pretty cheeks were very pink.

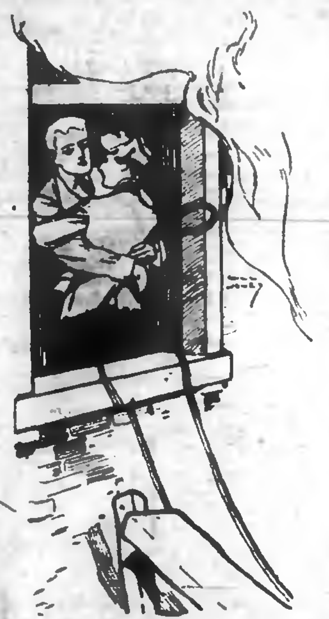
"Well, I thought it a good investment, and father never lets me try stocks."

"But, Jessie, you have been deceiving him for months."

A pair of little white hands flew to hide the pink cheeks.

"Oh, I'm sorry! I'm miserable, and you don't care," came in broken sobs.

"There, there," he said soothingly as he took the slight form in his arms. "I didn't mean to be cross; but, my darling, we must be honest. We must help each other to be true and morally brave."



JESSIE AND HER PRECIOUS ROPE WERE SAFE IN HARRY'S GRASP.

"Of course," he mused on the way home, "her father must have known from the first what she was doing and simply meant to give her a lesson by allowing her to proceed. Poor little girl, she didn't mean any harm, but I am disappointed. I didn't think her capable of the slightest deception."

As he turned the corner leading to his boarding house the light streamed out from Dr. Gordon's office, and he dropped in for a moment's chat.

"I say, Nell, you don't look well. What's the matter?" the doctor inquired.

"Oh, I believe I have nerves, and I haven't slept well lately."

"You had better let me give you a sleeping draft and then take a week's rest soon."

The sleeping draft had the desired effect, and scarcely had Harry's head touched the pillow when he was wrapped in deep slumber. After a time he was dimly conscious of a hum of voices in the street below. The room was hot, and he tossed off some of the bedclothes. His throat smarted, and his head ached. There was a strange roaring in his ears. He struggled to rouse himself, but it was too great an effort, and he lay dreamily listening to the voices below.

"I tell you, Evans, Nell is in his room!" came in terrified tones from Dr. Gordon. "I gave him a dope, and the noise has never wakened him."

"We must take a rope to him," said Evans. And Harry wondered vaguely at the unaccustomed ring in his friend's voice.

"But how?" Again it was Dr. Gordon's voice. "The front verandas are all in flames."

"Could we reach him by means of the new building? That beam runs parallel with his room."

"It would be madness," exclaimed Mr. Osborne. "The beam wouldn't hold your weight. See! It has burned through at the end next the Nelson house."

Was it all a nightmare, Harry wondered, or was it an awful reality? But the next words which reached him cleared the vapors from his brain and made him spring from his bed with a bound.

"The beam won't hold you heavy men, but I can go. I weigh only ninety pounds. I'll take the rope," came in Jessie's well loved voice.

Nell rushed to the window and hurriedly sized up the situation. His room was in the corner of the third flat, with two windows—one at the front of the house and one at the side. From the front window he could see the firemen at work. The verandas and whole face of the house were a mass of fire and smoke. Water from the hose played on the blaze, but the crackling of the flames came like the laughter of a victorious fiend.

He ran to the side window. A new building was in process of construction, but the skeleton structure had already caught fire.

The smoke cleared for an instant, and the crowd below caught sight of him. He recognized the white faces of Mr. Osborne, George Evans and Dr. Gordon. Life was sweet. Was there no escape? And again he scanned the new building.

Some one was coming to him—a girl in a jersey waist and short tweed skirt, carrying in her hand a coil of rope. Her face was upraised for a moment, and he recognized Jessie Osborne. Frail, timid, little Jessie amid the fire and smoke! She must not come farther, and, placing his hand on the window ledge, he prepared to descend.

"Stop, you fool!" came from below.

"Nell, for any sake, don't put your foot on that beam or it is death for you both!" shouted Evans.

Convinced that Evans was right, he paused and watched the girl below. Light and agile as a kitten, she climbed from beam to brace and from brace to beam.

A few hours before he had boasted of his strength and bravery, yet here he was forced to stand with folded arms while this mite of a girl brought him succor. The heat was intense and every nerve was strained to the utmost as he watched the approaching figure. One wrong step meant death.

Awed silence fell upon the watching crowd, but Jessie reached the second story in safety and then advanced cautiously until third was gained. She placed her foot carefully on the last beam and then slowly transferred her weight to it. There was a sickening crack, then a sudden lurch, which caused Harry to cover his eyes with his hands. But a shout from George Evans made him look again. The beam had only sagged, and Jessie was walking steadily toward him.

He leaned over the window ledge with outstretched arms. A moment's awful suspense, and then, with a little cry, she sprang to her lover's embrace. As her foot left the beam the huge skeleton gave way, but Jessie and her precious rope were safe in Harry's grasp.

To fasten the rope and lower his preserver to the firemen below was the work of a moment; then, hand over hand, Harry descended the improvised fire escape. He felt himself seized and carried away from the heat. He heard a confusion of cheers and sobs, and then consciousness left him.

When he came to himself he was lying on a sofa in Mr. Osborne's home, with Dr. Gordon and George Evans beside him.

"Jessie?" he queried faintly.

"Is safe and well," Dr. Gordon replied. "She escaped entirely without injury, and her father has carried her almost by main force to her room to get the rest she needs. In fact," he added, "you monopolized the woman's right of fainting."

"It was that confounded dope of yours," Harry retorted.

"It came near costing your life; but, thank God, you both escaped. Your injuries are very slight, although your bandages look formidable. The burns are only surface burns and won't even spoil your beauty, and now I must go to Miss Osborne."

As the door closed on Dr. Gordon, George Evans turned to his friend.

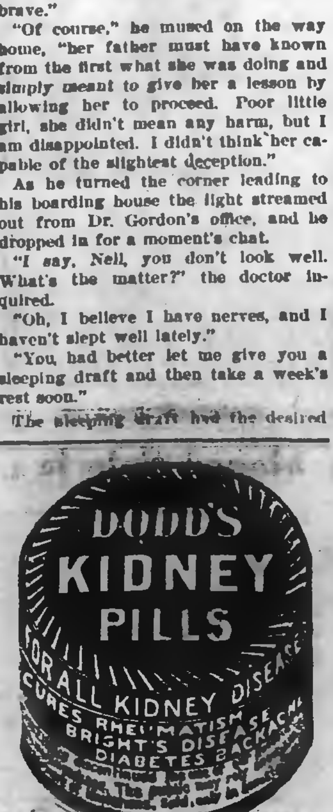
"What you said about Miss Osborne's sense of honor is all right, but admit like a man that I had a truer estimate of her courage. Or, say," he added jokingly, although there was a suspicious tremor in his voice, "perhaps the engagement is called off since you don't admire that type."

"I can't joke about it, George," Nell answered gravely. "The type of girl I pictured is all right in theory, but"—

Marvels of Memory.

"The phonograph is wonderful enough, but the human brain is vastly its superior, as it has been shown to have stored up for forty-five years the thoughts actually passing through it and the speech resulting therefrom," states a medical man.

"A boy in a village in the Tyrol when fifteen years old went to his father's field to catch a frisky colt. When about to place a halter about the animal's neck it kicked him on the head. The wound healed, but the use of the boy's reason did not return. For forty-five years he lived in the village, until he reached the age of sixty. Then a prominent German specialist who passed through the village on a holiday offered to experiment. Finding that a portion of the skull had been forced into contact with the brain, he by skillful operation removed the pressure. The man at once regained his reason, and his first utterance as the effects of the anaesthetic wore off was, 'Did the colt get away?'"—Detroit News-Tribune.



ZAM-BUK SAVED THIS·MAN'S FINGER!

Mr. William C. Edwards, Peter Street, Toronto (late steward Elks' Club), sustained a severe cut on the middle finger of the left hand. Blood poisoning ensued and the finger caused him excruciating agony. He says: "My hand was so swollen and painful that I had to carry it in a sling for some months. I was under the care of a well-known doctor in Toronto for several weeks. The wound got no better, and one day he said my finger would have to be taken off. The pain from the wound was terrible and was extending right up the arm. I consulted another medical man and was treated by him for some weeks longer. He then suggested that the finger be opened and the bone scraped. At this stage a friend advised me to try some Zam-Buk which I did. I bathed the wound and applied Zam-Buk as directed. Next morning the wound began to bleed. It was a healthy sign so I continued with the treatment, and in a weeks time I was able to discard the bandage. A little more perseverence and Zam-Buk cured the wound completely."

Bought Large Coal Area In B. C.

Vancouver, May 15.—M. Cohen, representing a Germany company, has arrived after arranging for the purchase of twelve miles of coal lands in Brazeau, Big Horn and Saskatchewan Basins, in the foothills of the Rockies. Prospecting on the property is to be carried on this summer under the direction of James McElroy, who lately resigned as geologist of the Crow's Nest Co.

The company intends to build a railway through these fields from Innisfail 100 miles. The entire cost is estimated at three and a half million dollars.

Partridges' Devotion.

Few birds are so devoted to one another as partridges; but, like other much less affectionate birds, they seem to get over their bereavements in a remarkably short space of time. When a covey in September takes a fancy to lying in a particular bit of clover or a little patch of rough grass and thistles you may be almost sure of finding them there at certain times of the day, and unless they are disturbed too frequently there they will be found so long as any of them are left. They are devoted alike to each other and to particular spots, but their family fondness is only existent so long as the object of their affections is visible.

"Have you noticed," asked the professor, "how often you get a slight shock these days whenever you touch the radiator or the gas jet or any other body of metal? It was not so when we were young. Thirty years ago such shocks required long and industrious tramping up and down the carpet and could be produced only by certain people. Now they are almost universal after the slightest movement and are felt by every one. The reason is that we use such enormous quantities of electrical force, all of which is dissipated into our surroundings, that everything in a large city gradually becomes charged with electricity. It is not so in the country. If any one could devise a means of collecting this wandering electrical energy, it would be very valuable."—New York Sun.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

THE OPENING DAY

Friend, listen to me, if you're brave and you crave
A passing flirtation with fate,
Just station your hide on the bleachers beside
Our fan on the opening date.

Kuroki, the almond-eyed demon of war,
With a lurid bombardment gor gay,
But he'd fade if arrayed with the fandom brigade
On parade during opening day.

To the loft with celebrities, titles and all,
For Abruzzi to little Joe Gans,
For there's joy in the air and a tearing of hair,
And a miniature hell in the stands.

A conglomeration of misshapen hats
Cavort through the air every way,
For it's madness, you know, to be sane when you go
To the services opening day.

So it's hail to the fan, let him frenziedly rave
And scatter ferocious applause,
For the powers that he must respect the decree
That spouts forth from those muscular jaws.

Let the elements rage—let the panic go on,
Let trouble turn ever his way,
You will see every game, the old scout just the same,
As you did on the opening day.

CITY LEAGUE MATCHES OFF

Nicholls Oval Cannot be Secured for To-morrow's Games---Ground is too Soft

The two city league games scheduled for to-morrow have been cancelled. The trustees of Nicholls Oval have decided that the park is too soft to allow it to be opened and it will be impossible to play the game billed, Lakeviews vs. Strathconas, and Karnote vs. the T.A.S. nine.

It is feared that the players would cut up the park so badly that it would take several weeks to get it into gdoo shape again.

WARKWORTH ON 25th OF MAY

First Cricket Match Will be Here on the Above Date---Players Asked to Turn Out

There will be a cricket match at the Nicholls Oval on May 25th when Warkworth will play the local eleven. In case Warkworth cannot come Hamilton wants a game for the above date but there is every likelihood of Warkworth coming here.

The local cricketers are expected to turn out to practices regularly from now on in preparation for the match.

THE RING

San Fransisco, May 14. — Joe Gans, champion lightweight fighter of the world, won from Dudolph "Boer" Unholz in the eleventh round of what was scheduled to be a twenty round fight for the lightweight championship of the world, at the Coliseum Rink here to-night.

It was the same old tale of science and experience defeating bull strength For the first 4 rounds the Boer held his own and at times even had Gans in tight quarters but from the beginning of the fifth round the result was never in doubt.

WALKING

MATCH AT BELLEVILLE

A six day walking match is booked for the Belleville rink in a week or two.

A FAST WALKER.

An error was made in the item in yesterday's Review regarding the walk of Mr. P. G. Towns of Douro. Mr. Towns walked 48 miles and 4 laps in 9 1-2 hours instead of 47 miles as stated. This is remarkably good going when it is considered that the track was very soft in some places.

Camp Creek, a town of 400 population on the Little Missouri river, was destroyed by fire. The loss was $200,000.

EXCHANGE FOR LOCAL HOTEL

It is Said Mr. George Dettman of Kinmount Wants a Peterboro' License

It is said that Mr. George Dettman of Kinmount is negotiating for the license of a local hotel. Mr Dettman is a former Kinmount hotel man but local option came into force in that place on the 1st of May.

It is understood that definite arrangements in connection with the matter have not been settled.

SEVERAL POLES TO BE REMOVED

And Other Arrangements Have to be Made for Disposing of Fire Alarm Wires

As a result of the undergrounding of the wires of the Bell Telephone Company, a number of poles will be removed from the city streets. The fire alarm system wires are located on some of them and arrangements have to be made for disposing of them in some other way. This was discussed at the meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee last night when Mr. Doan appeared before the committee and explained the situation. Ald Johnston, Ald. McIntyre and Mr. Doan were authorized to deal with the matter.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS, 1908

To the Electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—It is my privilege to again appear before you as the Conservative candidate in the approaching election of members of the Ontario Legislature, and while on the previous occasion I was in opposition to the Government, I now have the pleasure of supporting the Administration of Hon. J. P. Whitney, whose management of the affairs of the Province, with the support of an able cabinet, has, during his short premiership, proved of such marked benefit.

Measures of a far-reaching character have been passed, and the statute books of the last three years are replete with legislation of a high order, as well for its originality as its soundness. Let me mention a few of the important acts of the past sessions. The establishment of a Railway and Municipal Board, the new act relating to mining, the creation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the amendment of the liquor laws, amendments to the law relating to the election of members of the Legislature, particularly the alteration in the ballot, which is now absolutely secret.

The administration of the public domain, especially the mining laws of the Province, has been most profitable, adding large sums to both revenue and capital, and the different changes which have been effected in the Education Department have met with the approval of all persons, concerned in that most important branch of the public service.

One of the beneficial acts of the Government is the taking with its own hands the distribution of electric energy through the great water power of Niagara Falls, and other rivers capable of hydraulic development. Thus are the different municipalities turough the Province enabled to obtain the inestimable commodity at a minimum of cost.

The Government, while endeavoring to serve the people generally have not been unmindful of the importance of this riding, and when the new normal schools were to be created one of the four was placed in this constituency, thus affording exceptional advantages to the teachers and schools of this counyt.

In the short time which will elapse before polling day, I shall endeavour to make my views more fully known to you both privately and publicly, and I bespeak your cordial support, not so much because of any merits of my own, as on account of the splendid record of the Government.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,

T. E. BRADBURN

TRAMPS HAVE TERRORIZED THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN

The residents of Ashburnham, in the vicinity of Hazlitt's little woods were given a scare on Wednesday evening last and since then the children and women in the neighborhood have been afraid to move out of the house after dark. Early in the evening three fellows shabbily dressed and evidently tramps, were seen making their way into the woods. Later, in the evening as it became dark a big fire was started. It was kept going for several hours, making a great illumination and terrorizing the neighbors for fear it would spread to their places.

It is stated that the little woods is a popular rendezvous for tramps and the women and children are so frightened of them that they are afraid to go out.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will conduct the weekly cottage meeting on Thursday May 21st, at 8 pm. at the home of Mr. H MacKay, Douro.

The Senate Committee on Finance in Washington yesterday voted unanimously to report the bill already passed by the House providing for the permanent restoration of the words "In God we Trust," to the gold and silver coins of the United States. The motto was taken off the coins by order of the President.

A cracksman at Macleod, Alta., yesterday, escaped after a bold attempt to rob the branch of the Union Bank of Canada.

57th Regiment Will be Inspected Twice This Year

It is learned that the inspection of the 57th Regiment, which is to take place on May 20th, will not be the regular inspection of the corps. The regular annual inspection will take place towards the end of June, the same as in past years. The inspection by General Lake on May 20th is a special event. It will take place at Riverside Park, if the grounds are dry enough by that time.

Mrs. Sylvia Merriman, aged 72, the other day enjoyed her second railroad ride. The first was taken 42 years ago.

THE KING GIVES GUINEAS FOR MEMORIAL AT QUEBEC

Meeting in London on Behalf of the Scheme—Lord Mayor Presides—Prince Arthur, Lord Roberts and Bishop of London Among Speakers.

London, May 16.—The lord mayor presided at a representative meeting at the Mansion House to support the proposal to present a British memorial of Wolfe and Montcalm to Canada in connection with the conversion of the Plains of Abraham as a national park.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, Lord Roberts, Earl Crewe and the Bishop of London were among the speakers, and those present included Lord Strathcona and Count Lastours, representing the French embassy.

Messages were read from the Premier, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Balfour and the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

Amongst the subscriptions announced were 100 guineas from the King, 50 guineas from the Prince of Wales, £200 from Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen. It was decided to form local committees to support an influential head committee.

TRUCE IN FIGHT AT OTTAWA WILL CONTINUE TILL MONDAY

Liberal Caucus Instructs Government to Stand Firm—Half a Million Dollars Voted in Supply—Some Civil Servants Only Get Half Their Salaries.

Ottawa, May 16.—While the Conservatives offered no objection to the House going into supply yesterday and actually agreed to passing a few items, this pacific attitude is not to be taken as meaning that they have given up the fight on the election bill.

An armistice was agreed to between the leaders till Monday to give time for further negotiations looking to settlement of the difficulty. A caucus of Government supporters was held in the morning, after which word was given out that the Government would insist on clause 1 of the election bill with minor modifications to be left to Sir Wilfrid to arrange with Mr. Borden.

Items aggregating half a million dollars were passed yesterday afternoon and evening, relating to Manitoba and Saskatchewan public buildings.

It was Government pay-day. Some of the civil servants were paid in full, the estimates for civil government in their branches having been passed.

These were the Governor-General and Privy Council of State, and the Indian, Auditor-General's, Finance, Customs, Inland Revenue, Agriculture, Marine, Public Works, Mines and Trade and Commerce Departments.

Those who received checks for only half were employes in the Departments of justice, militia, printing, interior, mounted police, railways, postoffice and labor.

Before the House went into supply, Mr. R. L. Borden asked when the new treaty between Britain and the United States would be submitted to the House, and the Premier said it had not yet been received. Mr. Fielding was not able to tell Mr. Borden when the civil service bill would be brought down.

The House adjourned at midnight, having passed items aggregating $645,009, including all the public buildings in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with the exception of the military buildings.

Just before the House adjourned, Mr. Fielding said the Aylesworth election bill would be taken up on Monday, "and if we get through that," he added, "we will again take up supply."

The Conservatives are being deluged with telegrams from their friends in all parts of the country, urging resistance to the Aylesworth election bill.

Last night the message was received from Premier McBride of British Columbia, and similar words of encouragement have been received from Premier Roblin of Manitoba and many other leaders:

"Congratulation on splendid fight you are making on election bill from opposition to an unjust measure is only course."

HE CALLS THEM BUNCH OF QUACKS

So Writes Dr. Osler to New York Homeopathists.

New York, May 16.—Speaking before the alumni of New York Homeopathic Medical College, at the annual banquet at the Waldorf Astoria, Dean William Harvey King referred to the recent address given in Baltimore by Dr. Osler, in which the doctor declared that it was no longer time for the different schools of medicine to war with one another.

"Osler's utterance was published widely," said Dr. King, "and in reply we invited him to be present at our dinner. We thought he would send a letter to be read here, even if he could not come. He sent a letter, but it is not to be read. He wrote to say that we were a bunch of quacks. His lecture was meant for the public, and his letter for us."

Cornwall's New Industry.

Cornwall, May 16.—The Santa Clara Lumber Co. have purchased some 20 odd acres of land just west of the town. They expect to have a plant in operation by July 1 and will employ 60 men.

HARRY THAW IN LIMELIGHT AGAIN

Conflicting Evidence of Experts as to His Sanity.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 16.—Harry K. Thaw, who is seeking by habeas corpus proceedings to obtain his freedom from the state asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan, was declared by District-Attorney Jerome's experts yesterday to be insane.

Jerome, who is opposing Thaw's release, rested his case before the close of the afternoon session, and Attorney James G. Graham of Thaw's counsel called several witnesses in rebuttal, among them Rev. Luke P. Evers and Rev. John A. Wade, chaplains at the Tombs Prison, both of whom testified that they had talked with Thaw many times during his confinement there, and had invariably found him rational.

Dr. George W. Jacoby and Dr. Graeme Hammond, experts, gave it as their opinion that Thaw was sane at present.

An interesting development of the day was the quoted report of A. Russel Peabody of Thaw's counsel, that Thaw would go on the witness stand.

Will Motormen Be Admitted?

Columbus, Ohio, May 16.—Whether the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers shall admit motormen employed on steam and inter-urban railways to membership, was one of the questions, discussed at the biennial convention of the order. The question was referred to a committee of ten members.

THE ELECTION WORRIED HIM

So Wrote Montague A. Smith Who Ended His Life.

Forest, May 16.—The letter left by Mr. Montague A. Smith, who committed suicide here, addressed to his brother and Mr. Livingstone, the accountant, has been made public. It is written in indelible pencil and reads as follows:

"This will be a severe shock to you. The political campaign has been a worry to me. I feel that I have neither the mental capacity nor the tact to carry it through to a successful issue.

"The result must be only to bring disgrace on myself and the Liberals of East Lambton. The only way out is what I am about to do.

"At times, recurring every two or three months during the past three years I had trouble to worry me all day and caused me to lose sleep at night.

"My business and personal affairs are as you two best know. Everything will be found in first-class condition.

"This will be a terrible blow to my brothers and sisters, but there seems no other way out."

Judgment For $100,000.

Montreal, May 16.—Word was received here that the Sharrow Amusement Co. of Montreal had won their case against the Columbia Amusement Co., which also books the attractions of the Gayety Theatre of Toronto for $100,000 damages in New York.

Will Replace Warships.

London, May 16.—The Government has decided to replace the cruiser Gladiator and the destroyer Tiger, which recently were sunk, by the purchase of two warships from private British firms.

Denial by Cardinal Logue.

London, May 16—Replying to a question in the Commonwealth House of Representatives yesterday re a statement that Cardinal Logue was reported to have made in America, to the effect that there was evidence of absolute rebellion in Australia, Premier Deakin said the statement was incorrect. On the contrary, self-government was drawing Australia and the Motherland closer together. The attitude of Australia was thoroughly understood by Great Britain.

Hearts In Unison.

London, May 16.—(C.A.P.)—The Times, referring to the Mansion House meeting for the Wolfe and Montcalm memorial, says that Canadians, "when they learn that we in England are all of one mind on this matter, cannot but feel that the heart of the Motherland beats in unison with their own, and that their fellowship in the British Empire is as Mr. Bryce said in New York, 'established and consecrated forever.'"

LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE ADDRESSED BY MR. WHITNEY AT NORWOOD

Many Ladies Present—The Issues of the Day Dealt With in a Convincing Manner—Mr. Whitney Replies to His Critics—An Opposition a Necessity and Must be Allowed to Criticise Freely—Numbers From a Distance.

The people of Norwood, Warsaw, Keene, Havelock and the surrounding townships filled the large Norwood town hall to overflowing last night. The occasion was the visit of the Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario, the Hon. J. P. Whitney. A number attended from Peterborough also. Not less than twelve hundred people heard the distinguished first Minister reply to his critics and sustain the record of his administration. The band, accompanied by a large concourse of citizens, awaited Mr. Whitney's arrival at the station and escorted him to the hall where he was welcomed in a most enthusiastic manner.

The chairman, Mr. Sherry, the popular and efficient president of the East Riding, Liberal Conservative Association remarked that there was no time to be lost in preliminaries and with a few pleasant words of introduction called upon Mr. Thompson, the candidate. Mr. Thompson expressed his gratitude to his leader for coming to Norwood in his support, and was sure the large audience would be as much gratified as he, with the address from the Prime Minister that was to follow. He referred briefly to the record of the Government and then made way for Mr. Whitney.

Prolonged cheers greeted the Prime Minister as he rose to address the audience which packed the hall. It gave him great pleasure to renew the acquaintance of the people of Norwood, he said, and to endeavor to show that the promises made by the the Premier who said the pendulum Government had been carried out, and if he persuaded his hearers he would ask them to support Mr Thompson and send him to the Legislature to support the Government. The effects of party rule was discussed by of power was swinging from one party to another. He would ask members of both political parties to support him and his Government. He would not ask them to give up party views.

MACKAY LACKS TIMBER.

Mr Whitney referred to the large attendance of ladies and thanked them for attending. Mr. MacKay had no platform, he said, because he had no timber, not even decayed timber, with which to build one. Except on one or two questions Mr MacKay and the Globe had no criticism to make, and up to the past few weeks the Globe offered no criticism of the Whitney Government. Why was it, he asked that Mr MacKay made no criticism of the Conservatives while in the Legislature. Why was it that Mr. MacKay went about the country criticizing the Government for Acts passed when he not only did not criticize those Acts in the House, but voted for them?

He had no criticism to make of the Opposition said the Prime Minister for an Opposition was necessary. "God help the people of this country under British constitution when there is no Opposition," he added.

WARDEN THOMPSON

The University of Toronto was being sorely hurt by Mr MacKay, the speaker said. His reference to Mr. Mackay's endorsation of the C N R guarantee was received with laughter.

THE REDISTRIBUTION

Before discussing the redistribution the Prime Minister made the statement that the numbered ballot had been forever done away with and prolonged cheers folowed the statement Mr Whitney referred to the fact that the Government could have changed the constituencies in such a way that not ten Liberals would be elected but it had refrained, and had even left Mr Mackay in his illegal surroundings to stew in his own juice.

The changes in the mining laws were briefly discussed by the Premier who pointed out that the total revenue from mines last year was over $1,700,000 and that was where the Government got much of the money which was being spent for the good of the people of the province. The plain, simple, unadorned truth of the condition of the provincial finances was told by the Prime Minister who showed how the Government had obtained a revenue of over eight million dollars a year and had controlled the expenditures in such a way that there had been a substantial surplus each year. While showing in detail how the money had been received and expended, the Premier referred especially to the railway taxtion. "We levied that tax and we may double it some day," he announced.

He and his colleagues were proud of their record and he did not think they were making a mistake when they asked the people of the province to return them to power.

"The present Government," he said "outside of the other expenditures, hands back to the people of the province $908,000 a year more than the old Government did. We ask you to judge us on the standard that we set up. We told the people of Ontario that we would do the things we have done, and we ask you to give us the same treatment that we have given the people." —Prolonged cheers.

Mr. Sexsmith spoke briefly. The meeting closed with tremendous cheering for the King, Mr Whitney and the candidate.

DR. FLETCHER A FREE MAN JURY'S VERDICT "NOT GUILTY"

Doctor Not Responsible for the Death of Jessie Gould—Blood Poisoning Might Have Resulted From Other Causes.

Toronto, May 16.—Two cases of special interest were decided in Toronto Criminal Courts yesterday. They had to do with the so-called "social evil."

Dr. Edgar M. Cook was convicted in the sessions of "intent to procure an abortion."

Dr. Ashton Fletcher was acquitted in the Assizes on the charge of having performed an illegal operation causing death.

The jury in the sessions was out nearly five hours before returning a verdict of "guilty" against Dr. Cook, charged with performing an illegal operation upon Lilly Reid of Caledonia, with intent to procure abortion. The jury refused to find him guilty on the first count in the indictment, being dissatisfied with the proof of the use of an instrument. The penalty for the crime is not affected by this finding, being life imprisonment as a maximum in either case. A reserve case will be asked for.

In the Fletcher case the jury brought in a verdict after being out two hours, acquitting him on the charge of his having performed a criminal operation on Jessie Gould, causing her death in the Western Hospital last March. Justice Anglin in addressing the jury said that if the charge upon which the prisoner was arraigned had been murder he would have had doubts as to leaving the case in their hands upon the evidence brought out.

Miners Want to Arbitrate.

Ottawa, May 16.—The Department of Labor has received an application from J. W. Mowfatt, president of the Nova Scotia Workmen's Association, making application for a board of conciliation and investigation to adjudicate matters at issue between the 1,750 employes of the Nova Scotia Steel Co. and the management. The wage question is the principal point in dispute.

The Death Roll of the Tornado.

Shreveport, La., May 16.—Thirty dead and two hundred injured is a conservative estimate of the fatalities caused by the tornado which swept through northwest Louisiana Wednesday evening destroying three small towns and leaving wrecked homes and ruined crops in a path a mile wide and 50 miles long.

Seven Killed In Wreck.

Muskogee, Okla., May 16.—Seven persons are reported killed in a wreck of a Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train, which left St. Louis on Thursday night for Texas points. The train collided head-on one mile east of Muskogee yesterday with a freight.

Double Tracking the Railway.

Port Arthur, May 16.—The work of double-trackng the Port Arthur end of the street railway has commenced, and, if expectations are realized, the whole of the Port Arthur end will be completed shortly after mid-summer. Sixty-pound rails will be used.

Bylaw Carries.

St. Mary's, May 16.—The bylaw to loan the St. Mary's Smallware Manufacturing Co. $20,000 was carried by a majority of 470.

Moir Committed For Trial.

London, May 16.—Pte. W. A. Moir was given his preliminary hearing before Magistrate Love and was formally committed for trial at the Fall Assizes, commencing in September. Moir is represented by Edmund Meredith, K. C., who, it is understood, is acting under instructions from the prisoner's relatives in Scotland.

The court-room was crowded and fully 500 people were unable to gain admission. Moir was seemingly indifferent.

Evidence was given by Lieut. Morris, ex-Lieut. Snider, Sergt. Caster and Pte. Brady. The chief point in their testimony was to the effect that while Moir had been drinking he was not greatly intoxicated.

Mr. Meredith endeavored to get Lieut. Morris to admit that Moir, having held the loaded rifle, it had been discharged in the attempt to take it from him. Morris would neither admit nor deny this possibility.

Alleged Picture Fraud.

New York, May 16.—William Clausen, one of the most prominent art dealers in the city, was arrested on a charge of having sold to William T. Evans, a well-known collector of paintings, a number of pictures as genuine, which afterwards are alleged to be forgeries.

Plans Have Been Modified.

Ottawa, May 16.—The City Council last night referred to a committee the revised plans of the new G. T. R. station and Chateau Laurier submitted to Mr. Wainwright.

The plans call for an expenditure of $325,000 on the station and $1,500,000 on the hotel, whereas the original idea was that each was to cost $1,500,000.

Bonusing Kingston Railway.

Kingston, May 16.—The sum of $4,468.65 was paid the city last year by the Street Railway Co. for power for cars. As it is paying about 14 per cent. less than it costs the city to manufacture power, the cost to the city was $5,213.45, thus bonusing the railway to the extent of $744.[illegible] for power alone

SOME MYSTERIOUS THIEVING MONEY PACKAGES DISAPPEAR

Postoffice Systematically Robbed—Stealing Extends Over Several Months—Government Detectives Cannot Find the Guilty Party

Winnipeg, May 16.—The thief who has been operating in the registry department of the Winnipeg postoffice is still undetected, in spite of the most vigorous efforts by Government detectives to apprehend him.

The series of robberies has extended over several months and the sums stolen aggregate a very large amount, it is believed not less than $12,000.

A number of packages containing from $300 to $2,000 have disappeared as mysteriously within the building as though they had sunk into the ground. Suspicion at first rested upon the clerk at the registry wicket, who received and checked off the money and then passed it on to the entry clerk.

It was thought by the officials that sufficient circumstantial evidence had been obtained to connect this clerk with the disappearance of a package containing $800 mailed by the Merchants Bank, although it was impossible to convict him. He was promptly discharged, however, and his father was compelled to reimburse the postoffice department to the extent of $1,200. The discharged clerk left the country shortly afterwards, but the peculation still continues, large sums disappearing as before. The gentleman who was required to pay the $1,200 his son was supposed to have stolen proposes now to take action asking to have the amount returned to him as he is convinced of his son's innocence.

It is thought to be not improbable that an organized gang is working within the postal service.

THE PULP QUESTION BEING CONSIDERED AT WASHINGTON

An Export Duty Would Kill the Paper Industry in the United States it is Said.

Washington, May 16.—The House special committee, which is conducting an investigation of the so-called paper trust sat till a late hour last night.

The most significant development was the introduction of a telegram from the J. R. Booth Paper Co. of Ottawa, Can., stating that the company pays some of its skilled labor higher wages than are paid in the United States.

David S. Cowles, president of the American Paper and Pulp Association, denied a statement of John Norris, representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, that an agreement existed between the Canadian manufacturers and the American manufacturers in the east providing that the Canadian manufacturers shall not go into the eastern market. As a matter of fact, he said, last April Canadian paper had been offered to Herman Ridder, president of the Publishers' Association, at $2.40 per 100 lbs. delivered in the press room in New York.

"If the Canadian Government would levy an export duty on pulpwood and wood pulp, what would be left of the paper industry in the United States in a few years from now?" asked Chairman, Mann.

"Little or nothing," replied the witness. "I suppose it would be equally disastrous to news publishers."

ELECTRIC POWER AT LOWEST COST

Hon. Adam Beck Explains to the People at Guelph.

Guelph, May 16.—At a largely attended meeting in the interests of J P. Downey, Conservative candidate for South Wellington, Hon. Adam Beck spoke on the power question. The power question was not being used as political capital, he said. The Whitney Government had been anxious that this question would not be a political issue, and that was the reason they had not used it as the main plank in their platform.

The Government had made one promise, too, to give the people power at cost. This promise might have been redeemed had the commission accepted the offer of the Electric Development Co., but the Government promise meant that the people were to get power at the lowest possible cost.

ADVANCE IN THE FREIGHT RATES

Means a Tax on Every Man, Woman and Child.

Chicago, May 16.—Just what the advance in freight rates proposed by the eastern railroads within the territory of the official classification territory alone, which comprises the section east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio, will mean in increased cost of living is set forth in a table of statistics compiled by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

"The railroads propose to tax every man, woman and child in the country $1.75 a head," is the first contention set forth. The increase contemplated of will raise the present gross freight revenue of the roads in the official classification territory from approximately $1,000,000,000 to $1,140,000,000. There are 80,000,000 in the country, so each one will be called on to contribute $1.75 per annum to the coffers of the railroad companies."

Fell From a Ballast Train.

Smith's Falls, May 16.—A C. P. R. employe named McPhail was brought to the hospital here by special train at noon yesterday, suffering from terrible injuries received by falling from a ballast train near Sabourin. One leg was cut off at the hip and the other was badly mangled from the knee down, and one arm was terribly crushed. It is not thought he can recover.

McPhail's home is at Guelph, where he has a wife and two children.

Will Seven Feet Long.

New York, May 16.—One of the longest wills ever recorded in Westchester is that of James Daly, the millionaire railroad contractor and horseman, who died a week ago at his country place in Mount Kisco. The will is written on foolscap sheets, pasted together. It is in Daly's own handwriting and is about seven feet long.

Mr. Daly first sets aside $5,000 for taking his body back to Ireland and burying it in the old family grounds at Kilmurry.

A QUESTION FOR MR. CHURCHILL

Wants to Shut the Armours Out From Competing.

London, May 16.—Charles W. Bowerman, who represents the meat market district in the House of Commons, has notified Winston Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, of his intention to question him in the House on May 18 regarding what steps, legislative or otherwise, he proposed to take to prevent the Armours of Chicago from establishing in this country retail stores for the purpose of supplying meat direct to the consumer.

This query is based on the statement that the Armours are calling up $5,000,000 of new capital for the purpose of dotting London and the provinces with their retail stores, the idea being to avoid the tolls and charges levied at the Smithfield market.

THE FRENCH AND ARABS

Stiff All-day Fights—Arab Stronghold Bombarded.

Algiers, May 16.—The French force under Gen. Vigy lost 13 men killed and 65 wounded during a fierce engagement with the fanatical Arabs. The engagement lasted the greater part of the day, and Boudenib, the stronghold of Mulai Hassen, was bombarded. Three officers are among the French killed. The Arab losses are described as heavy.

This engagement was preceded May 13 by a battle in the vicinity of Beni Ouzian, which also lasted all day. The French force was composed of infantry, cavalry and artillery, and drove the Arabs in the direction of Boudenib.

The Unionist Won.

London, May 16.—The bye-election in the North Division of Shropshire to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons, caused by the death of W. S. Kenyon-Slaney, has resulted in the return of the Unionist candidate, Beville Stanier, by a majority of 951. The Unionists have held this seat for nearly 25 years.

Anti-Opium Conference.

Paris, May 16.—The Government at Washington has proposed Shanghai, Jan. 1, 1909, as the time and place for holding of the coming international conference at which the powers are to fix upon the details for the cessation of the cultivation of opium within their territories.

Records Not Ready.

Halifax, May 16.—The London solicitors of the Dominion Steel Co. cabled yesterday that the Steel-Coal case had not yet been filed and that the solicitors are still revising prints of the record, which is not yet complete.

Goderich Offers Camp Site.

Ottawa, May 16.—The town of Goderich has made an offer of a large site with free water and light, and it is probable that the militia authorities will accept and hold future camps there instead of at London.

ORANGE JUICE AND HEALTH

For Stomach and Skin.

Few of us realize what an important part the skin plays in keeping us well or making us ill.

The millions of tiny glands, or pores, are intended to rid the system of waste matter, which the blood brings to the skin. It is a well-known medical fact that the healthy skin carries off more Urea or waste matter than the kidneys. Just think how much poison remains in the system when there is any skin trouble.

The skin and stomach are intimately associated. Find a person with a dry, harsh skin and you will find one who suffers with indigestion or constipation, and both, usually.

Both may be relieved by a judicious use of orange juice. Both can be cured by taking the juice of an orange every morning before breakfast, and taking "Fruit-a-tives" at night. "Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. The fresh juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes are separated from the pulp, and then combined in such a way that the medicinal action is intensified.

Orange juice alone will not cure Skin, Stomach or Bowel troubles. But when taken in connection with "Fruit-a-tives," a positive cure results. "Fruit-a-tives" may be obtained at all dealers or will be sent on receipt of price—50c a box—6 for $2.50. "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

A NEW MOVEMENT

Even a casual observer can see the trend and importance of the new movement looking to the betterment of Home Missionary enterprise. In every department of human moral advancement there is an awakening. Periodically the human race experiences the impulse of a fresh start; when old things pass away and new things arise. Foreign missions amongst non Catholics at any rate have been cultivated to the neglect, hitherto, of domestic missions and by domestic missions we mean missions to the great mass of people and not simply to the poor settler his wife and bairns living on the fringe of civilization. A mission to the multitude by a modern St. Paul is the need of the hour even acknowledging the splendid efforts of the clergy generally to clear the air and establish a healthy, moral and religious atmosphere. It is not necessary to make a great noise. Noise is not the sign of seriousness at any rate, generally speaking. Great emotions must strike down into the silent depths of the soul. There is no "noise" there. The example of Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul'd we feel assured might well be followed generally. Being fearless and above all perfectly frank he and those of a similar trend of mind can do a mighty service to Canadian humankind. Heaven is translated in modern parlance as a place where there is no "pull."

EDITORIAL NOTES

To show how late the vegetables are going to be this spring it is said that potato-bugs have already arrived but are on the list of unemployed and are thinking of going back.

"You're all for sport," she cried angrily. "You don't care for anything but horses." "I even married a nag," he replied, and now they don't speak.

Recently a magistrate when asked to marry two people inquired from them if they were quite dissimilar in tastes, and being assured in the affirmative he said that all was clear and pronounced the fatal words.

There is an inclination on the part of the electorate we are informed to get things Provincial and Dominion mixed up. The Aylesworth Bill and the La Rose "Horror" don't go well together. Sir Wilfrid is being blamed for things Whitney is doing and vice versa. It will lead to trouble.

Mr. Turriff, MP, who comes from the west where he has long been resident, told a large audience of Liberals on Saturday night something of the great growth and possibilities of this section of Canada. That he confined himself almost exclusively to this pleasant theme and referred in a general way only to the charges of the opposition in connection with western timber limit deals, was significant.—Hamilton Spectator.

Most people will agree that it is very significant indeed!

WHITNEY'S POWER POLICY A GREAT STEP IN ADVANCE

The Electrical Development Co. and the Ontario Power Co. are two private corporations of wealthy men who obtained from the Ross government in spite of protests 430,000 hp. at Niagara Falls for nothing. By furnishing this the best form of development for electric power known to the people of Ontario, the companies expected to make a huge annual profit. Why did not Ross & Co. make use of some of the suggestions for the retention of public utilities for public use? We leave that to the reader to say. We think that Ross cared more for the financiers a good deal than he did for the people. When Mr. Whitney came in he put an immediate stop to "concessions" as these gifts to financiers were called. But Ross & Co. had agreed that the province should not come into competition with the companies in the development of power. As a consequence the province was tied to a stump. Unless it gave the remaining power away it could not secure its development. Whitney resolved to change all that. He cancelled what he could and ignored the clause binding the province not to develop its own power. He informed the financiers that they must either give the people power at fair prices or competition would be begun. Straightway the Liberal press cried, "Confiscation" and "You will frighted the British investor," &c. But Whitney kept on and has succeeded in getting both companies to do the fair things and to do it willingly. Fifteen municipalities have applied for Niagara power, including Toronto, Hamilton, etc. The power question is solved and the whole system of water powers in the province has been taken under the wing of a government commission. The result is that the great rake-off of the middleman is left in the hands of the manufacturer and of the people who utilize the power and should get any benefit that may arise. Ross had given away 433,000 hp. representing a net profit to the owners of $4,000,000 per annum. They were to make the people of this province pay that amount and more for the privilege of using their own power! Great was Diana of the Ephesians but she was not a patch on this. The Policy of Cheap Power for the People does not meet with the approval of the non-manufacturing capitalists but we cannot help that. The people have a just right to what they own. Let us have a fair division at least of natural opportunities.

CONSERVATIVES, REGISTER! FOR THE COMING ELECTIONS

Every One Elegible Should Get on the Voters' List—Where Sittings of Registration Board Will be Held—Qualifications Neccessary—Visit the Committee Rooms.

Sittings of the local Board of county registrars will be held as follows:

Monday, May 18th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Tuesday, May 19th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Wednesday, May 20th, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Saturday, May 23rd, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

From Ward No. 1—At Lewis Spry's shop, 214 Stewart street.

For Ward No. 2—At the Council Chamber.

For Ward No. 3—At the Police Chamber.

For Ward No. 4—At Wm. Lee's shop, corner of Smith and George streets.

For Ward No. 5—At the Ashburnham town hall.

A sitting of the Board of Appeal will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday, May 29th, at eight o'clock p.m. to hear appeals from the decisions of the several registrars.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration here on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

SASKATCHEWAN FINANCES.

A Substantial Surplus at Beginning of the Year.

Regina, Sask., May 14.—Estimates for the year were tabled at the Legislative Assembly yesterday, showing revenue from all sources of $2,771,079.49 and expenditures of $4,164,157.77. The Government announces a surplus at the beginning of this year of $[illegible],464.06.

Among the larger items voted are $10,000 for the provincial contribution to the Quebec tercentenary celebration and the Plains of Abraham and a quarter of a million for the commencement of the telephone construction policy.

Object to I. O. F. Increases.

St. John, N.B., May 14.—Early opportunity to attack the proposed increase of rates in the I.O.F. was taken at the opening of the high court of New Brunswick here. High Secretary Emmerson admitted that he was at sea now on the question, though he had been sincere in his previous assurances that the rates were high enough.

D. G. Lingley, P.H.C.R., and Dr. A. W. MacRae declared that they had believed the statements of Dr. Oronhyatekha in the past, and believed them still. They thought the rates were high enough for five years anyway.

Winds mostly south and southwest fair and warmer today and Sunday.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

LINDSAY WAS VISITED BY A BAD FIRE

House of J. D. Flavelle's Coachman Destroyed---Roast Chickens Now in Order

Special Correspondent

Lindsay, May 16—Late last night the home of John Cotey, coachman for J D Flavelle, was utterly destroyed by fire. The blaze originated in a brooder which was in the upstair part of the house. There was no insurance on the house and the loss is estimated to be $800.

The fire brigade were a trifle dilatory in reaching the scene of the fire owing to the long distance to the nearest hydrant. The house was in flames when the water was turned on. Most of the furniture was saved with the help of the neighbors.

Two hundred chickens which were in the brooder were burned. A quantity of clothes were also consumed. The blaze cast a bright reflection in the sky that could be seen for miles.

Sir—What do the police intend doing about the plague of tramps that we are now threatened with? Why should we pay taxes for protection and not get prompt and efficient protection against a menace and a nuisance? The Provincial government and the railways ought to co-operate also

JUSTICE

BLUE WOMEN

Women should understand that melancholia, commonly called "the blues," is in nine times out of ten a sure symptom of some serious female organic derangement and should have immediate attention.

Women whose spirits are depressed, and who are ailing and miserable, should rely upon

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

as is evidenced by following letters.

Mrs. R. Gentleman, 1093 St. James Street, Montreal, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered from a severe female weakness, and extreme nervousness, and was blue and utterly discouraged.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking several bottles, I am not only cured, but am an entirely different woman, and on the whole a healthier woman than before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Mary J. Williams, of Bridgeport, Ill., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I have been suffering from a female trouble, backache and headaches, and was so blue that I was simply in despair. I feel it my duty to tell you that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me. The change in my appearance is wonderful, and I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

WILL LOOK AFTER WIFE AND FAMILY

Will be Taken in Charge by House of Refuge and Children's Aid Society

John Dickson of Harvey came up for trial before County Police Magistrate Edmison yesterday afternoon at the court house, on the charge of non-supporting his wife and family. Arrangements were made at the trial to have his wife and youngest child six months' old, put in the House of Refuge for six months. The other child which is two years old, will be looked after at the Children's Shelter. Dickson will have to pay the costs of the case which amount to over $14 by the 15th of June, and after that will pay $3 a week for six months towards the support of his wife and two children. His wife is in delicate health and it is necessary that she should receive proper treatment. For this reason it was decided to place her in the House of Refuge.

By the decision of the Magistrate, it practically means that the proceedings have been adjourned for six months. In the meantime Dickson will be at liberty.

CHANGE WILL TAKE PLACE ON MONDAY

Mr. J. N. Barber Will Become Proprietor of Local Brokers Office

Mr J. M. Barber who, for the past two years has been local manager for J. R. Heintz & Co., the well known stock brokers, will on Monday next take charge of the office for himself, and be proprietor instead of manager. The firm of J R. Heintz &Co. will act as Mr Barber's correspondent and execute orders received from him on the different exchanges of which they are members.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN IRWIN.

The death occurred this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock of Mrs. John Irwin. She was 78 years of age and her demise will be learned of with much regret.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her late residence, over the post office to Little Lake cemetery. An extended obituary notice will appear on Monday.

MARGARET E. LAWRENCE

The remains arrived in the city this morning of Margaret E. Lawrence, a former resident of Peterborough. The deceased passed away in the Northern Hospital, Elgin, Ill., on Tuesday, May 12th after a lengthy illness. She was the daughter of Peter Lawrence of Douro and was born in that township. She was forty years of age.

Two brothers, Messrs Ernie Lawrence, of this city and J J. Lawrence rence, of this city and J J. Lawrence of Illinois are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from Comstock's undertaking establishment to the Little Lake cemetery.

Gospel Temperance Meeting

Another Gospel Temperance meeting will be held to-morrow evening at the Crystal at 8.30, and will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Steurnagel. Mrs. Steurnagel will speak and also sing.

ILLS OF BABYHOOD AND OF CHILDHOOD

The ills of babyhood and childhood are many and may prove serious if not promptly cured. In homes where Baby's Own Tablets are kept there is a prompt cure at hand for such troubles as indigestion, sour stomach, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, worms, teething troubles and othre minor ailmnets and the Tablets can be administered as safely to a new born baby as to the well grown child. Mrs. Octave Paulin, Caraquet, N.B., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for both my little boy and girl for the various ailments of childhood and have found thm always a spleendid medicine. No mother should be without the Tablets in the home." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RPOVINCIAL ELECTIONS, 1908

To the Electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—It is my privilege to again appear before you as the Conservative candidate in the approaching election of members of the Ontario Legislature, and while on the previous occasion I was in opposition to the Government, I now have the pleasure of supporting the Administration of Hon. J. P. Whitney, whose management of the affairs of the Province, with the support of an able cabinet, has, during his short premiership, proved of such marked benefit.

Measures of a far-reaching character have been passed, and the statute books of the last three years are replete with legislation of a high order, as well for its originality as its soundness. Let me mention a few of the important acts of the past sessions. The establishment of a Railway and Municipal Board, the new act relating to mining, the creation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the amendment of the liquor laws, amendments to the law relating to the election of members of the Legislature, particularly the alteration in the ballot, which is now absolutely secret.

The administration of the public domain, especially the mining laws of the Province, has been most profitable, adding large sums to both revenue and capital, and the different changes which have been effected in the Education Department have met with the approval of all persons, concerned in that most important branch of the public service.

One of the beneficial acts of the Government is the taking with its own hands the distribution of electric energy through the great water power of Niagara Falls, and other rivers capable of hydraulic development. Thus are the different municipalities through the Province enabled to obtain the inestimable commodity at a minimum of cost.

The Government, while endeavoring to serve the people generally have not been unmindful of the importance of this riding, and when the new normal schools were to be created one of the four was placed in this constituency, thus affording exceptional advantages to the teachers and schools of this counyt.

In the short time which will elapse before polling day, I shall endeavour to make my views more fully known to you both privately and publicly, and I bespeak your cordial support, not so much because of any merits of my own, as on account of the splendid record of the Government.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

T. E. BRADBURN

DR. FALCONER'S ADDRESSES WILL PROVIDE RARE TREAT

An Excellent Opportunity for City of Peterborough to Hear One of the Dominion's Most Prominent Men.

The combined associatinos of the teachers of the city and county of Peterborough, have been most fortunate in securing the president of Toronto University, Dr. Falconer, to give them two addresses.

Dr. Falconer will address the teachers in convention in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on the afternoon fo Thursday, May 21st, and on the evening of the same day at 8 p.m. in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, he is to deliver a second address.

Both meetings are open to the public, but the main object of the evening meeting is to give the citizens of Peterborough and the surrounding county an opportunity to hear the distinguished head of the Provincial University.

Dr. Falconer occupies a position quite as distinguished and as responsible as that of the Premier of the province and his influence, as head of the second largest university in the British Empire, is possibly more farreaching than that of any public man in the Dominion. He is scholarly and eloquent and it is hoped, that the opportunity of hearing such a distinguished man will appeal to a very large number of people of both city and county.

The meetings are free and open to the public and all are cordially invited to be present.

THE CITY AND VICINITY

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR.

The members of St. John's choir are all asked to remain for a short practice in the church after Evensong tomorrow.

FINED TWO DOLLARS

A young man was fined two dollars for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk. He appeared in police court this morning.

S.A. SELF-DENIAL FUND.

The returns for the Salvation Army Self-Denial Fund are coming in well. The closing days of the fund are at hand and it is thought the previous good records in connection with it will be lived up to.

MANY APPLICATIONS.

The local immigration officer, Mr. George H Howson, placed a number of Englishmen in good positions this morning. There were a large number of young men who were desirous of securing farm employment and applied at the local office this morning.

TEN MINUTE RETROSPECT.

At the entertainment to be given in George street School room on Monday night a novel feature is on the programme. Six of the older members of the church will relate, in ten minute spells, what he considers the most interesting incident of his life. It is expected that the relation will include from grave to gay and from lively to serene. If you wish to hear these stories don't fail to be there. Programme of songs and music besides. Admission 15c or two for 25c.

SNOW IN LAKEFIELD.

Mr. W. A. Stabler, is the authority for saying that there was a slight fall of snow in Lakefield yesterday.

An "At Home" will be held at the T.A.S rooms on Wednesday next at 8.15 under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Society.

"ESTHER" REHERSAL.

There will be a full rehearsal of "Esther" on Monday evening at eight o'clock, at the Conservatory Music Hall.

ASSEMBLY HALL.

W. P. Douglas will preach to-morrow night at 7 o'clock, in the Assembly Hall, George street, under the Bradburn Opera House. All are invited.

SACRED CONCERT.

A sacred concert will be held in St. Paul's church on Tuesday evening, May 19th. Mr. Herbert Saunders, solo organist, will be assisted by Miss Helen Davies, soprano.

MAY APPEAR HERE.

Mr. Wm H Roenigk is in Peterborough today trying to arrange for a performance of the Lindsay Local Minstrels. Should he make satisfactory arrangements, it is possible a special train would go down to convey the boys and also any who wished to go along. It is believed that the performance there would prove not only interesting but profitable. —Lindsay Free Press.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR CONCERT ON TUESDAY NEXT

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church next Tuesday evening in connection with the anniversary services, comprises some very interesting musical numbers. The choir will give, Gounod's beautiful motet, "Gallia," a work of rare beauty, Bruch's "Jubilate Amen," for soprano solo and chorus, Cornelius. "The Christmas Song," for baritone solo and chorus, together with other numbers.

Mr. Ernest Sanders, F.R.C.O., late of Truro, England, will be the solo organist and his programme numbers are of distinct excellence. The beautiful new organ at St. Paul's will doubtless be heard to its best advantage on Tuesday night.

Miss Davies, the popular soloist of the church, will contribute to a considerable portion of the programme.

ASSAULT ON HIS SISTER-IN-LAW

Michael Casey of Douro Will Appear Before the County Magistrate

Elisabeth Blaney, of Douro, has laid a charge of assault against her step brother, Michael Casey, of the same township. It appears that the former called to see her mother, Mrs. Casey, when a son of her step father assaulted her as the result of some altercation.

The case will come up before County Magistrate Edmison on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

TO-DAY'S MARKET WAS LARGE ONE

Fowl Was More Plentiful Than Usual—Prices Remain the Same

There was a large market this morning, many farmers being in attendance. The prices remain about the same as the previous week. Eggs sold at 16 and 17 cents per dozen, while butter ranged in price from 28 to 30 cents per pound. Fowl was more plentiful today than usual. Some fine turkeys were offered at $1.40, $2.00 and $2.25. Chickens were $1.00 and $1.25 per pair.

On the outside market pork sold at 8 and 9 cents per pound. and veal at 7 and 8 cents. Potatoes sold at 85 cents per bag.

"MERRY WIDOW" TIES THE LATEST

Have Arrived in Peterborough and are Attracting Much Attention

"And the end is not yet."

There's the Merry Widow waltz. Merry Widow hats, Merry Widow veils, Merry Widow baseball curves, and now there's a still newer one.

Merry Widow neckties for gentlemen are the latest. The design is an exceedingly catchy one, and they come in the striped material, which is so popular at present. Laidlaw & Oles received the first consignment of the "Merry Widows" this morning and have them on view in their windows. They are attracting much attention.

Pay what you will and go where you like, you cannot get a better, purer or more delicious tea than "Salada."

CHARGE AGAINST P. C. NEWHALL

Comes Before County Magistrate Edmison on Monday Morning at 10 O'clock

P. C. Newhall will appear before Magistrate Edmison on Monday morning at ten o'clock, on the charge of assaulting Mr. Dave Johnston, the fishery inspector. It appears that a short time ago Johnston was collecting logs on the Otonabee, being authorized by the Cavendish Lumber Company to do so. At the foot of the property on which P. C. Johnston was collecting logs when the latter, it is claimed, said he was stealing the logs and assaulted him.

A cracksman at Macleod, Alta., yesterday, escaped after a bold attempt to rob the branch of the Union Bank of Canada.

ORGANIZATION THE KEYNOTE OF BUSINESS SUCCESS

Splendid Addresses by Messrs. A. Geen, of Belleville, and E. M. Trowern, of Toronto, at first Annual Banquet of the Retail Merchants' Association Last Evening—Held at the Oriental Hotel—A Brilliant Function.

It was a splendid assembly of Peterborough's leading business men that was present last evening at the first annual banquet of the Peterborough branch of the Retail Merchants Association, held in the Oriental Hotel. It was not only a brilliant function but one of the most successful events of its kind ever held in this city. It was an important event, marking, as it were, a new epoch in the history of the merchants of this city. Greater things will be accomplished by them in the line of agitating for certain legislation of minute importance to them. As a result of the addresses given by two prominent business men, they can not fail to see that in union there is strength and that their best interests will be only be promoted in a well-organized association working in harmony.

About eighty-five were present last evening and everyone went away not only having enjoyed a very pleasant time, but having profited as a consequence of what they heard.

The dining room looked exceedingly attractive, being prettily decorated with flags and bunting, making the effects a very brilliant one.

Mine host Graham provided an excellent menu and the excellent service of his able staff was the subject of much favorable comment.

THOSE PRESENT.

His Worship Mayor Rush, acted as chairman. Seated on his left was Mr. A. L. Green, of Belleville, and on his right, Mr. E. M. Trowern, of Toronto. Others present were:—Messrs. R. Denne, S. Dickson Hall, H. E. Stenson, R. H. Ross, W. O. LaBelle, G. R. Browning, D. F. Drummond, J. W. Carry, A. L. Talbot, H. P. Kennedy, F. H. Dobbin, A. W. Cressman, John Nugent, W. H. Meldrum, A. R. MacLean, A. G. Meldrum, Sam Jordan, W. S. Dodd, C.P.R., J. A. MacPherson, E. Manning, J. J. Lynch, W.F. Skitch, E. W. McWilliams, A. F. McWilliams, John Hill, W. J. Routley, Oliver Milburn, R. McWhinnie, H. W. Crassman, J. M. Donovan, James R. Bell, R. J. Kingan, Thos. Barrie, F. Clarke, Thos. H. Hooper, F. J. Might, J. T. C. Laing, Ray P. Best, W. H. Meredith, Alex. Gibson, E. B. Clegg, W. G. Rundle, Jno. Allen, J. W. Wood, R. Snow, W. McIlroy, J. Crane, W. F. Nelson, R. J. Munro, A. A. Fowler, J. MacPherson, C. Currier, Macfarlane Wilson, Chas. Rishor, V. Eastwood, S. Campbell, A. H. Stratton, H. LeBrun, A. Montizambert, M. A. Morrison, W. E. Conway, Robert Fair, A. L. Geen, Belleville; H. Rush, W. E. Young, Toronto; W. Picard, Montreal; E. M. Trowern, Dominion Secretary, Toronto; J. H. Connal, D. M. Minicolo, A. O. Meyers, H. S. Routley, Porter White, Walter Oke, B. Lastar, M. A. Turner, W. Bulker, W. E. Talbot, T. C. Elliott, R. J. Soden, F. C. Moore, C. M. Bennett.

Letters expressing regret at being unable to be present were read from Mr. H. Waters, secretary of the Ottawa Retailers Association, and Mr. H. C. Ellis, president of the Provincial Association.

THE TOAST LIST.

The toast list was not a lengthy one, and it was varied with an interesting programme. During the banquet, Miss Kate Graham presided at the piano and in her excellent manner rendered several selections which proved very enjoyable. The toast to the "King" was honored by the spontaneous singing of the National Anthem, after which Mr. Wm. McIlroy in his inimitable style rendered an Irish solo. He had to respond with an encore. Mr. M. Bennett also contributed a vocal solo in splendid voice, and Mr. R. J. Soden was uproariously applauded in his reading of a selection from Dr. Drummond's "Habitant." The toast to our guests was proposed by Mayor Rush in an address of welcome and was responded to by Mr. A. L. Geen, of Belleville, who spoke on "The Power of Organization," and Mr. E. M. Trowern, of Toronto, who spoke on "The importance of watching legislation for retail merchants." The toast was honored by the hearty singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

Gentlemen —I am delighted that I am able to be with you this evening as I feel that I am among old friends and associates. This is no ordinary gathering such as frequently occurs in our social life. It stands for something more than social pleasures. I have myself had over 25 years' experience as a retail merchant and I feel that I can sympathize with you in your business worries, pleasures and successes. But in my day we had no such benefits as should result from a Retail Merchants' Association such as you enjoy today. I can recall, however, how often an organization of this kind would have helped in removing such evils as you now abolish, for instance, unnecessary price-cutting, the unfair advantage of transient trading, regulating the hours of closing and many other advantages.

I trust that this splendid banquet, which you have done me the honor to be present at, may be productive of increasing the good feeling among our local merchants. Amidst the thoughts that come up in review, if I select one as the key note of all that is, UNION, because in union there is strength.

THE POWER OF ORGANIZATION.

Mr. Geen is one of Belleville's prominent business men and an extremely interesting speaker. Prefacing his remarks, he expressed his pleasure at being present and his appreciation of the merchants' invitation to speak before such a fine gathering of leading business men. The speaker believed that the splendid assembly before him was an evidence of what power there was in organization. "Everyone knows the power and necessity of being organized if success is to be obtained," said the speaker. "The churches feel the weakness of division and are endeavoring to bring about a union. By organization the British Empire became a great nation, and what would become of Canada if it was divided?" he asked.

The speaker thought that the same conditions applied to the retail merchants. As a united body much could be accomplished; they should be as a mutual help society and should feel more friendly to each other.

Mr. Geen referred to the deputation that waited on the Government a few years ago to fight against the evil of trading stamps. A large deputation, consisting of the Associations of Quebec, Montreal and Toronto, waited upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and by their combined efforts rid the country of trading stamps.

TRADING STAMPS A CURSE.

"The evil of the trading stamps was a teacher of immorality," said the speaker. "People were getting something for nothing and they were costing merchants thousands of dollars." He thought that if customers got full value for their money it was not necessary to induce them to buy by the giving of trading stamps or such like.

SHOULD HAVE THEIR RIGHTS.

Mr. Geen thought retail merchants did not have their rights in Canada. The farmers and laboring classes received more at the hands of the government than did the business men. The merchants could become the greatest power in the Dominion and could go to Parliament and demand their rights, if they were strongly organized. He urged his hearers to stir up enthusiasm in the local branch of the Association, and to make a determined effort to do greater things for the benefit of the retailers.

MR. TROWERN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Trowern expressed his pleasure at seeing the banking fraternity so well represented. The financial men he said, have not taken sufficient interest in what the retailers have been doing. "It is our fault," he remarked, "for we have not invited them to join us as we should have done. We do nothing here which would require the doors to be closed, in fact it would do our countrymen good if they could be present."

His subject being "The Importance of Watching Legislation for Retail Merchants," Mr. Trowern began to point out reasons for a strong union of the merchants. He stated that the farmers, the manufacturers, the labourers, every class but themselves, (for the speaker himself spent 29 years behind the counter) were well organized.

The labor section is very strong. "They have a labor bureau at Ottawa which cost $40,000 to run it, and the receipts amounted to but $1,200, and the deficit was paid out of the Government treasury, Mr. Trowern said "And by far the larger portion of it was contributed by the retail merchants."

NATION BUILDERS.

"Wherever the woodmen open up new territory by clearing the primeval forest and a few families begin to till the soil, the merchant is among the first at the place, and to him, in a large measure, is due the growth and prosperity of the town which is gradually built up." In Toronto he said the merchants pay 45 per cent of the taxes. "You are the most highly assessed of all the classes," Mr. Trowern emphasized, and yet the merchants as a body have no voice in the government. The reason, he stated, was that the merchant had never made any demands, and the legislators do not know what they want.

THE SOFTEST CLASS.

The retail merchant knows that all the profits have been paid on an article by the time he comes in possession of it, and the speaker urged the merchants to see that they were in a position to receive a just and fair price. "You paid $40,000,000 to the Government last year and you got not a single thing in return. Yet the labour party can obtain anything they wish." Mr. Trowern told his fellow merchants that they were the softest class of people on earth. As a slight example he referred to the men "whom they have rambling around the country examining scales." In many cases they simply put them out of order," said Mr. Trowern. He knew of one case of a merchant who had a brass measure embedded in his counter, and every year for 25 years it was examined, and the proprietor paid a fee of $2.25 for each visit of the official.

"Our aim is to clean out the fakir, to make it easy to do right, and more difficult to do wrong. The The great trouble is that one man will sell close to cost, or at cost, and then reduce earnings of his fellows. "I would sooner be a good engineer on a railway, receiving a wage of $125 a month than own some of the retail businesses which I know of."

Mr. Trowern dealt at length on the Trading Stamp question, which was finally stamped out, and on the Co-operative Society plan, which is still under discussion. He pointed out how the latter is dubbed the help to the poor man, whereas in reality it robs him, robs the merchant and fills the pockets of those who are at the back of such societies. He referred to Mr. Monk, one of the members of Parliament, who has been strongly advocating the scheme, and whom, he said, had $25,000.00 of stock in such a society.

He spoke highly of the Senate, and in this connection said. "God help Canada is the Senate is done away with. They may be old and their legs weak, but their heads are clear and their judgment wise."

HELPS POOR MAN.

The retail merchant is the friend of the poor man, he continued. He tides him over when the Co-operative Society turns from their door to the little corner grocery. If it were not for many of our big-hearted retailers many of the poor people would have to be left dependent on the State."

After dealing with several other important questions of current moment to the merchant, Mr. Trowern concluded by sounding this motto: "Shop in your home town; keep your money in circulation in your home town.

VOTE OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers of the evening for their kindness in coming to the banquet. Their addresses were most instructive and no doubt had aroused new interest in the Retailers' Association. Mr. Robert Fair made the motion, and Dr. Morrison, President of the Board of Trade, seconded it.

OFFICERS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

Much praise is due the officers for the success of the banquet. They were indefatigable in their labours, and left nothing undone to make it an enjoyable event. The officers are;—

President—C. B. Routley.
Vice-President—Walter Oke.
Secretary—James R. Bell.
Treasurer—James Connal.

NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined. We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand: the sallow, pimpled face, dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, bashful, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and tend to blight his existence. Our treatment positively cures all weak men by overcoming and removing the effects of former indiscretions and excesses. It stops all drains and quickly restores the victim to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve power complete.

For over 20 years Drs. K. & K. have treated with the greatest success all diseases of men and women.

If you have any secret disease that is a worry and a menace to your health consult old established physicians who do not have to experiment on you.

We guarantee to cure NERVOUS DEBILITY, BLOOD DISEASES, STRICTURE, VARICOCELE, KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES. Consultation Free. If unable to call, write for a question Blank for Home Treatment.

SPORTING NEWS

A TRENT VALLEY LACROSSE LEAGUE HAS BEEN FORMED

Organization Effected at Meeting Held in T. A. S. Rooms Last Night—Three Teams Represented—Officers Elected.

A Trent Valley Lacrosse League has been formed. An enthusiastic meeting was held last night in the T.A.S. rooms of those interested, the Y.M.C.A. and the T.A.S. being represented by Messrs. J. Hardwicke and W. Donovan, and Mr. R. M. Glover represented Millbrook by proxy.

It is certain that three teams, the Y.M.C.A., T.A.S. and Millbrook will play in the league, and there is a possibility of Lindsay having a team, although nothing definite has been decided regarding the entry of a twelve from the latter place.

Mr. R. J. Begley occupied the chair at last night's meeting and the election of officers resulted as follows;—

Hon. Presidents—J.J. Howden and Dr. O'Brien.

Hon. Vice-Pres.—R. H. Fortye.

Vice-Pres.—R. J. Begley.

Secretary-Treas.—R. M. Glover.

Assistant Sec.-Treas.—T. J. Kelly.

The executive committee will consist of a representative from the Y.M.C.A. and T.A.S. and W. J. E. Gillett of Millbrook, the T.A.S. and Y.M.C.A. representatives to be chosen by the above two organizations.

It was decided that the games shall be played under C.L.A. rules. Each club will be required to send in a club will be required to send in a full list of its players to the secretary not later than June 1st.

It was left in the hands of the executive to arrange for referees and grounds. A meeting of the executive will be held in the T.A.S. rooms at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening for the purpose of drawing up the schedule.

The secretary would be pleased to hear from outside teams regarding their joining the league.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

HARRY BURRIDGE CATCHES A FINE GAME FOR YOUNGSTOWN

Former Local Boy Performs in Great Fashion in His First League Contest—Press Accords Him Much Praise.

Harry Burridge caught his first league game for Youngstown, Ohio, against the Girard, Ohio, nine. The clippings from a Youngstown paper published below will show that he did excellent work and is certainly proving himself a good one in fast company. In writing to his chum, Mr. Corney Burns, of the Windsor Hotel, he states that Mr Wright, manager of the Youngstown team shook hands with him and congratulated him on his satisfactory performance. Youngstown won by the score of 8-2, and are leaders in the Penn.-Ohio League.

The clippings referred to above are as follows;

Harry Burridge, the Canadian, in view of the fact that this was his first opportunity to shine in a championship game, was a trifle nervous. Despite this, though, he caught a pretty game. He never hesitated and always did the right thing. Two of his pegs to second were the prettiest seen at the ball park this season and made some of Redman's braves look like Erie passenger trains. Red was the big man yesterday, sitting on the bench watching his under study work. Burridge let two high foul flies get away from him but outside of this his work was faultless. He is a good batter, but due to his stage fright of yesterday he did not connect.

It was the first chance Harry Burridge had had to shine and he shone. Two of his pegs to second were perfect. One of his throws, when a man was on third and he caught a runner stealing second was great. It was a safe throw, and Gilligan could have easily caught it and hurled it home, instead of letting it go to Mac, if the fellow on third had tried to score,

"WELL UPON ME WORD, RIELLY, "YOU DID NOT RUN WELL"

Special Correspondent

Lindsay, May 15—The race between George Rielly and the driver belonging to "Puzzler" Blair came off last night.

It was a farcical event the horse winning with the greatest of ease. Rielly never had a look-in except for the first hundred yards. The equine finished a good 3-4 of a mile ahead of the Free Press runner and went around the half mile track again beating Rielly out, thus going a mile and a half to Rielly's one mile.

The horse went the distance in 4.20 and the man in about 6 minutes.

The race was for a side bet of $10. John Hogan is said to have put up his weekly five on Rielly and of course lost it.

AS USUAL HE IS MISTAKEN

Handcuff King in Wrong Concerning the Knocker of His Alleged Limericks

"The sporting editor of the Peterborough Review, who is considered a joke in reportorial circles, tried to fill in this sporting page with a silly attack on the Limerick contest. The Review is considered one of the brightest dailies of the small cities, but their sporting page has suffered owing to the inexperience of the youth in charge."

The above junk was figured out by the widely-known handcuff king Professor Falsetto Hoganni (known in private life as John Hogan), and appeared in the columns of the Lindsay Free Press. As usual the witling, but erratic short stop city editor of the Free Press is in wrong. It was not the sporting editor of the Review, but another member of the staff that knocked the Free Press Limericks, but he must also add to the opinion of the city editor of this paper that the man who would have the nerve to publish such rot ought to be handcuffed and imprisoned in the biggest cell in Lindsay—that is, the biggest one outside of himself.

However, the writer of the Limericks is to be congratulated on securing space to give vent to his childish and badly balanced verse (!) He made some attempts to branch out in that line while here, but those in authority on the paper on which he was employed, very wisely squelched his misdirected enthusiasm.

BRIGADIER NOBLE COMING HERE

Will Speak at S. A. Barracks on Tuesday Night---Former Local Officer May Accompany Him

Brigadier Noble, of London, England, will speak on Tuesday evening of next week at eight o'clock at the Salvation Army barracks. The brigadier is a well-known English officer and a member of the immigration staff. His address is sure to prove very interesting and a large audience is looked for.

It is probable that Staff Capt. McGillivary, of Ottawa, one of the leading officers of the Dominion, will accompany Brigadier Noble and if he does he will also speak. He is well known in Peterborough as he formerly had charge of the work there.

Mr. Labouchere's Whist Play.

While Henry Labouchere was an attache at Frankfort he was once playing whist against a very high German functionary sitting on his left. Mr. Labouchere led a small card. The lead turned out so well that he won the rest of the tricks. The minister said: "Well, Mr. Labouchere, you won the game by leading that card. But there was no earthly reason, according to the rules of the game, why you should have done so. You have therefore won the rubber by accident."

Mr. Labouchere said, "I had a very good reason for leading that card." The minister asked what it was. "We will have a bet," said Mr. Labouchere, "that my reason was a good one." The bet was therefore made.

"Now, Mr. Labouchere, what was your reason?"

He replied, "I had seen your hand."—Henry Drummond Wolff's "Rambling Recollections."

A Barrel Trick.

One Sunday morning, when everybody had gone to church, a traveler undertook to show the landlord how to draw three different sorts of wine from the same cask. The two went down into the cellar and the stranger bored a hole in the barrel, on which he asked the landlord to place his thumb. He then bored a second hole, which mine host had to stop with his other thumb. He had set to work on the third, when it apparently struck him that the landlord would not be equal to the task of stopping that also, and he ran out of the cellar "to fetch a tap." He never returned, and the innkeeper had to wait by the side of his cask until the folks had come out of church. The rogue had by that time decamped without paying his bill.—London Answers.

You Can Easily Operate This Typewriter Yourself

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt—that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own handwriting.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you cant afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memos—make out your accounts, or a hotel menu—or do any kind of writing you need, on ANY kind, size or thickness of paper, and SPACE any way you want, on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn, with a little practice, to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly, as an expert operator on the OLIVER. Because the OLIVER is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 80% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

80% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humoring" technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance polices, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate.

You can adjust the OLIVER to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the OLIVER is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man who does his own writing.

Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the OLIVER.

PRESENTED WITH A GOLD LOCKET

Mr. T. H. Glover Leaving the Employ of the C.G.E. to Enter the Civil Service

Mr. T. H. Glover, who has been customs clerk at the Canadian General Electric works for several years is leaving the employ of that company to take a position in the civil service as clerk in the local customs house. Last evening Mr. Glover was presented with a gold locket and an address expressing the good will of his fellow employees at the CGE. The address was read by Mr. Summerville and the presentation was made by Miss Powers. The address was as follows:

Mr. T. H. Glover,
Peterborough, Ont.,

Whereas you have decided to sever your connection with the Canadian General Electric Company, your many friends in the office and works wish to express their appreciation of your many kindnesses and also your good qualities.

As one of us you have always taken your full share of the work and while always loyal to your employers you have so governed yourself that you always worked in harmony and good will with all of us and it must be a proud feeling for you in that you leave the company without an enemy.

Each and every one of us wish you all prosperity and success in your new position.

DEATH OF SISTER AT TILLSONBURG

Mr. Jas. Kelman of This City Has Received Sad Intelligence

Mr. James Kelman, of this city, has received the sad intelligence of the death of his sister, Miss Jean Taylor Kelman who passed away at Tillsonburg. Concerning her death the Tillsonburg Liberal says:

The death of Miss Jean Taylor Kelman occurred at the home of her mother, Mrs M. Kelman, King street, on Tuesday after a somewhat lengthy illness from tuberculosis of the stomach. Although her condition was regarded as hopeless some days ago, the news of her death came as a shock to her friends many of whom were not aware of her serious illness. Deceased, who was in her 32nd year, was of a bright and cheerful disposition and was a great favorite with all who knew her. Besides her mother she leaves three sisters, Mrs Dennis Flannigan, London; Mrs. W. C. Horn and Miss Jessie of Tillsonburg, and two brothers, James, of Peterborough and Charles, to whom the deepest sympathy of the community will be extended. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 1.30 from her late residence, to the town cemetery.

BLOOD MAKING TONIC TREATMENT

A Cure for Anaemia That is Showing Remarkable Proofs of Cures in Stubborn Cases

When the body becomes weak and run down, either from overwork, worry or severe illness, an examination of the blood would show it to weak and watery. This condition is called anemia, which is the medical term for "bloodlessness." The common symptoms are Paleness of the lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion. Anaemia itself is a dangerous disease and may gradually pass into consumption. It can only be cured by treating its cause—which is the poor condition of the blood. The blood must be made rich, and red, thereby enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every part of the body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the the greatest medicine in the world for making new, rich blood and they have been curing anaemia and other blood diseases for nearly a generation, and are now recognized the world over as an invaluable household remedy.

Mrs. D. Eastabrook, Brooklyn Road, N.B., says;—"My daughter Gertrude, who is now in her sixteenth year, was sickly from early childhood. we were constantly doctoring for her, but did not seem to help her in the least. In fact as she grew older she seemed to grow weaker. She was always pale and listless, suffered from headaches, dizziness and palpitation of the heart. She did not rest at night, and would often toss and moan the whole night. Finally she had to discontinue going to school, and as she was continually taking doctors' medicine without benefit, I grew discouraged, and feared we would lose her. Friends urged us to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I finally decided to do so. By the time she had taken three boxes there was an improvement, and a little later she was able to return to school. From that on she grew stronger, had an excellent appetite, slept well at night and is now as healthy a girl as you will see. I believe that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved her life, and as a mother I would recommend these pills to every family in which there are young girls."

All medicine dealers sell these pills or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

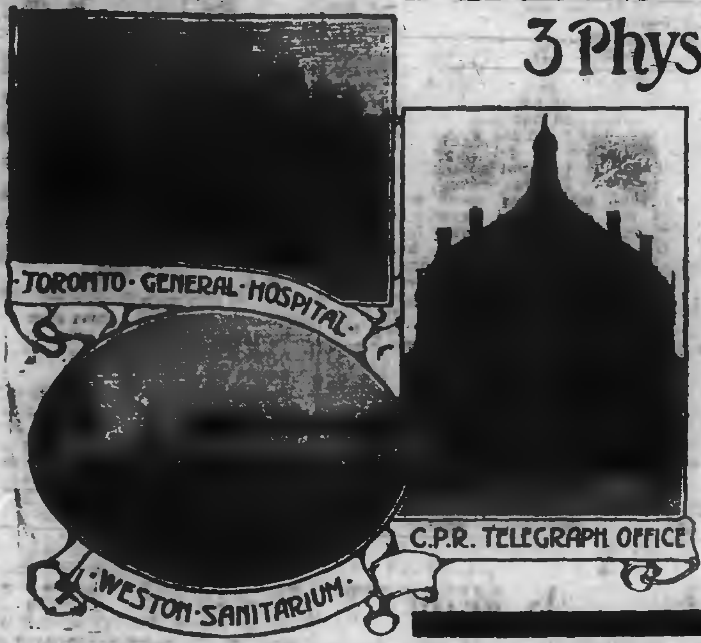
TORONTO MAN SNATCHED FROM THE JAWS OF DEATH

3 Physicians had pronounced his case hopeless.



The above decision given by several prominent physicians naturally depressed Mr. R. Davenport, of 31 Elm St., Toronto, and justified him in saying that he felt each day brought him one step lower into the grave. While in this condition he was recommended to try Psychine. He says: "Following an attack of typhoid fever in Toronto General Hospital, three of Toronto's best known physicians pronounced my lungs incurably and hopelessly diseased with tuberculosis. They insisted on my going to the Weston Sanitarium for Advanced Cases of Consumption and assured me that a few weeks or months at most would be my allotted span. A friend visited me and told me of his wonderful recovery from lung trouble, through Pyschine, and insisted on me trying it. I did, and felt so much better in a few days that I said 'Good-bye' to the doctor in charge, and walked out of the institution. I continued using Psychine for some months. I rapidly gained in flesh and strength, until to-day I am back at my regular business in connection with the C.P.R. Telegraph Service, Toronto. My life I undoubtedly owe to Psychine. As you do not know me and probably never before heard of me, I refer you to any of the C.P.R. Telegraph Officials at Toronto for the correctness of the above statement." This was in September, 1907, and Mr. R. Davenport has weathered the severe winter we have passed through. Surely a good test to the thoroughness of the work done by Psychine, The Greatest of Lung and Throat Tonics.

Psychine Cures Bronchitis, Consumption, Weak Lungs, Weak Voice, Bronchial Coughs, After Effects of La Grippe, Anaemia, Loss of Flesh, Spring Weakness, Catarrh, Pleurisy, Hemorrhages, Catarrh of the Stomach, Indigestion, Catarrhal Affections, General Weakness, Night Sweats, Poor Appetite, Early Decline, Obstinate Coughs, Laryngitis, Speaker's Sore Throat, Throat Catarrh, Chills and Fever, Malaria, Nervous Troubles, Nervous Prostration, Sleeplessness, Mal-nutrition, Female Weakness, and Dyspepsia.

Psychine Restores the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Digestive and Blood-Making Organs to perform their proper functions, and is the only specific known to Modern Medical Science that will Cure Chronic Weakness, Catarrh, Decline, and Incipient or Advanced Cases of CONSUMPTION. Sold by All Druggists and Stores. Price, 50c. Larger Sizes, $1.00 and $2.00. PREPARED ONLY BY DR. T. A. SLOCUM, Limited. Head Office and Laboratory, 179 King Street West, TORONTO, CANADA.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND ITS RELATION TO THE HOUSEHOLD

What Electricity is Doing Towards Removing the Drudgery of the Housewife—The Progress of Science in the Household—Interesting Paper Read by Mrs. Burnett at Annual Meeting of Peterborough Y.W.C.A.

This paper was originally a report of the Y.W.C.A. School of Cookery work, from January to March, 1908, inclusive, combined with a plea for the study of Domestic Science. The subject has been enlarged to include the discussion of Domestic Science in Relation to Household Problems. Perhaps it would be well to start with a definition of Domestic Science. It includes chemistry, bacteriology, hygiene, household sanitation, physiology, food values, the domestic arts, care of the sick, dietetic cookery, laundry work, plus the art and science of cooking. A liberally educated Domestic Science teacher, is the product of an infinitely complex, specialknowledge regime. It provides her with what the old-fashioned, experienced New England housekeeper, called "faculty," the ability to adapt herself to all circumstances and conditions, and wrest victory from defeat, if necessary. * * * Our study in the Y.W.C.A. work, is one branch of this interesting subject. Cookery. The aim is not to turn out accomplished cooks, but comfortable home-makers, with a little additional training. One Superintendent of a Normal School says he would like to see a college diploma in the hand of every girl who applies for Domestic Science training. * * * All wise girls, who are ambitious, want to learn some specialty, and what could be of more value to the present, and future home-makers, engaged, or about to be engaged in the world's biggest business, than training in household affairs. The happiness of many a home is wrecked because there is so little knowledge of cookery, laundry work, and cleaning, in the management of the routine. This knowledge does not come by instinct, but by patient, enthusiastic study. And how smoothly the domestic wheels go, when oiled by trained intelligence! * * * There is help for all classes of women in our cookery lessons—we are not attempting much science just yet. * * * The experienced housekeeper is sure to learn a new wrinkle, for we are never done learning, and in turn give many a helpful hint to the trained young teacher.

As for the young women and school girls—Miss Arnold, Dean of Simmons College, Boston, says: "It is vitally important that a girl should early have her interest aroused in domestic affairs, should, so to speak, get her mind working that way. Then she will inevitably take notice of a host of household phenomena, to which she would otherwise be blind. You expect her to forget most of the cooking facts you teach, but she cannot rid herself of certain opened brain-tracks, a certain quickening of the mind toward domestic concerns, which will have then strong influence in making the home-maker." * * *

The best time for elementary training is in youth. Cooking should be taught to young girls between the ages of 12 and 14, the last two years of their public school work, not the science of it, but the simple practice, with sugar-coated talks on Food Values. Cooking has been compulsory in the Lynn, Mass., Public Schools for ten years, but it is only now that the science of it is to be introduced for the High School students. Haste must be made slowly, for the whole subject of Domestic Science is relatively undeveloped. I think that Public School Cookery need in no way interfere with the Y.W.C.A. School of Cookery. * * *

Columbia University, N.Y., is going to give a degree for Domestic Science, on a par with law or medicine. Ruskin says: "Cookery means the knowledge of Medea, and of Circe and of Helen and of the Queen of Sheba." Surely with so much to learn with over 1,000 self-supporting girls in Peterborough, the Public Schools, and even the Normal School, are not going to reach all who would like this training. Besides, the schools place an age limit. I notice, for instance, in the New York Y.W.C.A. Prospectus, the French class is limited to applicants between the ages of 14 and 35, and the classes for trained attendants upon the sick, are limited to pupils between the ages of 20 and 40. Not that we can't learn anything after 40, but that the best results are obtained by learning new things in youth.

Dr. Fyrode, in a recent talk at the Harvard Medical School, said: "The whole subject of foods is of such importance to every one, that more of it should be taught in the lower schools, as also the art of cooking."

A knowledge of food value is of equal importance in preparing a diet for health and for illness. "Diseases of the stomach are especially adapted for treatment by dieting." In other diseases we know that meat products are undesirable. Charts of food value and food animals are of great assistance in teaching scientific cookery. Prof. Wiley, etc. Again, in this age of horseless carriages and servant-less homes, some knowledge of cookery is absolutely essential to the material well-being and comfort of the inmates. The saying that God God sends meats, and the Devil sends cooks, is 300 years old, so cookery reforms is no new departure. I do not for a moment advocate the teaching of cookery, as a panacea for all our household problems and perplexities, but I do firmly believe a trained knowledge will insure many a primrose path, where now grow thorns. The household-help question gives little promise of growing better. Day service and the dinner sent in, seem the more likely solution of the house-mother's problems. Even then the comfort of the family depends upon properly-preared cereals, and the dainty, waste-preventing luncheons.

Prof. Wiley, of the United States Department of Agriculture, has given the food subject much study, and he contends that cereals are better bone, flesh and blood-makers than meats. He says, "the cereals contain all the elements necessary to the nutrition of the body, having in themselves the types of food, which are represented by the fats, proteids and carbohydrates. In addition they contain the mineral elements of which the bone structure of the body is composed, viz., lime and phosphoric acid." Oatmeal, peas, and rice, are very rich in nutrients. Cornmeal should be used more extensively.

A writer on home economics goes so far as to say, "The preparation of food at home, save in the most limited sense, as for instance, the use of the chafing dish, or the making of fresh tea, does not belong to the advanced civilization of to-day." If we accepted this dictatum, we would have all our meals sent in or go out for them. I think we would speedily tire of either. A lady who has been having her dinners sent to her home regularly, declares the burdens of life seemed to fall off her shoulders. Family life, (and the privacy and daintiness of the home table) is preserved by the plan of having the dinners sent in. But a knowledge of cooking is very necessary for the 730 (more or less) other meals of the year. In the larger cities the janitors will tell you that "all the tenants go out for their meals." That may be very well for creatures who do not wear petticoats, or for "official" feminine folks, who get dressed in the morning for the day, but for the women and children, who remain at home, rainy stormy weather, illness, etc., that's another story. To quote Kipling, a writer in the Mail and Empire, says, "Owing to incompetent servants, the dinner should be sent into the home, leaving the mother hours to herself, or time to devote to her children, might cheat the sanitarium or asylum of more than an occasional patient. People run mad over the consumption scare, but a family well fed and cheerfully surrounded, should smile fear, and be ready to go, with open hands and hearts, to assist, instead of shunning, an unfortunate sufferer.

It is quite safe to say that as long as unhappy homes exist there will be wrongs to make right, and needed reforms, but why, there should be so many unhappy homes is attributable, very largely to the household conditions. The first is, the wife and mother, is burdened beyond man's conception, with cares and anxieties, and instead of complaining merely grows old, and uncompanionable. The conditions of life make such demand upon her time and strength, that there is no cheer or brightness in her manner, and the result in a gloomy atmosphere, poisonous to husband and children. If one man seeks pastime in the social glass, and the other in ill-chosen companions, who is to blame? The wife. Certainly not. In her devotion to husband and home, she has sacrificed beauty, health, nerves, everything." A proposed help is—a knowledge of cookery dinners sent in, and day-service. The United States Consul at Turin, Italy, reporting to his country on the domestic labour question in Italy, says, "I have known parties to look for domestic help for weeks, in vain. The wages vary from $3 to $6 per week, and even $10. Here as in the United States intelligent, ambitious young women seek employment as teachers, or clerks, secretaries, stenographers, type-writers— in factories—in fact, they seem to prefer any kind of employment to domestic work. It seems that they even prefer to drive teams, to pull or push carts on the streets or to become porters, to being domestic servants." So the domestic problem is likely to grow more difficult to solve, instead of easier.

Another writer says; The habit of thought, into which our industrial classes are trained by our public school system is one of discontent with their condition. They are urged to rise above it—to pull door bells, as Ruskin puts it, rather than to answer them.

The distressed housekeeper cannot maintain the comfort and order of her home unassisted. Domestic service will have to be given an honored place among the most important industries of the world. It must be placed upon an industrial basis with a marketable fee. Till that millenium comes —knowledge of cookery—and a central kitchen may do much to make possible the home—a haven of rest and comfort.

The mother of the April baby and the May baby in "Elizabeth and Her German Garden says, "The garden is the place I go to, for refuge and shelter, not the house. In the house are duties, and annoyance, servants to exhort and admonish, furniture furniture and meals." Perhaps, she she had not studied Domestic Science!

Science is doing much to solve our household problems. There has just been placed on the market a small, alcohol stove to be used for cooking purposes, with or without the chafing dish, an alcohol flat iron, and lamp burner. The U. S. Government has removed the revenue on alcohol, so that the denatured alcohol sells 30 cents per gallon. It costs one cent an hour to run one of these little stoves. Farmers are to be instructed to make the alcohol for themselves from potatoes. Of course they can make it very cheaply. Most of us know about the comfort of the electric iron. Electricity turns the washing machine and the cylinder of the dish-washer, washing dishes as rapidly as one can put them in. It is only the expense of the electricity that prevents the general use of these labor saving devices, and the use of the electric cooking range. But experts prophesy that the next three years will see the prices cut in two. We have seen the vacuum cleaner in operation — a process by which dust and dirt are pumped out of our houses through a tube to a receiver, by means of electricity. It is estimated that a vacuum sweeper can be worked at the rate of two cents per hour. Then the fireless cooker has come to stay. In June, 1907, the U. S. Government issued from the Cornell experiment station a bulletin recommending the fireless cooker. No doubt, most of us are familiar with its appearance from the advertisements in the magazines. In one town where the fireless cookers are made, 1,400 were sold in four months. I see that they are now listed at from $5.50 to $18.00.

Some of the New York apartment houses in the fashionable districts are literally piped with conveniences. The lucky residents breathe cleaned air introduced through a sieve-like arrangement, and passing over a warmed radiator in cold weather. Heat, ventilation refrigeration and electric light can be had by pressing the proper button. The ice troubles in connection with the refrigerators are annihilated by means of pipes in the ice box filled with ice-cold brine, supplied by the plant in the basement. The right button will also provide all the meals, or part of them, as one chooses, from the cafe in connection, and co-operative service is at the disposal of these twentieth century home-makers. A maid by the hour, will be provided for any kind of service you wish. Surely, this a magic housekeeping! Science has made possible this revolution in home-making methods. Soups, pork and beans, cereals, 57 varieties of pickles, jams, etc., of irreproachable quality, are upon the market to-day. A recent magazine say, "It was remained for the twentieth century to develop the highest art of all, the art of home-making. The Women's clubs are studying it. The schools are teaching it. The universities of Wisconsin and Cornell are doing notable work in this line and Columbia University is now erecting a $100,000 building for a school of domestic science."

The kitchen now is reached across the threshold of the laboratory and the class-room, and by research and investigation, woman is solving the problems that affect the health health and happiness of the family, and thereby making herself a direct force in the revolution taking place in our methods of living. She can do this because modern means and enlightenment have relieved her of much of the drudgery.

Domestic science also teaches economy. Juliet Corson prepared estimates some years ago to show how the average family, of refinement, say a father, mother, two or three children and one servant, could live on $1.37 per day, this amount providing three good, nourishing meals per day without waste for 6 people. The dinner consisted of soup, meat, vegetables, salad, dessert, nuts and coffee. $2.00 per week, per capita, for each adult, was considered ample. I think these figures are applicable to Peterborough prices.

The Superintendent of the New York schools favors hot, mid-morning school luncheons, on the ground that the dulness of the children of the poor is due to lack of nourishing food. Miss Gould, of the Boston Trade School, figures so closely that for 3-4c. she can offer any one of half a hundred savory things. I was surprised and pleased to note in a certain Women's Club programme for this year, the opening meeting was devoted to a cookery demonstration—a ladies' luncheon by Miss Fannie Merritt Farmer, of the Boston Cooking School. A recent article says:—"Domestic problems appear on a large proportion of the new programme, and women everywhere are taking up the servant question in a scientific and rational spirit. Investigation of employment agencies and the conditions surrounding domestic science are to be prosecuted more effectively the coming year than ever before. There is an Inter-Municipal Committee on Household Research, in Boston, New York and Philadelphia, who has made and passed on to the club women, an investigation into training schools and their success in improving conditions in the domestic situation." to sum up, we believe that the home-maker should be alert, to make progress in her life work, as the business or professional man. We have received letters giving us Y.W.C.A. Domestic Science information from Montreal, Ottawa, Brantford, Hamilton, New York, Cleveland and Detroit, seven letters in all. This symposium of experience is very valuable. The encouraging note runs through all but one of the letters. The experience seems to be that domestic science, instruction in the schools does not interfere with the Y.W.C.A. work. The advice is not to be discouraged with small, non-paying classes at first. Make haste slowly; ascertain from the girls who come here, what is wanted; secure the best trained teacher in the spring for fall work; advertise judiciously; give public exhibitions of work done, and success is bound to crown the efforts put forth."

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

REMINISCENCES OF NORTH WEST REBELION OF '85

By Jos. Crowe, Peterborough

Next day we were on board our barge again, tugging at the oars to guide it from running aground or ashore. When we espied another duck just ahead of us and eager to get even I picked up my rifle, slipped a cartridge into it, took a rest on the side of the boat and fired.

That was the last shot made to my knowledge, in the Northwest uprising. The duck was mine. It gave a little flutter and began to float.

Lieutenant Brennan started in to reprimand me, when his attention was drawn to the fact that I had shot the duck. He felt pleased to have such a marksman on board and rather complimented me instead.

An accident very nearly happened over this incident. Corporal Hendren bieng anxious to display his swimming abilities, undressed,sprang into the water and swam to get the duck, but as we had passed it a considerable distance, he had quite a struggle. The swift current was against him and he had to make for land, because of his exhausted condition. All hands could see that he was in difficulty and would need aid at once. Several were stripped and ready to go to his assistance, when Lieut. Brennan forbade any man to do so, as he would undertake the dangerous task if it were necessary. We hurriedly pulled our barge ashore and ran up the river to the rescue. By this time Hendren had managed to get ashore, more dead than alive. He had taken cramps and was carried on board where he received a thorough rubbing down and in a day or two was all right again.

Now, as we were several days together on water with all kinds of experiences, we became more familiar with each other, acting much in the same manner as would a family. Everybody was sober quite a while by this time, as no liquors were allowed to be sold outside the Province of Manitoba in those days. It afforded an opportunity for each one to study each other in a true light and how wonderfully well it was done.

The man whom you would regard as despotic, selfish, etc., at first, proved to be the opposite, and vica versa, in many cases. Soldier life is a great field to study human nature.

We arrived at Clark's Crossing, where is situated the first house to be met with on our trip down this river. Here we purchased milk, bread and butter, paying 25 cents a quart for milk, and the same for a small loaf of bread. We also secured some fine cattle, which were killed, making the first fresh meat that we had issued to us during the trip.

The Largest Jack Manufacturer in the World Writes about

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

We learned that our barges had passed down the river a couple of days ahead of us. So we lost no time but were soon on our way once more rejoicing. The rest of the journey was pretty fair sailing as the river narrowed, consequently deeper water. We were about two days making Saskatoon from this point. We had no idea of such a place whatever being on the river, but noticed an object which seemed to be a man moving stealthily among scrubby bushes on shore. This caused every man to crane his neck to ascertain if there were any of the enemy lurking around. When Lieut. Brennan whispered to Ptes. Wm. Reynolds, Browne, and myself to each slip a cartridge in our rifles and drop down in a position to be ready should there be any signs of fight. But there was no reason to be alarmed for before we had gone a mile or so we saw that we were approaching a village of tents which of course we thought must be Batoche, the place which we looked upon as being the terminus of our voyage.

But when we pulled in we were received and given a warm reception by all soldiers. We were also surprised to learn that Batoche was forty miles further down the river, and that the fight had been fought two days before and that the wounded of the enemy—who were taken prisoners—along with our wounded were in these tents to the number of about ten in all. One wounded man to each tent. We also learned that we were the last of the twelve barges that left together, to get down the river, but it was very satisfactory to learn that we were the only crew that carried their load to its destination. Distance covered 350 miles, time elapsed 11 days. The others discarded tons of their cargo some even running down with half their load.

We went no further down the river for the 49th Rifles and 57th got orders to cross the river with our barges and all the transport that had previously arrived was over there waiting our arrival which we had to carry up a steep bank and load on to fully one hundred and fifty teams who carried it across a point of land which lay between the two rivers. The distance was short not more than fifteen miles to Telegraph Cooley on the North Saskatchewan river which is a much larger body of water than the south. We stacked the supplies and waited for ten or twelve days for a steamboat to take us up the river to Battleford where the Queen's Own Rifles, the 10th Royal Grenadiers and the six companies of the Midland Battalion had been dispatched after the Battle of Batoche. Every day we were expecting the arrival of our boat for to convey us, and the supplies forwarded. But we were disappointed for we had to wait ten days here and amused ourselves as best we could on a million acre farm. We had noticed a brand new keg, labelled Hospital Stores, and many anxious eyes were cast at it with remarks which would appeal to the ordinary individual such as "Is it wine, brandy or squirrel whiskey," but how to get it was the problem to solve. There was caucas after caucas and groups of three and four would be seen talking in an under tone and it was easily to surmise, that the keg was the cause of it all. It must be remembered that always a strong guard was mounted to protect all supplies and patrolled on beat night and day as all the supplies sent out by the friends of the men at home, were under our care, and to be delivered in proper order. The guard carried ball ammunition. They knew what their duty was and would not fail, to do it. So one very dark night a couple of men of the 49th ran the risk successfully. They went down a steep bank to the river then one crawled up very cautiously while the guard was up at the other end of his beat. He felt for his prize, seized it and let it roll down the bank into the river while he laid quiet. His chum made good down below floating with it for some distance to safety. The guard heard the noise and raised an alarm, and called,—"guards turn out," but as there was no sound of anything about, Everything quieted down. Next morning they came into our tent and told us of their experience and success. So we arranged to go with them. They led us down to where they had hid it, but no keg was to be found and maybe there was not a big row. A few of us never let up until we located it and when found never left it out of our sight until we had it fully a mile from the camp each one carrying it turn about.

The names of those who distinguished themselves on this memorable occasion, and were known afterwards as the forlorn hope, were Edward Daly, Michael Seery, Wm. Brown and the writer. The keg and ourselves being considered at safe distance, the charge was made, drove in the centre bung, and as we had a canteen or tin along, began to pour out the nectar. Sampling it, it was pronounced good enough for us.

We at once hid it and took up a position on an elevation where we could watch the advance of an enemy, as we expected that they would be on our trail without delay, as the men at the camp would be quick to suspect what was up when we were absent.

However, we pledged each other that we would only wet our lips a couple of times, which would mean having it last us a long time; in fact we looked ahead for it to last the remainder of the trip. By the way, I had a flute which I brought along so we could have some music, but the boys insisted on me that it would sound much better if it were wet oftener and as I was appointed grog boss I had the privilege so I wet it several times and furnished inspiring music for all. Now, anything else that happened only appears as a dream to me. I dimly remember seeing Daly and Seery engaged in a tug of war with each other's shirts, Brown laughing, applauding and urging on the contest. While I rolled down the hill to the bottom, a distance of fifty feet, where I remained in an unconscious state until the enemy had located us and awakened me. When I realized what was up I could see Tom Billings running for all he was worth down a ravine.

I appeared to be the only one left of the party so I took up the chase, which led in the direction of the camp, and arrived there at nightfall.

Where the rumor was rampant that we were to be courtmartialed next morning. But we heard nothing further of it.

Another day or two elapsed before we got restless and bold again, and realizing that the authorities were not very scarce in dealing out punishment. We decided to take another chance, so Thomas Graham, Edward Daly, Wm. Reynolds, Wm. Brown and myself agreed to go over to a farmer's house, about three miles distant, taking some canned meat and hard tack for to trade if he had any of those qualities.

As we approached we noticed the farmer and hired man (who were working near his house), were watching us closely, and when they realized we were in uniform we were received most cordially. Both quit work immediately and brought us to the house.

We were assured everything was ours. He told us he had sent his wife home for fear of the Indians. He lost no time in telling us all about her good qualities how he got her, that she was a school marm and he loved her very dearly, even going so far in his devotions as to bring from a small room her apparel. The shoes she wore were the cause of remark: "How small her feet must be." Some one of the party made bold enough to remark that it was really too bad that she was not home, as we would have been delighted to have made her acquaintance.

We all made ourselves at home on the invitation extended us. I told the farmer that I could cook. The others volunteered to put in a few days in helping him. He appeared to be pleased, we gave up our canned meat, etc., to him.

I took on the responsibility of the household, and got busy with a churning that was ready, which netted about 10 lbs. of butter, which we didn't do a thing with. The others made no effort to go to work that day, the farmer staying in with his guests.

On invitation we stayed all night, although the farmer would have been just as well pleased if we had not accepted. As he drew our attention to the circumstances he was in, scarce of room, and not much provisions on hand, and no place within two hundred miles to get more. That we would, have to put up with what we could get for one night.

That night was spent with Daly at the organ and Brown singing, "I am waiting my Darling for Thee." Slept well on couches, beds, and shake down. Morning came, I got breakfast ready, and became familiar with the provisions which proved to be in more abundance than we were led to believe. The farmer led the way to work, but alas, he was alone. The others failing to live up to contract, and would not leave me or the organ alone; dinner time arrived and they had the nerve to go out and call him and his man to dinner. While at dinner it was apparent to all that the farmer had undergone a change in his manner, scarcely speaking.

THE PRODUCTION IS RETURNING

Public Desirous of Another Opportunity to Witness "Barber of Selville"—Local Press' High Praise of the Opera

To anyone with even a reasonable sense of appreciation of a good entertainment the "Barber of Seville" as presented at the Grand Opera House on Saturday by the Dunsmure English Grand Opera Company must have appealed very strongly. This much heralded production of Rossini's comic opera masterpiece, lived up to all that had been said of it previous to its appearance here and the Toronto and outside press were certainly justified in commenting on its worth in such favorable terms. It was quite refreshing to see a real comic opera with merit and originality in its book, and superior tunefulness in its score after witnessing for so long productions in which the prevailing features were tights, spangles and musical parts of a somewhat pleasing but always unsubstantial and purely temporal character.

In the "Barber of Seville" there is a well defined and interesting plot supplemented by melodies such as only Rossini or another of the great masters could originate. The vocalism of the members of the cast was uniformly excellent. The opera was sung with great expression and interpreted with every attention to correctness of detail.

Predominant as the male vocalist, and the possessor of a magnificent basso profundo, was Mr. John Dunsmure as Basilio, the music master to Rosina. His selections were received with great approval by the audience who were most enthusiastic in their recognition of his efforts. The only regret was that the piece did not offer him an opportunity of singing oftener. His make-up for the part was indescribably grotesque and he proved a comedian of ability.

Mme. Monti Baldini, as Rosina, a niece of Dr. Bartolo, displayed a soprano voice of great flexibility and richness. She interpreted the role with sprightliness and intelligence.

Pierre Ghiordi's dramatic tenor of wide range was heard to advantage in the character of Count Almarvia. He is a good actor with a distinguished presence. Edwarde May did full justice to the part of Bartolo, the confirmed "grouch" and unsuccessful suitor for the hand of Rosina. Roman Klekko was very pleasing as Figaro, the barber.

Between acts II and III Mr. Jacques Henstergen of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, gave two beautifully rendered selections on the violin. He held the audience spellbound by his magnificent playing and is a master in the art of technique and tone production. Mr. Walter A. Piok made an ideal accompanist and presided at the piano in masterly fashion.—Review, May 11th.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEAL HAS JUSTIFIED ITS EXISTENCE

First Sitting Has Been Held—Lord Chief Justice Alverstone Presided—Judge of Lower Court Forgot to Warn Jurors.

London, May 18.—The new Court of Criminal Appeals held its first session on Saturday and justified its existency by releasing a prisoner who had been convicted on insufficient evidence. The opposition to the right of appeal in English criminal courts has been based chiefly on the fear that it would produce evils usually described as American evils in the administration of justice. These evils are summarised as unnecessary delay and the thwarting of justice by frivolous technicalities.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone at the first session made it clear that it would be the effort of the court to avoid these evils. The court dismissed all but one case, that of a man who had been convicted of passing spurious money. He pleaded in the lower court that he was ignorant of the fact that the money was spurious. An attempt was made to show that he had passed another bad coin a fortnight before the transaction for which he was arrested. The prisoner proved an alibi later by showing that he was in jail at the time of the former alleged occurrence.

The judge of the lower court failed to warn the jurors that they must not regard the man's admission of imprisonment against him.

THE SITUATION AT THE CAPITAL

Manitoba Government Representatives Reach Ottawa—Debate To-day

Ottawa, May 18.—Hon. Robert Rogers reached Ottawa Saturday, followed to-day by Premier Roblin of Manitoba. They have come to back up the Federal Conservatives in their opposition to the election bill. Mr. Rogers states that he finds his friends determined to fight all summer if need be to compel the withdrawal of the first clause of the bill.

Discussing the provincial lists, he declared that there was not one name on them that was not placed there by the county judges. No appointee of the Manitoba Government has power to add to or strike off and these were the lists that were revised by Leech and his associates.

The debate will be conducted today by W. A. Galliher (B.C.) and it may be that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will inform Mr. Borden how far he is willing to concede, though since Friday nothing has passed between the two leaders.

YOUNG MAN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Almost a Fatality at Lindsay as Result of an Electric Shock

Special Correspondent

Lindsay, May 18—A young man named Wilbert Alger had a narrow escape from death here today as a result of an electrical shock. He is employed as a lineman by the Electric Light Company and was cutting a wire when the accident occurred. Alger received a shock of 1060 volts, but as he was strapped to the pole he did not fall to the ground. His hands were badly burned and he was stunned for a time. He will recover.

THEY CELEBRATED GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. C. Atwood Have Pleasant Event at Lakefield—Peterboro' People Present

Lakefield, May 15.—A very pleasing event took place on Tuesday, May 5th, at "Ashelworth," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Clinton Atwood, the occasion being the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Atwood were married in Lakefield on Wednesday, May 5th, 1858, in Christ's church, known now as the "Old Church," being the second couple to be married in this beautiful and interesting old building. That time in its ruthless march has been busy in this section is shown by the fact that only five people are living in Lakefield now who were present at the wedding, namely, Mrs. Barire, Miss Traill, Messrs. H. J. LeFevre, R. C. Strickland and R. Q. Dench. Mr. H. T. Strickland and Col. Rogers, of Peterborough, were also present at the ceremony. The reception was a very quiet affair, only the relatives and intimate friends of the family being present. Mrs. Atwood wore a beautiful gown which formed part of their bridal attire fifty years ago, and was made by her aunt, the celebrated authoress, Agnes Strickland. Mrs. Atwood is the second daughter of the late Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill, so well known throughout the length and breadth of Canada as a writer of the Natural History of the Dominion. Mr. and Mrs. Atwood spent the greater part of their married life at Rice Lake, near Gore's Landing, but for the past twenty-two years have been residents of Lakefield. Their golden wedding finds them hale and hearty and it is the earnest hope of their friends that many years of happiness and prosperity still lie before them. They were the recipients of general congratulations and good wishes, accompanied by many presents and beautiful flowers. Their children are, Clinton A. S. Atwood, of Grand Forks, B.C.; G. Evans Atwood, of Peterborough; Mrs. Lingwood, of Simcoe, and Misses Katherine, Annie and Florence, of Lakefield, all of whom were present with the exception of the first named.

THREE DAYS CAMPAIGN IN INTEREST OF LOCAL Y.M.C.A.

Opens To-morrow Morning and Will Close Thursday Night—Banquet To-night Will be Largely Attended—It is Proposed to Raise $2,500 per Year for Three Years by Subscription—Bowling Alleys to be Installed.

A three days' campaign in the interests of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. commences tomorrow.

As a matter of fact, it will begin tonight when a "Business Men's Banquet" will be held in the gymnasium starting at 6.30 o'clock. There will be three excellent speakers and it is expected there will be a large attendance. Mr. Frank Sanderson, an old Peterborough boy, will be the first of those who will speak. He is the joint general manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company and is a rising business man. Mr. Sanderson is now a resident of Toronto.

Another of the speakers is Mr. Elmer Davis of Kingston. Mr. Davis is one of Kingston's most succefful business men and has taken an active part in the building up of the Y.M.C.A. in that city.

The other speaker on the list is E. M. Thomasson, of Toronto, one of the provincial secretaries of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Thomasson will speak of the work of the association and the good derived from it.

A good musical programme has been prepared and there should be a large number of the men of Peterborough present. The banquet is not confined to business men. Every man is invited, every man especially who enjoys good speaking, a good supper and good music.

Tomorrow morning the three days' campaign will start. It will be conducted by Mr. E. M. Thomasson, who has been in charge of ten successful similar campaigns during the past few months. The aim is to raise by subscription the sum of $25,000 per year for three years in order to put the Y.M.C.A. on a better basis than it has ever been before. The money is required for three purposes:

First—To enable the Y.M.C.A. to assume an aggressive policy.

Second—To keep the Association out of debt.

Third—To back up what has already been done, to put in bowling alleys, to attract to and keep young men in the Association, and to put the local Y.M.C.A. in a better condition than it has yet enjoyed.

The campaign will close on Thursday night and there are bright prospects for it being very successful. The hearty co-operation of citizens is asked.

BIG RAILWAY MERGER TALKED

Rumors That C.N.R. Will Join C.P.R. or G.T.P.

Montreal, May 18.—A story is current here that a consolidation of the Canadian Northern with either the Canadian Pacific or the Grand Trunk Pacific is now under way in London; that both companies are willing to take over the Mackenzie system.

It is further believed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, at Ottawa, would like to see some such merger take place and that he would assist it in every way in his power.

Disturbance Among Strikers.

Brantford, May 18.—Disturbances of a serious nature occurred among the strike-breakers at the Buck Stove Works late Saturday night, when there was a free fight over a gambling dispute. Daniel Flaherty received a broken leg, and another man named Jackson had his head badly injured. Flaherty was hit with a hammer. No arrests have been made, as the affair happened in the shop where the men are quartered. The firm has secured eighty new men, chiefly from Chicago.

In connection with the strike, special police are patrolling the district to prevent the continuance of picket duty by the union men, and a number have been summoned to appear at the Police Court. Forty of the union moulders have been committed to stand trial for picketing, but have continued to do duty on advice received from their counsel, J. G. O'Donaghue of Toronto.

NEW STEAMERS WILL BE BUILT

Two New Boats to be Built for the Karwatha Lakes

Capt. Clark, from the Pacific coast, has formed a company in this city to build two stern-wheel steamers. They will be in commission in ninety days from the time the lumber arrives from Vancouver, B.C., which will be about thirty days from this date.

The name of this new company is the Peterboro, Midland & Trenton Transportation Co., Limited. The company proposes to put on a line of steamers at once, plying on the above-named waters and lakes adjacent thereto daily, stopping at any point on the canal, rivers and lakes to take on passengers and freight, or to let off passengers and to deliver freight. This, they maintain, gives the farmers a very cheap passage and freight rates between all points on the said waters.

The company will have several barges carrying from 1,000 to 2,000 tons, which they will leave at any point en route for the purpose of loading the same where it takes several hours to load.

These steamers, it is stated, will be among the finest fitted up on these waters, with accommodation for 1,000 passengers; will have berths for 200 persons, gentlemen's saloon, dining-room and ladies' cabin, with hot and cold water throughout, and lit with electric light.

The steamers will average between sixteen and eighteen miles per hour.

Town by Public Auction.

Victoria, B.C., May 18.—G. W. Riley, land commissioner of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, states that while it has not been definitely decided, arrangements are being made to sell the Prince Rupert townsite by public auction at Vancouver in September or October. No reservations will be entertained.

Subsidized Steamer Arrives.

Victoria, B.C., May 18.—The steamer Den of Ruthven, one of the two steamers chartered by the Alley line for the subsidized service between Canada and New Zealand, arrived Saturday, 24 days from Auckland.

Sentence Postponed.

Toronto, May 18.—The sentence of Dr. E. M. Cook, convicted of performing an unlawful operation, has been postponed till the fall, to give the Court of Appeal time to decide the stated case.

Child Fatally Burned.

Kingston, May 18.—While playing around a bonfire at a neighbor's house Saturday night, Edith, aged six, daughter of William Millard, was so badly burned that she will not recover.

THE CROPS IN THE GREAT WEST

Favorable Reports From Many Quarters—Considerable Growth Already

Winnipeg, May 18.—The reports from all the west are still favorable as regards the crops; the seed got in well, it sprouted well, in places is over six inches high, and that warm rains in almost the needed quantity are recorded at nearly all districts. Furthermore the area under crop is believed to be one-fourth larger than ever before, and what is even more significant, the methods of plowing and seeding have been greatly improved; in other words, the experienced settlers from the United States wheat belt that have come into Canada have set a new pace in the way of breaking land and planting a crop on time.

The best judges of the present conditions foretell a great wheat harvest beginning on Aug. 10, just 12 weeks from now. But the banks and business men will have a line on the crops and their policy in regard to it pretty well within the next four weeks, and if they see this big crop in sight—only eight weeks away—they will let out money and will place orders for goods in a surprising way and start a new reign of confidence all over the Dominion.

Interchangeable Tickets.

Ottawa, May 18.—An order has been issued by the Railway Commission, compelling the G. T. R. and Wabash, which run over the same track through the counties of Essex, Kent and Elgin, to accept tickets interchangeably. For instance, a ticket bought at Chatham for Aylmer from a Wabash agent will be good on the Grand Trunk and vice versa.

This may have the effect of compelling the same concession for the public using the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific between Toronto and Hamilton, and on other sections used by more than one road.

Double Drowning Accident.

Ottawa, May 18.—A canoe party was upset yesterday at Black Rapids on the Rideau river. The current of a big wash swept them against the masonry of the dam. The whole went through the boiling water. Of the party of three, one of two brothers named Monk was saved, his little brother, aged 11, went down, and C. P. Gamble, reporter on The Citizen, aged 19, was also drowned.

Expensive Ride After All.

Hastings, May 18.—A young English emigrant named Keith Estell, trying to beat his way to Owen Sound, slipped in boarding a west-bound freight and one foot was badly crushed. He was sent to the hospital at Cobourg.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARIES AT THE CHURCHES

Gave Addresses Yesterday—Big Rally at the Y.M.C.A. in the Afternoon

Sunday was rally day in the Y.M.C.A. and special services were conducted in the churches and the Association building in preparation for the "Three Days' Campaign" to raise $2,500 a year for a period of three years by subscription to help defray the running expenses of the local branch of the association.

The Assembly hall of the Y.M.C.A. was well filled to hear Mr. A. Cullen of London, speak to men.

Mr. Cullen took for his subject, "Find me a man," and gave his opinion of the kind of a man that was wanted, both in business and in social life.

Miss Helen Davies sang and the devotional services were conducted by Mr. E. M. Thomasson of Toronto.

Mr. Cullen spoke at Charlotte St. church, Mr. E. M. Thomasson at George street church and Mr. C. M. Copeland at Murray street church yesterday morning. In the evening Mr. C. M. Copeland spoke at St. Paul's, Mr. E. M. Thomasson at St. Andrew's and Mr. A. Cullen at Knox church.

STRONG DENIAL BY THE PAPERMAKERS

Say There is no Combine to Raise Price or Restrict Output

Washington, May 18.—Denial was made Saturday by the International Paper Co. and other manufacturers of paper of the charges made by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association that an agreement exists between them either to raise the price of paper or to restrict the output.

This evidence was given before the special committee of the House of Representatives that is investigating the wood pulp and print paper question. The claim also was made that Canadian mills, which are selling paper 65 cents a hundred pounds less than American mills, were doing so at a loss, and that if normal conditions were resumed in England and Canada these prices would be raised.

It was a contention of the witnesses that the present price of paper is the lowest they can manufacture it for and live.

THE JAPANESE ELECTIONS

Constitutionalist Have Secured Substantial Majority.

Tokio, May 18.—The results of the general election, held on Friday in Tokio and throughout the provinces have not yet been compiled on account of the difficulty experienced in communication with distant points. It is safe, however, to predict that the Constitutionalists have secured a substantial majority, probably exceeding that in the previous session, and the Government expects to face the next Diet with a majority of all combinations.

Dakota Divorce Invalid.

London, May 18.—A chancery judge has decided a romantic lawsuit involving the possession of Scottish estates estimated to be worth $500,000. The case concerned the legality of the marriage of Mrs. Georgia Smith, who deserted her husband in Canada and joined Walter Sterling.

Smith obtained a divorce in North Dakota, after which Walter Sterling married the woman. A son, Richard Sterling, was born to the couple. The father, Walter Sterling, died shortly after the birth of this child and Walter Sterling's brother, Thomas W. Sterling, then claimed the estates on the ground that the Dakota divorce was illegal, Smith having obtained the divorce decree while he waited on the same day that he instructed his Fargo lawyer to begin the proceedings.

The chancery judge decided that the divorce was invalid, that Walter Sterling was without legal heir and that the estates should pass to the claimant.

Married Chinaman and Shot.

Vancouver, B. C., May 18.—Edith Lamont, a demimondaine, married a Chinaman of New Westminster, the first such marriage there, a few days ago. On Sunday morning Tom Morris, who claims he kept the girl for months, called on her in this city, burst open the door and shot her five times. She was badly wounded in the breast and legs, but was promptly hurried to the hospital, and may recover.

Killed by Lightning.

Harrow, Ont., May 18.—In an electrical storm which passed over this section on Saturday a bolt struck the residence of W. H. Hernaman and entered the room in which he, his wife and babe were asleep. The infant was killed and Mrs. Hernaman very seriously shocked.

Garrison Church Parade.

Montreal, May 18.—There were over 3,000 men in line yesterday at the annual church parade, and the different regiments looked exceedingly soldier-like.

TORONTO HAS A GREAT VARIETY OF CANDIDATES

The Lists Now Made Up—28 Candidates for Eight Seats—Who Will be the 20 Disappointed Ones?—Five Different Parties Represented

Toronto, May 18.—The list of candidates for the four electoral divisions of Toronto at the coming elections is now filled. Conventions have been held by the two great political parties and the Labor party and Socialists have also representatives in the field for every division of the city. There are 28 candidates in all for the eight seats, classified as follows: Conservative 8, Independent Conservative 3, Liberal 4, Independent Liberal 1, Labor 4, Socialist 8. The Conservatives and Socialists are the only parties that have a full ticket. A. W. Wright, in addition to being an Independent Conservative is the nominee of the Public Ownership League.

To be a candidate Rev. D. C. Hossack has resigned the pastorate of Deer Park Presbyterian Church. His resignation was read to the congregation last night. He lays down as the chief plank of his platform the abolition of the bar.

The nominees are as follows:

North Toronto—Conservative, W. K. McNaught, John Shaw; Independent Liberal, Rev. D. C. Hossack; Labor, W. J. Hevey; Socialist, James Lindala (A), James Simpson (B).

South Toronto—Conservative, Hon. J. J. Foy, Geo. H. Gooderham; Liberal, Geo. E. Gibbard; Labor, J. H. Kennedy; Socialist, Louis Tredler (A), Del Negro (B).

East Toronto—Conservative, Hon. Dr. Pyne, T. R. Whiteside, Joseph Russell (Ind.); Liberal, Dr. Bryans; Labor, J. W. Bruce; Socialist, Wilfrid Gribble (A), Ernest Drury (B).

West Toronto—Conservative, Hon. Thomas Crawford, W. D. McPherson, K.C., A. W. Wright (Ind.), H. C. Tomlin (Ind.); Liberal, G. G. Miles, J. B. Hay; Labor, John Gardner; Socialist, Phillips Thompson (A), Frederick Frost (B.).

PREPARING FOR TERCENTENARY

Grand Stand and Arch Now Being Erected at Quebec

Quebec, May 18.—A force of 100 men is now busily at work on the Plains of Abraham rushing the construction of the grand stand which is to allow Quebec and her visitors to view the pageants. The site indicates the exact spot where the various historic views are to be presented. The stand is being erected some 300 yards to the west of Wolfe's monument and about 100 yards from the edge of the cliff facing the river. It is shaped like three consecutive sides of an octagonal figure.

Directly in front, on the grassy sward, the pageants will take place daily at 5 o'clock.

Fifteen thousand persons will find seats on the stand at once. It will be 900 feet in length, 120 in depth, and the height at the back will be 35 feet.

Over the central entry will be built the royal box for the accommodation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, His Excellency the Governor-General and other distinguished visitors. It will be in the form of a kiosk, and will be surmounted by two small towers.

Construction work has also been commenced on a triumphal arch to be erected at the crossing of St. Joseph street and Boulevard Langelier, where the grand parade of the final pageant will pass. It is planned to depict several scenes of Canadian history on this structure.

MUST PAY THE NURSE THE WAGES DUE HER

Case Heard in Police Court This Morning—Drunk Was Allowed to go

Manley Smith was charged at the Police Court to-day with neglecting to pay $6.50, the amount due Mrs. Carney for nursing Smith's wife. It appears that Mrs. Carney's fee is ten dollars per week, but she agreed to work ten days for Smith for ten dollars. She had only been paid $3.50 and she claimed the balance of $6.50.

Smith stated that Mrs. Carney had agreed to come for seven dollars. However, he would pay her if she gave him time.

His Worship ordered that Smith pay the $6.50 and the costs in ten days.

BLINDS SHOULD BE PULLED DOWN

Amusing Scene in North End of City Last Night

It would have been a simple matter for a young lady and gentleman, who were sitting in the parlor of a residence in the north end of the city last night, to have pulled down the blinds. Such trifling details are often neglected, however, and the result of the unshaded windows was the providing of considerable amusement for a number of passers-by. It appears that the couple in the parlor considered that one chair was strong enough and large enough for two. The result was perhaps pleasing to the happy twain, but not any more so than to those who gathered at the window.

MEETING AT GOSPEL HALL

Messrs. McMurdo and Murdock Will Remain for Another Week—Street Services

The special meetings will go on for another week at Gospel Hall. Messrs. McMurdo and Murdock will remain. Much blessing has attended their ministry. Meetings will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. Street meetings will be held Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at eight o'clock at the corner of George and Brock streets.

DAIRY OUTPUT WILL BE SMALL

Unsatisfactory Reports Respecting the Output for May

Peterboro, May 18.—The reports for the present month show a very small output compared with other years. A prominent dairyman states that the May make is the smallest he has seen in many years. There are several reasons, he said, for this state of affairs. In the first place the farmers have decreased the number of their stock. This was occasioned by the small supply of feed with which they began the winter. The result is now being felt in a shortage of the milk supply.

Other circumstances have united to make the prospects for the opening of the Peterboro cheese board below the ordinary and an unusually small boarding is generally expected. Wh the first month dropping off materially the year's output will be lessen proportionately unless the weat improves and remains very favora throughout the season.

Blacksod Route Conference.

London, May 18.—It is announ that the Cabinet will confer on Thursday with the promoters of the Blacksod scheme, Mr. McHugh, M.P., and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

The Sun says that Canadian cit bonds are not thought highly of in certain financial circles, because municipal authorities waste too much in all-considered enterprises. Their borrowing proclivities have been accommodated too freely.

HOP WORKERS' DEMONSTRATIO

Great Army of Men and Wome Held Meeting in London

London, May 18.—A great army of men and women interested in the hop industry of England, estimated to number upwards of 50,000, held a demonstration in Trafalgar Square on Saturday afternoon in favor of imposing a duty of $10 on every hundredweight of hops imported into the country.

Special trains brought in thousands of persons from Kent, Sussex, Hampshire, Worcester and Hereford, the great hop-growing counties, while the east end of London, whence emanate almost all the hop-pickers, furnished a contingent perhaps twice as large as the growers and laborers from the provinces.

After being marshaled on the Victoria embankment, the demonstrators with banners flying and bands playing, marched to the square, where Englishmen with a grievance always have been accustomed to assemble.

Speakers from half a dozen platforms harangued the multitude on the ruin of industry through the dumping of American hops into England, and resolutions were adopted by acclamation, calling upon the Government not to delay in helping to re-establish the industry, and placing a duty on all imported hops.

The Wrecked German Bank.

Buffalo, May 18—All actions against Eugene A. Georger, both civil and criminal, arising out of the wrecking of the German Bank of Buffalo, were practically settled for $80,000. Justice Pound granted the orders which make the settlement of the civil actions effective. He reserved decision on a motion to dismiss the indictments against Georger charging larceny and perjury, but intimated that he will grant the motion as soon as the $80,000 is turned over to the receiver of the German Bank, of which Georger was the president. The $80,000 will give the depositors about two per cent., makng a total of about 85 per cent. paid to them by the receiver.

Mysterious Disease Among Cattle.

Lindsay, May 18.—The farmers of this vicinity and as far north as Beaverton, are afraid of losing all their cattle. During the past few days there has been a mysterious falling off in the herds. Veterinary surgeons are all guessing, as many of the farmers have lost from five to twenty head. One farmer stated that the cattle first became powerless, which condition is followed by a ravenous appetite. They then quit eating and gradually die. This plague began about the middle of last winter.

The Daily Review

MONDAY, MAY 11, 1908.

SUSPICIOUS

Mr. Mackay is reported in the issue of the Globe of Saturday last to have said that Mr. Whitney broke up no schoolbook ring, and that the same old publishers were publishing the same old books. To make this statement effective Mr. Mackay should have added, "and at the same old price." Why men of prominence resort to petty humbug of this description is really difficult to say, unless owing to the stress of the campaign they are apt to suffer from brainstorm. When Mr. Whitney pointed the pistol of fair profits at the crows of monopoly sitting high up on a branch of the dead tree of the Ross Government educative "system" he accompanied the act with these words, "Come down!" and they came down and begged to be allowed to sell their stock at the newer and lower prices otherwise it would be dead on their hands and they would suffer heavy loss. This act of decency and consideration is characterized by the Liberal press as the putting by the Government of "old stock" on the market, and now, too, we see that the Opposition leader adds a suspicion what a retention of the old publishers might imply viz., that it is at the old prices. It all seems very silly, however, when Mr. Mackay's words are so easily disprovable. Any bookseller can explain the whole situation. But the parents know. It is only necessary to correct a wrong impression which the single and the childless might receive.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Wanted! Ballot box stuffers and ballot-switchers to stay away from Ontario. The dog is dead.

"After wandering into the fields of vacillation and inconsistency the Opposition have made the plunge into the pool of decision."—Globe.

This is not the first case of political suicide. But as Murphy said "Who the divule wrote that?"

Mr. Whitney at Norwood told the story of the man who having murdered his father and mother asked to be let off on the ground that he was an orphan. He compared to this Mr MacKay's conduct in voting for the Whitney Government's CNR. guarantee in the House and denouncing it on the hustings.

Mr. Carnegie still continues to establish "funds" for university professors, scientists, heroes, etc. In a short time everybody will be on his pension list. Wouldn't it be lovely if we could all live and enjoy ourselves all day long at Mr. Carnegie's expense. There is something wonderfully "educative" in it.

At the Liberal convention the other evening Mr. Hossack said; "I do not know any of my family who was not a Liberal, mother and father being Liberals of the old school. I was brought up a Liberal."

He is evidently returning to his party with a view to purifying it. It is not worthy of Liberal allegiance just yet.

Milioni attacked and cut a young Italian woman nearly to death with a razor. He gets two and a half years. Slack knocked down and beat a woman who recovered and looks none the worse. He gets a life sentence. Might we ask on what pretence Milioni is treated so lightly? This practice also, of "lawyers rising with emotion" is played out. Let us think of the poor victims.

John Morley who surprised the United Kingdom by accepting a title which was bestowed by a Liberal government will hereafter be known as Lord Morley of Blackburn. It is noticeable that even the most staid and "democratic" of people yield to the fascination of a title. Of course, in the United States the rich people have gone stark staring mad after titles. Poor things!

In a gale of wind, and at a height of 250 feet, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and his wife on Saturday performed a remarkable ceremony. On the top of the Bell Harry Tower of Canterbury Cathedral the Primate laid the final stone of the pinnacle and Mrs. Davidson fixed the vane. The ceremony marked the completion of the work of restoring the tower and spires of the cathedral. —British Weekly.

This is what is known as "high church practices."

Miss Clara Brett Martin who headed the polls at the last election in Toronto for school trustee is "mentioned" for the Legislature. Miss Martin is a very fine type of humanity and we cannot think that an occasional scuffle in the halls of state will improve her. It is said that "women have all the rights of men." One thing is sure, men have not all the rights of women. As for ourselves our motto is "It is only(ue-ble to be good," etc

Meaford reports a population of 25408, an increase of 847 over the Dominion census of 1901.

ROSS GOVERNMENT DEFICITS COMPILED FROM THE RECORDS

It will be remembered that the present Government when in Opposition steadily maintained that Ontario was going behind. Mr. Ross in an interview with a deputation, admitted that the province was going behind a million a year. The following table shows how part of it happened:

1901, total current receipts...$3,866,892
Total current payments... 4,038,834

Deficit...... ....$171,942

1902—Total current receipts $4,033.480
Total current payments... 4,272,887

Deficit $239,407

1903—Total current receipts $4,100,833
Total current payments...4,730,800

Deficit $620,000

1904—Total current receipts $4,464,258
Total current payments...4,747,453

Deficit...... ....$280,000

This enormous total deficit on current account for the four years ending 1904, was incurred by reason of the faulty collection and general inefficiency of the Ross administration. To make up this deficit timber was sold, being the use of capital for the payment of current accounts. The total debt existing besides this was $6,718,000 to reduce which the present government paid in 3 1-2 years, $671,000 in cash. And yet ex-ministers will cry that there was no deficit and that the present Government could find nothing wrong after all their boasting. These men must think that the public can't read.

QUALIFICATIONS.

To be eligible to vote on the provincial election you must be:

1. Over 21 years of age.
2. A British subject.
3. A resident in Canada for at least one year.
4. A resident of the city for at least three months previous to the last day of registration, May 23rd.

Students who are residents of this city and who are registered in any other centre are eligible for registration there on return from any university or college in the Dominion.

If you are a lodger and not a householder, report at the Conservative committee rooms, 418 George st. where the energetic secretary will give you full particulars in connection with eligibility, time and place of registration and voting, etc.

The same thing applies to householders moving into new polling divisions. Make sure that your name is in good standing. Don't take any chance in the matter. Report at the committee rooms and get full information.

Again, let the young men who believe themselves eligible for registration not wait to be hunted up. The committee rooms are open all day and every evening and the secretary will be glad to give you information. It is your privilege and right to cast a vote for the continuance in office of a good government.

The Conservative committee rooms are at 418 George street, (Dutton's old store). Call there. You will be made welcome.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

"Well, Jefferson," he said kindly, "did you have a good time abroad?"

"Yes, sir, thank you. Such a trip is a liberal education in itself."

"Ready for work again, eh? I'm glad you're back, Jefferson. I'm busy now, but one of these days I want to have a serious talk with you in regard to your future. This artist business is all very well for a pastime, but it's not a career—surely you can appreciate that—for a young man with such prospects as yours. Have you ever stopped to think of that?"

Jefferson was silent. He did not want to displease his father. On the other hand, it was impossible to let things drift as they had been doing. There must be an understanding sooner or later. Why not now?

"The truth is, sir," he began timidly, "I'd like a little talk with you now if you can spare the time."

Ryder senior looked first at his watch and then at his son, who, ill at ease, sat nervously on the extreme edge of a chair. Then he said, with a smile:

"Well, my boy, to be perfectly frank, I can't—but—I will. Come, what is it?" Then, as if to apologize for his previous abruptness, he added: "I've had a very busy day, Jeff. What with Transcontinental and Transatlantic and Southern Pacific and Wall street and rate bills and Washington I feel like Atlas shouldering the world."

"The world wasn't intended for one pair of shoulders to carry, sir," rejoined Jefferson calmly.

His father looked at him in amazement. It was something new to hear any one venturing to question or comment upon anything he said.

"Why not?" he demanded when he had recovered from his surprise. "Julius Caesar carried it. Napoleon carried it—to a certain extent. However, that's neither here nor there. What is it, boy?"

Unable to remain a moment inactive, he commenced to pick among the mass of papers on his desk while Jefferson was thinking what to say. The last word his father uttered gave him a cue, and he blurted out protestingly:

"That's just it, sir. You forget that I'm no longer a boy. It's time to treat me as if I were a man."

Ryder senior leaned back in his chair and laughed heartily.

"A man at twenty-eight? That's an excellent joke. Do you know that a man doesn't get his horse sense till he's forty?"

"I want you to take me seriously," persisted Jefferson.

Ryder senior was not a patient man. His moments of good humor were of brief duration. Anything that savored of questioning his authority always angered him. The smile went out of his face, and he retorted explosively:

"Go on! Be serious if you want, only don't take so long about it. But understand one thing—I want no preaching, no philosophical or socialistic twaddle, no Tolstoi; he's a great thinker, and you're not; no Bernard Shaw; he's funny, and you're not. Now go ahead."

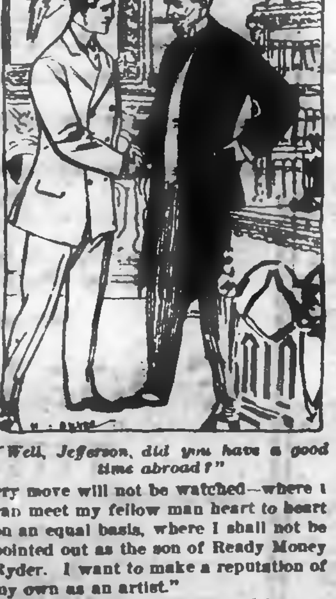
This beginning was not very encouraging, and Jefferson felt somewhat intimidated, but he realized that he might not have another such opportunity, so he plunged right in.

"Father, I am devoted to my work. I even intend to go away and travel a few years and see the world. It will help me considerably."

Ryder senior eyed his son in silence for a few moments; then he said gently:

"Don't be obstinate, Jeff. Listen to me. I know the world better than you do. You mustn't go away. You are the only flesh and blood I have. You see that I want you with me, and now you take advantage—you take advantage"—

"No, father, I don't," protested Jefferson, "but I want to go away. Although I have my studio and am practically independent, I want to go where I shall be perfectly free—where my every move will not be watched—where I can meet my fellow man heart to heart on an equal basis, where I shall not be pointed out as the son of Ready Money Ryder. I want to make a reputation of my own as an artist."



"Well, Jefferson, did you have a good time abroad?"

"Why not study theology and become a preacher?" sneered Ryder. Then more amiably he said: "No, my lad, you stay here. Study my interests—study the interests that will be yours some day."

"No," said Jefferson doggedly, "I'd rather go. My work and my self respect demand it."

"Then go, go!" cried his father in a burst of anger. "I'm a fool for wasting my time with an ungrateful son!" He rose from his seat and began to pace the room.

"Father," exclaimed Jefferson, starting forward, "you do me an injustice."

Ryder laughed cynically. He went back to his desk, and, sitting facing his son, he said:

"Jefferson, you are young. It is one of the symptoms of youth to worry about public opinion. When you are as old as I am, you will understand that there is only one thing which counts in this world—money. The man who has it possesses power over the man who has it not, and power is what the ambitious man loves most."

He stopped to pick up a book. It was "The American Octopus." Turning again to his son, he went on:

"Do you see this book? It is the literary sensation of the year. Why? Because it attacks me, the richest man in the world. It holds me up as a monster, a tyrant, a man without soul, honor or conscience, caring only for one thing—money; having but one passion—the love of power and halting at nothing, not even at crime, to secure it. That is the portrait they draw of your father."

Jefferson said nothing. He was wondering if his sire had a suspicion who wrote it and was leading up to that. But Ryder senior continued:

"Do I care? The more they attack me the more I like it. Their puny pen pricks have about the same effect as mosquito bites on the pachyderm. What I am, the conditions of my time made me. When I started in business a humble clerk, forty years ago, I had but one goal—success; I had but one aim—to get rich. I was lucky. I made a little money, and I soon discovered that I could make more money by outwitting my competitors in the oil fields. Railroad conditions helped me. The whole country was money mad. A wave of commercial prosperity swept over the land, and I was carried along on its crest. I grew enormously rich, my millions increasing by leaps and bounds. I branched out into other interests, successful always, until my holdings grew to what they are today—the wonder of the twentieth century. What do I care for the world's respect when my money makes the world my slave? What respect can I have for a people that cringe before money and let it rule them? Are you aware that not a factory wheel turns, not a vote is counted, not a judge is appointed, not a legislator seated, not a president elected without my consent? I am the real ruler of the United States—not the so called government at Washington. They are my puppets and this is my executive chamber. This power will be yours one day, boy, but you must know how to use it when it comes."

"I never want it, father," said Jefferson firmly. "To me your words savor of treason. I couldn't imagine that American talking that way." He pointed to the mantel, at a picture of George Washington.

Ryder senior laughed. He could not help it if his son was an idealist. There was no use getting angry, so he merely shrugged his shoulders and said:

"All right, Jeff. We'll discuss the matter later when you've cut your wisdom teeth. Just at present you're in the clouds. But you spoke of my doing you an injustice. How can my love of power do you an injustice?"

"Because," replied Jefferson, "you exert that power over your family as well as over your business associates. You think and will for everybody in the house, for everyone who comes in contact with you. Yours is an influence no one seems able to resist. You robbed me of my right to think. Ever since I was old enough to think you have thought for me; ever since I was old enough to choose you have chosen for me. You have chosen that I should marry Kate Roberts. That is the one thing I wished to speak to you about. The marriage is impossible."

Ryder senior half sprang from his seat.

"So," he said sternly, "this is your latest act of rebellion, is it? You are going to welsh on your word? You are going to jilt the girl?"

"I never gave my word," answered Jefferson hotly. "Nor did Kate understand that an engagement existed. You can't expect me to marry a girl I don't care a straw about. It would not be fair to her."

"Don't be a fool, Jeff. I don't want to think for you or to choose for you or to marry for you. I did not interfere when you threw up the position I made for you in the Trading company and took that studio. I realized that you were restless under the harness, so I gave you plenty of rein. But I know so much better than you what is best for you. Believe me I do. Don't—don't be obstinate. This marriage means a great deal to my interests—to your interests. Kate's father is all powerful in the senate. He'll never forgive this disappointment. Hang it all, you liked the girl once, and I made sure that"—

He stopped suddenly, and the expression on his face changed as a new light dawned upon him.

"It isn't that Rossmore girl, is it?" he demanded. His face grew dark, and his jaw clicked as he said between his teeth: "I told you some time ago how I felt about her. If I thought that it was Rossmore's daughter! You know what's going to happen to him, don't you?"

Thus appealed to, Jefferson thought this was the most favorable opportunity he would have to redeem his promise to Shirley. So, little anticipating the tempest he was about to unchain, he answered:

"I am familiar with the charges that they have trumped up against him. Needless to say, I consider him entirely innocent. What's more, I firmly believe he is the victim of a contemptible conspiracy. And I'm going to make it my business to find out who the plotters are. I came to ask you to help me. Will you?"

"I will see him hanged first! He has always opposed me. He has always defied my power, and now his daughter has entrapped my son. So it's her you want to go to, eh? Well, I can't make you marry a girl you don't want, but I can prevent you throwing yourself away on the daughter of a man who is about to be publicly disgraced, and I will."

"Poor old Rossmore!" said Jefferson bitterly. "If the history of every financial transaction were made known, how many of us would escape public disgrace? Would you?" he cried.

Ryder senior rose, his hands working dangerously. He made a movement as if about to advance on his son, but by a supreme effort he controlled himself.

"No, upon my word, it's no use disinheriting you. You wouldn't care. I think you'd be glad—on my soul, I do." Then, calming down once more, he added: "Jefferson, give me your word of honor that your object in going away is not to find out this girl and marry her unknown to me. I don't mind your losing your heart, but don't lose your head. Give me your hand on it."

Jefferson reluctantly held out his hand.

"If I thought that you would marry that girl unknown to me I'd have Rossmore sent out of the country, and the woman too. Listen, boy. This man is my enemy, and I show no mercy to my enemies. There are more reasons than one why you cannot marry Miss Rossmore. If she knew one of them she would not marry you."

"What reasons?" demanded Jefferson.

"The principal one," said Ryder slowly and deliberately, and eying his son keenly as if to judge of the effect of his words, "the principal one is that it was through my agents that the demand was made for her father's impeachment."

"Ah," cried Jefferson, "then I guessed aright!"

"Marry Kate or not, as you please, but I want you to stay here," the elder man said after a pause.

"It's no use. My mind is made up," answered Jefferson decisively.

The telephone rang, and Jefferson got up to go. Mr. Ryder took up the receiver.

"Hallo! What's that? Sergeant Ellison? Yes, send him up."

Putting the telephone down, Ryder senior rose and, crossing the room, accompanied his son to the door.

"Think it well over, Jeff. Don't be hasty."

A few minutes later Jefferson left the house.

The door opened and Mr. Bagley entered, followed by a tall, powerfully built man, whose robust physique and cheap looking clothes contrasted strangely with the delicate ultrafashionably attired English secretary.

"Take a seat, sergeant," said Mr. Ryder cordially, motioning his visitor to a chair. The man sat down gingerly on one of the rich leather upholstered chairs. His manner was nervous and awkward, as if intimidated in the presence of the financier.

"Are the national committee still waiting?" demanded Mr. Ryder.

"Yes, sir," replied the secretary.

"I'll see them in a few minutes. Leave me with Sergeant Ellison."

Mr. Bagley bowed and retired.

Ryder, with his customary bluntness, came right down to business.

"Well, what have you been doing about the book?" he demanded. "Have you found the author of 'The American Octopus?'"

"No, sir; I have not. I confess I'm baffled. The secret has been well kept. The publishers have shut up like a clam. There's only one thing that I'm pretty well sure of."

"What's that?" demanded Ryder, interested.

"That no such person as Shirley Green exists."

"Oh," exclaimed the financier, "then you think it is a mere nom de plume?"

"Yes, sir."

"And what do you think was the reason for preserving the anonymity?"

"Well, you see, sir, the book deals with a big subject. It gives some hard knocks, and the author no doubt felt a little timid about launching it under his or her real name. At least that's my theory, sir."

"And a good one, no doubt," said Mr. Ryder. Then he added: "That makes me all the more anxious to find out who it is. I would willingly give this moment a check for $5,000 to know who wrote it. Whoever it is, knows me as well as I know myself. We much find the author."

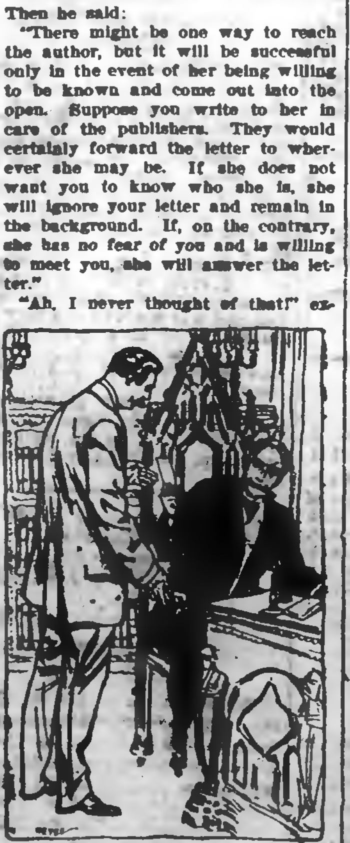
The sleuth was silent for a moment. Then he said:

"There might be one way to reach the author, but it will be successful only in the event of her being willing to be known and come out into the open. Suppose you write to her in care of the publishers. They would certainly forward the letter to wherever she may be. If she does not want you to know who she is, she will ignore your letter and remain in the background. If, on the contrary, she has no fear of you and is willing to meet you, she will answer the letter."

"Ah, I never thought of that!" exclaimed Ryder. "It's a good idea. I'll write such a letter at once. It shall go tonight."

He unhooked the telephone and asked Mr. Bagley to come up. A few seconds later the secretary entered the room.

"Bagley," said Mr. Ryder, "I want you to write a letter for me to Miss Shirley Green, author of that book 'The American Octopus.' We will address it care of her publishers, Littleton & Co. Just say that if convenient I should like a personal interview with her at my office, 36 Broadway, in relation to her book, 'The American Octopus.' See that it is mailed tonight. That's all."



"Here is $500 for you."

Mr. Bagley bowed and retired. Mr. Ryder turned to the secret service agent.

"There, that's settled. We'll see how it works. And now, sergeant, I have another job for you, and if you are faithful to my interests you will not find me unappreciative. Do you know a little place on Long Island called Massapequa?"

"Yes," grinned the detective, "I know it. They've got some fine specimens of 'skeeters' there."

Paying no attention to this jocularity, Mr. Ryder continued:

"Judge Rossmore is living there pending the outcome of his case in the senate. His daughter has just arrived from Europe. My son Jefferson came home on the same ship. They are a little more friendly than I care to have them. You understand. I want to know if my son visits the Rossmores, and if he does I wish to be kept informed of all that's going on. You understand?"

"Perfectly, sir. You shall know everything."

Mr. Ryder took a blank check from his desk and proceeded to fill it up; then, handing it to the detective, he said:

"Here is $500 for you. Spare neither trouble nor expense."

"Thank you, sir," said the man as he pocketed the money. "Leave it to me."

"That's about all, I think. Regarding the other matter, we'll see how the letter works."

He touched a bell and rose, which was a signal to the visitor that the interview was at an end. Mr. Bagley entered.

"Sergeant Ellison is going," said Mr. Ryder. "Have him shown out and send the national committee up."

CHAPTER X.

"WHAT!" exclaimed Shirley, changing color. "You believe that John Burkett Ryder is at the bottom of this infamous accusation against father?"

It was the day following her arrival at Massapequa, and Shirley, the judge and Stott were all three sitting on the porch. Until now by common consent any mention of the impeachment proceedings had been avoided by every one. The previous afternoon and evening had been spent listening to an account of Shirley's experiences in Europe, and a smile had flitted across even the judge's careworn face as his daughter gave a humorous description of the picturesque Paris students with their long hair and peg top trousers, while Stott simply roared with laughter. Ah, it was good to laugh again after so much trouble and anxiety! But, while Shirley avoided the topic that lay nearest her heart, she was consumed with a desire to tell her father of the hope she had of enlisting the aid of John Burkett Ryder. The great financier was certainly able to do anything he chose, and had not his son Jefferson promised to win him over to their cause? So today after Mrs. Rossmore and her sister had gone down to the village to make some purchases Shirley timidly broached the matter. She asked Stott and her father to tell her everything, to hold back nothing. She wanted to hear the worst.

Stott, therefore, started to review the whole affair from the beginning, explaining how her father in his capacity as judge of the supreme court had to render decisions, several of which were adverse to the corporate interests of a number of rich men, and how since that time these powerful interests had used all their influence to get him put off the bench. He told her about the Transcontinental case and how the judge had got mysteriously tangled up in the Great Northern Mining company and of the scandalous newspaper rumors, followed by the news of the congressional inquiry. Then he told her about the panic in Wall street, the sale of the house on Madison avenue and the removal to Long Island.

"That is the situation," said Stott when he had finished. "We are waiting now to see what the senate will do. We hope for the best. It seems impossible that the senate will condemn a man whose whole life is like an open book, but unfortunately the senate is strongly Republican and the big interests are in complete control. Unless support comes from some unexpected quarter we must be prepared for anything."

Support from some unexpected quarter! Stott's closing words rang in Shirley's head. Was that not just what she had to offer? Unable to restrain herself longer and her heart beating tumultuously from suppressed emotion, she cried:

"We'll have that support! We'll have it! I've got it already! I wanted to surprise you! Father, the most powerful man in the United States will save you from being dishonored!"

The two men leaned forward in eager interest. What could the girl mean? Was she serious or merely jesting?

But Shirley was never more serious in her life. She was jubilant at the thought that she had arrived home in time to invoke the aid of this powerful ally. She repeated enthusiastically:

"We need not worry any more. He has but to say a word, and these proceedings will be instantly dropped. They would not dare act against his veto. Did you hear, father, your case is as good as won?"

"What do you mean, child? Who is this unknown friend?"

"Surely you can guess when I say the most powerful man in the United States? None other than John Burkett Ryder!"

She stopped short to watch the effect this name would have on her hearers. But to her surprise neither her father nor Stott displayed the slightest emotion or even interest. Puzzled at this cold reception, she repeated:

OBITUARY

ROBERT GRAHAM.

The death occurred at Lindsay on Friday afternoon of Mr. Robert Graham, father of Mr. Andrew Graham, grocer of this city. He was eighty-eight years of age and was highly respected by a large number of friends. The funeral took place at Lindsay on Sunday afternoon.

WILFRID A. SMITH.

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon of Wilfrid Alfred Smith, at his late residence, 643 Bethune street. The deceased was 43 years of age, and was born in Liskeard, Cornwall, England.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and three children.

The funeral took place this afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JOHN IRWIN.

Mrs. John Irwin, who passed away on Saturday, had been ill for about three months and her death, while not unexpected, was heard of with great regret by many friends. Her maiden name was Eliza Ann Lang, and she was a native of Otonabee township.

She had resided in the city for the past fifty-five years. She is survived by her husband, three sons, Fred, Robert and John, of Peterborough, and two daughters, Mrs. Jas. Lillico, of North Monaghan, and Mrs. Frank Derrick, of this city.

The funeral took place to Little Lake cemetery this afternoon.

REQUEST REFUSED

Kingston, May 14.—A request of the Sisters of Charity for leave to attend a kindergarten class in the public school as teachers in training or visitors was before the Board of Education last evening, and it was refused, and Dr. Wm. George Clapp Rehearsing Diligently for Novelty Box Act He Will Perform on Night of Bout

George Clapp, who will do the clever novelty box stunt at the Opera house on the night of the Hurtubuise-Rogers bout is practicing faithfully for the difficult act.

To do the act he is required to be in the best of condition and besides constant rehearsal has to be very particular as to his diet. The stunt is a particularly difficult and original one and of great interest to any audience.

HURTUBISE HAD FINE WORKOUT

Took on Three Men and Worked for an Hour and Twenty Minutes.

"Gene" Hurtubuise had a great workout at the YMCA on Saturday afternoon and appears in cast iron condition. He did some relay wrestling taking on three men and staying with the grind for about an hour and twenty minutes.

He didn't seem to be at all bothered by the long workout and was as fresh as a daisy at the conclusion of it.

The Review had a conversation with Hurtubuise on Saturday night and the latter stated he was feeling fine and was working out very hard. He retires at 10 o'clock, and rises at a quarter to six. He does considerable outdoor work before breakfast.

"I am doing all I can," he said to get into the pink of condition. I realize that I am up against the proposition of my life and am taking no chances.

LOCAL WALKERS SIGN CONTRACT

All Arrangements Complete for the Tournament at St. Catharines

The conditions of the St. Catharines walk, which commences on the 15th, have been signed by three local walkers as an expression of their willingness to live up to them as starters in the race. The three pedestrians referred to are Jim Harrison, Charles Stevens and David Hartley. They all have been entered for the race and are training for the event. Stenner may also enter.

There will be a five mile an hour limit governing the race and 120 miles will have to be covered by those starters who are to get within the money. The walk will be open to Canada only.

DIVISION OF MONEY.

The money will be divided in the following percentages:—In case one man finishes he will receive all of the walkers' 50 cent of the gross receipts. In case two finishes the money will be divided 60 and 40 per cent; if three finish, 46, 32 and 22 per cent.; four, 42, 27, 19 and 14 per cent.; five, 40, 25, 15, 12 and 8. The prize money will be limited to five.

HOURS OF RACE.

The walk will be for 24 hours. On every night except Saturday it will be held from 8.30 to 11 o'clock, and on Saturday from two o'clock in the afternoon to 11 at night.

It will be held in the Phelps street roller rink. There promises to be a large field of entries including many from St. Catharines.

Mr. C. G. Graham has been agreed upon by both contestants as referee for the bout between Bobby Long and A. C. Yokome, which will take place on Wednesday night at the Grand Opera House for the featherweight championship of Peterborough.

The go will be the main preliminary to the Hurtubise-Rogers match.

Mr. Graham was decided upon today. He has a most intimate knowledge of the mat game and is known as absolutely fair and competent.

PLAYERS ASKED TO TURN OUT

All those who wish to catch a place on the Athletics, are requested to turn out at the practices of the team. Players desirous of making the team will be welcome.

FOUR HOUR WALK AT LAKEFIELD

Lakefield, May 15—A walking tournament will be held in the skating rink, Lakefield, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 20, 21 and 22nd. Considerable interest is being taken in the event, and a large crowd will likely be present each evening. At the present time there are about fifteen entries, and a number from the surrounding district have expressed their intention of entering the race. The committee in charge are sparing no expense to make it a success.

Following is the time table:

ABOLISH SUNDAY SCHOOL IF FATHERS TRAIN THE CHILDREN

Sermon By Rev. Robt. A. Pogue on the "God of Our Fathers" Last Evening—Large Congregations at Anniversary Services at St. Paul's Church Yesterday—Excellent Music by the Choir.

"The God of our Fathers" was the subject of an earnest and thoughtful sermon by Rev. Robt. A. Pogue at St. Paul's church last evening. Large congregations were present both morning and evening at St. Paul's church yesterday, it being the occasion of the anniversary services. Excellent sermons were delivered by the pastor and splendid music was rendered by the choir. At the evening service Mr. W. McIlroy and Miss Helen Davies sang a duet, "The Day is dying in the West," in a very pleasing manner.

Speaking from the words of the 30th verse of the 5th chapter of the Acts of the apostles, "The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom ye slew and hanged on a tree," Rev. Mr. Pogue delivered an able address.

At the outset he said that there were many bonds that held a community together. Perhaps it was a political party, or sometimes it was the love of country. Patriotism was a Christian duty. But, the speaker argued that there was no bond so strong as that of a common religion. It may be that one does not feel it here but if one was out in darkest China, it would be his earnest desire to grasp the hand of one who would speak the gospel of Jesus Christ. Thus when the apostle spoke of the God of our fathers he established a stronger bond than if he said the God of our political fathers.

Continuing the speaker drew attention to some lines of thought contained in the words of the text. The first inference to be drawn was that our fathers were religious men. They were men who lived pure lives and God was associated with them in everything they did. Everyone should take God into their lives into their business and let Him be the ruling Power.

Secondly he said our father sought to perpetuate their religion and they did. Often letters appeared in newspapers, condemning and ridiculing the missionary enterprises, of the church, but the speaker asked, "What would the fathers of these writers have become, if they had carried out the advice of their sons." Our fathers did not neglect the religious training of their children," said Mr. Pogue. The reverend gentleman stated that if parents would only gather their children about them and teach them he would gladly advocate the abolition of Sunday Schools. Many children knew not their fathers as religious men.

The third inference, Mr. Pogue drew attention to was that if did not follow that the religion of our fathers would be ours. Religion was not hereditary. Religion was a matter of personal choice, but everyone should say, "the religion of the gospel of Jesus Christ shall be mine."

In conclusion the speaker asked two questions, "Are we so much wiser than our fathers, that we shall not adopt their religion?" Theirs was the religion of Jesus Christ and it cannot be improved. Secondly "Your father cannot live and die without God, can you?" The pastor closed with saying "If we hope to meet our fathers in Heaven, their religion must be ours."

At the conclusion of the sermon, Mr. C. M. Copeland, Provincial Secretary of the YMCA, gave a short address.

FORMER LOCAL MAN ERECTING BIG BUILDING IN VANCOUVER

The Vancouver World of May 2nd, a copy of which has been received by the Review, contains a lengthy article descriptive of a business block to be built by Mr. R. V. Winch, son of Mr. R. J. Winch, of this city. It will be situated at the corner of Hastings and Howe streets and in size will be 104x120 feet and five storeys in height. The cost will be $380,000. The World says in part:

"Mr. R. V. Winch's, idea has been all along to put up a building which will be better than anything erected in the office division, and will be used for nothing else; something that will be a landmark in Vancouver, the pride of its citizens, and built of materials which will last for many years; the envy of Seattle and San Francisco and a building in which only business men of the highest repute and standing will be able to locate."

The contract for the building has been let.

The article contains a three column cut of the new building.

SAULT STE. MARIE VISITED BY A $300,000 FIRE TO-DAY

Special to the Review.

Sault Ste Marie, May 18 —Fire, which it is supposed started from a dynamo in the power house of the Lake Superior power house here at four o'clock this morning, destroyed the Algoma water and light power house, Lake Superior company's power plant 800 ton pulp and paper mill store room. The estimated loss about $300; fully covered by insurance.

Two men, A. Walsh, dynamo tender and E. Grey, his assistant lost their lives in the fire. Neither bodies have been found.

The water, lighting and street car system are affected but it is expected the power will be furnished from the steel plant auxiliary to operate the street railway. Water is now being supplied by the pulp mill auxiliary steam pumps.

It is given out that all departments will be rebuilt at once.

CASE IS BEING HEARD TO-DAY

The charge against P.C. Newhall, of alleged assault on Fishery Inspector David Johnston is being tried to-day. The case is being tried in County Magistrate Edmison's court,

ATHLETICS PUT AWAY THE Y NINE BY A SCORE OF 14-2

Manager Lynch's Outfit Showed up Well—Quinlan is Pitching a Clever Game—Y Team Should be a Factor in Intermediate Circles.

The Athletics romped away from the Y.M.C.A. nine in their practice game of eight innings at the Exhibition park on Saturday afternoon, landing the contest by the tally of 14—2.

The workout was a useful one for Manager Lynch's bunch. There is much good material in the team, which will probably brace up more when up against a stiffer proposition.

The battery for the winners, Quinlan and Dubby Shea, performed in good style. The man in the box was never called upon to extend himself as much as he was capable of doing, but his wing appeared to be in good shape and he had plenty of speed with good control. Shea caught very cleverly and batted to advantage.

Flanerty, Connors and Landry at first, second and third, respectively, held down their positions well. Cahill fielded a sharp game at short. Callahan did conspicuously good work in the outfield. As a whole the Athletics showed up well with the willow and with a little more practice and attention to base running, should prove a strong aggregation. The infield played especially well.

The Y. team looked good for intermediate circles. Although outdistanced by their opponents, the team team did nice work.

Westbrook and McDonald, who did the receiving, both caught well. Patterson pitched pretty well, although touched up pretty freely as the score would indicate.

J. B. Gibson handled the indicator in a way satisfactory to both teams.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

PETERBOROUGHS WILL MEET ATHLETICS NEXT SATURDAY

The event to which local baseball fans have been looking forward to with the keenest interest, the meeting of the Peterborough baseball team and the Athletics will take place at Riverside Park next Saturday afternoon. The arrangements for the game were completed this morning and as both teams would rather win the game than trade places with J. Pierpont Morgan, a great contest is assured. Keen rivalry exists between the two nines and it will be a battle royal all they way. Quinlan & Shea will be the Athletics' battery, and judging from past performance the Petes will be kept busy ~~to land~~ on the sphere. Manager Johnston's team will also have a strong battery and there will be something doing all the time.

The match is an exhibition one but it will be a hummer all the way as neither team is anxious for a loss. There will be a record crowd in attendance.

YANKEE ROGERS WOULDN'T THROW MATCH TO CAZEAU

Refused to Lay Down to the Big Frenchman—Took Suit to Superior Court to Recover $1700—Matter Eventually Settled Out of Court

Yankee Rogers and his manager, W. B. Naylor, will arrive in Peterborough on Wednesday, as they intend to take no chance with the local pet, Gene Hurtubise, when he and Rogers wrestle on Friday night at the Grand Opera House.

Rogers meets Karakanoff, the Turk, at Sherbrooke, on Tuesday night, and will leave there on Wednesday morning and come direct to Peterborough.

Probably the first time that a real challenge, where the betting would be heavy on both men, was the one issued by Manager Naylor to the big Frenchman, Cazeaux, who has been beating quite a good crowd of men at Sohmer Park, Montreal. Rogers, it appears, had a six months' engagement at the Park and wrestled such men as Gotch, Beal, Jenkins, Mohl, Perrille, etc., and always had the sympathies of a large following. When Cazeaux arrived he offered to wrestle Rogers in Boston, but Cazeaux wanted Rogers to lay down. This the big Yankee refused to do absolutely, and the result was he had to take suit in the Superior Court, Montreal, against the promoter of wrestling in Montreal, to recover back wages and percentages. $1,700 was the amount in round figures. The whole of the sporting papers in Montreal, Boston, Buffalo and elsewhere got hold of the story and some very strong remarks were used against the promoter and favorable to Rogers.

The promoter settled without going into court. Mr. T. Walsh, M.P., looked after the Rogers interests in the case. That is the kind of man that the public like and admire, and that is the man that the management have secured to wrestle here.

Mr. Chris. O. Graham, who looks after the interests of the local boy, can be complimented on bringing a man here with such a reputation, and Rogers can be assured of a good hearty welcome when he goes on the mat.

WRESTLING

At Labor Temple, Toronto, on Saturday night Art. Edmunds and Young Muldoon met for the second time and got a fall apiece, Edmunds getting the first in 51.40, and Muldoon the second in 41.45.

The bout was stopped at midnight.

SECTION WILL BE SET ASIDE FOR LADIES

The management of the Hurtubise-Rogers bout are making special efforts to have suitable accommodation provided for the ladies at the Grand Opera House on May 22nd, the night of the match. A section of the house will be reserved for ladies and their escorts. The sport will be fast and clean and should appeal strongly to the fair sex.

PETERBOROUGH BASEBALL TEAM TRIMMED THE ALERTS

The Petes Get Away to a Good Start—Score Was 7--1—Locals Played an Errorless Game—Murphy's Home Run Was One of the Features—Visitors Only Had Three Hits.

Seven to one was the result of the united action of the Peterborough Baseball team against the Alerts of Toronto, at Riverside Park, on Saturday afternoon. — And it was no flukey victory, either. Individually the members of the local nine did well. Murphy, Maddock, Burns, O'Brien and McDermid had a brace of hits each, and Edmunds and Clements one apiece. Cheatham and Lawson were the only men who failed to hit safely. Murphy's pair included a beautiful home run, for which he came in for some loud applause. Freddy Clements held the visitors to three hits and was never in serious danger. They failed to connect safely until the sixth innings, when Harding pounded one down the third base line. Cheatham would have got it had it not struck the bag and bounced away. Spence got a home run in the 7th and Morgan singled in the eighth. Had it not been for Spence's long drive, the Alerts would have been shut out.

The game was played before 500 fans and was interesting to watch, although the score was too one-sided to make the contest really exciting. Starting with three runs in the first innings the locals continued to nail down the victory as they proceeded and there never was much chance of their being headed off. In addition to hammering Mr. Harding for twelve safeties they played an errorless game, and showed all the ear marks of a winning team. In addition to its merits as a good exhibition of baseball the game was watched with interest, because it afforded the fans an opportunity of getting a line on the team Manager Art. Johnston has gathered to win the Midland League pennant. And while one victory does not make a winning team any more than does one swallow make a summer, or one swallow a "bummer," still it must be said that the local line looks all to the good and something to tarry.

To start with the pitcher, the most important man on the team, Freddy Clements looks to be the real thing. He showed a variety of benders on Saturday that should stand him in good stead in any game, and has a barrelful of speed that will take a long time in running dry. Thorne, who will play first bag during the season, and Jimmie O'Hearne, who will cover the second sack, were unable to come, but they are reputed to be good ones. O'Hearne has appeared here before and has delivered the goods, in addition to having a reputation. Lawson and McDermid, who took their places, did good work.

"Teddy" Maddock, the short-stop, will have no difficulty in making good in Midland League Company. He plays the position nicely, although he did not have much to do in the fielding line on Saturday. He is a heavy and hard man with the stick, and had two nice singles on Saturday. "Red" Cheatham was there with the bells on at third. He was a little off in his hitting on Saturday, but should improve as the season progresses. Edmunds, who will do the receiving, is a worthy successor of Harry Burridge. He has a nice throwing arm, catches neatly and is a good hitter. The Italian outfield, Murphy, O'Brien and Burns, did not have much to do in their positions in the first game but showed their ability with the hickory. Each had two safeties, one being a home run. The agile left fielder is an excellent man on the coaching line and took time on Saturday to turn a handspring on the base circuit, just to even things up a bit. The team looks strong in all departments and played great ball on Saturday, considering the fact that weather conditions have precluded any practice together, and that the field was very soft, especially in the outfield. To play an errorless game under the conditions was somewhat of a remarkable feat.

The Alerts did not show the form that was expected of them. They had four muffs charged against them and were not hitting the ball. Clements did not have to let himself out to the fullest extent to pull out the victory, and it was not a hard one, either.

Some rain fell at the beginning of the sixth innings, but the clouds rolled away quickly and it was not necessary to stop the game.

GAME BY INNINGS.

First Innings—Storey was up for the Alerts and went out, pitcher to first. Spence and Gibson struck out.

Cheatham was the first man of the Peterboroughs to face the pitcher and he fanned the air three times and went back to the bench. Murphy got the first hit of the game, and season, a nice single. Maddocks repeated the stunt and Murphy went to second and stole third. Burns pounded out the pellet to the Alert shortstop who muffed it, and the batter was safe on first and Murphy crossed the plate amid cheers. Edmunds drew a base on balls and O'Brien singled and scored Maddocks and Burns. McDermid went out, pitcher to first, and Lawson flew out to Storey. Three runs.

Second innings—Dalzell struck out. White flew out to Maddocks and Morgan was retired, McDermid to Lawson.

Clements hit safely but was caught napping at second owing to loose coaching. Cheatham again fanned and then Murphy came up and hammered one of Mr. Manning's benders into the willows beyond left field. "Murph" tore around the bases like a two-year-old and was credited with a home run. He was given an ovation by the fans as he came home. Maddocks went out, pitcher to first. One run.

Third innings—Gordon went out, second to first, Chandler struck out and Harding flied to Cheatham.

Burns singled, Edmunds sacrificed, O'Brien drew a base on balls and stole second. McDermid singled and scored Burns and O'Brien. Lawson flied to second and Clements struck out. Two runs.

Fourth innings—Storey and Spence struck out and Gibson was retired by Edmunds catching a foul fly.

Cheatham drew a base on balls. Murphy flied to Chandler, who transferred to Morgan and Cheatham was caught at second. Maddocks pounded out a high one that was handled by White.

Fifth innings—Dalzell's fly was caught by Murphy, White went out, pitcher to first, Morgan was hit by pitcher and stole second. Gordon was retired, pitcher to first.

Burns singled and Edmunds duplicated. Burns had stolen second and tried to come home on Edmunds' hit but the third base and was out. O'Brien was walked and McDermid hit safely scoring Edmunds. Lawson drew four balls and Clements went out, pitcher to catcher. O'Brien was caught at first. One run.

Sixth innings—Chandler was out, second to first, Harding singled towards third base, but was caught at first afterwards. Storye's fly was caught by Clements.

Cheatham struck out, Murphy was out, pitcher to first, Maddocks singled and Burns' fly was caught by Morgan.

Seventh innings—Spence distinguished himself in the opening of the seventh by a home run, the ball dropping among the willows. Gibson flew out to McDermid and Dalzell's grounder was taken care of by Lawson. White fanned.

Edmunds made first on Manning's error, O'Brien singled and stole second. Edmunds was caught at third. McDermid flew out to centre field. O'Brien was put out at the home plate, before which Lawson had drawn a base on balls and stolen second.

Eighth innings—Morgan hit safely and stole second, Gordon flew out to McDermid, Chandler's pop was caught by Clements and Harding went out, Clements to Lawson.

Clements and Cheatham struck out. Murphy got first on Gibson's error and Maddocks was out, second to first.

Ninth innings—Storey flew out to Cheatham, Spence struck out, and Gibson was retired, Maddocks to Lawson.

Score—Peterborough 7, Alerts 1.

TWO OUTSIDE MATCHES FOR 25TH OF MAY

Teams Picked From Y. M. C. A. and T. A. S. to Play at Port Hope and Millbrook

Two teams picked from the Y.M.C.A. and T.A.S. teams will play in Port Hope and Millbrook on May 25th. Both games will be played out of town. The team playing in Port Hope will stack up against the intermediate twelve of the Lake Ontario town, and the other team will clash with the regular Millbrook town bunch.

It is imperative that all Y.M.C.A. and T.A.S. players turn out to practice regularly to be in condition for

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

A DAINTY GIFT.

The Girl Who Plays Will Enjoy a Music Case.

A dainty gift for the girl who plays is a cover to hold sheet music that can be laid on the piano or on a table near it. This prevents the unsightly litter of music that is often a source of conflict between mother and musical daughter.

Cut two pieces of heavy cardboard a little larger than the ordinary piece of music. Paste on each side with cotton batting and cover with linen taffeta, brocaded silk or even plain art canvas in a color suitable to the room.

Paste the outer covering down over the pasteboard and baste the lining to it, turning in the edges neatly all around. Overcast together with the tiniest possible stitches.

Finish around the edge of the outside with gold braid. The two halves can be joined along the back edge by a piece of elastic webbing in a harmonizing color. This will stretch so as to hold any number of sheets of music.

Fasten the case in front with a small gilt button and a loop of colored elastic rather than with ribbon, which soils easily and must be constantly untied.

It is better to keep the music in this case loose, but if preferred the sheets can be pasted togther and fastened to the back by ribbon run through the center and around the back of the case, or holes can be punched through case and music, and it can be tied in with three short pieces of ribbon.

These cases may be made of the simplest yet most artistic materials, such as cretonnes and English chintzes, or they can be elaborately embroidered on white silk or brocades, in gold and silver thread or in ribbon work.

An attractive cover for a green room would be of heavy green moire, with a medallion formed of half, quarter, eighth, sixteenth and thirty-second notes, worked in gold thread in solid embroidery and interlaced in an artistic way.

This should be large enough to hold a monogram, or the medallion could be oval in shape, with the word "Music Case" embroidered on the inside.

If a large floral design of taffeta is used, see that it comes evenly on the center of each board.

SEED WHEAT.

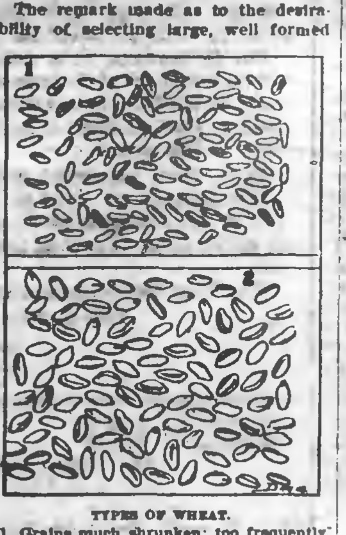
A Comparison Between Plump and Lightweight Grain.

One of the conditions indicated most to be deplored is the great tendency of growers to use small pinched seed. The question is constantly being brought to us as to the value of pinched grain for seed purposes.

It is not easy to give an accurate definition as to what is meant by shriveled seed; but the illustration here given will serve to show the contrast between plump and shriveled seed as here discussed. Doubtless the entire discussion is due to the fact that extremely inferior looking seed will actually germinate and to a certain extent grow and bear a crop and under favorable conditions may even produce a good yield. This fact has unfortunately given rise to much carelessness in the selection of seed wheat, which must be overcome if we are to secure the highest results in grain culture.

That this tendency to use such lightweight grain is great cannot be so clearly shown as can the relative size of the grain, but in general this is indicated by the relative weights per bushel, and in all cases where the grain falls considerably below sixty pounds per bushel it may be said that it was pinched. In numerous cases the samples fell below fifty pounds per bushel in weight.

The remark made as to the desirability of selecting large, well formed grains for seed purposes has even greater force here, for in the case of pinched wheat we have a defective seed in that it is the product of a plant debilitated from some cause. We must not, however, look upon these grains as likely to produce shriveled grains as a product unless the conditions for such production favor it, and then only from the fact that the parent of the pinched grain has evidently been easily affected by similar conditions, thus indicating its susceptibility to such result. The main reason for the tendency of large, plump grains to produce superior plants and a higher yield is due rather to the greater reserve food supply which the young plant can draw upon than to a matter of heredity unless a constitutional weakness of the plant has been introduced by the continued selection of pinched wheat from successive crops. The young plant from the plump seed has a more vigorous start and is enabled to withstand any unfavorable conditions of soil or climate better than the weaker plantlet from pinched seed.



TYPES OF WHEAT.

[1. Grains much shrunken; too frequently selected for seed. 2. A good sample for seed.]

The main reason for the difference is physiological and lies in the larger reserve food supply in the larger seed. It has been shown that heavier seeds possess more of the important plant foods—phosphoric acid, nitrogen and potash. These materials are the first nourishment which the plantlet gets. There is abundant material immediately available to the plantlet, and the young plant is soon in a position to take a vigorous hold upon the soil. That the germination of such pinched seed is fair is indicated by a germination test made by the writer which showed 92 per cent of the grain actually germinated, but the plantlets were very weak, and undoubtedly their vitality would always remain low.

These results are in entire harmony with what we know as to the necessity of securing vigorous, plump seed in the case of alfalfa and other crops. The same fact is recognized by the farmer with reference to the parentage of his animals, but unfortunately the idea holds that the case is different with wheat.—G. W. Shaw, California Experiment Station.

Care of Trees For Planting.

At planting time prune the roots as soon as they are dug and immediately pack them for shipment or, best of all, put them in their permanent place if possible. Always protect them from winds, freezing temperature and strong sun. Cut all damaged and bruised roots off at planting time, and remember always to keep them covered with a wet cloth, straw or moss while out of the ground.—C. I. Lewis.

Swine Husbandry.

It is admitted that the greatest profit in raising hogs for the market lies in forcing their feeding from the time of birth until ready to be sold, remarks a writer in Farm and Fireside. But hogs raised for breeding purposes should have altogether different treatment.

CUT OFF BY THE TIDE.

Perilous Adventure of Mother and Children on Yorkshire Coast.

A thrilling adventure recently befell a York lady and her four little children under the precipitous sea-washed cliffs near Filey, on the Yorkshire coast. The spot has a sinister reputation locally, for here it was, some two years ago, that the mangled remains of the crew of the ill-fated steamer Sumas were discovered. It appears that Mrs. Fall and her children were visiting Gristhorpe, a village near Filey, and went out for a stroll, taking light refreshments for the children, but intimating that they would return for a mid-day dinner. They went to Cayton Bay, half-way between Filey and Scarborough, and reaching the shore scrambled along over the rocks under the cliffs in the direction of Filey. The cliffs range from 200 to 280 feet in height, and are unclimbable beyond a few yards from the bottom to which the tide rises. Shortly afterwards they learned, to their dismay, that the tide had turned, and that their retreat was completely cut off. The position was an extremely alarming one. In their extremity, however, the little party managed to climb the dangerous cliffs to a place of comparative safety, and here for weary hours they waited in the hope of attracting the notice of a passing fishing boat. But no boat came by, and there was no one to hear their frantic appeals for help. To add to their terror, darkness fell. Meanwhile, as the little party had not returned to Gristhorpe, anxiety was roused, as to their safety, and the vicar, Rev. A. N. Cooper, hastened to Filey and informed the police and coastguard. Rescue parties with ropes and lanterns at once set out, and cobles were got ready to search the shore. But by the time they reached the dangerous spot where the wanderers were found, Mrs. Fall and her children were completely exhausted, their voices gone with shouting through the long, weary hours. Mrs. Fall was so dazed that she allowed the rescuers to pass her without attracting their attention. Two young Filey fishermen, named Lane and Jenkinson, descended the cliffs on a rope at an inlet named Chimney Hole, and found the party, the little ones wrapped in the mother's skirts, of which she had divested herself. Having reassured Mrs. Fall of her immediate safety, the fishermen reascended, and Mr. Dale of Gristhorpe, and P.C. Wilson of Cayton went down and conducted them to a spot where it was easier for them to be hauled up. It was 10.30 before they were brought safely to the top of the cliffs, and midnight before they got home. Mrs. Fall explains that the plight began with a saunter round Cayton Nabb, the children skipping in advance of her, picking their way between the boulders, and shouting gleefully "Come on, mother, there's a path." In this way they got beyond safe limits, and on darkness falling the mother picked the most likely spot, as high up as she could scramble, and made ready for passing the night. All were very hungry, cold, and afraid, and hope almost died when no response came to their shouts for aid. Practically all Gristhorpe was out searching in the evening. When the news reached the Filey fishermen they turned out hurriedly. It was rough, dangerous work descending the precipitous cliffs in the darkness on a rope, but there were plenty of volunteers. The escape of Mrs. Fall and her children is remarkable, for it is generally acknowledged that, in the face of a stronger tide, the frail woman and her children could not possibly have held their places on the side of the cliff as they did.

The Adventures of Chung Ling Soo.

Londoners are still pondering over the mysterious feats performed by Chung Ling Soo at the Hippodrome some time ago. This Chinese magician was one of the first of the great attractions which have appeared at this well-known London variety theatre. He was a favorite of the terrible Dowager Empress of China, who made him a one-button mandarin, and allowed him out of China to amuse foreigners on condition that he reported himself at the Court of Pekin every year. Chung Lung Soo, however, recently so offended the Dowager Empress that he will certainly lose his head if he returns to his native country. Chung happened to come across five robbers who had been buried up to their necks in sand just outside Pekin and left to starve to death. This was too much for the enlightened Chung, who released them and let them escape. The Dowager Empress was at once informed and sent an escort to arrest Chung, but he made his way to Shanghai, and, crossing to San Francisco, he was once more landed in England, via America.

Lord Charles Beresford a Vegetarian.

People who believe that all animals should be left to die a natural death, and buried without having their bones picked, are calling attention to the sturdiness of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, and the fact that for some years he has steadfastly adhered to a vegetarian diet. Not only does Lord Charles refuse to eat meat, but for a long time he has held the theory that man is better without wine or spirits of any kind. In fact, his convictions on this point are so strong that the doctors who attended him during his recent illness had the greatest difficulty in persuading him that stimulants were necessary for his full recovery.

Transplanting a Knee-Joint.

A remarkable feat of surgery is reported from the German town of Koenigsberg.

A cripple, who from birth had been unable to walk without crutches, was taken in hand by Prof. Lexer. The professor amputated the leg of a second man, who had met with an accident, and from the amputated limb he removed the knee joint, which was in a perfectly healthy condition. This he substituted for the undeveloped joint of his other patient.

The bones joined up remarkably well, and the man, at a gathering of doctors, showed that he was able to walk without assistance of any kind.

Curley's Rescues.

By HENRY ROSSMORE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by P. C. Eastment.

Benjy, racing down the street, brought himself up with a jerk as a gong sounded out its brazen alarm. Then he hurried toward the building with the great wide doors in the middle of the block.

The gong was still sounding, and now could be heard the trample of feet and hoofs, the jingle of metal work on the harness, the cries of the men. Then came the lesser note of the "repeat" bell and a hoarse cry of "All right!" from the captain, followed by the trample of hoofs, sounding hollow upon the wooden floor as the fire horses returned to their stalls.

Benjy's face fell. Somewhere in the city horses were dashing madly over the pavements in their race to answer an alarm, but here the great green doors would remain closed. It was only a practice hitch for Thirteen company.

In the summer time practice hitches were the best fun, for the doors stood wide open, and he could watch the men as they put the harness trip in order again and lifted the great straps off the three big grays. Then, too, the firemen lounged in front of the house, and he could hear them talking about the fires they had gone to, brave tales of valorous fights that lost nothing in the telling.

Benjy trotted down the street again to his own doorstep and carefully backed himself into the vestibule. His shrill treble rose in imitation of the clangor of the big gong, and with many a screech and shout he dashed off in the direction of the hydrant on the corner, pretending that he was Thirteen company answering an alarm.

As he neared the fire house a second time the gong sounded again, and this time the number was followed by three strokes, thrice repeated. Thirteen company made a quick hitch. A third alarm following so closely upon the first meant a fire well worth hurrying to. They went out on the third alarm from that station, and Lieutenant Curley sprang to the big doors and threw them open just as Benjy, running up, slipped on the pavement and fell full length in the path of the excited horses.

"YOU'RE DEAD SLOW, DICK—EXCEPT WHEN YOU'RE AT A FIRE."

There was no holding back the grays, but Quinn, the driver, forced them over to the left, while Curley sprang forward and caught the child by the arm, throwing him to one side just as the tender came up to the door and the wheels of the steamer almost grazed Curley's arm. Then he sprang to the tender steps, and they were turning the corner before Benjy found his voice.

Bessie Borden, who had seen the incident from the steps where she had come in search of Benjy, hurried to him, and presently she was bearing the sobbing child in her arms and mingling with his tears of terror her own tears of gratitude. Beyond a barked knee Benjy was none the worse for his experience.

That night Benjy's father went down to the fire house to discover the name of the man who had saved the boy, and after that Lieutenant Curley was a frequent visitor at the Borden home. Mrs. Borden could not do enough for him, and it was at her suggestion that he boarded with them, taking his meals there in his three "swings" and spending the remainder of his liberty with Bessie Borden, while Benjy gazed solemnly and admiringly at his hero.

Curley's days off, too, were devoted to Bessie. He had neither kith nor kin in the city, and he was glad indeed to find so pleasant a way of spending his time. As regularly as his day of liberty came around it was a vaudeville performance in the afternoon with a melodrama in the evening except in summer, when the delights of the suburban resorts proved more tempting.

But Bessie was not minded to be so easily won. In the fall, when the dancing classes opened and Dick Curley had begun to put on airs of ownership, Pete Bracy came to trouble the hitherto smoothly running course of true love.

Dancing classes, as Pete and Bessie understood such things, were balls without the refreshments and without the necessity for such elaborate dress.

Before the weather grew so cool that the doors of the fire house were shut Pete used to escort Bessie past the house in the hope that they would meet Curley. Often they did, but he scarcely gave heed to them as he went about his work. He would not let Bessie see how hurt he was, and she, womanlike, was the more demonstrative toward Pete because Curley would not show his anger or regret.

Dick Curley gritted his teeth and tried to meet his disappointment like a man, but there were nights when he lay awake in quarters and longed for the call that would take him out to a fire where he could forget his own troubles in the fierce battle with the flames. The ride on the tender through the cool night air always steadied his nerves, and his unrest found ease in action.

So he lay one night trying to forget that a couple of hours earlier he had seen Pete and Bessie pass the house on their way to a dance. It had been a hard day for Thirteen, and the men had turned in early, most of them praying that they would be able to sleep undisturbed. But the clock had just struck the half hour after 10 when the big gong began to count out its dread signal.

In an instant the room was in orderly confusion. The men sprang from their beds into their night boots, pulling their trousers up over the legs of the boots as they ran toward the poles.

The man on the desk and one or two others who had not yet turned in had the horses hitched, and as the great doors swung back and Quinn grasped the trip to release the harness hangers the captain called out:

"Make it in a hurry," he shouted. "That's the box nearest the Orpheum. If the fire is there"—

The rest was drowned in the clang of the tender bell as it followed the steamer from the house, but Curley had heard enough. He had not realized at first that three-seven-three was the box nearest the Orpheum, where Pete and Bessie had gone.

The dance hall was aflame. Some of the hangings had caught fire when the electric plant had failed and recourse was had to gas. Before the engine could cover the three short blocks the flames were bursting through the windows and mounting to the roof.

The owners of the place reported that all had left the building before the fire had become serious, but even as they spoke a woman's form was silhouetted against the background of angry red flame, and a dash was made to the truck for the longest ladder.

Almost before it was against the building Curley had shoved aside the ladder man, who stood ready to mount, and pushed up the ladder ahead of him. He had recognized Bessie.

The ladder was short by a dozen feet, but Dick snapped his hook into the topmost rung and called to the girl to drop into his arms.

"I'm afraid," was the trembling reply, but Dick called again.

"It's me," he assured eagerly. "Don't be afraid, Bess; I won't let you drop."

"Dick! It is you?" There were relief and hope in the tones, and Curley braced himself for the shock of her jump.

Slowly Bessie edged to the sill and for a moment stood there; then she shot downward into the waiting arms, and, slipping his hook, Curley began the descent.

"This is one thing Pete cannot do," he said as he slowly descended.

"Pete's only good for taking me to dancing class," said Bess contemptuously. "There's a whole lot of things he can't do."

"Like what, for instance?" demanded Curley.

"He can't make me say 'Yes' when he asks me to marry him," explained Bess.

Dick's arm tightened about her.

"Can I?" he asked.

"You haven't asked me yet," reminded Bess.

"I'm asking you now," insisted Dick.

"Yes," said Bess softly. "You're dead slow, Dick—except when you're at a fire."

Milton points with pride to a population of 1624, or 144 more than the figures for last year.

OVEREATING.

Dr. Wiley Says It Causes Less Trouble Than Undereating.

Blessed is the man who does not know how he eats, says a doctor. A mouthful of food should pass on its way automatically and without the knowledge of the man who chews it. He who mixes mathematics with his food by counting twenty-eight times on each bite is on the road to emaciated, sad faced dyspepsia. Life has nothing that is worth while for him. I fail to see the use of wasting too much time on one bite while there is another just behind it inviting attention.

Some one quoted me as advising meat eaters to bolt and not chew their meat. I did not give such advice, but I pointed out two undeniable facts—the herb eating animals devote much time to chewing, while the flesh eaters do very little of it. A conclusion may be drawn from these facts.

Overeating causes less trouble to the system than does undereating, and were the score even between the two it would be the part of philosophy to lean to the side of the partaker of much food, for a goodly part of life's happiness is found at the table with a normal appetite. I am against the capsule men. The time will never come when they will have a place in the world as caterers to palate under ordinary conditions. It is entirely possible to condense the nourishment of a whole meal into a few pellets, and these have their place—as, for instance, when it becomes necessary to make enforced marches with the lightest possible burden. But the system would not thrive for long on such a diet, for there must be the necessary bulk to supply the tissues and flush the system.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

Will be glad to explain our plan.

BUGLE BAND IS BEING INCREASED

Five New Trumpets and Three Drums Being Added to the Equipment

The bugle band of the 57th regiment is to be made one of the best in the Dominion. Five new trumpets and three new duplex snare drums of the latest patterns are being added to the equipment and will add greatly to the efficiency of the band With the new instruments the strength of the band will be brought up to fifteen trumpeters and ten drummers. The drums are already here and the trumpets will arrive in a day or two. It is the intention to dispose of all the old drums and equip the band with similar ones to the three that have just arrived.

The band is practicing steadily. Bandmaster Hughes is in charge of the trumpeters and Mr. R. Beach is instructing the drummers.

WON PRIZE IN A PUZZLE CONTEST

Peterborough Man is Successful and Wins Handsome Prize

Peterborough people are being successful in puzzles as well as in Limerick contests. This was evidenced on Saturday when Mr. Edward Hanrahan won third prize in a recent "fifteen puzzle contest," conducted by R. S. Williams & Co. of Toronto. The prize was $75 as a payment on any New Scale Williams' piano.

HORSE KILLED BY FALLING INTO A WELL

Mr. Isaac Noble Lost Valuable Animal Yesterday Afternoon

Mr. Isaac Noble lost a valuable horse yesterday afternoon. The animal had been grazing on a hill behind the Bell Telephone Co. building on Hunter street. Not noticing a deep well. the steed stepped into it and in falling broke its neck and leg. After considerable difficulty the body of the horse was removed from the well and taken away and buried.

DEATH OF A PIONEER RESIDENT

Mr. Joseph Bennett of North Monaghan Has Passed Away—Was Ninety Four Years of Age

One of the oldest residents of the district, Mr. Joseph Bennett, passed away last night at his home in North Monaghan. He was ninety-four years old and death was largely the result of the infirmities of old age. He was conscious up to the last and death came very peacefully. The late Mr. Bennett was a native of Ireland but came to Canada with his parents when two and a half years of age. The family first settled at Cobourg, then moved to Manvers and later to Otonabee. Mr. Bennett moved to North Monaghan about fifty years ago and has resided there ever since. He took an active interest in the welfare of the township and was highly respected by a large number of friends.

The late Mr. Bennett is survived by three sons, Samuel G., John J. and Captain G. W. Bennett, of North Monaghan, and one daughter, Mrs. Pope, of Richelieu, Quebec. His wife predeceased him fifteen years ago.

Mr. Bennett was well known to the summer population at Stony Lake having spent a few weeks there each summer for many years.

The funeral will be private.

CUSTOMS SPIES IN CANADA

Detroiters Object to Smuggling Clothes From Windsor

Windsor, May 18.—So many residents of Detroit have formed the habit of buying their clothes in Windsor, which is but distance five minutes by ferry, and the United States Secret Service was appealed to by the Detroit tailors. For some weeks spies were sent across the river, and stationed within sight of the Semi-ready tailoring store on Sandwich street for the purpose of learning how much trade was being done with American customers. It is stated that the proprietor of the Semi-ready store very cleverly outwitted the customs officers by making use of an entrance opening on another street. The customers came in the front door, but they were never seen going out with the parcels. Windsor merchants talk of reprisals. They say that shoes are smuggled into Canada to save a paltry dollar duty.

There is a saving of from $10 to $20 on fine suits bought in Canada, as compared with the prices across the border. Coupled with this incentive is the admission that in both style and fitting qualities, Semi-ready tailoring is much superior to that of the average custom tailor in the large American cities.

HOTELKEEPER DID NOT SELL TO MINORS

Case Heard Before Magistrate This Morning Was Dismissed --Evidence Was Conflicting

The proprietor of a local hotel was charged with selling liquor to a minor on Thursday, May 7th, at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the hotelkeeper and pleaded not guilty.

Considerable evidence was taken, but it was rather conflicting and His Worship dismissed the case.

A young boy was called and stated that on Thursday the 7th, he and another fellow got five bottles of Kuntz lager at the hotel in question. They drank the beer behind the Murty stove store.

Another lad was called and said he was 18 years of age. He did not buy any liquor in May. When asked by the Chief if he had been talking about the case with anyone the witness said no, but afterwards said that he was talking with the proprietor on Farnham street on Friday. He denied having been in the hotel yard on the Thursday night nor he never had any lager. The witness later admitted that he did get liquor and drank it back of the stove store.

The bartender of the hotel was called. He does all the buying for the hotel. They never buy Kuntz lager.

Another bartender was called and stated that they sold nothing but Calcutt's lager in the hotel.

The proprietor was called. He said that only Calcutt's lager was sold in his house.

GUN EXPLODED, AND WOMAN HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Mrs. Richard Hurd, who resides on the seventh concession of Smith, had a narrow escape on Friday night last from being instantly killed. She had just returned from the yard, where she had been milking the cows, when the accident occurred. It It had been raining and Mrs. Hurd wore a heavy coat. On the wall in the kitchen are two hooks on which hung a double barrel shot gun. Both barrels were loaded.

When Mrs. Hurd took off her coat she put it on one of the hooks with the result that it broke and the gun fell to the floor. In falling the charge exploded and put an immense hole in the wall. the building being a frame one.

It was only by the merest chance that Mrs. Hurd escaped serious injury.

BEWITCHING A WITNESS.

Strange Incantation By Natives In Mombasa.

Remarkable evidence was given by British East African natives who have turned King's evidence at the inquiry into the murder of the Englishman, Mr. Thomas London.

One witness stated that Mr. London was surprised without his gun, and practically hacked to death with knives and an Arab sword, which was produced in court. The witness said that when the murderers were carrying away the body one of them wiped his blood-stained hand on a boundary stone, leaving marks which formed one of the clues leading to the discovery of the body in a hole on the hillside.

Evidence was given showing that the prisoners performed various incantations and sacrificial rites for the purpose of bewitching one of the native boys who had accompanied Mr. London and had witnessed the crime, so that he would not give information to the police.

The boy was placed in a chair and covered with a black cloth, while one of the gang muttered incantations. "Medicine" was then made, and the boy given some Arabic charm. The ceremony concluded with the killing of a black fowl, over the blood of which the boy was made to step.

Five natives were found guilty of the murder and sentenced to death.

UNRULY SPIRITS.

The Story That Comes From Italy About a Haunted House.

Italy is steadily producing the champion "spirit" yarns of the decade. The following comes from Ancona and is given in the language of two brother lawyers, the sons of Signor Marracini, public prosecutor:

"Since several days the strangest events have been taking place in our house. Last night we heard repeated knockings and the moving of furniture in uninhabited rooms. Hurrying thither, we heard a rustling and nothing more. Meanwhile there was a curious disturbance in the electric wires, and all the bells in the house began to ring, making a horrible din. Believing that the wires had somehow got into contact, we had the whole installation examined by a competent person, but everything was in order. But the most remarkable thing was the discovery of jets of water springing from the walls and almost flooding the floors. These were seen not only by us, but by other persons as well. Shortly afterward we were in the dining room when we saw milk coming up through the floor. We reported the matter to some workmen, who examined the walls, broke up the floors, raising the blocks, but they did not find the least trace of milk, water or any other liquid.

"Still the prodigies were not finished, as was shown by the appearance in the dining room of a cup filled with milk. One of us who happened to be close to the spot on the floor where the cup appeared drew a little nearer and saw a cup of coffee and milk arrive. Our father then cried jokingly: 'Coffee and milk? Bah! I should prefer wine.' Shortly afterward, while the table was being cleared, we saw a liquid running from the walls. It was wine. A little while ago a pear appeared, and then we recalled that our sister had asked at table for a pear, but was refused, as she had already eaten enough fruit. The pear was on a dish, which was locked away in the glass sideboard. When the latter was opened the pear was no longer there.

"We then thought that some mysterious mediumistic force might be exercised by our sister, so we watched her every movement carefully and followed the child when she rose from the table. When she passed close to a bookshelf where there were two volumes on spiritualism, one of the books was raised in the air as though by some supernatural force. It hit the girl several times on the shoulders, then danced for a few moments in the air and was then clapped against the wall at the very spot whence the milk had issued."—Chicago News.

Penalizing Night Buyers.

By a special order of the ministry of the interior persons who ring the night bell at the chemist's between 10 o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning will have to pay a tax of 50 hellers (fivepence) in addition to the cost of the medicine or other articles they wish to obtain. The object of the order is not to increase the chemists' receipts nor to burden the public with any new taxes, but merely to induce the public to get medicines and drugs during the hours the shops are open—that is, from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

In urgent cases the fivepence will not be charged, the physician marking the prescription E. N. (Expeditis nocturna). The chemists have agreed to allow the assistants on night duty to keep the moneys received from the new tax as some reimbursement for their extra labor.—Vienna Dispatch to Pall Mall Gazette.

Costly Royal Funerals.

Some foreign papers have been discussing the cost of the recent funeral of King Carlos and the crown prince of Portugal, incidentally recalling the reported outlay on other royal obsequies. Tit-Bits says that no modern ruler has been buried at the cost of Alexander the Great, at whose funeral $5,000,000 was spent, part of the money going toward providing a solid gold coffin for the dead ruler. Emperor William of Germany was buried at a cost of $125,000, and the last rites of the Grand Duke Nicholas used up about $200,000. At the funeral of President Carnot $30,000 was spent on flowers alone. When the Duke of Wellington was laid to rest in 1852, $350,000 was spent, giving him what has been described as the most splendid funeral of the nineteenth century.

New Flags.

The professional flag maker was asked what becomes of all the old flags when a new star, representing a new state, must be placed in the union. "The cheap printed flags," he replied, "are almost a total loss. Of course we keep track of legislation as well as we can and anticipate to a large degree the dawning of the new star, while we work off old stock as fast as possible. In expensive flags we cut out the stars and arrange them, with the addition of the new one, in a new union, according to designs made by congress or the war department. The stripes of course never change. Personally I should like to see the union reformed. Why not our national emblem, the eagle, in the center, surrounded by all the stars in one, two or three circles?" —New York Press.

A New Spelling Fling.

"The Nu Speln Leag of Amurrika has," says the Glasgow Herald, "just added seventy-five more wurds to the langwage. 'Tisis' and 'tung' are two of the wurst. It wood giv us a sik feelin about the diafram to eat an eg spelt with wun 'g.' We get a numness thru all our lims at the site of such foren wurds as 'agast' and 'gard.' 'lam' and 'indetted.' There are about sixty more, but these are more than enuf for wun parragraf."

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS, 1908

To the Electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—It is my privilege to again appear before you as the Conservative candidate in the approaching election of members of the Ontario Legislature, and while on the previous occasion I was in opposition to the Government, I now have the pleasure of supporting the Administration of Hon. J. P. Whitney, whose management of the affairs of the Province, with the support of an able cabinet, has, during his short premiership, proved of such marked benefit.

Measures of a far-reaching character have been passed, and the statute books of the last three years are replete with legislation of a high order, as well for its originality as its soundness. Let me mention a few of the important acts of the past sessions. The establishment of a Railway and Municipal Board, the new act relating to mining, the creation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the amendment of the liquor laws, amendments to the law relating to the election of members of the Legislature, particularly the alteration in the ballot, which is now absolutely secret.

The administration of the public domain, especially the mining laws of the Province, has been most profitable, adding large sums to both revenue and capital, and the different changes which have been effected in the Education Department have met with the approval of all persons, concerned in that most important branch of the public service.

One of the beneficial acts of the Government is the taking within its own hands the distribution of electric energy through the great water power of Niagara Falls, and other rivers capable of hydraulic development. Thus are the different municipalities throughout the Province enabled to obtain the inestimable commodity at a minimum of cost.

The Government, while endeavoring to serve the people generally have not been unmindful of the importance of this riding, and when the new normal schools were to be created one of the four was placed in this constituency, thus affording exceptional advantages to the teachers and schools of this counyt.

In the short time which will elapse before polling day, I shall endeavour to make my views more fully known to you both privately and publicly, and I bespeak your cordial support, not so much becausee of any merits of my own, as on account of the splendid record of the Government.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

T. E. BRADBURN

MORE DETAILS ABOUT THE FIRE AT SAULT STE. MARIE

Dynamo Room of Pulp Mill Gutted—Electric Power Plant Damaged—Two Lives Lost—Street Railway, Water and Light Systems Affected.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 19.—Fire which is supposed to have started from a spark from the dynamo in the power house of the Lake Superior power house early yesterday morning destroyed the Tagona Water and Light power house, the Lake Superior Co.'s power plant, and the Soo Pulp and Paper Mill storeroom.

The estimated loss is about $300,000, fully covered by insurance.

Two men, A. E. Walsh, dynamo tender, and E. Gray, his assistant, lost their lives in the fire.

The water, lighting and street car system are affected, but it is expected power will be furnished from the Steel Plant auxiliary to operate the street railway.

Water is now being supplied by the Pulp Mill auxiliary steam pumps.

It is believed the direct cause of the fire will never be known, as the only men who were in the room at the time are dead. According to statements made by those who knew the workings of the dynamo room the fire might have started from a short circuit on a dynamo. The men in charge made every attempt to check the fire and Walsh climbed upon the machinery and came in contact with a live wire, ending his life.

Gray, it is supposed, attempted to rescue his comrade, and his clothes caught fire. He rushed from the building and passed through the pulp mill followed by a number of employes who made every effort to overtake him and remove the burning clothes. Ascending the stairs at the head of the northern tail race, he plunged into the water.

It is given out that all departments will be rebuilt at once.

ROUTE OF THE POWER LINE

Will be Changed if Hamilton Does Not Make Contract.

Hamilton, May 19.—F. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Assistant Engineer Richards are going over the proposed route of the Government power line, fixing the direction to be taken if Hamilton does not sign a contract. If Hamilton takes Government power the main switching station will be on the mountain top. Otherwise it will be on the mountain side near Dundas. The latter place is preferable as it would lessen the distance to Toronto and make a more central location for the lines, radiating north, south, and west. In any event the line will not cross Burlington Beach, the Toronto and Niagara Co.'s lines, Radial and Grand Trunk tracks taking up all the room there.

Another Dirigible Airship.

Hammondsport. N. Y., May 19.—Charles Oliver Jones of Cincinnati, for several months engaged in perfecting his dirigible type of airship, announces a trial of the ship, the Boomerang, for the first week in June. He will undertake a trip from Hammondsport to Boston. The airship has a gas bag of 18,000 cubic feet capacity, and is so poised that the buoyancy of the gas overcomes the weight of the operator and the motor and makes the machine just equal weight of air. The motor is a 30 horse-power engine. Jones calculates his machine can make thirty-five miles an hour.

To Secure Five More Steamers.

Montreal, May 19.—The Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. are said to be negotiating for the leasing of two or three additional steamers to be used during the tercentenary celebration at Quebec. Owing to the conditions prevailing across the line it is expected that five steamers may be secured from American companies at a low figure. The inquiries being received by the company indicate that an unprecedentedly large number of Americans will make the St. Lawrence river tour this season.

Will Check Purchases.

Ottawa, May 19.—In an effort to reform the Marine and Fisheries Department, Hon. L. P. Brodeur has created a new branch, which will have charge of all purchases for the Department, no matter in what section of the country they be made, and has named Cecil Doutre, as its head. Doutre has for some time been in charge of telegraph and wireless telegraphic branches of the service.

Dispersed 6,000 Arabs.

Paris, May 19.—Official despatches from Gen. Vigy, commander of the French forces in Algeria, state that he has occupied Boudenib, the stronghold of Malai Hassan after vigorously shelling the tribesmen, who numbered 6,000. The enemy dispersed in all directions, abandoning their camp and large quantities of stores and ammunition.

Moir Committed For Trial.

London, Ont., May 19.—Pte. W. A. Moir was committed for trial for the murder of Col.-Sergt. Lloyd on April 18. Edmund Meredith, K.C., who is defending Moir, said he had no statement to make. Moir appears to be greatly troubled, and it is feared that he may attempt suicide.

Fire at London City Hall.

London, May 19.—Fire broke out yesterday in the front room of Caretaker Merritt's suite on the top floor of the City Hall, caused by the breaking of an electric wire suspended from the City Hall to the building across the street. The chemical engine extinguished it.

Cholera Among Troops.

London, May 19.—An official telegram received by the Indian Office reports 27 deaths from cholera in the regiment of Munster Fusiliers, which a week ago was sent into the cholera camp from Major-Gen. Willcock's force now operating against the Mohmands.

Nurse Commits Suicide.

Stratford, May 19.—Taking advantage of the absence of her mother at church, Miss Martha McIntyre, a trained nurse, took carbolic acid, and died shortly after. She was about 30 years of age and a graduate of the Stratford General Hospital.

CANADIAN DOES WELL AT HARVARD

Norman S. B. Gras Has Been Awarded One of the Most Important Honors.

Winnipeg, May 19.—The C. P. R. conciliation board met yesterday. G. Hall, superintendent of the locomotive department, submitted that the board should not go beyond questions affecting the western lines. Bell Hardy chairman of the C. P. R. mechanical unions, claimed that they should deal with similar questions throughout the whole system as the only means of securing peace.

At the request of the chairman Mr. Hardy made a statement reviewing the whole situation. The question whether the whole system or the western lines only shall be dealt with will have to be settled before any progress can be made by the board, which meets again to-day.

Pork Was Diseased.

Port Arthur, May 19.—A joint meeting of the City Council and Board of Health was held yesterday to meet representatives of the Winnipeg meat packers to discuss allegations made by City Meat Inspector Trenks that pork received from the west was found infected with trichina. J. T. Gordon, Gallagher and Dr. Torrance, maintained that this was the only place in all Canada where such infection had been alleged. When Inspector Trenks showed his samples Dr. Torrance admitted that he was right in confiscating the meat. It was finally decided to leave the matter with the Provincial Board of Health.

Street Car Strikers Are Lawless.

Cleveland, O., May 19.—A Broadway street car was partially destroyed by a dynamite torpedo last night.

Twenty-five passengers were in the car, no one was seriously hurt. A panic followed and a mad rush for the exits was made.

A West Madison street car also was damaged by an explosion of powder upon the track.

The floor of the car was broken through, and one woman was severely injured.

Sandflies Cause Accident.

Hamilton, May 19.—Sandflies are so numerous around the bay shore and west end that the yard superintendent had to issue an order for engineers to slow down coming into the Grand Trunk yards at the western city limits. The rails were so slippery from the flies on Sunday that a light engine got beyond control, and crashed into another locomotive, damaging both.

Seven Teams Will Shoot.

Ottawa, May 19.—The entries from Canada in the Schumacher Rifle Competition for teams of 40 men to be shot at the local ranges of the respective teams on Saturday next are:

Royal Canadian Regiment of Halifax, Governor-General's Foot Guards, Ottawa; the Royal Rifles, Quebec; the Royal Grenadiers, Toronto; 43rd, D. C. O. R., Ottawa, and 90th Regiment, Winnipeg.

Despondent, Shoots Himself.

Regina, Sask., May 19.—Harry Mackenzie, a clerk at the collection department of the International Harvester Co., shot himself through the head as a result of despondency over ill-health. The tragedy occurred in the street.

Banker Superannuated.

London, May 19.—After a service of forty years, J. St. L. MacIntosh, manager of the Merchants' Bank, has been superannuated, and Mr. J. E. Magee, manager of the Hamilton branch, will take charge.

Kicked by Horses.

Stratford, May 19.—Michael Goettler had his nose broken, several teeth knocked out, and his left leg broken while attending horses in a stall on Sunday. He was unconscious for upwards of an hour.

Bad Season For Sailors.

Detroit, May 19.—Many marine men will not return to their boats this year on account of the hard winter and the dull opening of navigation this season.

Miners Strike.

Michel, B. C., May 19.—Nine hundred miners discontinued work in the Michel collieries yesterday because of the discharge of one of their men.

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Soo Steel Plant—The Strike at Owen Sound—Amount of Silver Coined at Mint—The French Treaty—Election Bill Further Discussed—Marking Time—Armistice Expires To-day—What Will the Caucus Do?

Ottawa, May 19.—In the House yesterday Hon. Mr. Oliver introduced a bill to amend the Yukon Act by providing for an entirely elective council and audit of public accounts by the Auditor-General.

Mr. Borden asked if statements in the press that Mr. Bernstein, an immigration official at Halifax, had been dismissed, were true. Mr. Oliver said the result of the investigation was to adduce a great deal of conflicting evidence and although charges were not fully substantiated, "it was a question if the amount of suspicion engendered against Bernstein had not done away with his usefulness."

Mr. Borden called attention to a report that the Algoma Steel Co. had stopped operations owing to lack of orders, and asked if the Minister of Railways had under consideration the placing of further orders that work might be resumed.

"That," replied Mr. Graham, with a laugh, "depends on getting the cash." He understood that the National Transcontinental Railway commissioners had the matter of placing of orders with the company under consideration.

Mr. Borden was sorry to hear that the country was in such a bad condition financially.

Referring to the recent strike at Owen Sound, Mr. Borden asked the Minister of Labor for an explanation. Mr. Lemieux said in reality there had been no strike, as there was no engagement of the men by the company and the law could not be applied. He had asked the Deputy Minister to prepare a report.

Mr. Borden read a despatch stating that, owing to miscalculation of high water level on line of the National Transcontinental Railway, a portion of track was flooded and the route would have to be changed.

Mr. Graham said the despatch had not been brought to his attention.

Replying to Mr. Verville, Mr. Lemieux said there was really no strike in connection with the construction of the Montreal postoffice. A fair wage schedule was placed in the contract, and now the bricklayers were complaining that this really amounted to a reduction of the present scale of wages. The contract had been sublet, and it was with the sub-contractors the difficulty had arisen. The Labor Department would have an official go to Montreal.

The Finance Minister informed Mr. Armstrong that $313,[illegible] worth of silver coin has been coined at the mint since its opening, of which $28,026 has been issued.

Mr. Bristol asked when the French treaty would go into effect, and was told that it was difficult to name the date, as the treaty had, so far, only been approved by one branch of the French Chambers and would have to receive approval of the second Chamber.

The debate on the Aylesworth bill was continued yesterday afternoon, the House marking time till the armistice expires to-day.

Mr. Galligher (Kootenay) stated that when the bill was in committee the British Columbia members would have some amendments to submit. He made a plea that although Rudneski had skipped the country other parties to the affidavit alleging fraudulent lists were still in the Dominion and it was the duty of the Manitoba Government to proceed against them.

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) followed, defending the Manitoba lists. As to the clause to legalize marked ballots he said the people of Ontario had fought for years for secrecy and he could not but think that the coming of G. W. Ross to Ottawa had been the cause of the Government incorporating this clause in the bill.

Quoting Hon. Sydney Fisher, who said the other day the Opposition was trying to usurp the powers of Government, he said the Opposition would welcome dissolution. The Government was in the hands of money lenders, grafters and middlemen and the Finance Minister had found it impossible to float G. T. P. bonds, while at the same time he must borrow large sums of money.

Mr. Oliver read a carefully prepared statement. He was half way through when Mr. Staples raised a point of order that he was transgressing the rules. Mr. Speaker upheld Mr. Staples, when Mr. Oliver declared that he had put his ideas in writing in order that the time of the House might not be wasted. Proceeding he was kept busy for some time answering Opposition interruptions.

Referring to the length of time given for revision Mr. Oliver declared that this was fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council, while Dr. Roche pointed out that in practice the judges fixed the time, since their recommendation was always accepted by the Government.

Mr. Bergeron continued and Mr. Miller (South Grey) moved adjournment.

A Conservative caucus will be held to-day to discuss the situation created by the Opposition to the Aylesworth election bill. That Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposals for peace will be rejected and that the word will go out to hold up the bill indefinitely has been practically decided. It is generally understood that Sir Wilfrid has submitted to the Conservative leader a draft of the amendment to the Aylesworth bill, together with an alternative proposition, neither of which, it is said, touches the root of difference between the two parties. The outcome is awaited with much interest. On all hands dissolution is talked of.

NOTABLE FIGURE BEEN REMOVED

Death of Sir Louis Casault, a Leading Citizen of Quebec.

Quebec, May 19.—Death came peacefully yesterday to Sir Louis N. Casault. Sir Louis was born at St. Thomas in 1823. He was professor of commercial and maritime law in Laval University from 1858 to 1891, and was created Q. C. by Viscount Monck in 1867. While at the bar he was counsel for the Province of Quebec in the arbitration for the division and adjustment of the debts of the late provinces of upper and lower Canada and afterwards appointed one of the three arbitrators charged with the settlement of accounts between the Dominion and provinces. He sat for Montmagny in the Canadian Assembly 1854-57, and for Bellechasse in the Commons from 1867 until elevated to the bench of the Superior Court of Quebec in 1870. He received the honor of knighthood in 1894, and became chief justice of the Superior Court the same year.

Insane Clergyman.

Fairmont, W. Va., May 19.—Temporarily insane, according to his own statement, Rev. S. A. Coffman, aged 50 years, a prominent Methodist Episcopalian clergyman, killed his wife yesterday by cutting her throat. A moment after the crime, he says, he regained his senses, and realised what he had done. He surrendered himself and was locked up.

Rev. Mr. Coffman says it had been his intention to kill not only his wife, but also his family and himself.

The C. P. R. Censured.

Ottawa, May 19.—The jury in the investigation into the wreck of the C. P. R. last September when Fireman J. K. Blackburn was killed, yesterday handed in their verdict. Reynolds, the engineer, was able to leave the hospital and complete the evidence. They blame the railway company for negligence in not placing a night operator at the station and in having the ballast train which was run into, on the main line when there was room for it on a siding.

Cotton Mills Close Down.

Montreal, May 19.—Owing to the strike of mule-spinners at the Valleyfield mills of the Montreal Cotton Co. about three weeks ago, the company has closed the mills, throwing three thousand operatives out of work. The mule-spinners were called out by the Federation of Textile Workers of Canada as a protest against the 10 per cent. decrease in wages. Without the mule-spinners, it was known the mills could only be kept in operation for a limited length of time.

Billion Dollar Congress.

Washington, D.C., May 19.—The sixtieth congress will have earned the title of a "billion dollar congress" at its first session before adjournment is taken at the end of this week. It is estimated that the total appropriations will reach the enormous sum of $1,026,000,000, which is said to be the largest amount, ever appropriated at a single session.

Unemployed Go to Rockefeller.

New York, May 19.—John D. Rockefeller is to be asked by a committee from the National Convention of the Unemployed to suggest plans of relief for men who are out of work and to contribute to a fund that is being raised.

THAT TICKET NUISANCE

Local merchants will be interested in the following article from the Kingston Standard. It is not unlikely that similar action will be taken here at an early date.

"Local merchants have been bothered to such an extent by people who canvass the proprietors to purchase tickets for tea meetings, concerts, etc., that they have taken measures to stop the nuisance. Some of those who call on the merchants are those who reside in the country and who have at some remote time made a small purchase in the store. Others are perfect strangers to the storekeepers. The nuisance has developed to such proportions that many a dollar which should stay in the merchants pocket is given out to these "hold-ups." One merchant said he was sorry he did not keep all the tickets he had purchased for picnics, concerts and bazaars, which he never attended. They would make such a display that the canvasser would be ashamed to ask him to take more."

"A card printed in plain letters which reads "All people are respectfully requested not to canvass in this store for sale of tickets or donations to picnics, bazaars, and entertainments of any kind, by order of the Retail Merchants' Association," has been displayed in a prominent place in their store."

THE Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN BEGINS; EVERYBODY GIVE IT A BOOST

What is Required of Peterborough—Business Men Are at Work—What Has Been Done in Other Cities

A very representative company of Peterborough business men sat down to a banquet at the Young Men's Christian Association last evening and it was evident from the optimistic expressions that the campaign will be a success.

It may not be clear to everyone in the community, just why this three day effort is necessary. Last November a canvass to raise $1,800 was carried on by the association, but it should be remembered that the money thus secured was to be used in paying off the debt and the current expenses of last year. The Y.M.C.A., like every other institution, must have contributions each year. The new policy and administration are only asking for an opportunity to keep the association free from debt. The extra $500 is for the Bowling Alleys and the young men are seeking to raise this amount among themselves. The business men can no longer say that the members do not appreciate the association, because this campaign means sacrifice for a good many who are getting small salaries.

This is the tenth similar campaign conducted in Ontario during the past few months. Kingston raised $3,300, St. Catharines $3,300, Port Hope $2,000, Midland $1,250, the Soo $2,400, all per year for three years, in three days or less.

This is a subscription campaign and not one for members. No memberships count in the amount.

Surely the business-like plan of this campaign will appeal to the thinking people of the community. The men who are pushing the canvass are representative business men and will keep faith with the public if the campaign is a success. Let us show all Canada that Peterborough has enough pride in one of her most important institutions and sufficient realization of her opportunities to mould Christian manhood to make this campaign a grand success.

This is everybody's campaign. Push it. [illegible]

ENTHUSIASM PREVAILED AT THE BUSINESS MEN'S BANQUET

Large Gathering of Representative Citizens at Y.M.C.A. Last Night Heard Excellent Addresses—Bright Prospects for the Campaign.

The three days' campaign in the interest of the Y. M. C. A. is on. Before Thursday night it is proposed to raise by subscription the sum of $2,500 per year for three years to put the local Association on a good foundation. The campaign is being conducted by Mr. E. M. Thomasson, of Toronto, and the workers are confident that the sum asked for will be raised.

The "Business Men's Banquet" last night was really the start of the campaign. It was held in the Gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A., and about sixty business men of the city were in attendance. Several rousing speeches were given, the principal speakers being Mr. Frank Sanderson, of Toronto, joint general manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, Mr. Elmer Davis, of Kingston, a prominent business man of that city, and Mr. E. M. Thomasson, of Toronto. The gathering was of a most enthusiastic nature, and apparently there are bright days ahead for the Peterborough Y. M. C. A.

An excellent spread had been prepared by Coleman Bros., and the serving was done by a number of young ladies.

Mr. J. C. Shook, president of the Association, occupied the chair for for the intellectual part of the banquet, and after a few introductory remarks, introduced the first speaker, Mr. Frank Sanderson.

"The Opportunities and responsibilities of Young Men" was Mr. Sanderson's subject. He first dealt with the resources of the Dominion and their growing importance. The people, of Canada were just beginning to realize the great capabilities of their country.

There were great opportunities in Canada for young men, men of character, ability and energy. The men who were wanted were those with moral fibre and moral influence. Canada wanted trained men who were not afraid to step in, seize the opportunities that were before them and bear the responsibilities that would come as a result. To succeed in life a liberal education was necessary. It mattered not, whether it was obtained in the school or university, or in commercial life. Mr. Sanderson spoke about some of the great temptations that young men had to fight against. Temperance, purity of life and high ideals were some of the things that a young man should strive for. He also referred to the splendid work that was being done by the Y.M.C.A. and made a strong appeal for the hearty support of the Peterborough branch.

MR. DAVIS.

Mr. Sanderson was followed by Mr. Elmer Davis, one of Kingston's young business men, and a prominent worker in connection with the Y.M.C.A. of that city. The Association in that city, he said, had had a hard time getting along, largely due to the fact that the majority of the Board of Directors had been in service too long. They had done more than their share and they should have been relieved of their responsibility sooner. At the close of 1907 an inventory was taken and it was found that there was a large deficit and the Association was on anything but satisfactory basis. The inventory should have been taken sooner. That was one of the mistakes that the Board of Directors had made. When it was found that the Association was in such bad condition the Board of Directors was re-organized, a number of young men were elected to it, but enough of the older and more experienced members were retained to act as ballast, as it were, for the younger ones' enthusiasm. It was decided to have a campaign to raise the amount necessary to put the institution on a good footing, and if the people of Kingston did not want to subscribe the sum necessary the Y.M.C.A. was to be closed up as it was no use continuing it in the manner it had been conducted in the past. A campaign similar to the one now going on in Peterborough was started and more than the sum asked for was subscribed. The Y.M.C.A. was therefore put on a good foundation, and there has been a big change since the beginning of 1908. A new system has been introduced; the Board of Directors hold monthly meetings at 6.30 o'clock in the evening and the business is all through at eight o'clock. The secretary had been given greater scope, he knows the financial standing of the institutions and everything has been running along smoothly. The work in all departments has been greatly strengthened as a result of the new system.

Mr. Davis boosted the work of the Y.M.C.A. It was a business proposition for the business men to support it. It was doing great work among the young men of the country, and deserved hearty support.

MR. THOMASSON.

Mr. E. M. Thomasson, who was the next speaker outlined the campaign that was to be started. He urged the business men of Peterborough to do their duty. If they wanted the Y.M.C.A., they should subscribe the amount necessary to put it on a good basis. If they wouldn't put up the money the doors of the institution might as well be locked and the building closed up. He had no doubt but that Peterborough would do its duty. An [illegible] campaign had never yet been conducted in Ontario and Quebec and the start was not going to be made in Peterborough.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Short speeches were also made by Ald. J. J. Turner, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. G. M. Roger, Mr. E. M. Best, Mr. F. H. Dobbin and several others. Ald. Turner's remarks were right to the point and aroused much enthusiasm. All the speakers made a strong plea for the support of the Y.M.C.A. and bespoke the success of the campaign.

A Murderer Confesses.

Matawan, N.J., May 19.—Frank Zastera, the Polish farm hand, has made a confession that he killed Mr. and Mrs. William B. Shepherd and their servant, Miss Jennie Bendy, who were found murdered in Shepherd's farm house on Saturday. He killed Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd to get the money that he knew Mr. Shepherd had in his possession. Zastera was formerly a student of the Art Students' League and of the National Academy of Design in New York.

Swept Over the Falls and Drowned.

Montreal, May 19.—James Ryan, superintendent of the generating plant at Shawinigan Falls, and H. Racine, laborer, were swept over the falls on Saturday. The bodies have not yet been found. Ryan had started on a trip to visit different parts of the water course which fed the generating plant of the Water Power Co. The boat was caught in the swift current and was carried down the rapids to the falls.

Saved His Life.

Lindsay, May 19.—Wilfred Alger, aged 19, an employe of the Lindsay Light, Heat & Power Co., was shocked and fell from the top of a 35-foot pole yesterday. He was apparently dead when his body reached the earth, but Foreman John McGillivray worked over him for an hour, and by artificial means restored respiration.

Captain of Montcalm Suspended.

Montreal, May 19.—Capt. Belanger of the Government steamer Montcalm loses his certificate for a year as the result of the collision of that vessel with the C. P. R. liner Milwaukee at Quebec some two weeks ago. Commander Spain decides that Capt. Belanger was altogether to blame for the collision.

Local Option Sustained.

Toronto, May 19.—Mr. Justice Teetzel has refused the application to quash the local option bylaw of the town of Durham. It was shown that 18 voters whose names appeared as having cast their votes had no qualification, and that 35 others had not sufficient qualification to entitle them to vote.

Sunday Work on I. C. R.

Ottawa, May 19.—Dr. Reid yesterday secured a return of the number of freight locomotives in service on the I. C. R. on Sundays. In October there were 372, in November 331, and in December 347.

CONCILIATION BOARD CONVENED

Hears Statemtnt From Employees at Winnipeg---Union States Position.

Toronto, May 19.—Norman S. B. Gras, honor graduate of Western University, London, has distinguished himself again at Harvard University this year. He has been awarded one of the most important honors for 1908-09, the Ozias Goodwin memorial fellowship. Graduating with first-class honors both in modern languages and in history at Western University, Mr. Gras has since the fall of 1906 been pursuing his studies in the department of history at Harvard. He is specializing particularly in economic history, a comparatively new and an exceedingly promising field for research, and will shortly produce a book on the history of the grain trade of Britain. Mr. Gras is a Canadian, born in Toronto, 1884, and educated in London Collegiate Institute and Western University. A future of great promise lies before him.

Fish and Game Protection.

Fredericton, N.B., May 19.—As a result of the suggestion made during his recent visit by A. Kelly Evans of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Forest, Fish and Game Association, Hon. L. J. Carleton, chairman of the fish and game commission of the state of Maine, spoke before the Legislature advocating the establishment of a similar commission in New Brunswick, more attention to conservation of the forests and the protection of the fish and game of the province. He explained that the chairman of the commission in Maine is paid $2,000 per year and actual traveling expenses, another member gets $1,000 per year and expenses, while the forest commissioner and land agent is also a member, receiving $250 in addition to his regular salary. Premier Hazen moved a vote of thanks.

Australia's Loyalty.

Melbourne, May 19.—(C.A.P.)—Cardinal Moran, Roman Catholic primate of Australia, referring to the statement of Cardinal Logue, that Australia was inclining towards "absolute rebellion," said only fools could be disloyal in Australia, which had the most perfect freedom citizens could desire.

Cardinal Logue has denied absolutely having made the statement referred to.

The Daily Review

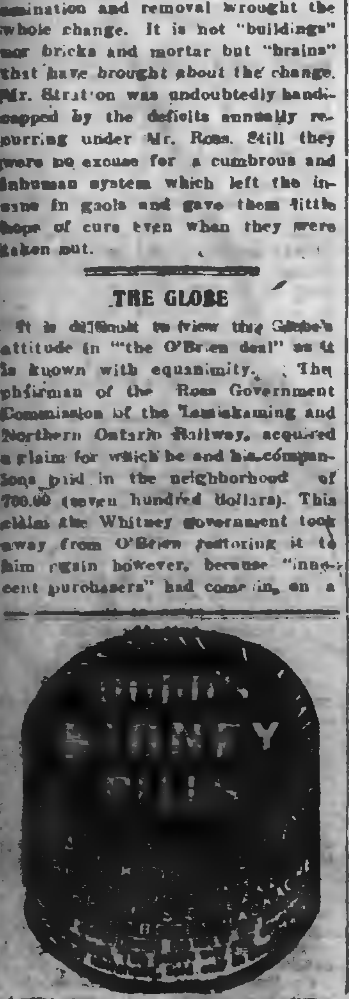
TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1908

MR. STRATTON'S CHARGE

Hon. J. R. Stratton, in his remarks at the Liberal rally on Saturday evening undertook to show that his administration of the Provincial Secretary's Department at Toronto had not been a failure. He mentioned a number of large and important buildings erected by the government during his term of office as a proof and could not understand the remarks of the Review to the contrary. When Hon. W. J. Hanna assumed the reins of office in that department of public affairs he found as he himself publicly states that some of the asylums, etc., were in such a state of disrepair and filth that "they were unfit for human habitation." It cost the Whitney government no less than $300,000 to put them in shape. Collections also had been so bad by Mr. Stratton that the sum of $57,000 was immediately gathered in by his successor from "better collections, etc" The increase in the revenue of this Department is in the neighborhood of $100,000 more than formerly, a fair comparison being made. Then the present Secretary on coming into office at once sent a commission abroad to inquire into the latest manner of treating the insane. Ontario was years and years behind. In fact no country visited had so little of the modern and the humane in its treatment of the insane. Mr. Stratton says that the boast that at the end of 1907 not a single insane person remained in a gaol is an empty one. "Why should there be" exclaims Mr. Stratton, "There are plenty of buildings." In the first place 1907 is two years after the Whitney government came into power. But the number of buildings is not the reason for the change. Here is just where the alleged "stupidity" manifests itself. It is just such a mistake as we charged Mr. Stratton with having made. It was the change in the law and in the machinery of the law that brought about this new and humane condition of the unfortunates. A prompt and effective system of examination and removal wrought the whole change. It is not "buildings" nor bricks and mortar but "brains" that have brought about the change. Mr. Stratton was undoubtedly handicapped by the deficits annually recurring under Mr. Ross. Still they were no excuse for a cumbrous and inhuman system which left the insane in gaols and gave them little hope of cure even when they were taken out.

THE GLOBE

It is difficult to view the Globe's attitude in "the O'Brien deal" as it is known with equanimity. The chairman of the Ross Government Commission of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, acquired a claim for which he and his companions paid in the neighborhood of 700.00 (seven hundred dollars). This claim the Whitney government took away from O'Brien restoring it to him again however, because "innocent purchasers" had come in, on a compromise of 25 per cent royalty. One of the Conservative campaign sheets says: "It's only fair to contrast the action of the Board of Commissioners and officers of the T. & N.O. railway of that date with that of the present Board whose business methods in disposing of the odds and ends of mining rights remaining in the Crown have resulted in such large bonuses and royalties. The old Board and officials regarded the mining discoveries as a sort of special providence and instead of helping to map out a policy which might have meant much to the provincial exchequer, they hurried out, a number of them, and staked out mining locations themselves". To offset this scorching indictment of the actions of one member and the acquiescence of the others who made no protest, the Globe of Friday last calls Whitney and Company "slanderers" It admits that O'Brien got the mining rights charged and it quotes the record of his patents. But because the other members of the Board denied that they got patents which seems by the records, at least, to be true, the Globe charges Whitney with slander in fact with lying. The other members of the Board, as we say, do not appear by the records to have staked claims but why did they allow their chairman to do it? And why have they not explained that part of it? The Globe may put up a man of straw and burn him in effigy but the damning fact remains that O'Brien did get patents and the others allowed it. But how absurd now appears the editorial of the Examiner of a recent date in which that journal handed out a fatal warning to the Review in respect of that very fact. The Globe and the Examiner are at variance. The Review was right as of course we had taken care to be. In fact it could hardly miss it if it charged the late lamented lot with anything bad. For it nothing remained but death. It was executed January 25th, 1905. Yet the Examiner says "the world has come to set up less exacting standards of morality in politics and governmental relations, etc." That was where the Examiner and the Ross government fooled themselves.



EDITORIAL NOTES

Some people have an idea that any change is "evolution." They use that word to denote their own ideas. They, as a matter of fact, are often merely exemplifying "The descent of man."

The age of cynicism and scoffing that followed materialism is fast giving way to a longing for decency. This onward and upward march of the mind, though it suffers from reaction occasionally, nevertheless continues.

The Rev. D. C. Hossack, a life-long Liberal has resigned from his church to enter politics. We think Mr. Hossack is sincere and truthful. These are the chief qualifications. A way can be found out of all other than moral difficulties, hence a man sound in that respect will make a good representative. Cleverness as a rule, is often of much less service than moral cleanliness.

"Lady Bountiful: If they still persist, Jenkins, in building those horrid little villas at my gates, I shall leave this place."

"Butler: That's just what I told them at the meetin', your ladyship. I said you're killing the goose that lays the golden eggs."—Punch.

It is not known as yet whether her ladyship approved of the metaphor.

Kingston Whig: Judge Cassels will not resume the Marine Department inquiry until September—unless relieved of the Exchequer Court business. The inquiry should be continued at once and some arrangement should be made by which this may be done.

The above clipping from the Globe of Saturday, May 16th which consists in turn of a quotation from the Whig, Liberal, of Kingston, is "hot stuff" for the Laurier government, all right. Sir Wilfrid certainly must be losing his mind for no one in his senses would shelve an inquiry of the character and importance of that referred to.

FALL WHEAT WAS WINTER KILLED

Some Loss of This Nature Reported From Bensfort

Feeders and Stockers.

One load of cattle brought in as exporters, weighing 1250 lbs., were bought by Fred Rowntree as short-keep feeders at $5.70 per cwt. There were few feeders and stockers on sale and prices were reported by Harry Murby as unchanged: Good steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, at $4.75 to $5 per cwt.; good steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $4.25 to $4.75; good steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $4.00 to $4.25; good steers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.50; light stockers, 400 to 600 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of milkers and springers sold at $45 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

About 200 calves sold at $3.00 to $5.00 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep sold at $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, at $3.00 to $6.00 each.

Hogs.

The Gunn's Co., Limited, reported hog prices unchanged at $6 for selects fed and watered, and $5.75, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 18.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending May 16, were 2347 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 3363 hogs, 1287 calves, while the supply offered this morning for local consumption, consisting of 1000 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1250 hogs and 300 calves. Altho the supply of cattle was fully 300 head larger than a week ago, yet the undertone to the market continues very strong and prices have scored another advance of ¼c per pound, but in spite of this fact drovers and dealers were complaining, as they stated that, considering what the stock cost in the country, they should have realized more money for them here. At the above advance the demand was rather slow and trade dragging, owing to the fact that butchers who kill their own stock entirely have been compelled during the past two or three weeks to mark up prices of beef 2c to 3c per lb., which naturally has tended to curtail the consumption to some extent and instead of them buying six to eight head of cattle as they use to are now only purchasing three to four. Cable advices on Saturday from Liverpool were strong and noted an advance of ½c to ¾c per lb. in prices for Canadian cattle, but this did not create any improvement in the demand from exporters, in fact, they bought less than usual on account of the higher prices demanded. Choice beeves sold at 6¼c to 6½c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fair, at 5½c to 5¾c; common, at 4½c to 5¼c, and inferior, at 3½c to 4½c per lb. An easier feeling has developed in the market for yearling lambs, since this day week and prices are ¼c to ½c per lb. lower, which is due to the more liberal arrivals and sales to-day were made at 6½c to 7c per lb. On the other hand the market for sheep has ruled stronger and prices show an advance of ¼c per lb., owing to the continued scarcity, with sales at 5½c to 6c per lb. The demand for spring lambs is good, of which supplies are none too plentiful and values rule firm at from $3 to $6 each, as to quality. Receipts of calves were fair, for which the demand is good and prices steady at from $1.50 to $5 each. A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for live hogs this morning and prices scored a further decline of 10c to 15c per cwt., making a net reduction within the past two weeks of 25c to 40c. This is attributed to the liberal supply coming forward for the season of the year and the continued weakness in the foreign markets for Canadian bacon of late. There were some deliveries of hogs on contracts made last week at $6.85 to $7 per cwt., but actual sales were made on the market this morning at $6.60 to $6.75 per cwt., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, May 18.—Cattle—Receipts, 400 head; fairly active and 15c to 25c lower; some sales, 40c lower; prime steers, $6.60 to $7; shipping, $6.25 to $6.65; butchers', $5.25 to $6.50; heifers, $4.50 to $6.25; cows, $3.50 to $5.50; bulls, $3.75 to $5.60; stockers and feeders, $4 to $5.10; stock heifers, $3.40 to $3.75; fresh cows and springers, steady to $2 lower, $23 to $58; good demand for good; slow on common.

Veals—Receipts, 2700 head; slow and 25c lower, $5 to $6.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 19,100 head; active; good weight and yorkers, strong to 10c higher; others, steady; heavy and mixed, $5.65 to $5.75; yorkers, $5.40 to $5.70; pigs, $4 to $4.15; roughs, $4.50 to $4.75; stags, $3.50 to $4; dairies, $5.25 to $5.65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 17,000 head; slow; lambs and yearlings, 25c lower; others, steady; lambs, $5 to $6.50; yearlings, $5.75 to $6; wethers, $5.50 to $5.75; ewes, $5 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $2 to $5.50.

Expensive Ride After All.

Hastings, May 18.—A young English emigrant named Keith Estell, trying to beat his way to Owen Sound, slipped in boarding a west-bound freight and one foot was badly crushed. He was sent to the hospital at Cobourg.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

"Did you hear, father—John Burkett Ryder will come to your assistance. I came home on the same ship as his son, and he promised to secure his father's aid."

The judge puffed heavily at his pipe and merely shook his head, making no reply. Stott explained:

"We can't look for help from that quarter, Shirley. You don't expect a man to cut loose his own kite, do you?"

"What do you mean?" demanded Shirley, mystified.

"Simply this, that John Burkett Ryder is the very man who is responsible for all your father's misfortunes."

The girl sank back in her seat pale and motionless, as if she had received a blow. Was it possible?

"Do you really believe this, that John Ryder deliberately concocted the bribery charge with the sole purpose of ruining my father?" demanded Shirley, when she had somewhat recovered.

"There is no other solution of the mystery possible," answered Stott.

"And you, father, do you believe Ryder did this?"

"I have no longer any doubt of it," answered the judge. "I think John Ryder would see me dead before he would raise a finger to help me. His answer to my demand for my letters convinced me that he was the arch plotter."

"What letters do you refer to?" demanded Shirley.

"The letters I wrote to him in regard to my making an investment. He advised the purchase of certain stock. I wrote him two letters at the time, which letters if I had them now would go a long way to clearing me of this charge of bribery, for they plainly showed that I regarded the transaction as a bona fide investment. Since this trouble began I wrote to Ryder asking him to return me these letters so I might use them in my defense. The only reply I got was an insolent note from his secretary saying that Mr. Ryder had forgotten all about the transaction, and in any case had not the letters I referred to."

"Couldn't you compel him to return them?" asked Shirley.

"We could never get at him," interrupted Stott. "The man is guarded as carefully as the czar."

"Still," objected Shirley, "it is possible that he may have lost the letters or even never received them."

"Oh, he has them safe enough," replied Stott. "A man like Ryder keeps every scrap of paper, with the idea that it may prove useful some day. The letters are lying somewhere in his desk. Besides, after the Transcontinental decision he was heard to say that he'd have Judge Rossmore off the bench inside of a year."

"And it wasn't a vain boast—he's done it," muttered the judge.

Shirley relapsed into silence. Her brain was in a whirl. It was true, then. This merciless man of money, this ogre of monopolistic corporations, this human juggernaut had crushed her father merely because by his honesty he interfered with his shady business deals! Ah, why had she spared him in her book? She felt now that she had been too lenient, not bitter enough, not sufficiently pitiless. Such a man was entitled to no mercy.

Long after the judge and Stott had left for the city Shirley sat alone on the porch engrossed in thought, taxing her brain to find some way out of the darkness, and when presently her mother and aunt returned they found her still sitting there, silent and preoccupied. If they only had those two letters, she thought. They alone might save her father, but how could they be got at? Mr. Ryder had put them safely away, no doubt. He would not give them up. She wondered how it would be to go boldly to him and appeal to whatever sense of honor and fairness that might be lying latent within him. No, such a man would not know what the terms "honor," "fairness" meant. She pondered upon it all day, and at night when she went tired to bed it was her last thought as she dropped off to sleep.

The following morning Shirley went out for a walk. She preferred to go alone so she would not have to talk. Hers was one of those lonely, introspective natures that resent the intrusion of aimless chatter when preoccupied with serious thoughts.

Every now and then Shirley espied in the distance the figure of a man which she thought she recognized as that of Jefferson. Had he come, after all? The blood went coursing tumultuously through her veins only a moment later to leave her face a shade paler as the man came nearer, and she saw he was a stranger.

As she neared the cottage on her return home, she caught sight of the letter carrier approaching the gate. Instantly she thought of Jefferson, and she hurried to intercept the man. Perhaps he had written instead of coming.

"Miss Shirley Rossmore?" said the man eying her interrogatively.

"That's I," said Shirley.

The postman handed her a letter and passed on. Shirley glanced quickly at the superscription. No, it was not from Jefferson; she knew his handwriting too well. The envelope, moreover, bore the firm name of her publishers. She tore it open and found that it merely contained another letter which the publishers had forwarded. This was addressed to Miss Shirley Green and ran as follows:

> Dear Madam—If convenient, I should like to see you at my office, 26 Broadway, in relation to your book, "The American Octopus." Kindly inform me as to the day and hour at which I may expect you. Yours truly,
>
> JOHN BURKETT RYDER.
>
> Per B.

Shirley almost shouted from sheer excitement. At first she was alarmed—the name John Burkett Ryder was such a bogey to frighten bad children with, she thought he might want to punish her for writing about him as she had. She hurried to the porch and sat there reading the letter over and over, and her brain began to evolve ideas. She had been wondering how she could get at Mr. Ryder, and here he was actually asking her to call on him. Evidently he had not the slightest idea of her identity, for he had been able to reach her only through her publishers, and no doubt he had exhausted every other means of discovering her address. The more she pondered over it the more she began to see in this invitation a way of helping her father. Yes, she would go and beard the lion in his den, but she would not go to his office. She would accept the invitation only on condition that the interview took place in the Ryder mansion, where undoubtedly the letters would be found. She decided to act immediately. No time was to be lost, so she procured a sheet of paper and an envelope and wrote as follows:

> Mr. John Burkett Ryder:
>
> Dear Sir—I do not call upon gentlemen at their business office. Yours, etc.,
>
> SHIRLEY GREEN.

Her letter was abrupt and at first glance seemed hardly calculated to bring about what she wanted—an invitation to call at the Ryder home, but she was shrewd enough to see that if Ryder wrote to her at all it was because he was most anxious to see her and her abruptness would not deter him from trying again. On the contrary, the very unusualness of any one thus dictating to him would make him more than ever desirous of making her acquaintance. So Shirley mailed the letter and awaited with confidence for Ryder's reply. So certain was she that one would come that she at once began to form her plan of action. She would leave Massapequa at once, and her whereabouts must remain a secret even from her own family. As she intended to go to the Ryder house in the assumed character of Shirley Green, it would never do to run the risk of being followed home by a Ryder detective to the Rossmore cottage. She would confide in one person only—Judge Stott. He would know where she was and would be in constant communication with her. But, otherwise, she must be alone to conduct the campaign as she judged fit. She would go at once to New York and take rooms in a boarding house where she would be known as Shirley Green. As for funds to meet her expenses, she had her diamonds, and would they not be filling a more useful purpose if sold to defray the cost of saving her father than in mere personal adornment? So that evening while her mother was talking with the judge she beckoned Stott over to the corner where she was sitting.

"Judge Stott," she began, "I have a plan."

He smiled indulgently at her.

"You said that no one on earth could resist John Burkett Ryder, that no one could fight against the money power. Well, do you know what I am going to do?"

"What will you do?" he asked with a slightly ironical inflection in his voice.

"I am going to fight John Burkett Ryder!" she cried.

Stott looked at her open mouthed.

"You?" he said.

"Yes, I," said Shirley. "I'm going to him, and I intend to get those letters if he has them."

Stott shook his head.

"My dear child," he said, "what are you talking about? How can you expect to reach Ryder? We couldn't."

"I don't know just how yet," replied Shirley, "but I'm going to try. I love my father, and I'm going to leave nothing untried to save him."

"But what can you do?" persisted Stott. "The matter has been sifted over and over by some of the greatest minds in the country."

"Has any woman sifted it over?" demanded Shirley.

"No, but"— stammered Stott.

"Then it's about time one did," said the girl decisively. "Those letters my father speaks of—they would be useful, would they not?"

"They would be invaluable."

"Then I'll get them. If not"—

"But I don't understand how you're going to get at Ryder," interrupted Stott.

"This is how," replied Shirley, passing over to him the letter she had received that afternoon.

As Stott recognized the well known signature and read the contents the expression of his face changed. He gasped for breath and sank into a chair from sheer astonishment.

"Ah, that's different!" he cried. "That's different!"

Briefly Shirley outlined her plan, explaining that she would go to live in the city immediately and conduct her campaign from there. If she was successful, it might save her father, and if not no harm could become of it.

That same evening her mother, the judge and Stott went for a stroll after dinner and left her to take care of the house. They had wanted Shirley to go, too, but she pleaded fatigue. The truth was that she wanted to be alone, so that she could ponder undisturbed over her plans. It was a clear, starlit night, with no moon, and Shirley sat on the porch listening to the chirping of the crickets and idly watching the flashes of the mysterious fireflies. She was in no mood for reading and sat for a long time rocking herself, engrossed in her thoughts. Suddenly she heard some one unfasten the garden gate. It was too soon for the return of the promenaders. It must be a visitor. Through the uncertain penumbra of the garden she discerned approaching a form which looked familiar. Yes, now there was no doubt possible. It was indeed Jefferson Ryder.

She hurried down the porch to greet him. No matter what the father had done, she could never think any the less of the son. He took her hand, and for several moments neither one spoke. There are times when silence is more eloquent than speech, and this was one of them. The gentle grip of his big, strong hand expressed more tenderly than any words the sympathy that lay in his heart for the woman he loved. Shirley said quietly:

"You have come at last, Jefferson."

"I came as soon as I could," he replied gently. "I saw father only yesterday."

"You need not tell me what he said," Shirley hastened to say.

Jefferson made no reply. He understood what she meant. He hung his head and hit viciously with his walking stick at the pebbles that lay at his feet. She went on:

"I know everything now. It was foolish of me to think that Mr. Ryder would ever help us."

"I can't help it in any way," blurted out Jefferson. "I have not the slightest influence over him. His business methods I consider disgraceful. You understand that, don't you, Shirley?"

The girl laid her hand on his arm and replied kindly:

"Of course, Jeff, we know that. Come up and sit down."

He followed her on the porch and drew up a rocker beside her.

"They are all out for a walk," she explained.

"I'm glad," he said frankly. "I wanted a quiet talk with you. I did not care to meet any one. My name must be odious to your people."

Both were silent, feeling a certain awkwardness. They seemed to have drifted apart in some way since those delightful days in Paris and on the ship. Then he said:

"I'm going away, but I couldn't go until I saw you."

"You are going away?" exclaimed Shirley, surprised.

"Yes," he said, "I cannot stand it any more at home. I had a hot talk with my father yesterday about one thing and another. He and I don't chin well together. Besides this matter of your father's impeachment has completely discouraged me. All the wealth in the world could never reconcile me to such methods! I'm ashamed of the role my own flesh and blood has played in that miserable affair. I can't express what I feel about it. But what are you going to do?" he asked. "These surroundings are not for you"— He looked around at the cheap furnishings which he could see through the open window, and his face showed real concern.

"I shall teach or write, or go out as governess," replied Shirley, with a tinge of bitterness. Then smiling sadly she added: "Poverty is easy. It is unmerited disgrace which is hard."

The young man drew his chair closer and took hold of the hand that lay in her lap. She made no resistance.

"Shirley," he said, "do you remember that talk we had on the ship? I asked you to be my wife. You led me to believe that you were not indifferent to me. I ask you again to marry me. Give me the right to take care of you and yours. I am the son of the world's richest man, but I don't want his money. I have earned a competence of my own—enough to live on comfortably. We will go away where you and your father and mother will make their home with us. Do not let the sins of the fathers embitter the lives of the children."

"Mine has not sinned," said Shirley bitterly.

"I wish I could say the same of mine," replied Jefferson. "It is because the clouds are dark about you that I want to come into your life to comfort you."

The girl shook her head.

"No, Jefferson, the circumstances make such a marriage impossible. Your family and everybody else would say that I had inveigled you into it. It is even more impossible now than I thought it was when I spoke to you on the ship."

Emotion stopped her utterance, and she buried her face in her hands, weeping silently.

"Shirley," said Jefferson tenderly, "you are wrong. If you will not say 'Yes' now, I shall go away as I told my father I would, and one day I shall come back and then if you are still single I shall ask you again to be my wife."

"You may not want me then."

"I shall always want you," he whispered hoarsely, bending over her. In the dim light of the porch he saw that her tear stained face was drawn and pale. He rose and held out his hand.

"Goodby," he said simply.

"Goodby, Jefferson." She rose and put her hand in his. "We will always be friends."

He raised her hand to his lips.

"Goodby, Shirley. Don't forget me. I shall come back for you."

He went down the porch, and she watched him go out of the gate and down the road until she could see his figure no longer. Then she turned back and sank into her chair, and, burying her face in her handkerchief, she gave way to a torrent of tears which afforded some relief to the weight on her heart. Presently the others returned from their walk, and she told them about the visitor.

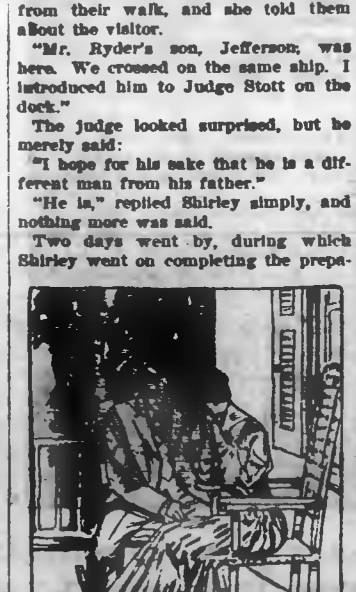
"Mr. Ryder's son, Jefferson, was here. We crossed on the same ship. I introduced him to Judge Stott on the dock."

The judge looked surprised, but he merely said:

"I hope for his sake that he is a different man from his father."

"He is," replied Shirley simply, and nothing more was said.

Two days went by, during which Shirley went on completing the preparations for her visit to New York. It was arranged that Stott should escort her to the city. Shortly before they started for the train a letter arrived for Shirley. Like the first one, it had been forwarded by her publishers. It read as follows:



"Shirley, you are wrong."

> Miss Shirley Green:
>
> Dear Madam—I shall be happy to see you at my residence—Fifth avenue—any afternoon that you will mention. Yours very truly,
>
> JOHN BURKETT RYDER.
>
> Per B.

Shirley smiled in triumph as, unseen by her father and mother, she passed it over to Stott. She at once sat down and wrote this reply:

> Mr. John Burkett Ryder:
>
> Dear Sir—I am sorry that I am unable to comply with your request. I prefer the invitation to call at your private residence should come from Mrs. Ryder. Yours, etc.,
>
> SHIRLEY GREEN.

She laughed as she showed this to Stott.

"He'll write me again," she said, "and next time his wife will sign the letter."

An hour later she left Massapequa for the city.

CHAPTER XI.

THE Hon. Fitzroy Bagley had every reason to feel satisfied with himself. His affaire de coeur with the senator's daughter was progressing more smoothly than ever, and nothing now seemed likely to interfere with his carefully prepared plans to capture an American heiress. The interview with Kate Roberts in the library, so awkwardly disturbed by Jefferson's unexpected intrusion, had been followed by other interviews more secret and more successful, and the plausible secretary had contrived so well to persuade the girl that he really thought the world of her and that a brilliant future awaited her as his wife that it was not long before he found her in a mood to refuse him nothing.

Bagley urged immediate marriage. He insinuated that Jefferson had treated her shamefully and that she owed it to herself to show the world that there were other men as good as the one who had jilted her. He argued that in view of the senator being bent on the match with Ryder's son it would be worse than useless for him (Bagley) to make formal application for her hand, so, as he explained, the only thing which remained was a runaway marriage. Confronted with the fait accompli, Papa Roberts would bow to the inevitable. They could get married quietly in town, go away for a short trip, and when the senator had got over his first disappointment they would be welcomed back with open arms.

Kate listened willingly enough to this specious reasoning. In her heart she was piqued at Jefferson's indifference, and she was foolish enough to really believe that this marriage with a British nobleman, twice removed, would be in the nature of a triumph over him. Besides, this project of an elopement appealed strangely to her frivolous imagination; it put her in the same class as all her favorite novel heroines. And it would be capital fun.

Meantime Senator Roberts, in blissful ignorance of this little plot against his domestic peace, was growing impatient, and he approached his friend Ryder once more on the subject of his son Jefferson. The young man, he said, had been back from Europe some time. He insisted on knowing what his attitude was toward his daughter. If they were engaged to be married, he said there should be a public announcement of the fact. It was unfair to him and a slight to his daughter to let matters hang fire in this unsatisfactory way, and he hinted that both himself and his daughter might demand their passports from the Ryder mansion unless some explanation were forthcoming.

Ryder was in a quandary. He had no wish to quarrel with his useful Washington ally. He recognized the reasonableness of his complaint. Yet what could he do? Much as he himself desired the marriage, his son was obstinate and showed little inclination to settle down. He even hinted at attractions in another quarter. He did not tell the senator of his recent interview with his son when the latter made it very plain that the marriage could never take place. Ryder senior had his own reasons for wishing to temporize. It was quite possible that Jefferson might change his mind and abandon his idea of going abroad, and he suggested to the senator that perhaps if he, the senator, made the engagement public through the newspapers it might have the salutary effect of forcing his son's hand.

So a few mornings later there appeared among the society notes in several of the New York papers this paragraph:

> The engagement is announced of Miss Katherine Roberts, only daughter of Senator Roberts of Wisconsin, to Jefferson Ryder, son of Mr. John Burkett Ryder.

Two persons in New York happened to see the item about the same time, and both were equally interested, although it affected them in a different manner. One was Shirley Rossmore, who had chanced to pick up the newspaper at the breakfast table in her boarding house.

"So soon?" she murmured to herself. Well, why not? She could not blame Jefferson. He had often spoken to her of this match arranged by his father, and they had laughed over it as a typical marriage of convenience modeled after the continental pattern. Jefferson, she knew, had never cared for the girl, nor taken the affair seriously. Some powerful influences must have been at work to make him surrender so easily. Here again she recognized the masterly hand of Ryder senior, and more than ever she was eager to meet this extraordinary man and measure her strength with his. Her mind, indeed, was too full of her father's troubles to grieve over her own however much she might have been inclined to do so under other circumstances, and all that day she did her best to banish the paragraph from her thoughts. More than a week had passed since she left Massapequa and, what with corresponding with financiers, calling on editors and publishers, every moment of her time had been kept busy.

THE BOARD OF WORKS HAD BUSY SESSION LAST NIGHT

Railing of Bridge Across the Otonabee Will be Raised—Engineer Submits Report Giving Cost of Proposed Overflow Pipes—Where Concrete Walks Will be Laid.

The Board of Works had a busy session last night when there were present the chairman, Ald. Phelan, Mayor Rush, Ald. McIntyre, Tovey, Bradburn, and Elliott. Considerable business was transacted.

The engineer presented plans as to raising the railing on the Otonabee bridge, and on motion of Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Tovey, these plans were approved and the railing will be raised accordingly.

A request from Mr P J Fuller, asking permission to build a boat house at the eastern end of Dalhousie street, was granted subject to the usual conditions.

A sewer on William street between King and Bolivar street was decided upon a properly signed petition for the same being to hand.

Another sewer on Bethune street, between Dublin and Edinburgh Sts. was arranged for in accordance with a properly signed petition.

A petition for a sewer on George street between Argyle and Hilliard streets was not granted water service not being available.

CONCRETE WALKS

Concrete walks were decided upon on the following streets;

South on King, between Stewart and Rubidge, outside the trees.

Margaret avenue, between Charlotte and King streets.

Reid street, east side, between Dalhousie and Wolfe streets.

Wolfe street, from Rubidge to Reid street, north side.

One on each side of William street, between King and Boliver streets.

GIVEN CONTRACT

G. Walter Green, was awarded the contract for sidewalk gratings, sewer fixtures, etc.

SIDING PROTES

The city solicitor will be instructed to go to Ottawa on June 2, and oppose the proposed GTR. siding from below and crossing Rink and Townsend streets and George Street at the present siding into the Geo. Matthews Co's packing house.

NEW POLES

The Otonabee Power Co. asked the privilege of erecting poles on certain streets.

The Board decided that as this company have not power to meet the present demand upon them for light this matter be left in abeyance.

The Board will grade Edinburgh street west of Rubidge.

Ald. Fuller moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that a concrete walk be built on Rubidge street between London and Edinburgh streets.

Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Tovey, That this walk be not built.

Several beautiful shade trees are in the way of this walk and the engineer thought they would have to be cut down in order to build this walk Hence the amendment of Ald. Bradburn.

It was urged, however, that the walk could be built around the trees and the motion carried.

The position of this walk and the method adopted to preserve the trees was left in the hands of the city engineer and the chairman of the Board of Works.

OVERFLOW PIPES

The city engineer reported as follows;

I have examined the three places where it was suggested to place 15 inch overflow pipes to the river from the trunk sewer, viz.;

King, Lake, Dalhousie streets.

That at Lake street is not practicable, the invent of the sewer bieng 5 1-2 feet below high water level in the river, would necessitate placing the overflow too high in the manhole to be of any use for the purpose and may therefore be left out of consideration.

I estimate the cost via King street at $270 which included 2 catch basins at the intersection of Water street.

Via Dalhousie street, two catch basins at intersection of George St. $480.

With regard to draining stagnant water lying on the north side of Lake street, between George and Crescent streets, by deepening the ditch at east end and laying an 8-inch pipe across Crescent street, it can be kept dry. This would cost $45.

This report will be acted upon.

DRINKING FOUNTAINS

Ald. Fuller moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey; that the engineer get the several city drinking fountains connected at once.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Morgan seconded by Ald. Tovey Albert street will be examined by the engineer with a view to keeping it clear of surface water.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Fuller, That a section of plank sidewalk be laid on Hazlett street north.—Carried.

Joint General Manager of the Canada Life Assurance Co. Who Addressed the Business Men's Banquet at the Y. M. C. A. Last Night.

THE Y. M. C. A. RALLY TO OBTAIN INCREASED REVENUE

There will shortly be made a canvass of the city by the YMCA for the purpose of securing additions to its annual revenue that will amount to the sum of $2500 yearly for three years in order that the various plans decided upon for the improvement of the YMCA. may be successfully carried out. It has been found necessary and desirable in the interests of maintenance and expansion to increase the present expenditure. Various additions to the equipment will necessarily increase the annual expenses and revenue but it is hoped that a ready response on the part of the public will enable the board to overcome all difficulties and to begin a new era of usefulness for their institution.

JOHN R. CLARKE ON "TO AND FRO IN LONDON"

Celebrated Lecturer at Mark St. Church Last Evening

Only a fairly large crowd gathered in Mark street church last evening to hear the celebrated American lecturer, John R. Clarke, on the subject of "To and Fro in London." However, those who were fortunate enough to be present were well repaid and went away having thoroughly enjoyed an evening of mirthful entertainment. The chairman of the evening was Mr. D. W. Dumble, who, in a few well-chosen remarks, introduced the speaker. He referred with pleasure to Mr. Clarke's last visit to Peterborough twenty-three years ago. He greatly enjoyed his lecture then and acted in the capacity of chairman. It was needless for him to dwell upon Mr. Clarke's qualities as lecturer, as they were too well known.

Preceding the lecture, the George street male quartette gave two numbers in an excellent manner.

Mr. Clarke is the most interesting lecturer that has visited Peterborough for some years. He keeps the attention of his hearers throughout and by his vivid and graphic descriptions holds the audience spellbound. Mr. Clarke also possesses to a large degree a keen sense of humor and knows how to relate a comical story. His subject is brightly interspersed with many witty and original sayings.

"See London and live," were the words with which he began. To travel rightly is an education and an inspiration. In beautiful and picturesque language the speaker carried the minds of his hearers through busy thoroughfares of the great metropolis, through the towering cathedrals and ancient buildings of the grand old city. He spoke of St. Paul's Cathedral with its wonderful architecture, the River Thames, London bridge, and many other places well-known in the annals of history.

To-night Mr. Clarke will speak before the Royal Templars on the "Shamrock, Thistle and the Rose." Mr. Clarke has been lecturing for 28 years, previous to which he was ten years on the stage as a singing comedian. His home is near Buffalo.

COLLISION ON GEO. ST. YESTERDAY

Bicyclist Ran into Buggy—Wheel Went Over Him But He Was Not Hurt

A serious accident was narrowly averted on George street last evening. A young man was wheeling up the street when he collided with Dr. King's buggy and was thrown off his bicycle to the hard ground. A wheel passed over the young fellow, but the buggy being a light one, he was not hurt very badly. He was able to get up and proceed on his way home, apparently not at all injured. The bicyclist was on the wrong side of the road.

FORMER LOCAL CLERGYMAN IS INSTALLED

Rev. Jonathan Bastow is Now Pastor of Woodside Baptist Church

The Newtown, New York, Register of May 8th, contains the following account of the installation of Rev. Jonathan who is well-known in this city.

The services in connection with the installation of Rev. Jonathan Bastow as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Woodside were held on Tuesday evening, May 5th. The church was comfortably filled with an appreciative audience. Mr. Geo. G. Dutcher, Moderator of the Long Island Baptist Association, performed the duties of presiding officer in a most felicitous manner.

The services opened with a hymn by the congregation followed with Scripture reading by Rev. Edwin Richmond, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Jamaica. Rev. Archibald Forshee, pastor of the Elmhurst Baptist Church, offered the opening prayer.

Dr. W. J. Peck, pastor of the Union Church of Corona, was the first speaker introduced. Dr. Peck extended the greetings, as he aptly expressed it, of the denominations on Long Island except the Baptist. In the course of his remarks on the law of compensation as illustrated in the interchange of pastors with the Second Avenue Baptist Church, he referred very feelingly to the life and work of the late Dr. Charles J. Keevil.

Rev. Edwin Richmond, the next speaker, gave some very interesting reminiscences covering his acquaintance with Pastor Bastow during the past twenty-five years.

Rev. E. J. Holden, former pastor of the Woodside Church, and now pastor at East Orange, N.J., related an incident illustrating the tendency to regard past achievements as excelling the present, and stated that in his case he felt that the work accomplished during his ministry was as the droppings to the showers which would fall under the leadership of his successor.

Rev. Mr. Forshee extended greetings on behalf of the Baptist Churches on Long Island, and remarked that it seemed singular that he, who had been here but a short time and was about ready to return to the Philippines, should be the one to welcome Pastor Bastow to the Long Island field.

The final speaker, Dr. William A. Grainger, President of the New York State Convention, fittingly summed up all that had been said by way of greetings to the pastor and congratulations to the church. Dr. Grainger prefaced his charge to the church by calling his connection with its early history during his pastorate at the East Avenue church, Hunter Point, thirty-four years ago. He warned the church that the settling of a good pastor did not constitute success, but that in order to achieve it the church itself had certain duties to perform. The obligations of the church as outlined by Dr. Grainger were: Presence at all services; practice of truths taught; praise sincere for help received; prompt payment of financial obligations, and finally prayer, which while of the utmost importance, would not be effective if the others were neglected.

Pastor Bastow concluded the service by stating that while he did not consider himself worthy of all the praise that had been bestowed upon him, he would endeavor to the best of his ability to render faithful service. He extended to all who were without a church home a cordial invitation to attend the various services.

The addresses were interspersed with selections by the choir and singing by the congregation.

The service closed with a benediction by the pastor.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

Passed by Fraserville Orange Lodge at its Last Regular Meeting

The following resolution of condolence was recently passed by Fraserville Loyal Orange Lodge:

To Mrs. Thomas Smith, mother, Mrs. David Smith, wife, and Mildred Smith, daughter of the late David Smith,—

We, the officers and members of Fraserville L. O. L., No. 46, desire to convey to you our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in the bereavement which you have recently undergone, in the loss of a loving son, a devoted husband and a kind father. Your loss is our loss, which we feel to be very great because one has been removed from among us who set forth the noble Christian principles of our association in his every day life since his connection with the Order twenty-six years ago, and whose example was worthy of imitation by every member of our association.

We know that at such a time words fail to convey our true feelings, but we assure you that we all grieve with you in your sorrow and affliction, and our prayer is that God, who saw fit to call our dear brother to his eternal home may give you grace sufficient to overcome your sorrow, and say "Thy will be done."

We cannot always see the purpose of the affliction, but God knows what is best for us and we bow humbly to His will.

We, therefore, point you, in your great sorrow, to the Great Comforter who doeth all things well. And may you all look forward to the bright day when you shall meet your dear one when partings are no more.

It is but death to die,
To leave this weary road
And, midst the Angels on high,
To be at home with God.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge, by appointment at its last regular meeting,

JOSEPH MADILL,
G. F. CLARKE.

COLORED TRAMPS NOT PLENTIFUL

Sons of Ham on Walking Tours are a Rarity

Come to think of it, have you ever seen a tramp who was a negro? Perhaps you have, but you must admit that it has not been very often. Why this is thus it is hard to say. Whether Canada is too far away from the Southern melon fields; whether the negro is even too tired by nature to tramp, or whether, on the other hand he is too thrifty—whatever be the reasons, the negro is not often found at Canadian kitchens looking for a hand-out.

The scarcity of negro tramps is emphasized by the records kept of the hundreds who seek shelter at the police station. Men who have been on the police force for years state that so far as their recollection goes, they have had little to do with colored tramps.

CONSERVATIVE RALLY

A very large and successful rally was held in Mr. Bradburn's committee rooms on Saturday evening and amongst those who spoke were the candidate, Mr. Bradburn, Mr. L. M. Hayes, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Davidson Kennedy, Mr. R. N. Scott, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mr. W. B. Robinson. The value of Mr. Bradburn to the county in comparison with his predecessor, the record of the Government and the prospects of the campaign, were all discussed. There is no doubt that Mr. Bradburn will have a very large majority. His opponents are conceding that. Mr. Charles Benton occupied chair. The Conservative organization is nearly perfect.

CATARRH NOW CURABLE

But Never by Medicine Swallowed, Snuffs, Sprays or Douches

Catarrh is not a blood disease and that is why it cannot be cured by any medicine taken into the stomach. Catarrh is a germ trouble contracted from the germ-laden air you breathe inward. These germs fasten themselves in the tissue and air cells of the breathing organs, multiply by millions, cause sneezing, coughing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, difficulty in breathing, hoarseness, dryness, and stoppage of the nose, tickling in the throat and other symptoms that can only be reached by the dry air principal of Hyomei.

It medicates the air you breathe with the curative properties of the Australian Eucalyptus Forests where catarrh is unknown.

The reason you get relief in a minute or two from Hyomei is because it destroys every catarrhal germ in the air you breathe, and its dry penetrating aroma will reach the innermost recesses of the air passages, killing millions of germs a minute. Their destruction means freedom for oppressed respiratory organs. W. Madill, druggist, corner of Hunter and George streets, Peterborough, sells Hyomei under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Price $1.00.

SPORTING NEWS

WILL WALK FOR THE ONE MILE CHAMPIONSHIP OF CANADA

In a short time Charlie Stevens, of Peterborough, and Jas. Graham, of Buffalo, meet in a mile race at Niagara Falls, Ont. The go between the Buffalo veteran and the local ped. will be for the one mile championship of Canada.

It will be remembered that Graham and Stevens met at the Brock street rink while the tournament was being held here, the former winning by a small margin after a closely contested race. Stevens thinks he has a good chance of beating his opponent however and the match has consequently been arranged to take place at Niagara Falls.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

LAWN BOWLING

A meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will be held at the Dominion Rink chambers tomorrow night at eight o'clock for the purpose of choosing skips, arranging the rinks and making other arrangements for the opening of the season. A large attendance is requested.

Parkhill Musical Society band is now led by A. B. Murchison, formerly of Montreal.

RUNNING

LEN DOBSON TO RUN.

"Len" Dobson, formerly of Peterborough who has started up in business here with Mr. Sherwood in "My Valet" is going to Toronto next Saturday to try and win a few laurels for Lindsay. "Len" has a great reputation as a runner and will no doubt put up a hard fight for a trip to the old country. The eyes of the Lindsay townspeople will be upon "Len" in Toronto and it is hoped that he will win. The Olympic trials take place on Saturday and Monday next at the Rosedale lacrosse grounds Toronto.—Lindsay Free Press.

FAST SPRINTER IN THE CITY

Walter Knox of Orillia on Visit to Mr. Geo. Stevens—Runner Who Defeated Bellard

Walter Knox, the fast sprinter from Orillia is in the city on a visit to Mr. George Stevens. Knox ran against Dave Belland at the Driving Park some time ago beating him out.

Mr. Stevens states Knox is not looking for a match but will take anything in the line that happens to come along.

BOTH HAVE LOTS OF CONFIDENCE

Hurtubise and Rogers Both Think Their Chances Good for the $200 Purse

There is a great difference in opinion as to what chance Hurtubise has with Yankee Rogers. Some are of the opinion that Rogers cannot possibly throw the local Hercules three times in an hour. Others think he can, and there are some who are so optimistic as to think that "Gene" will manage to secure a fall on his big opponent and thus win the bout.

Probably the last mentioned view is a trifle too optimistic and seems just a question as to whether Hurtubise will be able to withstand this man for the hour without letting him obtain the three falls.

It is well known that "Gene" is extraordinarily strong and more than that is active and has a good knowledge of the game. He is confident that he can stand Rogers, who has done considerable correspondence with local persons, since the match has been arranged, and is, judging from tone of his letters, certain that he can win the bout. A big surprise is liable to be sprung either way.

WALKING CIRCUIT MAY BE FORMED

With Belleville, Kingston Montreal and Other Towns Included

Mr. George Stevens thinks the outlook for the walking game in Canada is very bright. He is looking after its interests with much industry these days and is arranging walks at every possible opportunity.

He has informed the Review that there is a possibility of a walking circuit consisting of Belleville, Kingston, Montreal and other places, being formed. If it is there seems no reason why walks of a successful character could not be held regularly.

SLAUGHTER HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE EARLY THIS MORNING

Mr. Robt. Howden Suffers Heavy Loss—Several Pigs Burned Alive—Valuable Hides and Undressed Beef Also Destroyed.

Fire broke out in the slaughter-house of Mr. Robt. Howden about one o'clock this morning, completely destroying the building and inquiring a loss of about $1,000.

The slaughter house is situated on the east side of the river, just below the locks bridge. How the conflagration originated cannot be ascertained. It is a mystery and Mr. Howden is at a loss to know what could have started it. The blaze had gained considerable headway before anyone knew anything of it. The roof had fallen in when the first person arrived on the scene. Mr. Howden resides on Romaine street a considerable distance from where the fire was.

Several pigs were burned alive, also a large number of good hides and a quantity of undressed beef were destroyed.

While Mr. Howden cannot state the exact amount of his loss, it is estimated that it is in the neighborhood of $1,000, partly covered by insurance.

TWENTY POLLING PLACES IN THE CITY FOR THE ELECTION

There will be twenty polling subdivisions in the city of Peterborough for the provincial elections on June 8th. This is a larger number than in past elections, and it is a result of the growth of the city.

There will be three polling subdivisions in Galway, two in Cavendish, three in Harvey, two in Ennismore, five in Smith and two in North Monaghan. The list will be published at an early date.

GOOD FISHING IN THE CENTRE OF PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough anglers in the past seem to have been ignorant of the possibilities of the town creek as a place for suckers. To-day, however, the fact that there was good fishing in the creek seems to have become known, at any rate a number of anglers cast their lines in the creek just north of Hunter street, and the sport was great. The suckers bit with the eagerness of a Grit office-seeker after a government job, and it did not take those who were fishing long to secure some fine strings. One man pulled out a half dozen fine suckers in almost that many minutes, while another had over three dozen when he started for home. A large number of spectators were attracted by the fishing in the central part of the city and watched the proceedings with interest.

REGISTRATION PROMISES TO BE ESPECIALLY LARGE ONE

The voters are registering well for the coming elections. In the different wards the Conservative registrations are most encouraging and a large majority for Mr. Bradburn is looked for when the ballots have been counted.

In Ward 2, out of 300 voters over 125 supporters of Mr. Bradburn have registered. The registration in No. 1 Ward is probably the heaviest of any, although the registrations are correspondingly numerous in Wards 4 and 5. The registration will probably be the biggest ever held in Peterborough.

P. G. WALKER OF INDIAN RIVER DOES 11 MILES IN FAST TIME

Walked From Above Same to Peterboro' at a Fraction Faster Than Five and Half Miles an Hour—59 Years Old To-day

The residents of Ashburnham were mildly disturbed this afternoon to see a man walking through the streets at a Hougland rate. He was clad in a plaid shirt, wore long trousers and light shoes. The men working on the lift lock quit work as he tore along at this rapid clip.

The cause of such excitement was none other than Mr. P. G. Walker, who conducts a sawmill at Indian River. He is 59 years of age to-day and walked from Indian River to Peterborough, a distance of eleven miles, in 117 minutes, or three minutes less than two hours.

Mr. Walker, who [illegible] to his name, is regarded as somewhat of a pedestrian by his friends, but they stated he would not make the journey from Indian River to Peterborough in two hours and twenty minutes, but he did it twenty minutes faster than the time they specified, thus proving their poor prophesies to his ability as a ped.

Newspapermen from the Examiner and Review saw Mr. Walker finish and he was going very strong. He called into Lang and Maher's on George street and there changed his attire. He was not breathing unduly heavily at all and seemed quite fresh.

OPENING OF THE CITY LEAGUE

West Ends Will Meet the Y. M. C. A. Team To-morrow Night

The opening game of the Intermediate City League will be played at Nicholls Oval to-morrow evening, when the West Ends, last year's champions, will meet the fast Y.M.C.A. team. Both teams are keen for a victory and a snappy game is assured. Ted Maddock, the Peterborough short stop, will likely umpire the contest. The game is called for six o'clock.

ABOUT THE BOUT

Yankee Rogers and his manager, W. B. Naylor, will arrive in the city to-morrow.

The referee has not yet been decided upon by the wrestlers and their managers, but he will be an out of town man.

An endeavor will be made to secure an electric clock to be placed in full view of the audience so they will be able to see the time for themselves.

Mr. W. E. Wasson, who is an expert timekeeper, has been agreed upon as timer for all the bouts.

The minutes of the main bout will be called out.

A section in the balcony will be reserved for the ladies. A large patronage from them is anticipated by the management.

HAVE THE RINK STAKED OUT

It seems that the youngsters of the city are using every available place in the town for pedestrian purposes.

They have been using the old curling rink property on Charlotte St. as an arena for holding walks and now have a track staked out there. The game has certainly caught on with the juveniles of Peterborough and in their estimation is many laps ahead of the usual summer sports.

Suffered 20 Years

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured in 2 Months

St. Raphaels, Ont.

For over twenty years I suffered from Chronic Constipation of the bowels, and I could get no medicine to cure me. I tried doctors and every known purgative, or laxative, medicine known but I was no better. Sometimes, if I did not take medicine, I would go four or five days, without any action of the bowels During all this time I was weak and suffered from Indigestion constantly.

About a year ago a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives" as they had helped her. I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset I began to feel better, and inside of a month the pains were almost gone and the Constipation relieved. In two months I was perfectly well again, no pains, no constipation and my complexion had lost all that sallow appearance.

(Sgd) MARY A. McDONELL.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or Fruit Liver Tablets—are the only remedy known to science that actually cure Constipation. They do this by making the liver healthy and active—thus causing more bile to flow into the bowels. 152

"Fruit-a-tives"—or "Fruit Liver Tablets" are sold by dealers at 50c a box—6 for $2.50—or will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa

THE AWAKENING OF CHINA

About four years ago a leading American investigator, formerly assistant Secretary of State, speaking of the future of China, said that China had been so many times on the point of waking up from its sleep of centuries that it was impossible to say whether the evidence then appearing of an awakening could be relied upon or not.

No one could listen to Minister Wu at Carnegie Hall recently without being impressed by the proofs which he presented that at last China has woke up. Mr. Wu admitted that the Chinese were slow in making a new departure, but declared that once the truth strikes home and its practicability is demonstrated, they do not hesitate at the radical nature of the change, nor are discouraged by the difficulties in making the change. Now that China has really entered upon an era of reform, aiming practically at an almost complete social revolution, it would appear that its progress is to be rapid and indeed, it may rival the wonderful metamorphosis that has taken place in Japan in the last half century.

The most important of these changes are in the greater effectiveness and centralization of government, in the advancement of education, in the improvement of commercial intercourse, and in the establishment of an effective army and navy. But the most striking proofs of the earnestness of the new movement, furnished by Minister Wu, are shown not in these things, but in the fact that China is actually and effectively overturning one of the oldest customs, that of compressing the feet of its women. There is nothing harder in the world to reform than a fashion and yet China is really accomplishing that miracle. Another striking proof is that it is rapidly getting rid of the colossal evil of the opium habit. This is as difficult to accomplish a that of revolutionizing a domestic custom, and yet there has been a remarkable progress.

If China can get rid of the fashion which condemns her women to a lifelong deformity, and can get rid of a habit that corrupts and demoralizes its men, it ought to be able to accomplish the great political reform which Mr. Wu believes will be attained sooner or later, namely, the establishment of a popular assembly and constitutional government.—Wall Street Journal.

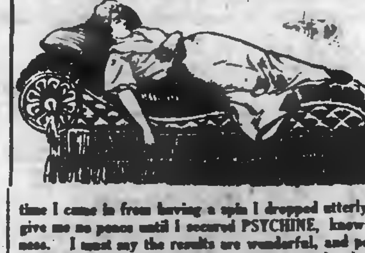
UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION

Insurance Men Met Yesterday Afternoon---An Address by Mr. Sanderson

A meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association of Central Ontario was held yesterday afternoon at the Toronto Savings and Loan Co.'s office. There were a large number of insurance men present, including Messrs W. A. Widdess, Lindsay; Capt W. J. Robinson, of Port Hope; Mr. Sanderson, joint general manager of the Canada Life Association of Toronto. After the general business had been transacted, Mr. Sanderson dealt with insurance conditions in Canada during the past twenty years.

HELPLESS AND WORN OUT. LIFE WAS A BURDEN.



Miss Ella Muriel Wood, of Brownsville, Ont., says: "Two years ago I was going into a decline. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I could not sweep the carpet. If I went for a drive I had to lie down when I came back; if I went for a mile or two on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spin I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father would give me no peace until I secured PSYCHINE, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results are wonderful, and people remarked my improvement. Instead of a little, pale, hollow-cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day full of life, ready for a sleigh-ride, a skating match, or an evening party with anyone, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home. I have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of the disease."

Psychine regulates and strengthens the stomach, aids digestion, tones up the whole system, and gives a vigor and exhilaration to every organ. It is an infallible remedy for all disorders of Throat, Lungs, Chest, and Stomach.

OPEN LETTER TO BUSINESS MEN OF PETERBOROUGH

Some Reasons Why the Endeavor of the Y.M.C.A. to Raise a Fund Should be Given Every Encouragement

Were you at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last night? If you were you heard some good things. If you were not you should have been there. For it concerns you. Why neglect or overlook a matter of such importance?

There are two interests in life you are expected to consider, to assist, to nurse and to cultivate — your and that of the business community in general. Your own interests relate to the present — the general interest relates to the future. Why be so wrapped up in your own that you can't spare a short time to lend a hand to the times that are coming?

As a business man you are not the whole thing. No one man can perform all the duties of his business. If he can, then his business is one lacking the push that a reasonable ambition says it ought to have. But in all decent circumstances you must have help. Call it assistance if you like; call it anything you wish, but it means that you must employ. You may employ clerks, accountants, book-keepers, workmen, all kinds of of help. Now is it not of vital importance to you what the character of the help shall be?

Are you not ever and always looking for the good man. Do you often get him? Why isn't he good —for your uses? What does he lack? Who is responsible for the lacking? And what have you done to remedy such a state of affairs?

Haven't you had young people come to you and get employment and both been disappointed? And why? Possibly because you expected too much and the young person offered too little — not money in either case, but services. And with services go—or should go — some moral attributes that count. Possibly they were lacking. Not so much that people are dishonest, but they lack good moral fibre and the willingness to do things right because they are right. You expected to find in the applicant some character. Now character is not all covered by the word "honesty." A man may be strictly honest and he may be useless as a worker, weak, hesitating, a shirker and evader. Do not you realize that if some good, square personal ambition and sense of duty for duty's sake could be coaxed, pushed, driven and hammered into a lot of young men that they the employer and the community in general would be mightily benefited. Now, whether you believe it or not, that is just what the Y. M. C. A. is trying to do. It can't do it just in the way you think it should be done, or anyone thinks it must be done, but accomplishes in the very best way the institution can find to do it with the means at hand. The Y. M.C.A. seeks and tries if it gets half a chance, to take the boy and youth just when home training is weakening, and throw about him interests that will brace him up and keep him straight until he gets some horse sense to act for himself.

Now, don't sit back and say a whole lot of things about home training. Your boy may have been home trained and shows it. But all homes are not like yours. And boys differ a great big heap. It's the boy who is getting away from home influences that the Y.M.C.A. seeks to get after. The boy has energy, life, activity, and these should be turned into a good channel.

Now, don't run away with the idea that this matter of a decent reliable personal character is something that is expected of lawyers, doctors, bankers and merchants, and is of very little earthly use to the general ruck of men. That's where you you are mistaken—if you think that way. There is just as much necessity of a staunch, moral character in the workman, laborer, and, in fact, in all walks of life as in the professions. It's the average boy the Y. M. C. A. are after. To help to make him a good citizen, a reliable workman, to inculcate in him honesty in all things both in his work and in his relations to others is what is being tried for.

To do this calls for money—money to pay for services, for expenses of the building, for those who instruct and teach. Talk won't keep it up. Promises are little better. What tells is the cash or its equivalent.

The Y. M. C. A. is not a state fed and supported institution. It exists on the givings of men who believe its objects are good and that it should be helped. Don't drop the burden on a few. Everything helps. Take the whole matter up and decide that it is worthy and deserving and make the hearts of those in charge glad by your contributions.

R. U. HELPFUL.

MR. BRADBURN'S OPENING MEETING IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

There was a large and representative attendance of electors at the opening meeting of Mr. Bradburn's campaign held last evening in the Temperance Hall, 4th Line Smith. Mr. Bradburn, M.P.P.; Mr. Peck and Mr. Burnham were the speakers. Mr. John Moore on motion took the chair and introduced Mr. Peck, who opened the proceedings. Mr. Gillespie said Mr. Peck, is a very estimable man, but when we see who accompany him in his campaign, we cannot forget that he is allowing himself to be the candidate of an old and out-of-date faction, and that his surroundings do not appeal to those who hear him refer to his independence and to his desire to look at our political circumstances in a free and unbiased way. Mr. Peck stated that the Ross Government had made a serious and confusing mistake in their County Councils Act, which had taken away from many townships their representative in the County Council altogether. This had been corrected by Mr. Whitney to the general satisfaction of the ratepayers. Hon. J. R. Stratton was reported as saying that there was never so much letting of contracts without tender as at present. He must have referred to Ottawa for that certainly does not apply to Toronto. Mr. Stratton should be able to give at least some instances. Mr. Peck called attention to the fact that the percentage of dismissals from the public service had been very small. Surely, it could not be pretended, in the face of the downfall and utter rout of the Ross Government, that none of their nominees were at all deserving of censure. The staff of the Parliament buildings remained almost untouched. Mr. Peck dwelt at length upon the finances of the province, showing how the deficit of a million a year, which Mr. Ross admitted, had been turned as if by magic, into a surplus. The record earned in genuine revenue (not from timber sales) demonstrated at once the strength of Mr. Whitney and the alarming weakness of Mr. Ross. On these surpluses has been built the magnificent system of subsidies granted to municipalities in every department, the like of which could not be duplicated in any other country in the world. (Applause.)

Mr. Bradburn, on rising, was received with applause. He expressed himself as delighted with the large attendance and hoped that a clear statement of the Whitney case would convince the electors that Mr. Whitney was in every way entitled to a renewal of their confidence. The days of slavery had ended with the rout of Jan. 25th, 1905. The numbered ballot, which was in reality a tag on every man who exercised his franchise, had been swept out of existence by Mr. Whitney. The ballot was now in every essential the same as the Dominion ballot, and was absolutely secret. The old corresponding numbers on ballot and counterfoil were no longer there. It was now impossible for a returning officer to betray the confidence of an elector. A saving of very many thousands of dollars in school books would be followed by an extended programme in that direction leading up now that the publishers' combine had been broken up to cheaper schoolbooks in every department, and ultimately, he hoped, to the making free to parents of school books altogether. The continued and almost extraordinary financial ability of the Government had enabled it to rescue every branch of the public service notwithstanding the hard times. It was to the interest of the electorate that such a Government should be returned. (Applause.)

Mr. Burnham entered at length and in detail into a minute statement of the improvement and development of the election law, which in Ross's time was really no law at all and seemed to be more for the purpose of making inquiries, investigations, recounts and protests, impossibly expensive than anything else. It was no longer necessary in enforcing the law to employ city counsel and to face financial ruin. It was now within the reach of everybody who could afford a division court suit to sue for the collection of the numerous penalties attached to infractions of the election law. Technicalities had been swept aside. Whereas formerly a majority of 200 forestalled a recount and thus encouraged the ballot-stuffer to put in an extra handful, now no matter how big the majority a recount could be demanded and proceeded with before the county judge without a day's delay. It was no longer possible likewise for a rich candidate to beat his opponent by hiring all the conveyances and carrying the voters free. To do so, would now vitiate the seat. All these things showed the manifest and determined intention of the government to free the province from corruption and to give fair play. Mr. Burnham quoted the Dominion Alliance manifesto which commended the Whitney government for "tightening up the enforcement of the licence law and of law generally." There could be no higher praise for any government. The speaker took up a number of other points and concluded by asking the electors to avoid returning a member of a disgraced administration in the person of Mr. MacKay to power, but to reward faithful endeavor and honest service on the part of Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Scott spoke of the sinkhole and observed that Mr. Bradburn had obtained the usual grant for this unfortunate enterprise and that misleading statements such as appeared in the Examiner could do no one any good.

The usual cheers concluded the meeting.

Put it to the test and let your teapot prove to you that for purity, flavor, quality and reliability "Salada" is supreme.

SOCIETY ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT

Mr. Maybee is Now Head of Knox Church Young People's Society

The meeting of the Young People's Society of Knox church last night opened with a hymn, reading and prayer. Mrs. Keith spoke upon the China Inland Mission. It was very interesting and was enjoyed by all. A duet was sung by Misses Menzies and Bardley. An election for a new president took place, the vacancy being made by Mr. D. Campbell's departure for the west. Mr. Wilkie suggested Mr. Maybee, and was seconded by Mr. Patten. The resolution was carried unanimously.

June 1st will be devotional night, when it is expected there will be a large attendance, owing to the election of new officers for the ensuing year. Mr. Wilkie closed the meeting with prayer.

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

ROBBERS ENTERED GEO. ST. STORE AND EMPTIED TILL OF OVER SIX DOLLARS

An Attempt Was Also Made to Burglarize Grocery Store of Mr. Jas. R. Bell—Were Noticed Before an Entrance Was Effected and Quickly Disappeared.

The dry goods store of Mr. A. G. Dickson, George St., was entered last evening, but only a few dollars were taken. The burglars gained entrance to the store by breaking a pane of glass in a window in the rear of the shop. Large packing boxes had been piled up to the window and in this way they climbed up to where they had made the hole. However, they must have got scared and, with only the contents of the till which amounted to $6.50, they made their escape.

An attempt was also made to burglarize the grocery store of Mr. Jas. R. Bell, on Hunter St., which is in close proximity to Mr. Dickson's place of business. However, they were foiled in their plans before they had successfully carried them out. A well-known Hunter St. resident, discovered them and when they found out that they had been detected they quickly disappeared.

It was shortly after one o'clock that the robbery was committed. Much credit is due the man who discovered them. He knocked over one of the boxes and one of the robbers fell to the ground. The other one had to jump. They must have cut themselves on the glass as there were signs of blood.

Having disposed of my meat business, all outstanding accounts can be paid at our former place of business and a receipt given by Miss Allison.

GRANTS FOR THE ORANGEMEN AND SALVATION ARMY BAND

Association Will be Given $125 for Decorating Purposes on July 13th—$150 for Salvation Army Band.

At a meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon it was decided to recommend a grant of $125 to the Orange Association for decorating for the celebration here on July 13th, and also to grant $150 to the Salvation Army band, provided they play in the park the same as last year. The concerts this year will be given on Tuesday, instead of on Thursday evenings.

No action was taken regarding the assessors' request for an increase in salary or the application of the Salvation Army band for a grant.

It was moved by Ald. Neill, and seconded by the Mayor, that a grant of $125 be made to the Orange Association towards decorating the city for the celebration on July 13th, and that they be given the use and control of Central Park for the day. —Carried.

On motion of Ald. Neill and Ald. Phelan, a grant of $150 was made to the Salvation Army band on condition that they play in Victoria Park each Tuesday night during the season, or such other park as may be suggested by the chairman of the Property Committee.

It was moved by Ald. Neill, and seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the assessors be paid $75 each on account of salary on the last days of May, June, July and August, and the balance when they return rolls with assessment completed.—Carried.

Dr King's request for a dog kennel license was granted.

THE AUTO BUS WILL BE RUN TO CHEMONG AGAIN THIS SUMMER

The big auto car will be run to Chemong again this season. The usual four trip a day service will be given and the buss will be in charge of Mr. Ernie Hannah.

The car is at present in Wilson's machine shop, George street, where it is being thoroughly overhauled and repaired.

TO START JUNE 15th.

It will commence its trip to Chemong on June 15th, when the lake boats commence to ply their trade and continue at them as long as the traffic warrants it doing so.

The bus will open for engagements, however, about May 25th.

CAPT. HOUNSELL HAS BEEN GIVEN LONG SERVICE MEDAL

Capt. R. T. Hounsell, of the 57th Regiment, has received his long service medal from the Department of Militia. The medal proper is about the size of a fifty cent piece and on one side it bears the King's head and on the other the words, "For long service in the Colonial Auxiliary forces."

Captain Hounsell has been twenty years in the militia, joining the 57th Regiment as a private in 1886. At that time he was only fourteen years of age. He has worked himself up to the rank of captain and his many friends will be glad to hear that henceforth the long service medal insignia will adorn his uniform.

LEGAL COMMITTEE MEETINGS MAY BE HELD IN PRIVATE

There is a probability that the meetings of the Legal Committee of the City Council may be held behind closed doors in future. At the present time, the representatives of the press are admitted but some of the city officials and aldermen are of the opinion that the publication of what is transacted at the meetings interferes with the work of the committee and as a result the change is proposed.

It is likely that some action towards excluding the press representatives will be taken at the next meeting of the committee.

Henry B. Harris, Manager of " The Lion and the Mouse " presents RALPH STUART in "STRONGHEART" Grand Opera House, Tuesday, May 26.

THAT POPULAR "STRONGHEART"

A play which has scored a tremendous success in every city in which it has been presented is that of "Strongheart" A play of college life by William C. De Mille, in which Ralph Stuart interprets the role and which will be seen here at the Grand Opera House Tuesday, May 26th.

"Strongheart is said to be full of "fun and football" the scenes being laid at Columbia University, New York. The second act of the play shows the training quarters of the football eleven between the halves of of a big game, which is probably one of the most novel settings ever seen on the stage, and as for its being realistic, in speaking of Mr. Stuart's description of his football game, Coach Yost of Michigan, said, "It is so real that when the curtain went down, my men felt like having a shower bath" One sees in the distance the football grounds, hears the yells, the counts of the touch downs and the intermingling songs of both colleges.

GOOD CONCERT AT GEORGE STREET

Unique Entertainment Was Greatly Enjoyed—Programme of Much Interest

Last evening there was a good attendance at the entertainment in the George street church lecture room. A programme of agreeable variety was put on and very well handled by those contributing. The orchestra of the Sunday School under the leader- the Sunday School under the leadership of Mr. W. A. Cunningham, played their prettiest and did the organization much credit. Miss Mourey, sang "The Lost Chord" accompanied by the orchestra. Mr. Walton sang, "The Deathless Army," Messrs. Cunningham, Walton, Tretheway and Zepp gave a vocal quartette and Misses Christy and Smith a piano solo. Six members of the congregation, venerable and otherwise, gave ten minute speeches of incident and fact. The speakers included Messrs. Eyres, Nugent, Soden, Dobbin, Powell and Rev. Mr Pearson. The addresses were interesting and much enjoyed. As the receipts of the evening go to the funds of the orchestra and library, these objects netter quite a respectable contribution, which is very much appreciated.

TO BE TAKEN TO HOUSE OF REFUGE

Mrs. Dixon and Two Children Will be Taken From Shelter To-morrow

There are at present eleven children in the children's shelter and the caretaker, Mr. Wm. Henry and his wife, are kept busy looking after them all. However, there will be three less tomorrow as Mrs. Dixon and her two children, of North Harvey, who have been living there for the past few days will be taken to the House of Refuge, at Lakefield. It will be remembered that Mrs. Dixon and her children were taken from home owing to the illtreatment they received at the hands of Dixon.

The Reeve of Harvey gave the order to have them removed

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS, 1908

To the Electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—It is my privilege to again appear before you as the Conservative candidate in the approaching election of members of the Ontario Legislature, and while on the previous occasion I was in opposition to the Government, I now have the pleasure of supporting the Administration of Hon. J. P. Whitney, whose management of the affairs of the Province, with the support of an able cabinet, has, during his short premiership, proved of such marked benefit.

Measures of a far-reaching character have been passed, and the statute books of the last three years are replete with legislation of a high order, as well for its originality as its soundness. Let me mention a few of the important acts of the past sessions. The establishment of a Railway and Municipal Board, the new act relating to mining, the creation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the amendment of the liquor laws, amendments to the law relating to the election of members of the Legislature, particularly the alteration in the ballot, which is now absolutely secret.

The administration of the public domain, especially the mining laws of the Province, has been most profitable, adding large sums to both revenue and capital, and the different changes which have been effected in the Education Department have met with the approval of all persons, concerned in that most important branch of the public service.

One of the beneficial acts of the Government is the taking with its own hands the distribution of electric energy through the great water power of Niagara Falls, and other rivers capable of hydraulic development. Thus are the different municipalities turough the Province enabled to obtain the inestimable commodity at a minimum of cost.

The Government, while endeavoring to serve the people generally have not been unmindful of the importance of this riding, and when the new normal schools were to be created one of the four was placed in this constituency, thus affording exceptional advantages to the teachers and schools of this county.

In the short time which will elapse before polling day, I shall endeavour to make my views more fully known to you both privately and publicly, and I bespeak your cordial support, not so much because of any merits of my own, as on account of the splendid record of the Government.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

T. E. BRADBURN

LANDLORD CLEARED THE HOUSE AND LOCKED DOOR

There was a lively row at a residence on Aylmer street and the police had to be called to help straighten out matters. It appears that the landlord of a rented house became intoxicated and called at the residence to put out the tenant. There was only a woman and her child in the house and the landlord ordered them out, stating that they were behind in the rent. The woman became frightened and fled to a neighbors with her baby and the landlord locked the door of the house. When the woman's husband returned a few minutes afterward there threatened to be trouble, but the tenant decided on the wiser course of wending for the police. One of the police constables arrived in due time but was not able to do much. It is stated everything was arranged satisfactorily to-day.

BULLETS WHIZZ IN STREET CAR STRIKE AT CLEVELAND

Rioting at Cleveland—Cars Stopped and Burned—Thirty Shots Exchanged Between Strikers and Car Operators—Four Men Seriously Hurt.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—Rioting became more general and serious in the street railway strike late yesterday.

The first death, while not a part of the strike, but incident to it, occurred when Yetta Wolkinski, 4 years of age, was run over by a car operated by an inexperienced motorman. A crowd quickly gathered and would have lynched the motorman had he not turned on full speed and escaped.

In Lakewood a car was stopped and the crew fired upon. Four persons were shot and seriously injured and the car was burned to the trucks.

The first disturbance in the downtown section also took place after dark, when a Woodland car was held up on Ontario street and the motorman and conductor attacked. The police dispersed the rioters.

The burning of a Clifton boulevard car at Lakewood was the most serious riot of the strike, which now is four days old. The car was bound toward the western terminal when it was stopped by a log being thrown across the tracks.

It was the first effort to operate a car in Lakewood and the car carried no passengers as trouble was expected when an attempt should be made to open the line. As soon as the car stopped it was surrounded by a crowd of rioters, who were hidden behind a railway bridge. Immediately the crowd began shooting at the members of the crew and guards. The latter returned the fire. Over thirty shots were exchanged.

While the shooting was in progress the crowd grew to nearly a thousand. Another car arrived and its crew and guards joined in the free for all fight. Gasoline was poured upon the second car and it was burned to the trucks. The Cleveland police were notified and 60 officers were sent to the rescue. The first car, riddled with bullets and windows broken, proceeded to the car barn.

Motorman P. C. Elshols and Gray and George Alexander, guards on the second car, were wounded, as was Mace Burlingame, who was in the crowd which made the attack. All were taken to a hospital where they were reported to be in a serious condition.

Yetta Wolkinski was killed by an Eastern avenue car, while attempting to cross the street. The little girl's head had been severed from her body. By mistake two morgue keepers had been called. When their dead wagons arrived, one took the girl's head and the other her body. The frantic parents, excitedly trying to obtain possession of the several parts of the body, inflamed the mob's spirit and more trouble was narrowly averted by the police.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS FROM MANY POINTS OF THE WORLD

William Kinloch, wholesale grocer, Montreal, is dead, aged 91.

The family of William Stagg, Brockville, consisting of Mrs. Stagg, three children and a guest, were poisoned from eating canned tomatoes. His arrival and finding them unconscious was the means of saving their lives.

MR. MANN'S VISIT CAUSES COMMENT

Is Railway Magnate Assisting in the Deadlock at Ottawa.

Toronto, May 20.—The Globe's Ottawa correspondent, referring to the Opposition's fight against the election bill, wires: "A significant sidelight on the present situation is the arrival of Mr. D. D. Mann in the capital simultaneously with Premier Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers. The influence of the Canadian Northern magnates with the Manitoba Ministry is well known, and corridor talk here connects Mr. Mann's visit with the attempt now being made to embarrass the Government and force a dissolution, failing the granting of certain desired concessions."

Wanted Modest Funeral.

Quebec, May 20.—The will of Sir Louis Napoleon Casault, former chief justice of the Superior Court for the district of Quebec, leaves his entire estate to his wife, Lady Casault (nee Pangman), and then requests that the funeral service attending his burial be as simple as that of the humblest and poorest man, and that it consist of only a libera; that only the smallest bell be tolled; that his coffin be made of pine painted black; that the hearse be drawn by only one horse and that only six candles be placed around the bier.

Has Mysteriously Disappeared.

Smith's Falls, May 20.—On Saturday morning at eight o'clock William Corbett left his home to go down town, and from 10 o'clock that day so far as is known he has disappeared completely.

The most diligent search has been made for him by organized parties in all directions. He is 59 years of age, and is lame, a result of paralysis.

Fled From Plague to Die From Poison

New York, May 20.—Fleeing from plague-stricken Venezuela, Eduardo De Erase, a coffee planter and reputed multi-millionaire, came to his death in a fashionable New York Hotel through taking what he believed to be a harmless tonic.

His wife, who also took some of the medicine, is in a serious condition.

LAURIER HAS SURRENDERED; THE OPPOSITION WINS OUT

Obnoxious Clauses of Election Bill Will be Dropped—Conference With Premier Roblin—Conservative Caucus Had Determined to Hold Out—Everything Now Satisfactory—Timber Scandals Again Before the House.

Ottawa, May 20.—The difficulty at Ottawa is at an end. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has promised that clause one of the election bill will be dropped.

Yesterday Premier Roblin of Manitoba, after attending the Opposition caucus, at which it is understood it was determined to continue the fight, was closeted with Sir Wilfrid Laurier for two hours. He left for Toronto last night accompanied by Attorney-General Rogers, and the fight which has continued for three weeks and which has created a condition of affairs unparalleled in the history of Canada, is at an end. Mr. Roblin stated that a satisfactory arrangement has been arrived at, but he declined to discuss details.

It is understood the Prime Minister was to see Mr. Borden to-day and arrange that clauses 1 and 17 would not be proceeded with.

One reason probably that has moved Sir Wilfrid to capitulate is the unwillingness to precipitate a general election. He had but two choices, to withdraw clause 1 or have supplies stopped, and with no money to carry on the business of the country he would have been forced to ask His Excellency for a dissolution.

A feeling of relief prevails now that the difficulty is settled.

In the House Mr. Blain read a letter from a constituent strongly urging that a proportion of the rural militia be sent to Quebec for the tercentenary. Sir Frederick Borden repeated that owing to the difficulty of providing transportation facilities only a portion of the permanent force would be taken. Mr. Foster asked about "my veterans" and Sir Frederick replied that the question had been referred to the commission.

"Were any influences other than lack of transportation brought to bear on the First Minister?" asked Sam Hughes.

"Nothing unless it be the genial smile of my hon. friend," replied Sir Wilfrid.

On the motion to go into supply, J. G. Turriff anticipated Mr. Ames by reading a report of a speech by Mr. Ames at Halifax, which he characterized as wholly false.

Mr. Foster referred to the leasing of some coal lands which had formerly been school lands. There were three applicants for one section, G. H. Gilmour in 1900, J. F. Howard in 1901 and Silas Griffis in 1902. Griffis secured the lease, whereupon Gilmour entered suit. Turriff, who was commissioner of lands, swore at the trial that he produced all the correspondence, but Mr. Foster produced two more letters and a telegram that passed between Turriff and Howard in 1902 and which showed that Turriff interested himself in behalf of Howard.

Says Letters Were Private.

Mr. Turriff, replying, said the facts were exactly as stated by Mr. Foster. He claimed that Gilmour and Howard had withdrawn their applications, and he believed also that there was collusion between the three. As to how his private letters got into the hands of Mr. Foster he did not know, but someone told him in Winnipeg that Gilmour had a couple of private letters of his (Turriff's) that were very compromising and that if he did not get a grazing lease he would use them. Turriff replied to this man that he could tell Gilmour.

Mr. Ames reopened the whole question of the alienation of timber resources of the Dominion with three years, from 1903 to 1906. More than 3,000 square miles of selected timber, or about one-half of the entire area under lease in the western provinces, fell into the hands, not of operators, but of speculators. One-half of this amount, comprising 25 per cent. of the timber of three provinces, was acquired by a group, the Burrows-Fraser combination, of which a brother-in-law of Mr. Sifton, then Minister of the Interior, was the central figure, under circumstances so peculiar as to have excited general comment.

T. A. Burrows, the Imperial Pulp Co., the Big River Lumber Co. and A. W. Fraser had also secured blocks. Were their selected blocks, nearly 300 in number, placed end to end they would form a continuous strip of thick timber one mile wide, stretching from Montreal to Winnipeg. Mr. Ames closed by saying: "Consequently, we can now do no more than lay the facts as far as disclosed before the House and country and leave upon the Government the onus of deciding whether there shall be further enquiry or not."

Mr. Burrows quoted a number of tenders to show that it was not unusual for tenderers to buy close together. His reason for putting in more than one check with his tender was to prevent the clerk of the bank, who marked the checks, knowing the amount of his tender.

While the bill of the Grand Trunk branch lines company was before the House, Hon. Mr. Graham submitted an amendment providing that on the expiration of the fifty-year lease of the National Transcontinental Railway to the Grand Trunk Pacific if the Government takes over the eastern section of the main line such of the branch lines as the company does not elect to retain shall be taken over at a valuation. He proposed that the amount of subsidies paid to the branch lines company shall be deducted from the price to be paid by the Government, or that it be fixed by arbitration.

Some discussion ensued which was not closed when the time expired.

Copies of treaties between Great Britain and the United States providing for demarcation of the international boundary between Canada and the United States and also concerning fisheries in contiguous waters were brought down.

The latter provides for uniform regulations as to times, seasons and appliances for the catching of fish to be determined by an international commission consisting of one representative of each Government.

It is provided by the treaty that the regulation as agreed upon shall be enforced simultaneously and that each Government shall exercise the jurisdiction over citizens of either country in case of violations of the joint regulations.

It is further provided that these regulations shall remain in force four years and shall be terminable only upon one year's notice by either of the contracting parties.

The treaty relating to the boundary goes into details at some length.

In further debate on the western timber lands Mr. Lake moved a resolution condemning the policy of the Department of the Interior, and speaking of the need of an investigation. On this a debate arose.

The House will not sit Monday and Thursday of next week, the latter being Ascension Day.

In the Senate on the motion for a third reading of the bill to incorporate the Dominion Lumbering & Power Co., Senator Davis moved an amendment to strike out the provision declaring that any general act of Ontario or Quebec, now or hereafter in force, not inconsistent with any general Federal act relating to transmission and distribution of electricity, shall apply to this company. If the act infringed rights on Ontario or any other province that declaration should be made by court and not by Parliament.

Senator G. W. Ross was against the amendment and for provincial rights.

A bill to amend the Railway Act was considered.

FOOT MANGLED CROSSING TRACK

Young Man Badly Injured at Bethany

Lindsay, May 19—While crossing the G.T.R. tracks at Bethany this morning about nine o'clock a young man was badly injured.

A freight train was shunting on the track at the time, and the unfortunate young man tried to cross between the cars.

The cars came together and his foot was caught between the two draw heads and horribly mangled.

It is learned that the victim of this painful accident was a resident of Bethany but no other particulars could be learned.

Woman Attempts Suicide In Cell.

New York, May 20.—Jennie Blunt, a young woman blackmailer, sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for shooting Charles M. Sanford, a lawyer, was found unconscious in her cell in the Raymond street jail from inhaling illuminating gas.

To Exhibit at Tokio.

Washington, May 20.—The House has passed the bill making an appropriation of $1,500,000 for representation by the United States at the Tokio Exposition in 1912.

The bill has already passed the Senate.

An Anglo-American Treaty.

Washington, May 20.—Acting Secretary of State Bacon and Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain have signed a treaty which provides regulations for the exchange of prisoners and for salvage and wreckage.

Merging Insurance Companies.

Montreal, May 20.—William Wallace, general manager of the Crown Life Insurance Co. of Toronto, is in the city conferring, it is understood, with H. Markland Molson, director of the Crown Life, and R. Forget, M. P., relative to matters in connection with a proposed merging of the Crown Life with the Royal Victoria Insurance Co. of this city.

Mr. Wallace is not in favor of the merger, but leading shareholders of the Crown Life are said to be determined to take action in the near future.

Amendment Lost.

Regina, Sask., May 20.—When the Government measure for rural telephone systems came to the third reading in the House the leader of the Opposition moved an amendment favoring the principle of Government ownership and operation as applied to the rural systems. A vote was taken on the amendment, and it was declared lost by 13 to 8.

LEAPED FROM FLAMES AND WERE KILLED

Man and Woman Killed in Hotel Fire at Tillsonburg—Broke Out Early This Morning—Feared That Some Perished in Burning Building

Special to the Review

Tillsonburg, May 20—At five fifteen this morning the Queen's hotel was discovered to be on fire and before the guests and employees of the hotel were thoroughly awake the halls and corridors were filled with smoke and escape by the stairway cut off by the flames so rapidly did the fire spread that before assistance could be rendered. Mrs. John Mero, and Miss Minnie Mero, wife and daughter of the proprietor, Miss Dunbar, of Buffalo, Miss Grey and other ladies together with several travellers had jumped from the second and third stories of the building to the pavement below.

Miss Grey and Mr. Reinhart, a traveller, whose home is not yet known, were instantly killed, by the fall and several others, including Mrs. and Miss Mero and Miss Dunbar were seriously injured.

The firemen were quickly on the spot and soon had four streams of water playing on the doomed building.

Several persons were rescued by ladders but as yet all the guests are not accounted for and it is feared that later developments will show that some perished in the burning building.

LATER

Tillsonburg, May 20— Clarence Bernard, traveller for Flett, Lowndens & Company, Toronto, died from inhaling flames. The report that a traveller named Reinhart was killed is incorrect. Miss Grey and Mr. Bernard are the only dead known so far. Miss Grey was a milliner employed by W. B. Hogarth & Co., Her home was in Stayner.

2.30 P.M.

Tillsonburg, May 20.—The body of Thomas Wheatley, bartender at the Queen's hotel has been found in the ruins. It was burned beyond recognition. This makes a total of three dead so far.

Shaughnessy Heights.

Vancouver, B. C., May 20.—The name of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is to be perpetuated at Vancouver by the laying out of a new residential section comprising 400 acres, now owned by the Canadian Pacific, and situated upon the heights overlooking the city. This district will be known as "Shaughnessy Heights," and will be laid out by the C.P.R. as a first-class residential district.

Liberal M. P. Got $700.

Ottawa, May 20.—In the public accounts committee M. S. Delisle, Liberal M. P. for Portneuf, told of a payment of $700 to him from the Government for damages sustained by the barge St. Catharine in the Lachine Canal in the spring of 1901.

Over 15,000 immigrants have arrived at Quebec since the opening of navigation.

BIG LABOR DISPUTE ON; EMPLOYEES FIGHT REDUCTION

C.P.R. Men Oppose Reductions and Ask For Increases—In Present State of Labor Market Increases Not Likely to Come.

Montreal, May 20.—The dispute between the Canadian Pacific Railway and its mechanics is fast spreading, and it is estimated that there are now sixteen thousand men interested in the fight being put up by the federation which has been formed by all the railway unions connected with the C. P. R. to fight against any reductions and for such increases of pay as they may consider possible.

With the present condition of business, when men by the hundreds are being laid off and earnings are showing heavy decreases every week, however, the chances of any increases are not regarded as very close. The agreements between the company and the boilermakers and machinists in Montreal expired on the 18th, and both are demanding increases of ten per cent. in wages, while the boilermakers also ask that their working hours be reduced from 55 to 52 hours a week.

These demands, however, are regarded by the company as merely a counterblast to the action of the C. P. R. in the west, in canceling its agreement with the unions and making a move to pay the mechanics according to their ability. H. H. Vaughn, assistant to the vice-president, states that the only possible explanation of the action taken by the machinists and boilermakers here was that they were looking for trouble in order to involve the eastern men in the present dispute between the company and its mechanics in the west. With so little work to do and so many men anxious to do it, Mr. Vaughn could find no other explanation for this demand for better wages and fewer hours.

The matter, however, is being looked into, and in the meantime the mechanics are working on the old schedule.

In the meantime the employes are continuing their efforts to present a strong front against the company, and within the past few days a move has been under way which may add six thousand car employes to the federation, making a total of sixteen thousand men who are federated to fight against any alteration in pay. This makes the present dispute the biggest labor difficulty that has ever happened in Canada, both in the number of men engaged and in the extent of territory covered. The federation members extend from Vancouver to St. John, while a number of machinists in the state of Maine are also interested.

The agreement with the Carmen's Union does not expire until the end of June. Some time ago they asked for better pay, but their demand was turned down by a board of arbitration. They will now submit a demand that their present schedule shall not be altered, while the agreements with the other mechanics last—practically asking that they hold what they have won.

The whole matter is at present in abeyance, awaiting the decision of the board of arbitration under the Lemieux Act, which will meet shortly at Winnipeg.

A Winnipeg despatch tells of conferences there, but until the jurisdiction of the arbitration board, fighting for a settlement, is decided, there will be no further procedure with the arbitration.

It is said that if the east is included in the discussion the company will take Mr. Fullerton from the board and appoint a member more conversant with railroad matters, especially in the east.

FIRST DAY OF THE Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN AUGURS WELL

$500 is Pledged—Young Men Determined to Win—Y.M.C.A. Not in Debt—Keep the Ball Rolling.

The first day of the Y.M.C.A. campaign finished with $500.00 pledged and a great many cards in the hands of the people. The only difficulty is in our friends realizing that this campaign decides the future of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., and it must be decided by to-morrow night.

The Association is not in debt. You are asked for $2,500.00 per year to keep it out of debt. This amount is necessary to carry on a work at all in keeping with the demands of the community. If this amount is secured there will be no excuse for the Association getting into debt.

In most every one of the campaigns conducted recently, at least $700.00 was pledged the first day. Perhaps Peterborough wants to break all records and subscribe $2,000.00 the last day.

The Y.M.C.A. is not an experiment, we know what it will accomplish for pure, clean manhood in the lives of young men and boys. Give us an opportunity.

Surely there are mothers and fathers in Peterborough that place the character and future usefulness of their sons above a yearly contribution. Money cannot buy character, but it can support an institution that makes character. There ought to be hundreds of people in a community like this who feel the responsibility toward the moral and religious life of the city.

The Y.M.C.A. is your servant—don't starve it.

Be optimistic—everybody contribute.

MAN WANTED IN URBANA FOR MURDER OF HIS BROTHER

Chief Roszel Received Letter From the Commissioners of Champaign County, Ohio—Brutal Murder Committed on April 16th

Chief Roszel has received a letter from the commissioners of Champaign County, Ohio, giving him a description of a murderer and asking him to publish them.

Charles Brannen is wanted at Urbana, Ohio, for the brutal and cold-blooded murder of his brother William six miles north-west of Urbana, on April 16th, at noon.

Brannen is 47 years of age, 5 feet 7 to 9 inches tall, weighs from 160 to 175 pounds, wears a down-cast look, squint eyed, and leans a little forward from the hips. He looks no one squarely in the face. His face is peaked and bears marks of years of syphilitic suffering, the marks strongly resembling pock-marks.

The murder was committed on April 16th, just as the family were called to dinner. Charles went into the sitting room and, taking a shot gun, from the closet, emptied its contents into his brother William's neck, who was about to greet his sister-in-law and nephew, who had just arrived from Buffalo. The quarrel originated from a dispute over $150. After the murder Brannen immediately fled and lost himself between Millerstown and Rosewood. The gun was found some days later.

Brannen is a moulder by trade, but is usually found around race tracks. When last seen he wore a black moustache and black hair. He wore a blue knit shirt, striped overalls, high laced boots and a slouched hat. He was seen in Detroit on May 4th.

The letter was signed by Gores Ireland, sheriff, and Wm. McGree, deputy sheriff.

MAYOR VETOED THE PROPOSAL

Belleville's Chief Magistrate Said Electic Power Plant Would be Ruinous

Belleville, May 19—At a meeting of the city council last night Mayor McFee vetoed the application of the city to the Ottawa Government to grant the city the right to develop electric power on dams 3, 4 and 5 on the Trent canal.

The Mayor maintains the plan would commit the city to an expenditure of $300,000.

The city solicitor held a different view, but the Mayor was obdurate and would not listen to the aldermen.

London will receive $16,637 from the Pere Marquette Railway for the use of the London & Port Stanley Railway last year.

DARING CRIME ON A CANADIAN ROAD

Station Agent Resigns and Returns to Rob Station.

Fort William, May 20.—Word has just been received of a daring crime at Antikokan, on the C. N. R.

Station Agent Forrester resigned recently, and an hour after midnight Saturday morning he walked in, and holding up the night operator, Ladouchter, who was alone, made him hold a light while Forrester rifled the safe, securing about $600. He made Ladouchter accompany him to his boarding house while he packed his grip then disappeared.

Ladouchter walked 17 miles to the next station to give the alarm.

Detectives in searching for the fugitive found a canoe and Forrester's grip on the shore of Steep Rock Lake although no sign of Forrester. The police are confident he cannot get away as he does not know the country and it is impossible to make headway without an Indian guide.

PRISON LABOR

In coming to a consideration of the resolution it may not be amiss to refer briefly to the origin of prison labor and its introduction into Canada and this Province. Time was within living memory when society dealt with its criminals as a class only to be punished, and, if necessary, exterminated; when in English-speaking countries an assize seldom passed without many death sentences being inflicted for what to-day would be minor offences; when idleness was enforced; when torture was substituted for reform. Time came when it was recognized that the merely punitive policy had completely failed, that torture should be abandoned, and that enforced idleness was as bad as bodily torture. Idleness meant that the prisoner's physical and moral health was ruined, disease was introduced, insanity became frightfully common and, in addition, the prisoner was disqualified for work when released. At first as a remedy, resort was had to hard labor merely as a means of punishment. Prisoners were put to exhaustive work without any regard to its being productive. This was the age of treadmills, of loaded cranks, of shot drill, and the carrying of heavy loads from place to place. In time the failure of these as a reformatory measure was admitted and the necessity for productive labor was advocated.

PRINCIPLE IS RIGHT.

To-day it will be only extremists who say that prisoners should not be employed at productive labor. Everybody else but extremists is agreed that from every point of view, physical or moral, practical or humane, prisoners must be put to productive work. The problem is to reduce the competition of convict labor to a minimum, and especially to reduce the proportion of prison-made goods that are sold in the open market. This problem has been ever present since productive labor was advocated.

The Kingston Penitentiary was erected in 1833-34 to take care of the prisoners who had been sentenced to terms of two years or more. This was to relieve the county jails and take care of the longer term prisoners. It was urged that being brought together in this way their labor could be turned to more profitable account. In the same year we find the labor interests of Kingston petitioned the Legislature that the penitentiary be so managed as not to interfere with the manufacturers of that town, and in 1835 the labor interests of Toronto petitioned that the prisoners at Kingston might be employed in the breaking of stone instead of mercantile labor. The penitentiary continued to take care of the prisoners with upwards of two-year terms; those under that remained in the county jails down to Confederation; when we have the origin of the Central Prison.

It may not be without interest to some members of the House to know that prior to Confederation there had been a number of pronouncements from grand juries, petitions to Parliament, etc., concerning the overcrowding and the laxity of discipline in the county jails of Upper Canada and the Legislature had been petitioned to establish district or central prisons, to which prisoners under the longer sentences might be sent so that they might be disciplined and be put to remunerative work. At the second session after Confederation the question was taken up. In the speech it was recommended that institutions be erected in central localities to which those sentenced for periods of less than two years might be transferred from the surrounding jails to undergo their terms of punishment under a system of discipline similar to that of the penitentiary and where their labor could be utilized. A bill was introduced which gave the Government power to build several central prisons, Sandfield Macdonald said it was the intention to build at least three — one in the centre, one east, and one west, and perhaps there ought to be one for every ten or twelve counties. The bill was strongly opposed by Blake, McKellar and other Liberals on the ground that central prisons were not needed. The question has been suggested as to whether it is the duty of the Province or the Dominion to defray the cost of maintaining our Central Prison, but I note that in the debate the question up to two-year sentences was treated as being one entirely between the Province and the municipalities. As between the Province and the Dominion the question was not raised. The bill was abandoned, but in the same session a bill was passed authorizing one Central Prison in Toronto, where prisoners of over six months and up to two years would be taken care of.

EDITORIAL NOTES

As a visitor remarked to-day of a certain politician "he is bold enough to be honest," but he isn't honest.

The Railway Board established by the Whitney Government in the matter of compelling electric railways to better protect the motormen, justified its existence. It was a good deed.

The situation at Ottawa is probably unprecedented in the history of Canada. Hon. Robt. Rogers challenged Laurier to discuss the conduct of Leach, the Manitoba tool of the Ottawa Government, and he offered, if he could not prove Leach's delinquency to accept the Aylesworth bill without further protest. This is what one calls both dramatic and interesting.

9 YEARS BAD LEG HEALED BY ZAM-BUK

Mr. C. Johnson, of Poplar Hill Creek, Athabasca Landing, Alta., says: "About nine years ago a running sore commenced on my right leg caused by a ruptured blood vessel. As time went on it got worse and my sufferings were intense. I had a very sore leg, indeed, and had very small hopes of ever seeing it healed, in fact I was told by several who had known such sores that I would suffer with it for life. When I was almost in despair I heard of Zam-Buk and commenced using it. Other salves I had used caused me much suffering, but Zam-Buk soothed the pain, and although it appeared for some time to be doing no good yet I persevered and as soon as the wound became clean, it was only a matter of three or four days before it was healed."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, pimples, ulcers, ringworm, itch, piles, running sores, blood poison, and all skin diseases. All stores and druggists, 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

BEAM TORE UP A PLANK

Broke Beam Became Loose on C. P. R. Freight Train—Accident Discovered

The night before last a plank at the Aylmer street crossing of the CPR. was pulled up by a loose beam which became loosened some way or brake from a freight train. The other end dragged along for some distance when the train was stopped and it was removed from the car.

It is fortunate that the accident to the beam was discovered in time, for if it had not been the beam might have swung under the wheels of the car and perhaps have caused a wreck.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

She had found a quiet and reasonable priced boarding house off Washington square, and here Stott had called several times to see her. Her correspondence with Mr. Ryder had now reached a phase when it was impossible to invent any further excuses for delaying the interview asked for. As she had foreseen, a day or two after her arrival in town she had received a note from Mrs. Ryder asking her to do her the honor to call and see her, and Shirley, after waiting another two days, had replied making an appointment for the following day at 3 o'clock. This was the same day on which the paragraph concerning the Ryder-Roberts engagement appeared in the society chronicles of the metropolis.

Directly after the meager meal which in New York boarding houses is dignified by the name of luncheon Shirley proceeded to get ready for this portentous visit to the Ryder mansion. She was anxious to make a favorable impression on the financier, so she took some pains with her personal appearance.

In about twenty minutes the car stopped at the corner of Seventy-fourth street. Shirley descended and with a quickened pulse walked toward the Ryder mansion, which she knew well by sight.

* * * * * * *

There was one other person in New York who that same morning had read the newspaper item regarding the Ryder-Roberts betrothal, and he did not take the matter so calmly as Shirley had done. On the contrary, it had the effect of putting him into a violent rage. This was Jefferson. He was working in his studio when he read it, and five minutes later he was tearing uptown to seek the author of it. He understood its object, of course. They wanted to force his hand, to shame him into this marriage, to so entangle him with the girl that no other alternative would be possible to an honorable man. It was a despicable trick, and he had no doubt that his father was at the back of it. So his mind now was fully made up. He would go away at once where they could not make his life a burden with this odious marriage which was fast becoming a nightmare to him. He would close up his studio and leave immediately for Europe. He would show his father once for all that he was a man and expected to be treated as one.

On arriving home the first person he saw was the ubiquitous Mr. Bagley, who stood at the top of the first staircase giving some letters to the butler. Jefferson cornered him at once, holding out the newspaper containing the offending paragraph.

"Say, Bagley," he cried, "what does this mean? Is this any of your doing?"

The English secretary gave his employer's son a haughty stare and then, without deigning to reply or even to glance at the newspaper, continued his instructions to the servant:

"Here, Jorkins, get stamps for all these letters and see they are mailed at once. They are very important."

"Very good, sir."

The man took the letters and disappeared, while Jefferson, impatient, repeated his question:

"My doing?" sneered Mr. Bagley. "Really, Jefferson, you go too far. Do you suppose for one instant that I would condescend to trouble myself with your affairs?"

Jefferson was in no mood to put up with insolence from any one, especially from a man whom he heartily despised, so, advancing menacingly, he thundered:

"I mean—were you in the discharge of your menial-like duties instructed by my father to send that paragraph to the newspapers regarding my alleged betrothal to Miss Roberts? Yes or no?"

The man winced and made a step backward. There was a gleam in the Ryder eye which he knew by experience boded no good.

"Really, Jefferson," he said in a more conciliatory tone, "I know absolutely nothing about the paragraph. This is the first I hear of it. Why not ask your father?"

"I will," replied Jefferson grimly.

He was turning to go in the direction of the library when Bagley stopped him.

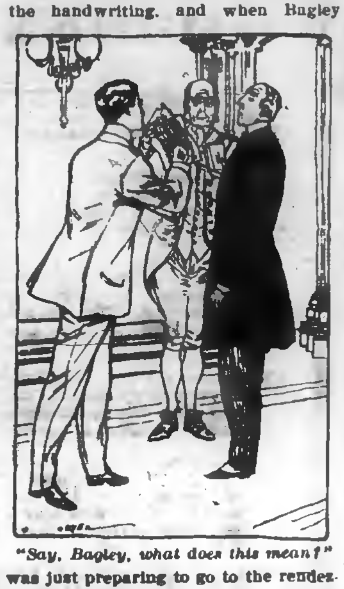
"You cannot possibly see him now," he said. "Sergeant Ellison of the secret service is in there with him, and your father told me not to disturb him on any account. He has another appointment at 3 o'clock with some woman who writes books."

Seeing that the fellow was in earnest, Jefferson did not resist. He could see his father a little later or send him a message through his mother. Proceeding upstairs, he found Mrs. Ryder in her room, and in a few energetic words he explained the situation to his mother. They had gone too far with this matchmaking business, he said; his father was trying to interfere with his personal liberty, and he was going to put a stop to it. He would leave at once for Europe. Mrs. Ryder had already heard of the projected trip abroad, so the news of this sudden departure was not the shock it might otherwise have been.

As Jefferson went downstairs something white on the carpet attracted his attention. He stooped and picked it up. It was a letter. It was in Bagley's handwriting and had evidently been dropped by the man to whom the secretary had given it to post. But what interested Jefferson more than anything else was that it was addressed to Miss Kate Roberts. Under ordinary circumstances a king's ransom would not have tempted the young man to read a letter addressed to another, but he was convinced that his father's secretary was an adventurer, and if he were carrying on an intrigue in this manner it could have only one meaning. It was his duty to unveil a rascal who was using the Ryder roof and name to further his own ends and victimize a girl who, although sophisticated enough to know better, was too silly to realize the risk she ran at the hands of an unscrupulous man. Hesitating no longer, Jefferson tore open the envelope and read:

> My Dearest Wife That Is to Be—I have arranged everything. Next Wednesday—just a week from today—we will go to the house of a discreet friend of mine where a minister will marry us. Then we will go to city hall and get through the legal part of it. Afterward we can catch the 4 o'clock train for Buffalo. Meet me in the ladies' room at the Holland House Wednesday morning at 11 a. m. I will come there with a closed cab. Your devoted FITZ.

"Phew!" Jefferson whistled. A close shave this for Senator Roberts, he thought. His first impulse was to go upstairs again to his mother and put the matter in her hands. She would immediately inform his father, who would make short work of Mr. Bagley. But, thought Jefferson, why should he spoil a good thing? He could afford to wait a day or two. There was no hurry. He could allow Bagley to think all was going swimmingly and then uncover the plot at the eleventh hour. He would even let this letter go to Kate. There was no difficulty in procuring another envelope and imitating the handwriting, and when Bagley was just preparing to go to the rendezvous he would spring the trap. Such a cad deserved no mercy. The scandal would be a knockout blow, his father would discharge him on the spot, and that would be the last they would see of the aristocratic English secretary. Jefferson put the letter in his pocket and left the house rejoicing.



"Say, Bagley, what does this mean?"

* * * * * * *

While the foregoing incidents were happening John Burkett Ryder was secluded in his library. The great man had come home earlier than usual, for he had two important callers to see by appointment that afternoon. One was Sergeant Ellison, who had to report on his mission to Massapequa; the other was Miss Shirley Green, the author of "The American Octopus," who had at last deigned to honor him with a visit. Pending the arrival of these visitors the financier was busy with his secretary trying to get rid as rapidly as possible of what business and correspondence there was on hand.

The plutocrat was sitting at his desk poring over a mass of papers. Between his teeth was the inevitable long black cigar, and when he raised his eyes to the light a close observer might have remarked that they were sea green, a color they assumed when the man of millions was absorbed in scheming new business deals. Every now and then he stopped reading the papers to make quick calculations on scraps of paper. Then if the result pleased him a smile overspread his saturnine features. He rose from his chair and nervously paced the floor as he always did when thinking deeply.

"Five millions," he muttered, "not a cent more. If they won't sell we'll crush them"—

Mr. Bagley entered. Mr. Ryder looked up quickly.

"Well, Bagley?" he said interrogatively. "Has Sergeant Ellison come?"

"Yes, sir. But Mr. Herts is downstairs. He insists on seeing you about the Philadelphia gas deal. He says it is a matter of life and death."

"To him—yes," answered the financier dryly. "Let him come up. We might as well have it out now."

Mr. Bagley went out and returned almost immediately, followed by a short, fat man, rather loudly dressed and apoplectic in appearance. He looked like a prosperous brewer, while, as a matter of fact, he was president of a gas company, one of the shrewdest promoters in the country, and a big man in Wall street. There was only one bigger man and that was John Ryder. But, today, Mr. Herts was not in good condition. His face was pale and his manner flustered and nervous. He was plainly worried.

"Mr. Ryder," he began with excited gesture, "the terms you offer are preposterous. It would mean disaster to the stockholders. Our gas properties are worth six times that amount. We will sell out for $20,000,000, not a cent less."

Ryder shrugged his shoulders.

"Mr. Herts," he replied coolly, "I am busy today and in no mood for arguing. We'll either buy you out or force you out. Choose. You have our offer. Five millions for your gas property. Will you take it?"

"We'll see you in tophet first!" cried his visitor, exasperated.

"Very well," replied Ryder, still unruffled, "all negotiations are off. You leave me free to act. We have an offer to buy cheap the old Germantown Gas company, which has charter rights to go into any of the streets of Philadelphia. We shall purchase that company, we will put $10,000,000 new capital into it and reduce the price of gas in Philadelphia to 60 cents a thousand. Where will you be then?"

The face of the Colossus as he uttered this stand and deliver speech was calm and inscrutable. Conscious of the resistless power of his untold millions, he felt no more compunction in mercilessly crushing this business rival than he would in trampling out the life of a worm. The little man facing him looked haggard and distressed. He knew well that this was no idle threat. He was well aware that Ryder and his associates by the sheer weight of the enormous wealth they controlled could sell out or destroy any industrial corporation in the land. It was plainly illegal, but it was done every day, and his company was not the first victim nor the last. Desperate, he appealed humbly to the tyrannical money power:

"Don't drive us to the wall, Mr. Ryder. This forced sale will mean disaster to us all. Put yourself in our place; think what it means to scores of families whose only support is the income from their investment in our company."

"Mr. Herts," replied Ryder unmoved, "I never allow sentiment to interfere with business. You have heard my terms. I refuse to argue the matter further. What is it to be? Five millions or competition? Decide now or this interview must end!"

He took out his watch and with his other hand touched a bell. Beads of perspiration stood on his visitor's forehead. In a voice broken with suppressed emotion he said hoarsely:

"You're a hard, pitiless man, John Ryder! So be it—five millions. I don't know what they'll say. I don't dare return to them."

"Those are my terms," said Ryder coldly. "The papers," he added, "will be ready for your signature tomorrow at this time, and I'll have a check ready for the entire amount. Good day."

Mr. Bagley entered. Ryder bowed to Herts, who slowly retired. When the door had closed on him, Ryder went back to his desk, a smile of triumph on his face. Then he turned to his secretary.

"Let Sergeant Ellison come up," he said.

A moment later the door opened, and Sergeant Ellison entered, followed by the secretary, who almost immediately withdrew.

"Well, sergeant," said Mr. Ryder cordially, "what have you to tell me? I can give you only a few minutes. I expect a lady friend of yours."

The plutocrat sometimes condescended to be jocular with his subordinates.

"A lady friend of mine, sir?" echoed the man, puzzled.

"Yes—Miss Shirley Green, the author," replied the financier, enjoying the detective's embarrassment. "That suggestion of yours worked out all right. She's coming here today."

"I'm glad you've found her, sir."

"It was a tough job," answered Ryder, with a grimace. "We wrote her half a dozen times before she was satisfied with the wording of the invitation, but finally we landed her, and I expect her at 3 o'clock. Now, what about that Rossmore girl? Did you go down to Massapequa?"

"Yes, sir, I have been there half a dozen times. In fact, I've just come from there. Judge Rossmore is there all right, but his daughter has left for parts unknown."

"Gone away! Where?" exclaimed the financier.

This was what he dreaded. As long as he could keep his eye on the girl there was little danger of Jefferson making a fool of himself; with her disappeared everything was possible.

"I could not find out, sir. Their neighbors don't know much about them. They say they're haughty and stuck up. The only one I could get anything out of was a parson named Deetle. He said it was a sad case, that they had reverses and a daughter who was in Paris"—

"Yes, yes," said Ryder impatiently, "we know all that. But where's the daughter now?"

"Search me, sir. I even tried to pump the slavey. Gee, what a vixen! She almost flew at me. She said she didn't know and didn't care."

Ryder brought his fist down with force on his desk, a trick he had when he wished to emphasize a point.

"Sergeant, I don't like the mysterious disappearance of that girl. You must find her, do you hear? You must find her if it takes all the sleuths in the country. Had my son been seen there?"

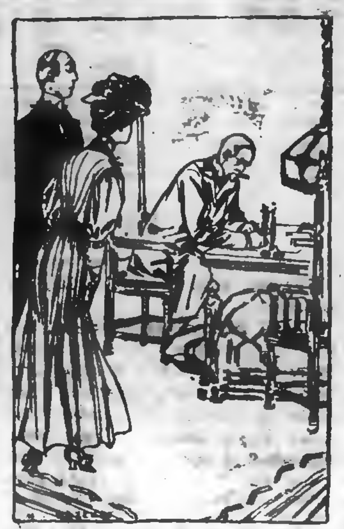
"The parson said he saw a young fellow answering his description sitting on the porch of the Rossmore cottage the evening before the girl disappeared, but he didn't know who he was and hasn't seen him since."

"That was my son, I'll wager. He knows where the girl is. Perhaps he's with her now. Maybe he's going to marry her. That must be prevented at any cost. Sergeant, find that Rossmore girl and I'll give you $1,000."

The detective's face flushed with pleasure at the prospect of so liberal a reward. Rising, he said:

"I'll find her, sir. I'll find her."

Mr. Bagley entered, wearing the solemn, important air he always affected when he had to announce a visitor of consequence. But before he could open his mouth Mr. Ryder said:



The mouse was in the den of the lion.

"Bagley, when did you see my son Jefferson last?"

"Today, sir. He wanted to see you to say goodby. He said he would be back."

Ryder gave a sigh of relief and addressing the detective said:

"It's not so bad as I thought." Then turning again to his secretary he asked:

"Well, Bagley, what is it?"

"There's a lady downstairs, sir—Miss Shirley Green."

The financier half sprang from his seat.

"Oh, yes. Show her up at once. Goodby, sergeant, goodby. Find that Rossmore woman and the $1,000 is yours."

The detective went out, and a few moments later Mr. Bagley reappeared ushering in Shirley.

The mouse was in the den of the lion.

CHAPTER XII.

MR. RYDER remained at his desk and did not even look up when his visitor entered. He pretended to be busily preoccupied with his papers, which was a favorite pose of his when receiving strangers. This frigid reception invariably served its purpose, for it led visitors not to expect more than they got, which usually was little enough. For several minutes Shirley stood still, not knowing whether to advance or to take a seat. She gave a little conventional cough, and Ryder looked up. What he saw so astonished him that he at once took from his mouth the cigar he was smoking and rose from his seat. He had expected a gaunt old maid with spectacles, and here was a stylish, good looking young woman, who could not possibly be over twenty-five. There was surely some mistake. This slip of a girl could not have written "The American Octopus." He advanced to greet Shirley.

"You wish to see me, madam?" he asked courteously. There were times when even John Burkett Ryder could be polite.

"Yes," replied Shirley, her voice trembling a little in spite of her efforts to keep cool. "I am here by appointment. Three o'clock, Mrs. Ryder's note said. I am Miss Green."

"You—Miss Green?" echoed the financier dubiously.

"Yes, I am Miss Green—Shirley Green, author of 'The American Octopus.' You asked me to call. Here I am."

For the first time in his life John Ryder was nonplused. He coughed and stammered and looked round for a place where he could throw his cigar. Shirley, who enjoyed his embarrassment, put him at his ease.

"Oh, please go on smoking," she said. "I don't mind it in the least."

Ryder threw the cigar into a receptacle and looked closely at his visitor.

"So you are Shirley Green, eh?"

"That is my nom de plume—yes," replied the girl nervously. She was already wishing herself back at Massapequa. The financier eyed her for a moment in silence as if trying to gauge the strength of the personality of this audacious young woman, who had dared to criticise his business methods in public print; then, waving her to a seat near his desk, he said:

"Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you," murmured Shirley. She sat down, and he took his seat at the other side of the desk, which brought them face to face. Again inspecting the girl with a close scrutiny that made her cheeks burn, Ryder said:

"I rather expected"— He stopped for a moment as if uncertain what to say; then he added, "You're younger than I thought you were, Miss Green; much younger."

THEATRICAL

SENT BY HIS TRIBE

"Strongheart," the now famous comedy drama which comes to the Grand Opera House Tuesday, May 26th, with Ralph Stuart in the title role, will probably prove the real dramatic treat of the season, as the play is noteworthy, in every way. "Strongheart" tells the story of an educated, full-blooded Indian who has been sent by his tribe to Columbia University in New York, for an education which will help him in future years to better the condition of his race, as he is himself one day to become their chief. While learning the white man's ways he becomes a champion on the gridiron, the favorite in their sports and fraternities, is introduced into their homes and becomes one of themselves, but he falls in love with the sister of his chum, and because of his rate, he is practically ostracized from their set. His fight to place himself on a basis of social equality with that of his white brothers, is said to be one of the best scenes ever written into a drama. The theme, although a serious one, is set against a background of college life, which gives ample opportunity for genuine comedy, of which the play is full.

James Hearn, aged 50, of Harbor Grace, Nfld., was found dead in the park, near Halifax.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH TO BE READY BY JULY 1ST

Will be Erected on the Corner of Romaine and Alymer Sts.—Trustee Board Met Last Evening—$1100 Subscribed at the Meeting

A new Methodist church is to be built on the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets. The construction work will commence at once and it is expected that it will be ready for occupation on the first Sunday in July.

A meeting of the trustee board for the proposed new church was held last evening. Rev H. M. Manning, presided and there were present,—Messrs. D W Dumble, B F Ackerman, A W Creasman, E A Pearson, Geo. Moye, A Brown, Geo. Rawlings, A. Prest, Wilson and Stabler.

Mr. Dumble was appointed secretary and Mr. B. F Ackerman treasurer, of the board.

The committee appointed to purchase a lot, reported that they had bought one at the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets. It is the intention to erect a first class Sunday school room. Work will be commenced at once. At last night's meeting $1100 was subscribed and as soon as enough money is raised building will be commenced.

HAVE DECORATION DAY IN SEPTEMBER MONTH

Why not have decoration Day in September?

This is the suggestion which has been made to the Review by one of its readers and there is apparently some merit in the proposition. The reader in question is a lady and states that if Decoration Day was in September a large number of families of moderate means would have flowers to place on the graves of departed dear ones, which they are not able to do in June as they cannot afford the expense of buying flowers. Many families have flowers of their own in September who would have to buy them in June. The lady who mentioned the matter said her husband and several children were buried in Little Lake cemetery and she would like to place something upon their graves on Decoration Day but could not afford to buy flowers. If Decoration Day was in September she would have flowers in her own garden. There are likely many people similarly situated.

There seems little reason why the day could not be observed in September as well as in June. Everybody has then returned from their holidays and there are none of the objections that have been raised to having the day observed in July or August.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF AN ASHBURNHAM MAN HAS CAUSED GREAT ANXIETY

The whereabouts of Mr. Samuel Long, Driscoll Terrace, Ashburnham has been a source of great anxiety to his relatives and friends. Mr. Long is employed as a cook with the Turner Lumber Co. of Latchford. After the winter season, Mr. Long came home for a week or so, after which he returned to his duties. The camp in which he is employed is situated on Vermilion Lake, North of Sudbury. Last Friday Mrs. Long heard from him but since then she received word from his employer, wanting Mr. Long to come to work at once. At this request, Mrs. Long was very much surprised, as she thought he was back at Vermilion Lake working. She at once wired him but after waiting a couple of days she had got no answer. She again wired him yesterday, but as yet has received no communication from him.

When she heard from him Friday, he was at his camp, and thus she could not understand the company writing for him. She is at a loss to know where he is, and his mysterious disappearance has caused her considerable anxiety.

DECORATION DAY MAY BE HELD ON SUNDAY THIS YEAR

There is a probability that this year, Decoration Day will be held on a Sunday. However, as yet nothing definite has been decided, but it is understood that a number of Oddfellows are agitating to have it on the Sabbath. The Oddfellows, under whose auspices the ceremony at the cemetery is conducted, have charge of arranging the date. Some of their members are anxious to have it on Sunday, thinking this would be a better day. Everyone would be able to attend and it would not necessitate any suspension of business during the week.

Committees from each lodge of Oddfellows will meet shortly to decide upon a date and to discuss the matter of holding Decoration Day on Sunday.

RETURNED FROM THE LAND OF FRUIT AND SUNSHINE

Mr. and Mrs. Warde, Ashburnham, Arrived Home Last Night After a Year's Absence in Canadian West and California—San Francisco Rebuilt After Recent Disaster

Mr. and Mrs. G F Warde returned last evening after a year's trip trip through Western Canada and California. They spent some time in Calgary, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, San Francisco, and Los Angeles. They left Long Beach a week ago last Monday and arrived in Toronto last Saturday.

"We never saw a flake of snow all winter," said Mr. Warde to the Review today. "When you were having freezing cold weather, we were enjoying the balmy days of California." The weather out there was grand and it will be of interest to many citizens to know that strawberries which are so expensive here, are selling in Los Angeles at two boxes for five cents. Mr. Warde said that bananas, oranges and pineapples, were very cheap out there.

Speaking of the city of San Francisco, Mr. Warde said that it had all been rebuilt. The buildings were from ten to thirteen storeys high. In the outlying parts of hte city, however, there are still traces of the earthquake.

Mr. Warde did not care so much for San Francisco as Los Angeles.

Altogether Mr. and Mrs. Warde had a most enjoyable trip and return home much benefitted.

24TH FIELD BATTERY WILL GO INTO CAMP AT BARRIEFIELD

The 24th Field Battery will not attend the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec. Definite information to this effect has been received by the officer commanding. Major Young, who has also been notified that the battery will go into camp at Barriefield, Kingston, on June 15th, and remain under canvas for twelve days. An advance party will leave for Barriefield on June 13th to make the preliminary arrangements. Recruiting for the corps is now going on, and any one desiring to join should see Major Young or other officers of the battery.

It is likely that the corps will go to Petewawa later in the season for the firing practices.

Drilling will be commenced in the near future. Orders in this connection will be issued in a few days.

ORGAN RECITAL GREATLY ENJOYED

Many Attended Sacred Concert at St. Paul's Choir Last Night

There was a large attendance at the organ recital given in St. Paul's church last night, by Mr. Herbert Saunders, of Toronto, late of London, England. Mr. Saunders was assisted by Miss Helen Davies, soprano, and the choir of the church, under the leadership of Mr. John Crane. Mr. Saunders is an organist of rare ability, and his selections last night were particularly pleasing. The audience was simply delighted. Miss Davies, who is always a favorite, was never heard to better advantage as a soloist. She has few equals, her voice possessing wonderful range and flexibility. The choir was in fine form last night and gave the different selections in a manner that was decidedly pleasing. Rev. Mr. Pogue opened the concert with devotional exercises and the programme was as follows:—

National hymn, "O Canada," the choir.

Solo, "In Dreams I've heard the Angels Say," Faure—Miss aDvies.

Overture to "Ruy Blas," Mendelsshon—Mr. Herbert Saunders.

Hymn-Anthem, "Lead, Kindly Light," Dudley Buck—The choir.

Soprano solo and chorus, "Jubilate, Amen," Bruch—Miss Davies and choir.

(a) Gavotte in A., Ambrose Thomas; (b) Caprice in B flat, Guilman:—Mr. Herbert Saunders.

Christmas song, P. Cornelius—Mr. W. A. McIlroy and the choir.

Variations on the Austrian Hymn, Dr. Chipp—Mr. Herbert Saunders.

Motet, "Gallia," Gounod—The choir.

Slow movement, Fugue from Sonata, Reubike—Mr. Herbert Saunders.

Chorus, "Unfold, ye Portals," from "Redemption"—The choir.

The clock won't stop—The Y. M. C. A.'s destiny must be decided in 24 hours. Have you helped?

MESSRS. STRATTON AND BRADBURN

Sir,—In last evening's issue of the Examiner appeared an article headed "Normal and Model Schools" which seeks to belittle both the Whitney Government and Mr. Bradburn, but let the public judge which has done more for this city.

Here, on the one hand, we have the proprietor of the Examiner, who represented (?) us for eighteen or twenty years, and a part of the time was in the Cabinet and had opportunities galore to do something for this city. But what has he done? Echo answers, what? In a speech made by him on Saturday evening last in the Liberal committee rooms, he is quoted by his own paper as saying that "he had been Provincial Secretary for a few years and had charge of public institutions and had buildings erected at Kingston and a new building at Cobourg," then comes in the same category Orillia, London and Mimico, but you can't find Peterborough with a microscope. All Peterborough got was smiles and a good deal of jollying. Now — look at the other man. What has he done? Well, he has only represented the same riding, as did the proprietor of the Examiner, four years, and we have a Normal School built, and through his influence built right here in the city of Peterborough, not in some other place, and he was not in the Cabinet, either, but just a plain M.P.P.

I think it is jealousy that prompts such articles, for it must be galling to reflect that a plain M.P.P. in a short time accomplished more for the city than did an Hon. in all his long years of reign. "We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and have done those things which we ought not to have done," is evidently sticking in his gizzard and he has become choleric. To whom is most credit due?

J.E.D.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will meet at the building at 4 o'clock to-morrow. Everybody interested in the work of the Y. M. C. A. is urged to be present.

John Markey, editor of the Sentinel-Review, is president of the Woodstock Canadian Club.

WHERE WILL REGIMENT GO?

If Quebec Trip is Not Taken—Question is Being Discussed

Where will the 57th Regiment go on their annual trip if they do not go to Quebec?

This is the question which is being asked by members of the regiment but no definite answer is available at the present time. It is very uncertain whether the regiment will go to the Ancient Capital and if that trip does not materialize, another one will be taken in all probability. It is not unlikely that the regiment may go to Brockville if the Quebec trip is not taken. Brockville wanted the 57th last year and would no doubt welcome a visit from the Peterborough soldiers this summer. The Island City is an exceedingly pretty place in thes ummer and a trip there would make a delightful outing for the local soldiers. The matter will be given consideration at an early date.

Girls' Guild of George St. Church the Guests of Mrs. Kendry Last Evening

The members of the Girl's Guild of George street Methodist church were entertained in a most enjoyable manner by their president, Mrs. James Kendry, at her home, Water street, last evening. There was a large attendance of the officers and members and a very interesting and pleasant evening was spent by all.

A review of the work of the past season was given and plans were discussed for the coming year. The opening meeting of the Guild in the fall will be held on September 29th, when papers on "The History of Canada" will be read by five members. The Guild intend to take up the study of Canadian History during next year.

SPORTING NEWS

ROGERS READY FOR BOUT; ARRIVES THIS AFTERNOON

There will be something doing every minute on Friday night when the big American wrestler Yankee Rogers, meets the local footballer-wrestler, Gene Hurtubise. Our own little Gene is going up against the right article this time for fair, and he will have to get busy, if he intends to win the handicap which Rogers has conceded him. The big fellow from Buffalo says he will throw the Pride of Peterborough three times in one hour, catch-as-catch-can style, or he will know the reason why. Hurty says he will stay off that hour or die in the attempt. What will be the result? Something will make a noise like a wrestling match and the crowd will one minute see Yankee in difficulties and the next minute see our pride and pet trying to bridge on his left eye-brow.

Rogers is a big fellow, 6 ft 2 ins. and 207 lbs., and is in first class condition, and can always be relied upon to wrestle fast, clean and clever. That is all the stock in trade a wrestler wants to keep himself good with the public who pay their money, and want to see the genuine article.

A record crowd will be on hand to root for their own boy and see the best wrestling bout pulled off that has evertaken place on a local mat.

Rogers arrives this afternoon on the 4.48 C.P.R. train.

FORMATION OF TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE IS A GOOD THING

Will there be a revival of lacrosse in Peterborough? The formation of the Trent Valley Lacrosse League is certainly a good move, and should be the means of bringing out good men for the C.L.A.

With two local teams in the league a large number of fast players should be developed. Although the national game has not boomed much in recent years the people of Peterborough take kindly to it when a good article is dished up.

It would appear, judging from the interest being shown by the players now that a worthy twelve for the C.L.A. could have been chosen to represent Peterborough this year, and it doesn't seem right in a sporting sense that so large and big a town as Peterborough should not be represented in that body. However, if the proper attention is paid to the cultivation of players and working up an interest in the sport this summer, this city should be able to place a bunch in the big association next year that will be able to make a creditable showing.

BATTER UP! PLAY BALL!

The baseball season is now on in full swing. There is every indication the game will boom in Peterborough this year. The Review has always looked after player and fan, and rapped out many a bit of encouragement to those who follow the sport. All managers, captains, secretaries and players are requested to send in details of any games played or news of any games to come, all of which will find space in our baseball column. There is a supply of score cards at this office suitable for recording a game by innings, which are at the disposal of any team manager in the city. These cards should be filled in properly at the conclusion of the game and left at this office as soon as possible so as to insure publication in the Review without delay. Properly authenticated box scores will also be gladly received and published.

Call at the Review office and secure a supply of score cards.

BOYS HARD AT HEEL AND TOE

Y. M. C. A. Gym Scene of Much Stepping—Passers-by Watch Kids on Charlotte St.

The young boys intending to take part in the Y.M.C.A. walk are fairly walking their heads off to get into shape for the event. Last night, as on every other occasion when they find the time, they were pounding around the gym track at an express train rate.

They walk square heel and toe and model their action after Hoagland, Slater and others who took part in the walking tournament at Brock street rink.

The boys on the old Charlotte street rink formed quite an attraction for the spectators as they tore off the laps last night on the track they have staked out for themselves.

IS FINISHING HIS TRAINING

Hurtubise Says He Will be in Best Condition of His Life for Big Handicap Bout

Gene Hurtubise is putting on the finishing touches to his course of training and is in great shape for his bout with Yankee Rogers on Friday night. He has been doing a lot of hard work, and has spared no pains to be the fittest possible for the contest.

He stated last night he would be in the best condition of his life for the match and thinks he can stand off the big American.

RUNNING

Four candidates for the Mulqueen Cup honors announced last night that they would try the Hamilton-to-Toronto grind to-day, if weather conditions were favorable. The runners expect to leave Hamilton City Hall at ten o'clock this morning, and be here about 3.30. W. Meadows, West End Y.M.C.A.; T. J. McAughey, West End Y.M.C.A.; "Sandy" Bigley, Royal Canadians, and Wm. Thomas, Irish-Canadians, were the competitors.

THE PETES. AND THE T.A.S. NINE

The Petes and the T. A. S. are playing this afternoon at Riverside Park.

The Peterboro nine will line up as follows:

SALE OF SEATS OPENED TO-DAY

Section in Balcony for Ladies and Escorts—Seats Selling Fast

The plan for the Rogers-Hurtubise bout opened to-day at the Grand Opera House. The seats are selling fast and there will be a great crowd present to witness the match.

The stage seats are limited to 4, so anyone wishing any would do well to secure them at once. A section in the balcony has been reserved for ladies and it is expected that a large number will be in attendance.

THE RING

London, Eng., May 18 — Tommy Burns, the Canadian pugilist, has accepted an offer of a $35,000 purse, to meet Johnston at Goldfields, Nevada, on Labor Day, September 7th. The sum of $5000 goes to Johnson. Fitzpatrick, manager of Johnson, has also accepted the offer.

BASEBALL

The following from the Port Hope Guide will make interesting reading for the local baseball fans:—

"Bill" O'Brien, who played 3rd base in such a masterly fashion for the local nine last summer, was in town on Saturday and it will be good news for the fans to learn that he will be on the line-up again this season. O'Brien has taken over the management of the team and he promises to gather a nine together that will make them all sit up and take notice. He left for Toronto last evening and will return early this week with several players.

And with Bill O'Brien in tow, it is likely that Jimmy O'Hearn, the clever second baseman will don a Port Hope uniform. O'Hearn and O'Brien are old team mates and they cover as much territory as the majority of ball players.

Port Hope opens the season on May 25th at Peterborough with a double header against Mgr. Johnson's nine. The morning game will be an exhibition only, but in the afternoon it will be for the first rung on the championship ladder.

The Strathconas will practice tonight at the Auburn field.

No Game in City Baseball League Till Saturday Afternoon

The opening of the City Baseball League has been postponed till Saturday. It is still impossible to secure Nicholls Oval and as suitable arrangements could not be made for other grounds it has been decided to postpone the opening till Saturday.

The West Ends and YMCA teams were to have played tonight.

WALKING

LAKEFIELD WALK

The walking tournament at Lakefield begins to-night and continues tomorrow and Thursday. Considerable interest is being taken in the event, a large crowd will likely be present each evening. At the present time there are about fifteen entries and a number from the surrounding district have expressed their intention of entering the race. The committee in charge are sparing no expense to make it a success.

Chief Finch, of the Massey Harris Fire Department, Brantford, is in the city today in connection with his application for the position of chief of the Peterborough paid fire brigade. He is here for the purpose of discussing the matter with the members of the local Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Mr. Finch is a competent and highly qualified officer and has had ten years' experience with the Brantford Fire Department before he became chief for the Massey Harris Co. He is a man of good appearance and address.

BOXING BOUT LOOKS GOOD

The boxing preliminary to the Yankee Rogers - Hurtubise bout should be an interesting go. The two men, Corney Burns and Buddy Ryan have never met before, and the bout should be a clean and clever one.

Ryan has never been seen in action by a local audience.

BOWLING

The green of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is being fast put in shape. A couple of workouts have been held by the bowlers although no games have been played yet.

It is expected that the enthusiasts will get down to business in a week or so, weather permitting.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Nicholls Oval Tennis Club at the YMCA tonight at eight o'clock.

APPOINTMENT FOR FORMER LOCAL MAN

Mr. Jas. McLeod Formerly Physical Director of Local Y.M.C.A. Now Director of Toronto Central "Y"

To-day's Toronto World contains the following regarding Mr. James McLeod, of Havana, Cuba, a former physical director of the local Y. M. C. A.:

"James McLeod, at present the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at Havana, Cuba, cabled to President Garside of the Central Y. M. C. A. that he would accept the post made vacant by the resignation of J. H. Crocker, who goes to England this summer in charge of the Olympic team. Mr. McLeod is not a stranger to Central, having been here some few years ago as assistant instructor, and his many admirers hail his return with approval. He is an old Hamilton boy. West End announce that they are looking with longing eyes to a certain resident of the Ambitious City, and the various athletic organizations in this city may look out for squalls in the near future."

Hamilton, May 19.—P. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Assistant Engineer Richards are going over the proposed route of the Government power line, fixing the direction to be taken if Hamilton does not sign a contract. If Hamilton takes Government power the main switching station will be on the mountain top. Otherwise it will be on the mountain side near Dundas. The latter place is preferable as it would lessen the distance to Toronto and make a more central location for the lines, radiating north, south, and west. In any event the line will not cross Burlington Beach, the Toronto and Niagara Co.'s lines, Radial and Grand Trunk tracks taking up all the room there.

Billion Dollar Congress.

Washington, D.C., May 19.—The sixtieth congress will have earned the title of a "billion dollar congress" at its first session before adjournment is taken at the end of this week. It is estimated that the total appropriations will reach the enormous sum of $1,026,000,000, which is said to be the largest amount, ever appropriated at a single session.

Fire In Theatorium.

St. Catharines, May 20.—The "Gayety" Moving Picture Theatre took fire yesterday from a spark from the instrument coming in contact with the film. The machine was hastily thrown out of the window and the blaze was extinguished without the assistance of firemen. The theatre was about half filled with people at the time, but no one in the House was aware of what had happened till all danger had passed.

Will Take Power

Woodstock, May 20.—The City Council has authorized the signing of a contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for 1,200 horsepower.

It is figured that in running the municipal waterworks and electric light plants enough will be saved to make a clear profit of about $6,000 per year on what is sold outside.

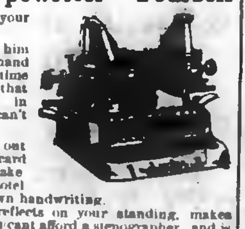
Strikers Riot at Windsor.

Windsor, May 20.—Upwards of 200 men employed on the Michigan Central tunnel went on strike yesterday for increased wages. Some of the men who kept their jobs were attacked, resulting in a small riot.

Sergt. Nash, chief of police of the tunnel patrol, was assaulted by a foreigner. He was struck on the head by a club, but was not seriously injured. The assaulter was later arrested.

Will Erect Rolling Mills.

Sydney, C B., May 20.—C. V. Wetmore and F. A. Crowell have returned from the upper provinces, having raised sufficient money to warrant the construction of the proposed National Rolling Mills, which next to the big steel plant is expected to be Cape Breton's greatest manufacturing concern.



You Can Easily Operate This Typewriter Yourself

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out — that may leave him in doubt — that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos — or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own handwriting.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters — make out an abstract — fill in an insurance policy — enter your card memos — make out your accounts, or a hotel menu — or do any kind of writing you need, on ANY kind, size or thickness of paper, and SPACE any way you want, on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn, with a little practice, to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly, as an expert operator on the OLIVER. Because the OLIVER is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 80% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

80% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humoring" — technical knowledge — long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space — with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance polices, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate.

You can adjust the OLIVER to any reasonable space — you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the OLIVER is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor — or any man who does his own writing.

Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the OLIVER.

More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures female ills.

Mrs. John Scott, 489 Grand Trunk St., Montreal, writes Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was very much run down in health from a female trouble, was thin, nervous, and very weak, and suffered from bearing down pains. Indeed I did not care whether I lived or died, I felt so badly sometimes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me of all my troubles. I gained in flesh, and am free from backache, female trouble, sick headaches, and nervousness.

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all women's ailments, knowing what it has done for me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

POLITICAL NOTES

Mr. Bradburn M.P.P. and Mr. Burnham were at Hall's Schoolhouse last evening in the former's interests. Showery weather did not prevent the usual attendance. A full report of the speeches will appear later.

Registration is large and being proceeded with satisfactorily.

In Peterborough alone it looks as if more than a thousand new names would go on the roll.

Registration now means registration for the Dominion also. This is the last opportunity for this year.

The farmer seems well pleased with the Whitney government. There will be no great change anywhere. Whitney's majority may be increased.

Mr. Stratton used to say that the provincial house was like a big county council. If it were all Conservatives it would have no political significance therefore.

Note the absence of charges of corruption. Why? Because there isn't a sign of it. There are some things that cannot be faked and honesty is one of 'em.

But keep moving gentlemen. The man who gets lazy or over-confident repents in sack cloth and wailing.

BIOGRAPHY OF A LOCAL RECTOR

Sketch of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt in the Ontario Churchman

Rev. Ernst Alwin Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church, Peterborough, is a native of Germany, having been born in the city of Holzminden in June 1869. After a preparatory course in the gymnasium there he left for the University of Rostock, and advanced to the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D. In his earlier years Dr. Langfeldt studied on the profession of medicine. He was a student volunteer in the German army and at the end of his year of service and training retired as a lieutenant of the reserve. About this time he went to the United States on a visit to his uncle, and becoming converted from the Roman Catholic faith entered the ministry of the Episcopal Church, as it is known in the United States, or Church of England in Canada. He came to Toronto in 1896, and took the theological course at Wycliffe College, graduating there from in 1899. He was then ordained a deacon at St. Alban's Cathedral, was raised to the priesthood in 1900. His first parish, Omemee and Emily, he assumed in 1899. After two and one-half years there his abilities and zeal as preacher and a pastor procured him the honor of appointment to the rectorship of St. Luke's church Ashburnham —since merged with Peterborough —in succession to Rev. Dr. Symonds. This succession was a difficult one, but Dr. Langfeldt's pastorate has been eminently acceptable and successful so much so that he has had several offers of calls to important churches in other places. His qualities endear him to his congregation and win the respect and admiration of other communions. He is an earnest and eloquent preacher, with a leaning to the evangelical side. Though English is not his mother tongue he speaks it with readiness and facility of expression, graceful diction and apt choice of words, which might be envied by many pulpit orators to the pulpit born, there being a sufficient trace of the German accent, to give piquancy to his speech. Being a diligent student, he keeps well abreast of the developments of theological movement and research. His earnestness in priestly duties is conjoined with moral sympathy, which commends to his active co-operation all movements tending to the moral, social and intellectual betterment of the community. — Ontario Churchman.

OUR NATIONAL DANGER

Time to Cry a Halt Before Complete Wreck Results

There are thousands, both men and women, who do not take time to eat properly. They rush through life and as a result we have an age of indigestion, nervousness, irritability, sleepless nights, and morose disposition. Our national danger is stomach weakness, due to the strenuous life.

Mi-o-na tablets, strengthen the walls of the stomach and stimulate secretion of the digestive juices. They make the stomach comfortable and cure indigestion.

Sick headaches, palpitation, yellow skin, and coated tongue are a few of the many distressing results of indigestion that Mi-o-na never fails to cure.

W. M. Hill, druggist, corner of Hunter and George streets, Peterborough sells Mi-o-na in 50 cent boxes and guarantees to refund the money if it does not give complete satisfaction.

BOYS' CLUB HAD A GOOD BANQUET

Enjoyable Time Spent at Knox Church Last Evening

An enjoyable banquet was held last night at Knox church under the auspices of the Boys' Club. Mr. Wilkie occupied the position of toastmaster and the toast list was as follows:

"The King."

"Canada" proposed by Mr. R. Thompson, and responded to by Mr. A. Poe.

Comic song—Mr. McLean.

"Our Church"—Proposed by Mr. Clifford and responded to by Mr. McKenzie.

Piano duet—Messrs Quinn and Wilson.

"Our Club" proposed by Mr. W. T. Taylor and responded to by the president of the club, Mr. Walter Perks.

Violin solo—Mr. Common.

"The Ladies," proposed by Mr. A. C. Davenport and responded to by Mr. Will Shepherd.

God Save the King.

LARGE MEETING AT LAKEFIELD

Mr. McNulty, the Liberal candidate in the east riding held a campaign meeting at Lakefield on Monday evening last. The large hall was crowded to the doors and much interest was manifested in the speeches. Besides the candidate the speakers were Messrs. R. J. McLaughlin, KC., R. F. McWilliams and F. D. Kerr.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS, 1908

To the Electors of the West Riding of the County of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—It is my privilege to again appear before you as the Conservative candidate in the approaching election of members of the Ontario Legislature, and while on the previous occasion I was in opposition to the Government, I now have the pleasure of supporting the Administration of Hon. J. P. Whitney, whose management of the affairs of the Province, with the support of an able cabinet, has, during his short premiership, proved of such marked benefit.

Measures of a far-reaching character have been passed, and the statute books of the last three years are replete with legislation of a high order, as well for its originality as its soundness. Let me mention a few of the important acts of the past sessions. The establishment of a Railway and Municipal Board, the new act relating to mining, the creation of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the amendment of the liquor laws, amendments to the law relating to the election of members of the Legislature, particularly the alteration in the ballot, which is now absolutely secret.

The administration of the public domain, especially the mining laws of the Province, has been most profitable, adding large sums to both revenue and capital, and the different changes which have been effected in the Education Department have met with the approval of all persons, concerned in that most important branch of the public service.

One of the beneficial acts of the Government is the taking with its own hands the distribution of electric energy through the great water power of Niagara Falls, and other rivers capable of hydraulic development. Thus are the different municipalities through the Province enabled to obtain the inestimable commodity at a minimum of cost.

The Government, while endeavoring to serve the people generally have not been unmindful of the importance of this riding, and when the new normal schools were to be created one of the four was placed in this constituency, thus affording exceptional advantages to the teachers and schools of this county.

In the short time which will elapse before polling day, I shall endeavour to make my views more fully known to you both privately and publicly, and I bespeak your cordial support, not so much because of any merits of my own, as on account of the splendid record of the Government.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

T. E. BRADBURN

PURE, NOT RICH MILK IS THE KIND THAT IS NEEDED

Milk is in such general use as a food that the question of its purity is always an important one. Milk is one of the best, healthful and economical articles of diet and contains much nourishment. It is a real necessity and therefore every means ought to be taken to guard against adulteration. Let milk be pure and clean from healthy cows, do not allow anything to be taken from the milk, or anything to be added, and you have an ideal food of much value. But why should a standard be fixed, a standard higher in fat contents than much pure milk contains? Why should milk that contains the most fat be accounted the best? A rich milk in fat is less easily digested and absorbed than a milk in which the fat percentage is low. The other constituents in milk, those valuable protied ingredients which go to the building up of the tissues, the prime property of any food, are the most important. Milk with low fat contents agrees best with infants, children and invalids. The human milk is the ideal milk for the young, it is a perfect food, and the milk that is nearest in composition to this is the one best suited for use in all families where there are children. Now this milk has a low percentage of fat, and if a higher standard were applied to the mother's milk it would have to be rejected. Rich milk often causes more or less disturbances in children, and if fed in excess, often ends seriously.

Experiments have conclusively demonstrated the fact that the young of all animals do better on milk of low fat contents than on rich milk. All farmers know now that they can raise calves, and good calves, too, upon milk with little fat in it, and even upon skim milk. It is a well-known fact that some cows give such rich milk they cannot suckle their calves; the calves will sicken and die unless given milk of less richness.

Experiments with young pigs have been conducted by Mr. C. L. Beach. He fed separate lots of pigs with skim milk, milk poor in fat and milk rich in fat respectively. During the the first 40 days the skim milk pair gained 62 lbs., the poor in fat pair 54.8 lbs., and the rich in fat pair 42.2 lbs. The next ten days the gain for each pair was 22 lbs., 20 1-2 lbs. and 3 1-2 lbs. respectively. The next 10 days' results were 20 lbs. gain, 21 lbs. gain and 6 lbs. loss respectively. After slaughter the pigs fed skim and low fat milk gave better meat and bone than those fed rich milk. The same result the demonstrated on other animals; calves fed on low fat milk gained more and grew faster and were healthier than those fed richer milk. There are of course cases of illness and some other exceptions where fat is needed in the system, and in such cases the fat is better taken in milk.

But is it reasonable, is it wise, is it necessary, for the protection of the public health to place a bar on pure milk with low fat contents when all experience proves that such milk is a well-balanced ration—that it is easy of digestion and assimilation—that its tissue building and growth-producing qualities are ahead of milk richer in fat?

MR. THOMPSON'S MEETING AT GREYSTOCK LAST EVENING

Notwithstanding the showery character of the weather a large number of the electors of the East Riding attended Mr. Thompson's meeting in Zion Hall. Mr. Joshua Smithson occupied the chair. He explained that some people might object to a government officer taking part in a political campaign, but license commissioners are not government officers in the ordinary sense. They receive no salary or emoluments whatever. The speaker's entire annual bill for last year against the Government was $17.06, for travelling expenses, notices and serving papers. He therefore concluded as most people did, that a man who served his municipality and the Government for nothing was not debarred from expressing his opinion upon at least the enforcement of the license law. The law was now administered and enforced in East Peterborough as never before. He could say that without bragging on the part of the Board of Commissioners. He then introduced Mr. Thompson, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, who explained that the so-called Whitney gerrymander was merely an attempt to correct the Liberal gerrymander by which the Conservatives had been reduced to a minority of thirty in the House—the membership standing 29 to 69—notwithstanding the popular vote had shown a majority of 10,000 votes for the Liberal-Conservative policy. With regard to the putting of Lakefield into the East Riding, it was done at the request of the Lakefield people, who are consequently somewhat amused at the statements being made to the contrary by political opponents.

Mr. Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., was next called upon and in a forceful and masterly address of half an hour dealt with the improved financial, legal and moral condition of the province. The true test of a man's standing or of a province's is best found in the open money-market, said the speaker and in this market the Whitney Government had dealt in provincial re-loans and securities at the highest rate of advantage to the province of any part of the British Empire. Two per cent. British consols were only 89, while Ontario 3 1-2 per cent were 98 1-2 under Whitney and 91 1-2 under Ross. A fact like that is worth all the talk of all the politicians in the country. A government's standing such as that must be founded on real efficiency and brain-power, not on assumed reputation. Mr. Kendry next referred to the enforcement of the License Law. This law as it existed formerly, if it could be dignified by the name of law was a hotbed of vice, corruption and favoritism. This was all due to a purpose and as the chairman, Mr Smithson, had said, he did not consider that he a wholly volunteer official, he was at all debarred from exercising his full political rights in exposing it. In fact he would go further and say that a volunteer officer deserved even greater latitude than an ordinary elector. At any rate he considered himself perfectly free although his political opponents no doubt would strenuously object. Their objections were well-founded and for cause. He would and would expose, wherever and whenever he considered it necessary, the hypocrisy and double-dealing of the license autocrat, who had been responsible for so much other work of a like kind, both in the East and West Ridings. He appealed to the electors to say if times and conditions had not changed. There were now not even charges of laxity and law-breaking. There was only one complaint made by anybody and that was regarding the 6-5 clause, which had been supported emphatically by the Presbyterian Principal Caven, Rev. Dr. Potts, Rev. Dr. Warden and many others of equal standing. In any event it was liable to change, although so far it had worked. It was only fair to admit to the practical benefit of the entire province. Even the Dominion Alliance commended the Government for its enforcement of this law and others. The speaker then took up the C.N.R. guarantee, which he fully explained. He produced the statute of 4 Ed. vii cap 20, which was the Ross Government bill, binding the province to the C.N.R. guarantee. He read the descriptive clauses and showed that the words terminals, harbors, water-lots, and branch lines were not in the Ross statute at all. He then quoted the Whitney bill and the difference was apparent. That the change was a necessity, the best lawyers advised, but to get it made required an increased guarantee and a guarantee was not a subsidy. It was really a great act of statesmanship. That it was not brought down before was due to the fact that it was not ready but there was plenty of time to discuss it, but Mr. Mackay preferred to leave that to the campaign although he had voted in the House for this very measure, which he condemned on the hustings. The speaker concluded, amid hearty applause. Mr. Robinson gave a deliberate and cogent recital of the very long list of the acts of the present Government, which had so materially changed the face of the fair province. Greater Ontario, the treatment of hospitals and charities, mining rights, royalties, the ballot, all engaged his attention in detail.

The meeting was one of the best from every point of view ever held at Zion. Expressions of opinion to that effect were general. The usual cheers concluded the meeting.

FORMER LOCAL MAN RETURNS FROM THE WEST

Mr. Harry Wills Renewing Old Acquaintances To-day—Leaves for the States To-morrow

Mr. Harry Wills, a former resident of this city, but who for the past three or four years has resided in Alberta, is in the city for a few days. Mr. Wills has given up his residence in the West and is going to live in Massachusetts where his daughters reside. Mr. Wills was engaged in ranching sixty-five miles north-east of Calgary. He has been exceedingly successful and is now able to retire. Mr. Wills arrived in the city last evening and intends leaving for the States tomorrow. He is being warmly greeted by his many friends here.

WILL HYMNS BE ILLUSTRATED?

Rev. W. G. Archer of Evansville Has Adopted Illustrated Sermon--Possibility of Moving Picture Sermon

The moving picture and illustrated song rage having taken possession of the United States, as no other form of light amusement has, people believe the time not far distant when the churches will adopt the rolling film and colored slide.

The time may come when the preacher will devote a portion of his time to selecting films and trying them out on his machine and then writing his sermons to conform with the views.

One Evansville minister, Rev. W. G. Archer, has adopted the illustrated sermon and illustrated hymn and proposes to make them a part of the regular programme in his evening services. It is as essential to appeal to the eye as well as the ear of the congregation. The stereoptican has been used for years by ministers, teachers, missionaries, lecturers and with a great degree of success. Why not the moving picture sermon and the illustrated hymn?

WORKMEN'S RIGHTS

In Canada a workman may proceed against his employer under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act and at common law. That means untold annoyance and inconvenience to an employer. An employer is even liable for damages to an employee for injuries resulting from the negligence of a fellow employee. Oft times a workmen will get back at an employer in this way. The employee may or may not win. Whether he does or not, it means a great deal of anxiety to you as an employer. Let us relieve you of all this. Our liability policies are designed to do this very thing.

Will be glad to explain our plan.

LADY WHO LIVED ALONE FOUND DEAD IN HER BED

Mrs. A. Kent, Who Resided on Boswell Avenue, Passed Away During the Night—Niece Who Called Caused Investigation to be Made

Mrs. Andrew Kent, who resided all alone on Boswell avenue, was found dead in bed this afternoon.

A niece who went to call upon her found the doors of the house locked and there was no response to her knocking. She secured some of the neighbors and one of the windows was raised and an entrance to the house gained. It did not take long to find why there had been no response to the knocking at the door. Mrs. Kent was lying dead in her bed. She had apparently retired last night and passed away before morning. She was subject to epiletic fits and it is thought she passed away as a result of an attack of one of these.

Mrs. Kent was sixty years of age and had lived alone for some time. Her husband died several years ago and the family are all away from the city. She is survived by several sons and daughters, one sister, Mrs. Jason Elliott, and one brother, Mr. John McPherson, of this city. The deceased lady was highly respected and her death will be greatly regretted.

The case was reported to Coroner Dr. Gray by Dr. Carmichael, who was called in. After making an investigation Dr. Gray decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

MORE INFORMATION WILL BE SOUGHT FROM OTHER CITIES

The public abattoir question was taken up at a meeting of the Property Committee yesterday afternoon, along with several other matters. After discussing the abattoir question very fully, the clerk was instructed to write the other cities where there are public abattoirs and secure information as to their operation. The committee is anxious to secure complete information before proceeding.

BRIG. NOBLE'S ADDRESS TO IMMIGRANTS

At the Salvation Army Temple Last Evening---Big Crowd in Attendance

The Salvation Army barracks was crowded last night on the occasion of the visit of Brigadier Noble of the Immigration department of the army. He was accompanied by Major McGillivray of Ottawa, who was formerly in charge of the corps here. Major McGillivray's many friends will be pleased to hear of his recent promotion from the rank of staff captain to that of major.

The band was in full attendance last night and on behalf of them, Band Master Greene extended the visiting officers a hearty welcome.

Brigadier Noble came especially to see how the local immigrants were getting along. His address last night was principally to them, giving them encouragement and referring to the wonderful opportunities for them in this country.

Major McGillivray also made a few remarks.

The visiting officers left on the C. P. R. Midnight for Ottawa. Brigadier Noble sails on Saturday for International headquarters at London, England.

This is spring. No doubt of it. Your heavy underclothing tells you the fact. Spring—calls for certain handy tools to do up the chores. Suppose you go to the best Store for the best Shovels, best Garden Tools, certainly the best Lawn Mowers and Garden Hose. All the best and surely at BEST'S.

LOCAL SCOTS WILL VISIT LAKEFIELD

Members of Camp Alpine to Visit Camp Munro at Lakefield

A meeting of Camp Alpine, Sons of Scotland, was held in the Orange Hall last night, Chief J. J. Macpherson presiding. The usual routine business being carried through. Arrangements were made for the Peterborough Camp to visit the Munro Camp at Lakefield on Friday night. Bro. D. G. Cameron, recording secretary, will give all necessary information to any who were not at the meeting. Conveyances will leave the Munro House at 7 p.m.

It is interesting to note that Munro Camp was organized by Mr. R. J. Munro, of this city, when he was a resident here. The local camp is now flourishing and the visit to the brethren at the lakeside village is being looked forward to with much pleasure.

THE LECTURE WAS MUCH ENJOYED

"The Rose, Shamrock and Thistle" Dealt With Interestingly by Mr. J. R. Clarke

"The Rose, Shamrock and Thistle," was the subject of an entertaining lecture by Mr. John R. Clarke in St. Andrew's Hall last night. It was held under the auspices of the local Council of the Royal Templars and a large number were in attendance. Mr. Clarke gave a lot of interesting information about England, Ireland and Scotland and described the characteristics of the English, Irish and Scotch people and also dealt with the literature, statesmanship and history of the three countries. The lecture was replete with humorous anecdotes and references and was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Clarke is a lecturer of rare ability and those present had a treat of unusual excellence.

At the conclusion of the lecture, a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Clarke. It was moved by Mr. David Moore and seconded by Dr. M. A. Morrison.

MONSTROSITY IN SHAPE OF A DOUBLE EGG

Dr. Amys, Charlotte st., has a monstrosity in his possession in the shape of a double egg. It was laid yesterday by one of his hens. It strongly resembles a miniature dumbbell. There were two perfectly formed eggs with a sort of bar joining them. It is the most unique thing the doctor has seen for some time in the way of monstrosities.

"It may be of interest to some of our salesmen that, since the Board adjourned in the fall there have come to Peterboro the Canadian Dairyman and the Farming World and these journals are giving prominence to Peterboro," said President Riddell.

He stated that there was one vacant chair at the table and, taken altogether, he was of the opinion that the fairest and squarest buyer who ever sat with the board was the late Mr. Wrighton, whose death had caused the chair to be vacated. He was pleased to see Mr. George Fitzgerald present and was glad he was able to be in attendance.

In case of a difference between buyer and seller Mr. Geo A. Gillespie has been appointed arbitrator, and in case he was the buyer the instructor for the district shall be the arbitrator.

Referring to rule 7 concerning where a buyer objected to weights it was held at annual meeting that the rule that the cheese should be weighed at Peterborough was hardly fair to any interested and the president thought it should be arranged that cheese be weighed at the shipping point. He thought that the final test should be made at the shipping point, and thought that by a conference that a satisfactory understanding in that respect could be reached.

As far as Mr. Gillespie being arbitrator was concerned Mr. Jas. Cook said he objected to any buyer as arbitrator.

Mr. Jas. Whitton said Mr. Gillespie was perfectly honest. He said he was satisfied with Mr. Robt. Ward, the inspector, as arbitrator.

Some reference was made to the wights at Hastings, and the Board was assured that the scales there were most satisfactory.

Mr. Gillespie said at the meeting at which he was elected he had objected to his being made arbitrator and moved that Mr Ward be given that office.

Mr. Whitton and Mr. Cook said that Mr. Gillespie was absolutely honest and competent, but thought Mr. Ward should be the arbitrator for the district and a non-buyer. They stated that in case of a dispute they were willing to stand by the arbitrator's decision.

Mr. Riddell said the difficulty was in getting the inspector's services quickly enough as arbitrator.

Mr. Whitton moved that the instructor, Mr. Robert Ward, be the arbitrator for all buyers. The motion was seconded by Mr. G. W. Mann.

Mr. Fitzgerald opened the sale at 10 1-4; Mr. Jas. Cook bid 10 7-16; Mr. Morton bid 10 3-4, Mr. Whitton bid 10 13-16.

Mr. Whitton offered the highest and selected Ormonde, Westwood, Villiers, Norwood, Killarney, Shamrock, Brickley, Lang, Shearer, Keene.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 10 3-4 for the rest. He selected Central Smith, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Selwyn, Myrtle, King Edward, Young's Point, Warminster, Maple Leaf. All accepted.

Seven other factories were then left. Mr. Whitton offered 10 3-4. He selected Oak Dale and Daisy, but Oak Dale wouldn't accept. Mr. Cook said he would take Trewern and Bensfort if they would ship and draw to Belleville with factory inspection, shipped to order of Dominion Bank, with bill of lading attached, to be shipped to W. S. Cook & Son, Belleville.

Mr. Cook, representing Gunn, Langlois & Co., Montreal, offered 10 3-4 for the balance of the Board with Montreal inspection. Warsaw refused to accept the offer to be inspected at Montreal.

Mr. Jas. Cook, of W. S. Cook & Son, Belleville, took Warsaw, local inspection, at 10 3-4.

Oakdale and North Dummer were unsold.

CAVENDISH CO'S MILL AT LAKEFIELD RUNNING AGAIN

And Activity Prevails in the Village—Steamer Beaver Has Been Rebuilt—Plans for Wharf are Ready—Tennis Club Organized

Special to the Review

Lakefield, May 19.—Mr. Ernest Balsdon, of Buffalo, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Balsdon, of the village for a few days.

Mr. McNulty held a meeting to address the electors in the town hall Monday evening which was well attended, the hall being filled to the doors. Besides Mr. McNulty's address, Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, of Lindsay; Messrs F. D. Kerr and R. F. McWilliams, of Peterborough, delivered speeches that were well received.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sherin are visiting friends in Toronto for a few days.

Miss Kline is spending a few days in Toronto with friends.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. White, of Ottawa, took place from the residence of the deceased's daughter Mrs. Wes. Sherin, on Sunday, May 17th, at 1.30 p.m., the remains having been brought from Ottawa on Saturday. Mrs. White was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Curry, of Ottawa, at the time that she was stricken with an attack of pleurisy, which proved fatal. The deceased was well and favorably known throughout this section, having lived in Lakefield for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Crawford returned from their honeymoon on Saturday, having visited Montreal and other points east. Mrs. Crawford will receive in the near future.

Mr. Best, of Montreal, spent a couple of days in the village this week renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. (Rev.) Jewell, of Enniskillen, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. S. Tanner, Water street.

The Tennis Club has organized for the season, with Mrs. C. S. Tanner, president, and Miss Brown, secretary-treasurer. The grounds have been thoroughly rolled and put in excellent shape and prospects are bright for a most successful season.

The engineer from the Public Works Department of the Dominion Government visited Lakefield on Friday last in connection with the building of a new wharf. The plans are now completed and forwarded to Ottawa for the approval of the Government.

Messrs. Charles Calcutt and Andrew Lagunesse have completed the rebuilding of the steamer Beaver and will make their first trip on Wednesday. The boat is the property of Messrs. Calcutt and Lagunesse, and is a splendid tug. The owners are now open for engagements at all kinds of towing.

Mr. John Gemmell, of Peterborough, was in Lakefield on business Tuesday.

The Cavendish Lumber Co's. mill is now in full operation, which will be a relief to many men, who have been waiting for the water to go down so that the mill could commence work.

On Saturday last a baseball team of small boys came up from Peterborough to play the youths of this village. The score was 17—10 in favor of Lakefield, but the Peterborough boys, who put up a good game, say, "Wait till they come down."

The ladies' baseball team had a work-out on Thursday evening last expected another practice Tuesday evening, but were compelled to postpone practice on account of the rain. The ladies make rapid strides between bases.

Messrs. Joe Perry and Thos. Isbister spent Sunday in Peterborough.

Preparations are completed for the walking tournament, which is being held in the Lakefield skating rink on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. The band will be in attendance each night and quite an interest is being taken in the local walkers.

"HEADACHE, WEAKNESS, HEART TROUBLE"

"I Suffered With for Years--Pe-ru-na Cured Me Entirely."

Miss Albina Chauvin, No. 50 Rue Agnes, St. Henri, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I consider Peruna better than any other remedy, as it cured me when nothing else could. I suffered for years and years with heart trouble, headache and weakness. I never expected to find anything to cure me. I saw one day, in "La Presse," that Peruna was excellent and I tried it. One bottle produced a change in me and if the price had been $1.00 a bottle I would have paid it gladly. I have taken six bottles and am entirely cured. Please accept my thanks and best wishes for your Peruna."

ALBINA CHAUVIN

"Please Accept My Thanks and Best Wishes For Your PE-RU-NA."

Many cases of heart trouble are caused by reflex disturbances.

Derangements of the stomach and liver produce symptoms of heart trouble.

Catarrh of the stomach is a very frequent cause of sympathetic heart disease.

Palpitation, shortness of breath and bloating after meals are the most prominent symptoms.

Such a condition of the stomach is also liable to produce headaches of the worst sort.

Medicines that palliate the symptoms will never lead to a cure.

It is the effect which Peruna has upon the stomach, healing the mucous membranes and restoring the natural function of the stomach, that causes Peruna to bring such prompt relief.

TO TRANSFER THE LICENSE

Of the Hotel National---Application Made by Proprietor Mr. J. A. Lawless

Mr. J. A. Lawless has made application for permission to transfer his hotel license for the Hotel National. A meeting of the commissioners will be held at the office of Inspector Joseph Stewart on June 4th, for the purpose of considering the transfer. In case the license is transferred Mr. Dennison, of Coldwater, will be the new proprietor.

MORE DETAILS OF THE FATAL HOTEL FIRE AT TILLSONBURG

Three Inmates Lose Their Lives—A Number Injured—Toronto Commercial Traveler Among the Dead—Suppose Cause, Defctive Wiring.

Tillsonburg, May 21.—Fire which broke out in the Queen's Hotel about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, destroyed the building and caused three deaths and serious injuries to several. A number of others had very close escapes. The casualties were as follows:

Dead.

Clarence Bernard, commercial traveler for Flett, Lowndes & Co., Toronto.

Miss Gray, milliner, of Tillsonburg, daughter of John Gray, Stayner.

Thomas Wheatley, bartender, Tillsonburg, son of Clinton's chief of police.

Injured.

Mrs. John Mero, wife of proprietor.

Miss Mero, daughter of proprietor.

Miss Dunbar, of Buffalo.

Miss Mary Campbell, clerk, home in Kincardine.

Miss Maud Campbell, milliner, sister of above.

The hotel was a three-storey frame building on the main street and had about 45 rooms. There were some 60 persons in the place when the fire occurred and it is a miracle that the death list is so small, for there was a fire escape only on one side of the building, and there was no watchman employed.

Most of the guests were aroused by hearing women screaming, one of the domestics who first saw the flames having raised the alarm. But even then the hallways were filled with smoke and flame.

Mr. Bernard was sleeping on the second floor. It is presumed that he inhaled flame and fell from the balcony to the ground below. His skull was fractured and other bones in his body broken. He died almost instantly. His head and neck were burned.

Miss Gray jumped from a balcony from the third floor and alighted on the sidewalk. She was in her nightdress. She arose and arranged the robe. Then she fell unconscious and died soon after. Her skull was fractured. She was also burned around the breast.

Wheatley, it is said, had no chance at all to escape from the room he occupied. Fragment of his terribly burned body were found in the ruins.

Miss Dunbar's home is in Buffalo and she was interested to some extent in the hotel business. She leaped from a second floor balcony and was terribly injured. Her sister arrived from Buffalo, coming by special train. She, with Mrs. and Miss Mero, were removed to Dr. Bennett's private hospital, where they were given prompt attention.

Dr. Bennett is also the coroner. He said that he would not hold an inquest. He considered that the hotel had been adequately provided with fire escapes on the outside and with ropes, for fire escape purposes, in the rooms.

The cause of the fire is not known, but John Mero, proprietor of the hotel, blames it to an electric wire.

The destroyed building was of frame and is said to have been about 30 years old. It fronted on two streets. The Michigan Central Railway occupied a portion of the ground floor as a ticket office.

The fire had obtained great headway when first noticed and the fact that all of the dead and injured are suffering from burns shows how quickly the flames spread.

The fire brigade was active and confined the fire to the hotel, being assisted by the still air.

The loss on the hotel is placed at $20,000, with $17,000 insurance. The losses to guests will run heavily. Many were travelers, whose samples were valuable.

L. R. Stuart's tailor shop was damaged by fire and Hewer's dry goods store by smoke.

Guests who had to make hurried exits and who have all lost belongings are: W. C. Holliday, Toronto, representing H. W. Nelson & Co., Ltd.; J. Miners, Toronto, piano tuner for Heintsman & Co.; John Huxley, 108 St. Patrick street, Toronto, representing W. B. Hamilton Shoe Co.; Henry B. Jackman, traveler, 54 Tranby avenue, Toronto; W. T. Wisner, Brantford, representing Massey-Harris Co.; W. T. A. Proctor, 428 Jarvis street, Toronto, representing Austin & Co., jewelers; R. M. Overholt, Toronto, representing A. Bradshaw & Co.; Robt. McKearn, Stratford, representing the Office Specialty Co., Toronto; Miss V. Ellison, Stratford; Miss Campbell, Kincardine, milliner (sister of Miss Maud Campbell, who was injured); Miss McLelland, milliner, Tillsonburg; Dr. J. J. Scott, London; D. H. Smith, Brantford; E. B. Bauer, Aylmer; E. J. Malone (late of Strathroy), Tillsonburg; J. Lynch, London; F. Rogers, vice-president and general manager of Borden Condensed Milk Co., New York; M. Chewin, Borden Condensed Milk Co., and S. S. Despard, Borden Condensed Milk Co.

Clarence A. Bernard was about 45 years of age. He had been in the employ of Flett, Lowndes & Co. for many years and was highly esteemed. He was well known in Masonic circles. Besides his widow Mr. Bernard leaves a family of four. Harold, a young man employed in the C. P. R. offie at Moosejaw; Dorothy aged 16; Helen, aged 6 and an infant.

Miss Gray was the daughter of John Gray, merchant of Stayner, and was very popular. Thomas Wheatley was 31 years of age and the son of the chief of police of Clinton.

The Tillsonburg firemen are much praised for their heroic efforts.

EARTHQUAKE IS ON TRIAL

Which Started First, Earthquake or Fire at Jamaica?

London, May 21.—The question whether the fire which partially destroyed the city of Kingston in January of 1907 broke out before or after the earthquake, has been decided in the King's Bench division in favor of the insurance companies interested in the losses incurred.

The insurance companies claimed that the earthquake caused the fires, and that consequently they were protected from the claims for damages under the earthquake exemption clause in their policies.

The present test case was brought by a Manchester firm against the London and Lancashire Fire Insurance Co. It had occupied the attention of the court for the best part of a month, many witnesses were brought from Jamaica and leading counsel were engaged by both sides.

Piano and Organ Merger In the Air.

Woodstock, May 21.—There came very near being a merging of two big piano and organ firms with Woodstock as the headquarters last week, and it is possible that the deal may yet go through. E. C. Thornton of the Morris Piano Co. of Listowel and Mr. Tudhope of Toronto spent some days in the city following up an option they had secured on D. W. Karn's interests in the Karn Piano & Organ Co. The option given, however, has expired. It was contingent upon Thornton and Tudhope to sell stock sufficient to cover the price asked—about $200,000.

Black Hand Outrage.

New York, May 21.—A wealthy Italian physician's refusal to comply with the demands of Black Hand criminals resulted in grave dangers to the lives of a hundred persons yesterday when a bomb was exploded in the tenement house at 315 East 11th street.

Mexican Hold-Up.

Mexico City, Mex., May 21.—News just received here states that the occupants of two sleeping cars attached to a train which left this city Saturday for Vera Cruz, were held up by two negroes and at the point of a pistol relieved of their money and valuables amounting to about $1,000.

Honorably Acquitted.

Stratford, May 21.—F. B. Deacon, accused of stealing a promissory note of value of $1,000, and allowed out on $4,000 bail, was honorably acquitted of the charge.

SOME FROST IN THE NORTHWEST

But it is Not Likely That Damage Will be Done the Wheat

Winnipeg, May 21.—Yesterday it was so cold as to be dangerously near the frost line. Indeed, frost was reported from a number of points, including Indian Head, and Brandon. Ten degrees were recorded at some places, but it is unlikely that wheat would be damaged to any extent, although it will be disastrous to the wild fruit crop, which promised to be remarkably prolific.

If the wheat is nipped the grain will stool out even better than otherwise, although it may be thrown back a few days. It has been growing splendidly, and is up from two to six inches all over Manitoba and Saskatchewan, while out in winter wheat areas some of it is two feet high.

King Edward to Visit Russia.

London, May 21.—King Edward will spend a week shortly with the Emperor and Empress of Russia. It is expected that he will embark on the royal yacht at Portsmouth on May 29, at the conclusion of President Fallieres' visit to London. This will be the first time that the King has met the Emperor since his accession. The last meeting was on the occasion of the funeral of Emperor Alexander in 1894, when the King was Prince of Wales.

Mrs. Guinness Legally Dead.

Laporte, Ind., May 21.—Coroner Mack has rendered an official verdict declaring the adult female body found in the Guinness home after the fire, April 28, to be Mrs. Guinness.

The verdict is that she came to her death through felonious homicide, the perpetrator thereof being to the coroner unknown.

Mining Men Coming.

Toronto, May 21.—About 200 mining engineers are expected to attend the Canadian National Exhibition the first week in September, when the Canadian Association of Mining Engineers will hold a convention. There will be a collection of exhibits of minerals from each of the provinces.

Fish Experts Increase.

Belleville, May 21.—Up till May 15, 1907, the fish company at Cape Vincent purchased from Bay of Quinte fishermen 11,200 pounds of whitefish, and up to May 15, this year, [illegible] pounds, showing a good increase. It is reported that the run of fish is much larger this season.

PARLIAMENT IS AT WORK BUSINESS GOING ON AGAIN

A Variety of Business Under Consideration and Disposed of—.G.TP. Guaranteed Bonds—Regrets Troops Are Not Going to Quebec—Has There Been More Ballot Burning—Supplies Voted—Election Bill.

Ottawa, May 21.—Hon. Mr. Fielding yesterday introduced a bill respecting the Government guaranteed bonds of the G. T. P. It has three main purposes, first, to authorize the G. T. P. to pledge bonds guaranteed by the Government as security for the raising of money.

The earlier legislation, said Mr. Fielding, undoubtedly contemplated that the company should have the power to pledge bonds as well as to sell them. The machinery, however, was inadequate. If the market were deemed unfavorable to press the sale of the bonds the company might raise the money by pledging the bonds as collateral security.

The second purpose was due to certain judicial decisions given in England to the effect that when a bond is pledged in the way contemplated by this bill it was deemed to have been issued and the power of the company to sell it ceased. Consequently when bonds given as collateral security were restored to the possession of the company, the company would not have the legal right to sell them. To remove all possible doubt it was declared that the pledging of bonds would not interfere with the right of the company to sell them at a later stage. The same difficulty would probably come up in connection with other companies and it might be necessary to pass general legislation upon the subject. In the meantime he asked that the company be given power to pledge bonds as security with their right to sell the same bonds when the company again obtained possession of them.

The third purpose was to facilitate the construction of the railway. To enable the company to make prompt payment for work done it was proposed that the Government be enabled to give them a letter of credit authorizing the company to expend a sum not exceeding at any time $1,000,000, but before any letter of credit should be issued to the Grand Trunk, the parent company must agree to make good any money which might be expended in any unauthorized way.

Mr. Foster understood that credit was based on money already in [illegible]

"Quite so," replied Mr. Fielding, "and only on money derived from these bonds. It is not a letter of credit on consolidated fund at all."

Claude Macdonell brought up the tercentenary and regretted the abandonment by the Militia Department of the program to mobilize a large number of militia at Quebec. The money voted by various public bodies and given by individuals was on the basis of a grand military display, he said. The militia had been looking forward to the event, and many of the regiments were over strength in consequence.

Sir Frederick Borden replied that there had been no abandonment of anything, although there had been a change of plans. Owing to transportation difficulties, it had been found impossible to get together such a large number of troops as was anticipated. There was no particular necessity for a demonstration in force. All that was wanted was fair representation.

"Has it come to this," asked Sir Frederick, "that in order to have our regiments full strength we must have a picnic of some sort? I have a higher opinion of the militia than that."

On the motion to go into supply Mr. Borden mentioned the loss of papers of the Stanstead bye-election of 1908. It appeared, he said, that a great many people had access to the room where the ballots were kept. In view of what had been discovered in Brockville and West Huron, that fraudulent ballots had been used, it was highly desirable that an enquiry should be made. The late clerk of the crown-in-chancery was a most careful official and it was difficult to believe that the papers had been sent away by him to be burned three days after they were received by him.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said as far as he had been able to ascertain the ballots disappeared before the late clerk died, on April 8. He welcomed an investigation, but nobody believed that the disappearance was anything but an accident.

Mr. Fielding stated that Mr. Speaked had taken action to prevent such an affair occurring again, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised that he would to-day move for the appointment of a special committee.

Pending the completion of negotiations, the Government was given a good run with supply, the Opposition offering no objection to the estimates for the Northwest Mounted Police, and nearly all for civil government being passed.

It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will meet the views of the Opposition by submitting a new clause—number one—for the Aylesworth election bill. It will provide for allocation of lists by judges in such constituencies as are bisected by Federal boundaries. The provincial lists are to be left as they are. Clause 17 will be made satisfactory by preserving the secrecy of ballot.

It is hinted that boundary matters entered into the discussion between Premier Roblin of Manitoba and Sir Wilfrid.

In supply, Mr. Foster questioned the value of the Arctic explorations of Capt. Bernier. "Who was trying to pry any of these northern islands away from us?" he asked.

"Possession," replied the First Minister, "is nine points of the law. If we had sent mounted police to plant the flag in the Yukon twenty years ago we would have had Skagway today."

He had some new maps issued by the United States War Department, on which many northern islands are in the same color as the United States.

Mr. Robitaille objected to Cabinet Ministers taking part in provincial campaigns in Ontario and Quebec, and he read some remarks by Hon. Sydney Fisher, to the effect that the politics of Quebec were bound up with those of the Dominion.

Hon. Mr. Graham said he was a supporter of Hon. A. G. MacKay and he was proud of it. Further, he would get on Mr. MacKay's platform beside him or behind him.

Replying to Mr. Foster, the Finance Minister said Mr. Watson, K.C., counsel in the Cassels' investigation, would be paid a retaining fee based upon the length of the enquiry and $100 a day and expenses. No arrangement had been made with Mr. Perron, junior counsel.

Arrested For Murder.

Fielding, Sask., May 21.—Henry Steinberg has been arrested at Cincinnati, Ohio, on a charge of murdering his wife. They went to Fielding, two years ago. Mrs. Steinberg died under mysterious circumstances last year and Steinberg disappeared. His arrest followed the report made to the coroner's jury by the Regina chemists who examined the vitals removed from the body, which were exhumed three weeks ago. The motive for the crime is thought to be $500 possessed by the wife and the desire to be free to marry the woman he is now said to be living with. He will be extradited.

British Ship Founders.

Falmouth, May 21.—The British steamer Latona, Capt. Rollo, 2,702 tons, from Montreal, May 8, for London, foundered westward of the Lizard yesterday, after colliding with the British steamer Japanic, Capt. Thompson, 2,296 tons, from Newport for Montevideo.

All the passengers and crew of the Latona were saved by the Japanic and have been landed here. The Japanic was badly damaged.

Tried to Dynamite Bridge.

New York, May 21.—That an attempt was made to blow up the new bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, over the Harlem river at Westfarms road, became known yesterday when a valise containing ten sticks of dynamite was found floating in the river. The watchman on the bridge was set upon by five men when he caught them in the act of placing a charge of dynamite under the structure.

May Not Press For Annulment.

New York, May 21.—There is a possibility that Evelyn Thaw may abandon the proceedings for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw, according to a statement made yesterday by her counsel, Dan O'Reilly.

LOCAL MAN'S UNCLE HAS AWFUL DEATH

William H. Marsh of Brooklyn, Brother of Rev. E. A. Pearson's Mother, Victim of Hydrophobia—Arranged His Business Affairs While Waiting for the End.

William H. Marsh, the Brooklyn manufacturer, who is referred to in a New York despatch as having calmly awaited death, which came as a result of being bitten by a mad dog, was an uncle of Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of George street Methodist church. Mr. Marsh was a brother of Mr. Pearson's mother, and the family here received a telegram last night notifying them of the sad event.

The New York despatch says:—

New York, May 20.—It was on Monday last that Wm. H. Marsh, of 74 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, manufacturer of water meters, received his sentence of death at the Pasteur Institute, 361 West 23rd street, Monday night, and Tuesday he spent in setting his affairs in order, for though he was still rational he could not know at what moment the convulsive spasms that precede the terrible death from hydrophobia would attack him.

There are three stages recognized in the disease called rabies. The first is that of incubation. In the second stage convulsive spasms seize the sufferer, in which he intensely desires water, but cannot swallow it. The third and final stage is that of paralysis. When this stage is reached death is near at hand. This stage Mr. Marsh reached this morning, and at seven o'clock to-night he died.

True hydrophobia is almost as certain in the periods of its development and final culmination as the march of the clock. When Mr. Marsh left the Pasteur Institute Monday he knew that he must die, and he had been told that 72 hours was almost the definite limit to his life. From that time the patient marked the passage of those seventy-two hours. He did not know the approach of the end by several hours, for with the final paralysis came a merciful coma. Mr. Marsh had requested his physician when the final convulsions came to make things easier for him with opiates. The patient was unconscious most of the day either because of the opiates or the severity of the convulsions.

The oddest circumstance that surrounds the case is the fact that so far as is known Mr. Marsh was never bitten by a dog. That he contracted rabies from a four-year-old brindle bull terrier is regarded, however, by the doctors at the Pasteur Institute as certain. The dog had been owned by Mr. Marsh for several years, and was esteemed as a pet and a watchdog.

About six weeks ago the dog came into the office from the street one day with a wound on his side. Mr. Marsh dressed the wound himself and thought no more about it. Soon after that the animal began to act oddly and was tied up. A veterinary surgeon was at once called in and said that the dog had rabies. A policeman was sent for and the dog was shot.

Even then Mr. Marsh had no apprehension and it was not until last Saturday that he became suspicious. On that day he noticed that he had difficulty in swallowing and that the muscles of his throat and mouth were under bad control.

He consulted his family physician, Dr. Henry M. Colliman, of Linden avenue, who advised him to go to the Pasteur Institute. This he did on Monday, and was told not only that he had rabies in an advanced stage, but also that his case was hopeless.

Dr. William L. Wheeler, one of the resident physicians at the institute, made the examination and diagnosis. When the examination had been concluded Dr. Wheeler said there was no doubt that the case was one of rabies.

"Tell me the worst," said Mr. Marsh, "I want to know what I have to meet."
